WOUNDED SOLDIERS.

THINGS THAT INTERESTED AND PUZZLED OFFICERS OR SURGEONS.

Disreputable to Be Hit by a Spent Ball. Cases of Remarkable Nerve Displayed by Wounded Men—Heading Off a Panic In a Nashville Hospital.

"Wounded men," said the colonel, "were often misunderstood. General Fuller of Toledo told me that he never expected forgiveness for one harsh judgment of his. In the midst of a battle he was trying to stop the flight of panic stricken men. One man came stumbling along, not heeding a word that was said to him. Indignant and impatient, Fuller, as he came near him, leaned from his horse and touched the man with his sword, saying sharply, 'Go back, sir!' The man looked up with a look that said as plain as words, 'I am looking for a place to die.' He opened his blouse and showed a great, gaping wound in his breast. Then he dropped to the ground. The general dismounted as soon as he could, but almost as he took the man's head in his arms the poor fellow died.

"Some men when struck showed no sign. I remember one little fellow who was struck three times in as many minutes. The first shot struck his right arm, and he proceeded to load with his left. The next shot struck him in the leg and brought him to his knees. He had his left arm up, ramming home a load, when a bullet struck that arm. Then he looked up and said quietly: 'They have a particular spite against me. I guess I'll quit.' And he dropped down."

"We had one man in our company," said the sergeant, "who was shot through the body at Shiloh. He was carried off in an ambulance, and the boys supposed they would never see him again. But three days after the battle the regiment went into camp not far from the field hospital, and that afternoon the men were surprised to see the man who had been shot through and through walk into camp, using his rifle as a cane. He announced that he had had enough of the hospital and wouldn't go back to it. The regimental surgeon swore a good deal, insisting that the wounded man should return to the hospital, but in the end agreed that the plucky fellow should be cared for in the company's quarters. The boys took great care of him. He improved rapidly, went on duty as soon as he was able to walk and was with the company to the end of the service.

"Other men who couldn't bear physical pain were greatly troubled by flesh wounds and received less sympathy than they deserved. The hardest wounds to bear were those from spent balls. These were more painful than the wounds from the hard hitters, but men struck by spent bullets received no sympathy at all. For some reason it was counted disreputable to be hit by a spent ball or a splinter from a rock, and many men worried along under the most painful wounds without going to the hospital or without even consulting the surgeon. Some of these fellows carry the marks today and say nothing about them.

"The official report of the capture of Lookout mountain," said the major, "stated that General Walter C. Whitaker was wounded, but that he didn't leave the field. That is all true, but it is only half the story. Whitaker was one of the most impetuous, driving officers in the army. He was a regular old stormer. He was pushing things in great shape in front when he was struck by a rifle ball. He became deathly sick, and it was supposed at first that he was fatally wounded. The surgeons and some of his associate officers gathered about him, anxious and nervous. A surgeon opened the general's coat and vest, looking for the wound, which seemed to be in the vicinity of the stomach. He found between the vest and the underclothing a rifle ball that had not broken the skin.

"He said quietly, 'A spent ball.' The general opened his eyes and looked up wrathful and indignant. 'What's that? What's that? Somebody hit me with a spent ball? I won't stand it. Bring me my horse.' And, fairly throwing aside all the people about him, he sprang to his feet, climbed on his horse, and, with his clothing in disarray and his hat banged on his head, started for the front, swearing at the man who had hit him with a spent ball. But the old general after that probably had more sympathy with the men who were struck by balls that seemed to fall from the air or that came with as little force as a stone thrown by a vicious boy. Sometimes these would strike a man on the foot and fairly craze him with pain. Sometimes they would drop on his back as he lay face down on the ground kicking up his heels, and he would writhe as though he were in the agonies of death."

"While I was in charge of one of the hospitals at Nashville," said the surgeon, "the most difficult cases to handle were those in which the soldiers were influenced by hallucinations or superstitions. The patients were arranged in a large hall, the cots in long rows, extending the full length of the room. One night a patient about half way down the hall died. The next night the man coming next in the row died, and the next day the third man in order died. Immediately Nos. 4, 5 and 6 insisted on being moved from the row, and they were so wild about it that they had to be moved.

"No. 7, I noticed, was a quiet, uncomplaining man of equable temper, and, feeling that I must in some way stop the panic and break the line of superstitious dread, I went to him and led up to the point by asking him if he had any superstitious notions. He said he had not. Then I asked him if he would be satisfied to remain as he was and explained that if he did not insist upon being moved I could quiet the excitement. He smiled and said he would trust himself in the unlucky row. Trifling as this circumstance was, it had the greatest influence on the patients in the row. They watched that man for two days with unflagging interest, and it was a great trial for him to see, whenever he was lifted up by the nurse, a dozen wild eyed men looking him over to see whether death was on him or not, but he stood his ground and stopped the panic. He recovered and has been as hearty as a buck ever since."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Well Met.

Years ago a little periodical was published in England entitled "Captain Rock In London; or, the Chieftain's Weekly Gazette." Naturally it was full of Irish ideas, and so not entirely agreeable to the existing government.

One morning, while it was in full swing, two gentlemen met accidentally in London's Green park. One of them was the editor of the seditious paper and the other an Englishman who seemed to be greatly interested in public affairs. They drifted into talk on Ireland, and at its conclusion the stranger presented his gold snuffbox to the editor.

"Take this, my friend," said he, "as a little memorial of the most useful and instructive conversation I have ever had on Irish affairs. You will not value it the less when I tell you I am the prince regent."

"Will your royal highness," said the Irishman, "permit me in tendering my grateful thanks to name myself, for I fear your royal highness has heard of me before."

"By all means," said the prince, a good deal amused at the assurance of the intrepid Irishman. "Tell me who you are."

"May it please your royal highness, I am Captain Rock."

And in those days the captain's name was equivalent to that of a dynamiter. Needless to say that the now acquaintances parted with no talk of a future meeting.

Healthy, happy children make better men and women of us all. A little care and a little planning before birth is often more important than anything that can be done after. On the mother's health and strength depend the life and the future of the children. A weak and sickly woman cannot bear strong and healthy children. Most of the weakness of women is utterly inexcusable. Proper care and proper medicine will cure almost any disorder of the feminine organism. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has been tested in thirty years of practice. It is healing, soothing, strengthening. It is perfectly natural in its operation and effect. By its use, thousands of weak women have been made strong and healthy—have been made the mothers of strong and healthy children. Taken during gestation, it makes child birth easy and almost painless and insures the well being of both mother and child. THE PREY OF A GRIZZLY.

By a Little Overzight Bruin Was Robbed of a Good Meal.

In the early settlement of California grizzly bears were numerous and troublesome, but few men ever had a more singular experience with a grizzly than Paul Sweet, who kept a tannery near Santa Cruz. The story is told by Mrs. Dall in "My First Holiday."

Mr. Sweet was one day walking alone in the woods, when he came suddenly upon a grizzly bear and her two cubs. He was quite unarmed, and before he had time to consider any plan of action the bear was upon him. She struck him down, but he kept his presence of mind and lay perfectly quiet.

The grizzly stood over him for a minute or more, then seized him by the waistband and began dragging him along. He did not resist, and she dragged him for a dozen rods to a little sandy hollow, where she dropped him and began digging a hole in the sand. Into this hole she rooted the man, and then nosed and pawed the sand over him until he was buried from sight. The prudent animal, not being hungry at the moment, was making a cache of her prey.

Mr. Sweet's heart lightened as he realized the brute's intentions, and he began to hope that he might escape. He waited a few minutes after the bear had covered him in, and then, thinking that she had retired from the scene, he began to work himself free very cautiously. The grizzly was on the watch, however, and at the first movement of her prey rushed to the spot and with two or three strokes of her paw snugly tucked him in again.

Mr. Sweet instantly became motionless again and allowed himself to be reburied in the sand. Luckily his hat had slipped over his face, so that the sand did not fill his nose and eyes, and by raising his head a little he was able to throw off the sand sufficiently to breathe.

He was more wary next time and lay still for an hour or two, until he felt pretty sure that the grizzly had retired from the spot. Very cautiously then he worked himself free from the sand and crept away.

Sarcasm.

The floorwalker bowed affably.

"Take the elevator, madam," he urged.

"Don't get sarcastic!" protested the shoplifter, with asperity.

Thrusting a brass bedstead into her pocket, she turned away with a withering look.—Detroit Journal.

A KING AS AN AMERICAN SUITOR.

Louis Philippe Rejected by a Merchant, but Accepted by a Monarch.

"One day the Duke of Orleans prepared his attire with all the solicitude of a young man and lover," says William Perrine in an article in The Ladies' Home Journal on the times when Louis Philippe taught school in Philadelphia. "If his white knee breeches were of cloth, his stockings were certainly of silk. He picked out from his traveling chest the shirt most lavishly lace beruffled at bosom and at wrist. He donned his silk waistcoat, artistically brocaded on a white ground. His coat of dark green silk had tails that reached his ankles, and in one of the pockets was an elegant snuffbox from Versailles, while the other held an equally elegant kerchief. With a bunch of seals pendent from either fob, a long polished cane in his hand and a beaver hat of most graceful curve upon his long black hair, our royal suitor put his best foot foremost and was off to propose for his ladylove's hand—to her father. He halted under the twin buttonwood trees that shaded the front of the mansion of Mr. Willing, who might be his father-in-law, and he rapped with the knocker at the door, while his heart went pitapat at the thought of Mistress Abigail, who might be his wife. The wide, generous hall admitted him to the parlor, the folding doors a little later admitted Mr. Thomas Willing, arbiter of his fate, and the proposal was made in form. Mr. Willing replied:

"'Sir, should you ever be restored to your hereditary position you will be too great a match for my daughter. If not, she is too great a match for you.'

"More than a dozen years elapsed. Louis Philippe, still poor, still exiled from his country, was in Sicily. French armies had driven thither from his throne Ferdinand IV, king of Naples, and in that king's daughter, Marie Amelie, Louis Philippe found the living image of his early love. The king of Naples was not good at antitheses. His acquaintance with politics was better than his command of rhetoric. He graciously answered, 'Yes.'"

Tired Metals.

It is a fact of comparatively recent discovery in chemical metallurgy that metals lose their vitality from repetitions of shocks and strains and may be said, as the expression is, to suffer from fatigue—that is, they may be worked till their molecules fail to hold together, and then they are in a state of exhaustion As is familiarly known, bars of tin, rods of brass and wires of any metal will separate, owing to fatigue, if bent backward and forward continuously. But by careful experiments, however, the fact is made to appear that a remedy exists for this condition of metals, if the overstrain does not border on rupture, and this remedy is very much like that which is applied in the case of an overworked human frame—namely, rest. Feather edged tools recover their vitality better than any other. Of course the length of time required for this rest varies with different metals and the amount of strain to which they have been subjected. Hard metals, such as iron and steel, use up one and two years' time in the process. On the other hand, soft metals, like lead, retain their cohesive force longer and also require less rest.

Bacon as Food For Soldiers.

Of all of the meats supplied to the army bacon is looked upon as the most valuable. It certainly is the easiest to handle, the most palatable and serves the greatest variety of purposes of any meat known. Properly cooked, bacon makes not only meat, but an excellent substitute for butter. As a rule, bacon is not sufficiently cooked to be most relished. It should be crisp, so that it will break or very nearly so. A slice of bacon that cannot be cut with a fork is not cooked enough to acquire the best flavor. It is quite out of the question to furnish butter for the use of the army, therefore bacon fat, heated until it smokes, is a substitute not to be lost sight of.—New York Ledger.

THE DAYS OF OLD.

Let's go back, O brother mine,
To the precious ways of the days gone by—
Back to the gleam of the glad sunshine,
When we were children, you and I.
We are growing old, but I long so much
For the grasp of a mother's hands to hold
Me away from sin and its soiling touch
As they used to do in the days of old.

I'm tired of dogma of church and state;
Let's trail with our feet the dust of the lane
As we wander down to the pasture gate
And bring the cows for mother again
And see once more the wood lark dip
From stake to stake of the ridered fence
And feel the old time fellowship
We felt in our boyhood innocence.

Let's climb to the rafters overhead
And build a swing on the old barn floor,
Let's "hide and seek" in the wagon shed
And be "knee high" again once more,
Let's part the weeds where the truant hen
Has stolen her nest, then stoop and fold
The sheltering weeds o'er the nest again
As we used to do in the days of old.

Oh, the endless joys of the days of old,
With the path that led to the fruited trees,
Where the dandelions their coins of gold
Had scattered to bribe the bumblebees!
Down in the grass was the cricket's chirr,
And overhead was the dragon fly,
And roundabout us every where
Was the dreamy gleam of the days gone by.

And, oh, the years and tears since then,
The miles and smiles that have lured us on,
The graves we have passed and the moments when
The cradle and coffin seemed almost one!
So let's go back, O brother mine,
Forgetting tonight our greed of gold,
And talk awhile of the glad sunshine
That gilded the ways of the days of old!
—Alfred Ellison in Chicago Record.

THE BOOKMAKERS.

Algernon Charles Swinburne, the English poet, an ardent supporter of Anglo-Saxon alliance, is said to be contemplating an American tour.

Henrik Ibsen has been compelled by the rude curiosity of English tourists to give up his 20-year-old habit of going to the Grand cafe at Christiania at a regular time and by a regular road and spending the evening there with his friends.

Grant Allen can boast of having English, Scottish, Irish and French blood in his veins. He was born in Kingston, Ont., 50 years ago, and one of his appointments, after a distinguished university career at Oxford, was that of principal of the then newly established government college at Spanish Town, Jamaica.

Rudyard Kipling recently received a polite note asking if his story, "The Man Who Would Be King," is founded on fact. Mr. Kipling conceived the inquiry to be an attempt to secure his autograph, so he cut out from the note the three words "It is not," and, pasting them neatly on a blank sheet of paper, mailed it to the inquirer without his signature.

The Song of the Cradle.

Bye, bye! Hope rises high:
There's a sweet little cradle hung up in the sky;
A dear little life that is coming to bless;
Two soft chubby hands that will pat and caress;
A pure little soul winging down from above;
A darling to care for, a baby to love.

In the days when Eve sinned it was written that motherhood should hereafter be accompanied with pain and sorrow; but this curse upon our foreparents has been lightened more and more as mankind have learned to rise superior to many of their sins and mistakes.

One of the grandest agencies which enlightened Science has discovered to relieve motherhood from excessive suffering is the "Favorite Prescription" devised by Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y. This wonderful "Prescription" imbues the entire nervous system with natural, healthy vitality; gives elastic vigor to the delicate organism specially concerned in motherhood; renders the prospective mother strong and cheerful and makes the coming of baby entirely free from danger and almost free from pain. The delighted gratitude of Mrs. Pearl Walton, of Alvo, Cass Co., Neb., will find an echo in the heart of every expectant mother:

"Previous to the birth of my child," writes Mrs. Walton, "I had no appetite, was sick at my stomach, had headache, could not rest at night, was completely worn out in every way. I commenced to use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and began to improve right away. I used two bottles of this great medicine and felt like a new person. At the time of confinement I was in labor but a little while and I owe it all to that great remedy—Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription."

A TRYING NAVAL JOB.

WHAT IT MEANS TO PUT A WARSHIP IN COMMISSION.

The Enormous Amount of Work That Must Be Performed and the Ceremonies That Are Observed Before the Pennant and the Stars and Stripes Are Hoisted.

In times of peace as well as when war's dark clouds gloom the nation you are liable to read in the newspapers an announcement to the effect that one of the vessels of the navy is going "into commission." It is not a very impressive phrase, but the full meaning of the term is something of which few have any adequate conception. To put a modern warship into commission involves an enormous amount of work, which can be fully appreciated only by one who has observed the process from beginning to end.

When a vessel of the navy is laid up in reserve, "in ordinary," as it is called, it is far from an attractive object and could hardly be recognized as the same ship when in thorough trim, with crew aboard. The ship is anchored at a convenient navy yard; the stores are sent ashore, her engines and guns covered with oil and an antirust paint; her decks are allowed to become dirty, her sides dull and stained from rusty chains. Thus she lies perhaps for months, and then an order comes from the secretary of the navy, through the chief of the bureau of navigation, directing the commanding officer of the yard to get her ready for sea.

The first thing to be done is to bring as many men as possible from the receiving ship, which lies hard by, and these, with the force of the yard, under the direction of whatever officers are available, begin at once to put things to rights and remove the accumulated dust and dirt from the different parts of the equipment; the engineer's force goes at once to the engines and boiler rooms; the antirust paint is removed from the engines; new packing is put in the valves and joints; the pumps are tested, the rust and dirt knocked from interiors of fire boxes, and boiler tubes and grate bars renewed.

Outwardly everything is now in fair condition, but this is only the beginning. It remains to get up steam in some of the boilers, turn over the engines to see if they are in proper trim, start the dynamos, test the electric lights and the pilothouse, signals, turn on the searchlights, start the fans, work the steering gear and steering engines, set the hoisting machinery in motion and put the boat cranes in operation. Every engine, boiler, pipe, wire, tube, rivet, bolt, nut and plate is carefully inspected, and if found unserviceable from any cause repaired.

Next the equipment storehouse is visited, and a full allowance of beef, pork, beans, potatoes, coffee, sugar, salt, flour, meal, clothing, shoes, hammocks, blankets, paint, tobacco—in short, the whole miscellaneous assortment of the commissary department, is placed on board. The paymaster of the ship is responsible for every article received, and a strict account is kept of each. Then the galley, or cooking stove, has to be examined to see whether it is complete in all its findings. The outfit of a galley usually consists of two copper kettles of 30 gallons each, a 50 gallon kettle, with cast iron jacket and copper hinged covers, two steamers for vegetables, each with a capacity of 32 gallons; two sets of saucepans, a fine set of tools for lifting and firing and the ordinary cooking implements.

The line officers look after the condition of the guns, the rigging, the boats, the cables, the anchors, the flags and signals, the charts, the nautical instruments and other parts of the ship's equipment. What this means can only be appreciated by one who has actually undertaken the task. A volume might be written in regard to the signals alone.

When all this work has been done, the ship is ready to go into commission, and up to this time everything has been under control of the commandant of the yard, so that when the captain of the ship arrives and reports himself to the yard commander little remains for him to attend to. In the meantime men have been brought together to constitute the crew.

Sometimes they are enlisted particularly for the ship which is about to go into service, at other times they are withdrawn from other ships which have just been put out of commission. The crew and marines report aboard with bags and hammocks; the captain orders the crew to be drawn up on the spar deck promptly at noon upon the day on which the ship is to be put formally in commission, reads to them his orders from the secretary of the navy detailing him to the command, hoists the commission pennant to the main truck and the stars and stripes to the gaff or staff at the stern, and all is ready.

The ship is now in commission.—San Francisco Call.

TWIN TORTURERS!

Lumbago and Rheumatism made Harmless by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Lumbago and Rheumatism cause endless pain and suffering. Every man and woman who runs chances of getting wet, or catching cold, is liable to suffer from one or both. Our hospitals are full of sufferers from these diseases; none are more painful. Every nerve is on fire; every joint is a centre of agony; every muscle an area of torture. To move hand or foot makes the victim shriek with agony.

Rheumatism makes more cripples than all the railroad accidents that ever happened. Twisted, mis-shapen caricatures of humanity, who cannot walk without misery, are to be seen every day. The kidneys are to blame. If they are healthy you needn't fear Rheumatism or Lumbago. Dodd's Kidney Pills keep the kidneys healthy and cure Rheumatism and Lumbago.

Dodd's Kidney Pills ALWAYS CURE.

THE BEST ON EARTH.

So Says Robert Meikle About Dodd's Kidney Pills.

London, Ont., Oct. 17.—Robert Meikle, a member of the staff of the Star Dining Hall, is kept busy answering the questions asked him by his many friends at present. They all want to know how he recovered from what the doctors said, was a fatal attack of Diabetes.

And he invariably answers: Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me, when other earthly means had failed. They are the only medicine on earth that can cure Diabetes, and they do it every time."

If Dodd's Kidney Pills cured Mr. Meikle they will cure you. Try them.

Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment...

NOT A PATENT MEDICINE....

He says:—Among the proprietary medicines recognized is Dr. Chase's Ointment, compounded by Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto, as a remedy for Piles, Eruptions and Eczematic Skin Diseases, for which it has been used with marked success and has effected remarkable cures. It is not the practice of the Medical Profession indiscriminately to use proprietary medicines, but there are hundreds of physicians throughout this country who are using Dr. Chase's Ointment in their practice. We handed out during the last month 2,700 boxes of free samples of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and the thankful results have been something astonishing. Here is what one of the cures says:

MR. O. P. ST. JOHN, 246 Shaw St., Toronto, in his letter states: I suffered for some years from Itching Piles, at times being unable to sleep for the annoyance caused by them. After trying almost every remedy known, I was induced to try Dr. Chase's Ointment, and can say one box entirely cured me. I cannot speak too highly of it, and have recommended it to several of my friends, all whom have been cured by its use.

should be taken not to hang the wet skirts and wrap near a hot fire, as the material is then very apt to shrink. If they are allowed to dry slowly in a cool place, the effects are less injurious.

Lemon juice possesses the property of making the finger nails transparent, but is inclined to dry the skin around them. This difficulty may be obviated by rubbing the nails with a little oil or cold cream after using the lemon juice.

Table napkins should be folded quite plainly, with the embroidered cipher or initial on the outside. Fanciful foldings, such as are seen in restaurants, are quite out of form for private houses. A piece of bread is no longer placed on or in the napkin when the table is laid. All the bread is arranged in a basket, which is passed to the guests by the servant. Now that pears, peaches and apples are so large it is customary to cut these fruits in quarters before offering them, a fork being provided for taking the pieces from the plate.

The cut shows a bodice of almond green silk, with a yoke, plastron and sleeve caps in one piece of dark green embroidery on white satin. The toreador cravat of cream silk is ornamented with studs and passes into the belt of dark green silk.

The Duty of the Rich.

The rich man has no more right to repose than the poor. He is as much bound to labor as the poor—not to labor in the same way, but to labor as really, as efficiently, as intensely. I am tempted to say more intensely, because he has a sphere so much wider and nobler opened to him. No man has a right to seek property in order that he may enjoy, may lead, a life of indulgence, may throw all toil on another class of society. This world was not made for ease. Its great law is action, and action for the good of others still more than for our own. This is its law, and we violate it only to our own misery and guilt.—William Ellery Channing.

Norwich, Ont., Oct. 3.—Mrs. J. S. Hooper, wife of Mr. J. Stanley Hooper, of North Norwich township, is a living proof of the unapproached value of Dodd's Kidney Pills, in the treatment of diseases of women.

Mrs. Hooper was a martyr to Female Weakness and Kidney Disease for twelve years. Norwich, Detroit and Buffalo physicians treated her unavailingly. She then tried Dodd's Kidney Pills. Four boxes cured her thoroughly and made her as healthy, strong and vigorous as she ever was. Dodd's Kidney Pills are women's best friends.

TWO LITTLE REPUBLICS.

One Is the Oldest, the Other the Smallest in Existence.

Goust is the smallest republic as to area, but Tavolara is the smallest republic as to population. Goust is only one mile in area. It is located on the flat top of a mountain in the Pyrenees, between France and Spain, and is recognized by both of those countries. It is governed by a President and a Council of 12. It was established in 1648 and has 130 inhabitants. The President is Tax Collector, Assessor and Judge. Goust has no church, clergyman or cemetery. The people worship in a church outside of their own territory, and the dead bodies are slid down to a cemetery in the valley below. In that valley all the baptisms and marriages are performed. Tavolara is twelve miles northeast of Sardinia. It is an island five miles long by a half mile wide. Its total population consists of 55 men, women and children. The women go to the polls with the men and elect every year a President and Council of six, all serving without pay. The inhabitants support themselves by fishing and raising fruit and vegetables. The republic has no army and no navy.

Grasshoppers wild are we,
The white road's our desire

And kisses grow upon every brier,

Vim Vigor Vitality

DR. WARD'S BLOOD & NERVE PILLS

VIM—to work and to win—to keep a sane mind in a sound body—to laugh at worry.

VIGOR—to ward off disease—to conquer obstacles—to transmit health and strength to your posterity.

VITALITY—to resist the fearful strain and tension of modern life—to make up for the constant drains of overwork. Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills confer all these essential qualities on the user.

THIS EVIDENCE IS AMPLE PROOF.

Before using Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills I felt weak, nervous and run down. I had lost weight steadily for some time; my circulation was poor; hands, feet and limbs were cold. I always felt weak and my muscles trembled. Now, after the use of one box of Dr. Ward's Pills, I feel like my old self. I have gained five pounds in weight and 100 per cent. in cheerfulness. I now walk firmly, my muscular system is strong and my blood circulates vigorously. I have more comfort than I have experienced in years. Dr. Ward's Pills have done more for me than any medicine I ever took.

A BALLAD OF THE RANKS.

(Conan Doyle.)

Who carries the gun?
A lad from over the Tweed.
Then let him go, for well we know
He comes of a soldier breed.
So drink together to rock and heather,
Out where the red deer run,
And stand aside for Scotland's pride—
The man that carries the gun!
For the Colonel rides before,
The Major's on the flank,
The Captains and the Adjutant
Are in the foremost rank.
But when it's "Action front!"
And fighting's to be done,
Come on, come on, you stand or fall
By the man who holds the gun.

Who carries the gun?
A lad from a Yorkshire dale.
Then let him go, for well we know
The heart that never will fail.
Here's to the fire of Lancashire,
And here's to her soldier son!
For the hard bit north has sent him forth,
The lad that carries the gun.
Who carries the gun?
A lad from a Midland shire.
Then let him go, for well we know
He comes from an English sire.
Here's a glass to a Midland lass,
And each can choose the one,
But east and west we claim the best
For the man that carries the gun.

Who carries the gun?
A lad from London town.
Then let him go, for well we know
The stuff that never backs down.
He has learned to joke at the powder smoke,
For he is the fogsmoke son,
And his heart is light and his pluck is right—
The man who carries the gun.

Who carries the gun?
A lad from the Emerald Isle.
Then let him go, for well we know,
We've tried him many a while.
We've tried him east, we've tried him west,
We've tried him sea and land,
But the man to beat old Erin's best
Has never yet been planned.

OBSOLETE STATUTE LABOUR.

A Bright Interview With A. W Campbell, Ontario's Boss Road Maker.

(Toronto World.)

Mr. A. W. Campbell, provincial instructor in road making, is busy compiling his annual report, which will be issued at the end of this year. His jurisdiction is the whole province, and it is Mr. Campbell's ambition to have every road in the province fit to play billiards on. He has very decided ideas about statute labour. The first reform must be its abolition, he says. Wherever statute labour is performed, it is done on the road in front of the property taxed; and in that way labour amounting to 6,000 days is scattered, and we have 1,000,000 days of statute labour and nothing but temporary work undertaken. If a tax were collected the council could take hold of the more important roads, plan their work and let it out by contract.

The work thus done would be finished in a substantial and permanent manner, and could be extended from year to year.

OBSOLETE LABOUR.

"As a matter of fact, though, statute labour is obsolete, effete and belongs to the period when a man first had to clear the ground to build his house. As a matter of fact farmers nowadays have no time for anything but their farms, and if statute labour were replaced by a tax, the systematic work accomplished would be worth much more to him than results attained at present."

However, Mr. Campbell says:—"This year is a marked one in road making. Each municipality has this year expended on an average $5,000 on its roads, outside of labour, an exceptional expenditure. But the people are awaking to the fact that to make good roads they must employ modern machinery. Heretofore, they have used no implements but the spade; they found the gravel in the raw state and put it on the road. But at present they realize that machinery is important in road-making, as in harvesting. Many municipalities have now four grading machines, each taking two teams, and good work is the result.

SOME SYSTEM NOW.

"Also this year, for the first time many municipalities have prepared a proper plan of the township, classifying their roads according to their importance in traffic, preparing specifications showing what the width should be, and how the roads should be crowned or shaped, how drained and kind of gravel to be employed. It is a simple matter to lay out a plan and build a road, if the plan is followed, and reducing the work to a system by placing the plans in the hands of one man appointed and paid by the council. There is more work being done in Western Ontario than any other part just now.

ENTER A NEW ERA.

"No," said Mr. Campbell, "statute labour has served its purpose, and must go. It formerly was a part of the plan of utility. To day it is simply the working off a tax and the same with the pathmaster—he has half-a-dozen neighbours, and if they don't want to do their work he is not going to make enemies by forcing them to do it. An evidence of the up-to-date methods that are now being adopted is to be seen in the culverts and sluiceways on the roads. These used to be made of timber, and cost each municipality about $2,000 a year to keep in repair. However, now the method I have so long advocated is being followed; gravel is being mixed with cement, and of the concrete thus made, the culverts are being made. The first cost is in excess of the timber, but the result is permanent, and leaves an extra balance to be applied to road-making."

AWFUL SKIN DISEASE

Suffered Untold Agony Two Years. Itching and Burning Terrible. Had to Give up Work Entirely.

Instant Relief in First Application OF CUTICURA REMEDIES. At Work, Fully Cured in 2 Months.

I was afflicted with a terrible malignant breaking out all over the upper part of my body. I was treated by some of the very best physicians, who pronounced it contagious blood poison, through whom I spent hundreds of dollars trying to get relief, but it seemed to get worse. All the time I was suffering untold agony, and finally had to give up work entirely. I grasped at everything I saw advertised, and listened to every suggestion from friends, but nothing seemed to reach my case. The burning, itching fix I was in seemed to be aggravated by every effort to relieve myself; but, thank God, relief came to me at last. CUTICURA REMEDIES were suggested to me, and I immediately procured the CUTICURA (ointment), CUTICURA SOAP, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT. From the first, I experienced a soothing relief, notwithstanding my intense pain. The warm bath, with CUTICURA SOAP, the anointing with CUTICURA, and the dose of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, seemed to start the good work from the first. I improved right along, and in less than two months I was able to be up and at work, and continued to improve daily till at last I was entirely cured, sound and well, not a sign on my body anywhere indicating that anything had ever been the matter with me. It is now over two years since I have been entirely cured, and not a sign or a symptom has ever returned. I will gladly answer any and all letters with reference to my case. M. B. BASTIEN,

LINDSAY COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

The Fall and Winter Lecture Course—A Broad View of Educational Responsibility

The Lindsay Collegiate Institute, since its establishment in 1889, has constantly felt that it had other functions than the academic. Its first business certainly has been to prepare its students thoroughly in the various studies on the curriculum, and its success has been attested year after year at the departmental examinations, and in the subsequent career of its students. But there has been a wider conception of its duties; it has endeavoured to foster an upright moral spirit in its students, to interest them in athletics, to furnish in the school societies, opportunities for the development of their general powers and for their training in the conduct of public business.

Nor has its duty to the community been forgotten. It has realized from the first that it should, as far as possible, be an intellectual stimulus to the town and county, and has striven to attain that end. A mere list of its entertainments would serve to show what has been undertaken by the Collegiate for the benefit of Lindsay and Victoria county: Miss Nora Clench, Mrs. Caldwell, Mrs. Mackelckan, Harold Jarvis, E. W. Schuch, Robert Mahr, Ernest Mahr, Walter Emerson, S. H. Clark, Rev. Dr. McIntyre, Principal Grant, Rev. Prof. Clark, Hon. John Dryden, Hon. G. W. Ross, Rev. Chancellor Burwash, Mr. A. T. DeLury, Prof. W. M. Dale are among those who have appeared on the platform of the Assembly Hall to audiences.

In the spring term of 1897 it was felt that something different from what had been yet undertaken might be carried out, and a committee at once began to plan a Lecture Course. After considerable labour the Collegiate was able to announce its first course, which was opened in October with an address by Hon. Sidney Fisher, M.P., Minister of Agriculture, with an address on "Agriculture." Mr. Fisher's visit to Lindsay was publicly recognized; he met a number of leading farmers in the county in a profitable conference, and was banquetted by the town. His lecture proved to be thoroughly profitable.

The other lectures in the course were "Rome," by Rev. Prof. Teefy, M.A., LL.D., Superior of St. Michael's College, Toronto, given to a very large audience; "Michael Angelo," by Prof. W. H. Fraser, of the University of Toronto, a fine study of the great Italian painter, sculptor and poet; "The Function of Poetry," a deeply penetrative discussion of poetry, by Prof. W. J. Alexander, of the University of Toronto; "Dante," by Rev. Herbert Symonds, M.A., formerly of Trinity University, a lecture very well enjoyed; and lastly, a lecture on "Marriage," an historical treatment of a most important subject by Mr. H. A. Powell, M.A., M.P. for Westmoreland, N.B. While these lectures were largely literary in character, and, as such, not of the sort to be very popular, they nevertheless drew good audiences, who were instructed and pleased.

that the course for 1898-'99 promises to be of a very fine character. Prof. Robertson, the Dominion Commissioner of Agriculture and Dairying, is to open with a lecture on "The Agricultural Resources of Canada." The lecture is to be given in October. He is to be followed in November by the Solicitor-General of Canada, Hon. Charles Fitzpatrick, Q. C., M. P., on "Our Commercial Treaties," a most important subject, to be treated by a thoroughly competent speaker. In December, the Hon. George E. Foster, M. P., will speak on "The Canadian Outlook," and a rare treat of oratory may be expected. Mr. B. E. Walker, the General Manager of the Bank of Commerce, is to give the January lecture. Mr. Walker is one of Canada's financial experts, and he is to discuss "National Finance." The closing lecture is by Lieut.-Col. Henry Smith, lately District Officer commanding Military District No. 1, and Commandant at the Wolseley Barracks, London. Col. Smith is easily in the front rank of Canadian military men, and his subject is "Some Thoughts on National Defence."

It will be noticed that these subjects are Canadian, and are of general interest and of prime importance. They are to be treated by men who are experts in their department, and Lindsay and the county of Victoria are to be congratulated on the honourable privilege of having these distinguished men in their midst in the coming autumn and winter.

PERTINENT PERSONALS.

The sailors of Dewey's squadron are not particularly profane, but they all swear by George.—Evansville Courier.

Spain's reverses must be retrieved, says Weyler. That settles his breed. He is a retriever.—St. Paul Dispatch.

It must seem humiliating to Zola to be mixed up in a greater plot than he ever invented.—Chicago Times-Herald.

General Cassius M. Clay will probably concede now that to be a husband and a father to one and the same girl is not the simplest thing in the world.—Chicago Post.

Poor Li Hung Chang has lost his yellow jacket again. But the old man is so used to going around in his shirt sleeves between whiles that he probably won't mind.—New York World.

The Chinese emperor is seriously ill. If he has received a box of candy lately through the mails, it might be well to look and see if the address is in Russian handwriting.—San Francisco Chronicle.

The annexation of Jerusalem would swell the German emperor almost to the bursting point. We would have an "I and Solomon" manifesto in about 15 minutes after the deed was signed.—Minneapolis Journal.

With one daughter vicereine of India, another chosen to christen the new battleship Illinois and a son who stands well with the American farmer Mr. Leiter ought to be happy, even though he is out a few paltry millions.—Chicago News.

Queen Victoria abominates war and loves peace. But this did not prevent her from sending a telegram of congratulation and thanks to the sirdar when she heard he had killed 8,000 dervishes with his trusty Maxims.—St. Louis Republic.

General Kitchener reports that Khalifa Abdullah was pursued so closely that he dropped some of his wives along the road. Perhaps, however, the khalifa merely made his flight an excuse for getting rid of the old ladies of the harem.—Cleveland Leader.

THE WIZARD OF THE NILE.

The question is no longer open to argument as to who is the wizard of the Nile—Kitchener or the khalifa.—Washington Post.

Sir Horatio Herbert Kitchener is a Dewey sort of fighter, judging from the completeness with which he cooked the khalifa's goose.—St. Louis Republic.

It will be noticed that the Irish fought in Omdurman just as if there was no Irish question. When there is a fight on hand, the Irishman always drops politics.—Pittsburg Times.

Sir Herbert Kitchener has probably had greater experience of Egypt and the Sudan than any other living officer, and his reputation, both as a soldier and an administrator, has been more than sustained by the Sudan campaign.—Syracuse Journal.

The death of two of the war correspondents of the London Times at Omdurman shows that the English scribes are to be found at the front in battle, which is where the American war correspondents were found in Cuba. All honor to the gallant and faithful scribes!—Boston Herald.

"Kitchener" seems rather an unromantic name for the gallant officer who commands the Anglo-Egyptian forces on the Nile. It is not at all inappropriate, however, considering the thoroughness with which the bearer has been "cooking the goose" of the khalifa.—San Francisco Bulletin.

ASTHMA PERMANENTLY CURED.

A Well-Known Canadian Notary Public Suffered for 35 Years—Permanently Cured by Clarke's Kola Compound.

R. D Pitt, Esq., Kamloops writes: "I had suffered for at least 35 years from the great oppressiveness of asthma and shortness of breath. I had during these years consulted many physicians and tried all the remedies until the doctor told me I might get temporary relief but would always be troubled. I tried Dr. Clark's Kola Compound, and after taking the first bottle I became greatly relieved, and three bottles have completely cured me, I can now breathe as natural as ever, and Asthma does not trouble me in the least. I would urge all sufferers from this disease to try Clarke's Kola Compound, as only those who have suffered all these years as I have can appreciate what a blessing this remedy must prove to sufferers from Asthma." Three bottles of Clarke's Kola Compound are guaranteed to cure any case of Asthma. Sold by Ormond & Walsh Price two dollars; three bottles with cure guaranteed, for five dollars. A WARNING TO FRANCE

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach Makes a Significant Speech.

A UNITED BRITISH PUBLIC.

French Have No Right at Fashoda, Says the Chancellor of the Exchequer, But He Declines to Believe She Will Persist in Face of the Facts—M. Brisson to Resign—Cable News.

London, Oct. 20.—In a speech at Glasgow last night, the Duke of Devonshire, Lord President of the Council, said that since the blue book giving the correspondence between Great Britain and France concerning Fashoda was issued, nothing had passed between the two countries that in the slightest degree modified the situation. He did not believe the matter was likely to lead to serious trouble. The case was too clear and the facts were undisputed.

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, Chancellor of the Exchequer, speaking at North Shields last evening, announced that the Government had opened negotiations with the powers with a view of securing to the subjects of the various powers the "right of developing the respective spheres in which each country is especially interested."

Regarding the Fashoda question, he said he wished cordially to acknowledge the desire evidenced in the speeches of Lord Rosebery and Mr. Herbert Asquith to help the Government in the matter, "a matter which might develop to the utmost gravity.

"It is impossible," he continued, "for France to maintain that she has political rights at Fashoda. She has naturally and properly asked for time to receive Major Marchand's report, but until the contrary is proved, I decline to believe that France will refuse to withdraw. If she refused, the matter would assume an aspect as grave as is possible between two great nations.

"The Government is animated by the friendliest spirit towards France and does not wish to inflict humiliation. What we desire is fair treatment. Our work in Egypt is not completed. Africa is big enough for us both—for France in the west and ourselves in the east. Surely we ought to be able to agree to respect one another's rights and claims.

"I hope, trust and believe the question is capable of a friendly solution, but this country has put her foot down. If, unhappily, another view should be taken by France, the Queen's Ministers know what their duty demands.

"It would be a great calamity if, after peace for upwards of 80 years, our friendly relations should be disturbed and we should be launched in a great war, but there are greater evils than war, and we shall not shrink from anything that is coming, knowing that we are supported by a united people."

The speech of Sir Michael Hicks-Beach at North Shields last evening has deeply impressed England, and the utmost concern is felt as to how France will receive it. The idea has been prevalent that the French have not realized how seriously England felt on the Fashoda question, which has been coupled with a desire that France would not force England to an armed support of Lord Salisbury's stand.

Most of the morning papers elaborate some of the exciting descriptions of the belligerent preparations of France.

The Paris correspondent of the Daily Mail says: 'In Toulon and Brest every nerve is strained to get ready for war, which may break out on short notice. The Paris press is growing more and more determined to back up extreme measures, even a resort to arms. The French have been excessively piqued by the threatening tone of the English papers, which is a more likely casus belli than the mere question of Fashoda. Consequently the outlook here is grave. There are reports of troops hurrying from Paris to Brest and Toulon. The artillery in the batteries and at the various ports have been confidentially instructed for any emergency, and the cannon at all the forts and the batteries are kept ready for action at any moment. To-day there was a prolonged war council at Brest of the chiefs of the various services, and M. Lockroy is hastily returning from Toulon on account of the gravity of the situation."

BUSY 24 HOURS DAILY.

Work in French Navy Yards Is Proceeding With Feverish Speed—Extraordinary Activity.

Paris Oct. 20.—In spite of semi-official denials, the Echo de Paris asserts yesterday that the embarkation of war materials and supplies continues at Toulon, adding that extraordinary activity reigns at the arsenal there. Besides the ironclads Admiral Trehouart, Bouvines, Jemapes and Valmy, the cruisers Alger, Levrier and Caiman, it claims, are getting ready for service, embarking ammunition and war materials.

In addition, it is further asserted that transports Bienhoa and Girende are almost ready for sea.

All the French naval officers on leave of absence have been ordered to return to their vessels.

The naval authorities at Toulon are very reticent.

A despatch to the Petit Parisian from Toulon confirms the reports of the Echo de Paris, and says the greatest activity prevails in the navy yard, where work is proceeding with feverish speed day and night.

Only Carrying Out Reforms.

Paris, Oct. 20.—The Temps, commenting upon the sensational stories of naval mobilization, says:

"While the political situation necessarily induced unusual vigilance and activity it must not be forgotten that the present naval movements are principally an inauguration of the reforms planned by M. Lockroy when he was appointed Minister of Marine, and which he desires to have completed prior to Jan. 1 next—a reform whereby the squadrons and ports will always be ready and clear for action and fully equipped within a few days."

After enumerating the proposed future strength of the various squadrons intended for coast defence, the Temps concludes as follows:

"Ashore our military works are quite ready, and certainly the best disposition is being made of the means at the disposal of the navy, even if before the date mentioned the hoped-for solution, agreeable to both countries, should be found for the Fashoda question."

DUCKY IS DEAD.

Celebrated Royal Parrot Presented to the King by the Great Pitt.

London, Oct. 20.—England has lost one of her celebrities in the person—if the term may be allowed—of Ducky, the famous royal parrot. Ducky reached the age of 124 years, and he died possessing all his faculties. Ducky had a history. He was bought by the great Pitt in 1783, and was presented to the King in 1800. For the last thirty years he was the property of the Princess de Galles. For many decades Ducky resided in luxury in St. James' palace, enjoying the friendship of the entire royal family, but in 1850 he lost favor at court, and was banished because of his extraordinary faculty of imitation and mimicry, which caused embarrassing situations in the palace. It was at first proposed to transport him to India or Australia, or submit him to a worse fate. The Princess de Galles saved him. It is said that he could perfectly imitate the tones of all the great English statesmen of the century.

INDEPENDENCE RECOGNIZED.

Policy of the New Cape Government Towards Neighboring Republics.

London, Oct. 20.—A despatch to the Times from Capetown says that Mr. W. P. Schreiner, the new Premier and leader of the Afrikanderbund, made a statement of the policy of the new Colonial Government in the Cape Assembly yesterday. The Government, he said, would recognize the independence of the South African republics and work harmoniously with them, leaving external relationship with them to be dealt with by the British High Commissioner, whom the Government would support in the development of South Africa.

The Government would also carry forward a bill for a new customs convention with the South African republics, and introduce a proposal for a contribution on the part of the colony to the British navy.

SECOND BATTLE OF MANILA.

Naval Engagement Between Insurgents and Americans The Latter Win.

London, Oct. 20.—The Madrid correspondent of the Times says: "Captain Aunon, the Minister of Marine, has received a despatch from Manila, announcing a naval engagement between the Americans and the rebels, in consequence of Admiral Dewey forbidding the latter to fly the rebel flag from their ships. The despatch adds that there were losses on both sides, but that the Americans captured the rebels' ships. The scene of the engagement is not stated, but it is supposed to have been Manila Bay."

Russia Makes Another Point.

London, Oct. 20.—A despatch from Shanghai to a London news agency, says: "A Russian regiment occupied the town of Niu Chwang, Province of Liao Tong, and the forts at the mouth of the River Laou on Oct. 15, thus securing complete possession of Niu Chwang. The native troops fled without making any opposition, under orders from the Empress Dowager and Li Hung Chang.

"A British gunboat was in the river at the time. Its non-resistance is regarded as the virtual British abandonment of the whole of Manchuria to the Russians and gives Russia an invaluable strategic position. Great Britain is certain to lose the Niu Chwan grade, of which it has had 80 per cent."

The Rate War Continues.

New York, Oct. 19.—In railway circles yesterday it was reported that the Canadian Pacific Railway had again reduced the rate between Vancouver and St. Paul. The rate will now be $10 each way. The same despatch says that within the next twenty-four hours the Northern Pacific will do likewise.

INSURGENTS' FAITH

Not in Princes, But in the North American Republic,

HAS BEEN RUDELY SHAKEN.

Agoncillo, the Aguinaldo Representative to the Peace Commission at Paris, Says the Filipinos Had a Verbal Agreement for Independence With Admiral Dewey—General Merritt's Denial.

London, Oct. 20.—The Globe yesterday afternoon publishes an interview which a correspondent had with Agoncillo, the representative of Aguinaldo, before the former left Hong Kong for San Francisco on his way to Washington and Paris to present the insurgent leader's views, if possible, before the United States Peace Commission at the French capital.

Agoncillo, in this interview, is quoted as declaring that the insurgents had a formal agreement with Rear-Admiral Dewey, whereby absolute freedom was promised them in return for their assistance. When Agoncillo was asked if the agreement was in writing he said: "No, we do not regard the United States as a grasping power, and felt that a verbal agreement was quite sufficient."

What Gen. Merritt Says.

London, Oct. 20.—Major-General Wesley Merritt, who has arrived here from Paris, yesterday discredited the statement attributed to Agoncillo, the agent of Aguinaldo. General Merritt said that, from conversations which he had with Admiral Dewey, he was satisfied that no arrangement had been entered into with the Philippine leaders. The General added:

"If the Filipinos were allowed independence now it would result in fighting between the leaders, which would be more disastrous than any revolution which has hitherto broken out. Aguinaldo's following is slim, and if there was an election to-day I do not believe he would be president."

The trend of General Merritt's view or advice furnished to the United States Peace Commission at Paris may be gathered from the following statement he made yesterday:

"While some of the Filipinos are able, I am not acquainted with any of them who is capable of governing. I do not believe the insurgents will resist the Americans. But, there is one certainty—they will never submit to again being ruled by the Spaniards. If America takes possession of the Philippine Islands, it will result in a new era in the Philippines and in our country. The islands are of immense strategic value, navally and commercially, and therefore easily defended. My study of the British colonies has greatly interested me. They ought to prove a valuable object lesson to the United States. The British system is as perfect as devisable."

A BRIEF, TERSE NOTE

From Admiral Sampson Says Spain Must Evacuate Cuba by Dec. 1.

Havana, Oct. 20.—A conference lasting three hours was held yesterday between General Wade, General Butler and Admiral Sampson, as to the contents of the five official notes delivered to the American commissioners on Tuesday by the Spanish evacuation commission. The Spaniards claim that it would be practically impossible to evacuate in the short period of time fixed by the Americans. They disclaim all authority to treat of any political subjects outside the strict limits of military evacuation. They insist that the sovereignty of Spain will continue until the final treaty of peace is signed in Paris. In reply Admiral Sampson personally dictated a brief, terse note, stating emphatically that Dec. 1 would positively be the date on which Spain's rights, claims and sovereignty in the Island of Cuba would cease to exist.

They Did Eat Together.

Paris, Oct. 20.—Gen. Horace Porter, the United States Ambassador, gave a banquet last evening at the American Embassy to the United States and Spanish Peace Commissioners. M. Brisson, the French Premier, and M. Delcasse, the French Minister of Foreign Affairs, were present. The meeting of the two commissions at the same table is a notable event here, and borrows special interest from the semi-prediction of the Paris correspondent of the London Times that the Spanish Commissioners would not meet their opponents at dinner under the roof of the American Embassy.

Preparations Against Leprosy.

Sarcamento, Cal., Oct. 20.—The State Board of Health has appointed Dr. C. A. Ruggles, President of the Board, to visit the Hawaiian Islands to learn the extent of leprosy and to report measures to prevent its introduction into California. The Board of Health will report safeguards against the spread of the disease to these shores.

MERRITT'S BRIDE GOES TO HIM.

Will Be Married in London to the Governor of the Philippines.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—Miss Laura Williams of Chicago, the daughter of Norman Williams, and granddaughter of the late Judge John Dean Caton, is journeying over the Atlantic on the Cunard steamship Campania to be wedded in London some time within the next two weeks to Major-General Wesley Merrit, Military Governor of the Philippine Islands, to whom engagement was announced five months ago. The ceremony will be performed in London and will be without unnecessary publicity. After the wedding takes place General Merritt will return to Paris with his bride to await the completion of the negotiations of the peace commission.

Schley Boss of Porto Rico.

Washington, D.C., Oct. 20.—Admiral Schley was yesterday, by orders from the Navy Department, placed in command of the naval station at San Juan de Porto Rico. It is the intention of the department to send another officer to relieve the Admiral of the command very soon.

Severe Headaches

The Great Blood Purifier, Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures.

Sufferers from any disease caused by impure blood should never be discouraged about taking Hood's Sarsaparilla because other medicines have failed to give relief. Remember Hood's Sarsaparilla cures when all others fail. Read this statement:

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"Dear Sirs:—I think it my duty to let you know what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for me. I was suffering with severe headaches daily and also with catarrh. One day a paper was left at my house and in looking it over I read of your great medicine's value to my fellow sufferers. I reasoned that if it cured them, why would it not cure me, although I must own I had some doubts about it, as I so-called cures which had failed even to relieve me. At last I procured a bottle and after taking all the medicine the headaches had left me and my catarrh trouble was much better. I continued taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and have derived so much benefit from it that I would advise any one troubled with impure blood to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier. I feel better now than I have for years, thanks to Hood's Sarsaparilla." Mrs. E. Grey, 27 St. Nicholas St., Toronto, Ontario. Remember

Daily Examiner.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1898.

LADY ABERDEEN, M.A., AND HUSBANDS AND WIVES.

Lady Aberdeen is now fully entitled to wear hosiery of an azure hue. On Tuesday she was made a "Master" of Arts of Queen's University, going through the honorary process at the same innings as Lord Aberdeen and Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Lady Aberdeen, of course, made a speech and made a sensible suggestion that has sensible tendency, joculavly hoping for the day when Sir Wilfrid Laurier would pass a law that no one, man or woman alike, should be allowed to marry till they had passed an examination "in how to make and keep a home, and about the value of foods and how to cook them." This is apt advice. The cause of many an unhappy home is bad cooking and the evils consequent upon it. A home that is not nourished by good cooking connot be a cleanly, well-kept home, with the material elements necessary to make it attractive to husbands, or sons, or daughters. On the other hand husbands cannot lay all the blame upon the housekeepers. Hundreds of homes would be happier if their husbands would do a little housekeeping themselves. In this way they should stay at home and do, as they may do, a thousand little things to help the weary housewife, and reduce the number of steps she has to take in the dreary tread mill of domestic routine, everlastingly the same, only a little worse sometimes than others. A wife has to stay at home almost constantly, that is, a wife that tries, at all, to live up to the demands of the duties of wife and mother. Husbands should also stay at home more. Instead of gossiping in the corner grocery or bar parlour, and wasting their nights helping other husbands waste their nights in playing pedro, euchre or poker, they should stay more at home and share the wife's responsibility in the training of the children, and in the control of the domestic machine. There can be no fair division of labour in a home where the husband half of the team gives the wife half the short end of the whiffle-tree and accepts as a right and in the spirit of a selfish Turk, the services of a wife which he should share and lighten, instead of adding to. Lady Aberdeen moves in a high sphere where she is not troubled with the cares of baking or brewing, or sweeping or dusting, but she touches the right place when she indicates as the sore spot in the domestic menage, the ignorance of the wife of house-keeping and the ignoring by the husband of his responsibility in respect of contributing to the conditions that represent on his part a fulfilment of the injunction "Bear ye one another burdens," and that more pointed injunction, "Husbands love your wives and be not bitter against them."

DISCIPLINE TELLS.

Discipline—rigid discipline—is the foundation of military efficiency. That is what makes the average British soldier equal to about ten of a comparatively undisciplined body. Before the United States can become a great military power they have got to get the spirit of unquestionable obedience infused into their troops. They can raise a great army as numbers go, but numbers do not make an army. Neither does bravery. The Dervishes had numbers and a bravery of so enthusiastic a quality that if it were applied to a perfectly disciplined force, would make them unconquerable British discipline combined with the coolness and confident, calculating bravery, which was to a great extent the result of discipline, enabled the British at Omdurman to crush a foe many times stronger as easily as a giant's hand would crush an eggshell. The United States troops are brave but not disciplined. In Honolulu the first pay they got made them wild. They were allowed an outing to spend it, and the precaution was taken to provide a cavalry and infantry guard to preserve order, but with little effect. The officers of the guard set the example of getting drunk and proclaiming martial law and terrorizing peaceable citizens. With the spirit of discipline thoroughly infused, such a shameful exhibition of the misuse of authority would have been impossible. With discipline the United States troops would have been spared the blunders and disasters that met the force in Cuba from other foes than the Spaniards. The Spaniards say that if they had known that the American troops were so badly organized and equipped, their action and the result would have been different. If the United States troops in Cuba had met a reasonably equal force of well-disciplined troops like Kitchener had at Omdurman, they would have been wiped out like a badly-worked "sum" off a boy's school slate. Discipline, which is only respect for authority, is a conquering element in both a soldier and a citizen.

LABOUR AND THE DRINK TRAFFIC.

The London Advertiser presents its readers with a synopsis of the twelfth annual report of the United States Commissioner of Labour, which deals entirely with the liquor problem.

In the United States at the date of reporting, there were 6,187 distilleries, producing 98,092,555 gallons of liquors. The number of breweries was 1,866, the production of fermented liquors being 15,980,000 gallons, and the total production of all kinds 1,217,609,305 gallons. The value of the yearly product of the entire liquor-making trade is now considerably over $300,000,000, and the revenue from the traffic collected by the national, state and municipal authorities is over $180,000,000. This money is obtained from the owners of the 161,483 liquor-dealing establishments that are to be found in the United States, who are reported to have $957,162,907 invested in the business, and who give employment to 241,755 persons. These statistics afford some idea of the hold which the drinking habit has upon the people of the United States, who consume a great deal more intoxicants per capita in the course of a year than do the people of this temperate Dominion.

The labour commissioner sent out a schedule to over 30,000 representatives of labour in all parts of the country, and the replies he received as to their experience and practice relative to the use of intoxicants are embraced in this most interesting report. Employers were asked if in selecting new men, they were accustomed to give consideration to habits in the use of intoxicating liquors, and, if so, what means were taken to ascertain such habits. About one-fifth of the employers reported that liquor habits were not taken into consideration; the other four-fifths reported that means were generally taken to ascertain the facts. The two chief single reasons given by employers for the requirement that employees should not use intoxicants are stated to be "to guard against accidents," and "because of responsibility of position."

A table relating to the establishments prohibiting the use of intoxicating liquors brings out the fact that more than one-half the employers reporting require in certain occupations, and under certain circumstances, that employers be required not to use intoxicants either on or off duty. It was not found that men working on night duty were more intemperate than those working in the daytime, while considerable increase in drunkenness was reported after each pay-day.

The concluding inquiry of the schedule was as follows: "What means, in your view, better than now employed, can be taken by employers, communities, organizations, municipalities and states to lessen the consumption of intoxicating liquors among the people?" The replies received, as naturally would be supposed, were in great variety, and the answers probably, represent, to some extent, opinions formed from the personal trials of the means specified by their writers. Almost 200 different means are suggested. Less than one-fourth of the total number of employers of labour reporting advocate the prohibition of the liquor traffic as, in their opinion, the means best suited to lessen the consumption of intoxicating liquors. A considerable number suggest that the refusal to employ drinking men is the best method; others that the imposition of high license would accomplish most. A number suggest education, moral and religious, and the improvent of social conditions, Government control and limiting the number of saloons, the removing of all restrictions in the sale, the encouraging of consumption of light wines and beer, and the prohibition of treating—all had their sponsors. These replies were received in response to schedules sent without preference to all parts of the country.

There is no doubt the attitude which employers, usually, from no higher motive than self-interest, have felt obliged to adopt toward the drink traffic, has been one of the important factors contributing to the disfavour with which the drink traffic is now very generally regarded. The conditions of business in most lines are such that employers will not put up with men who cannot be depended upon for the best that they are capable of, or who are likely to fall when their services are most in demand. The day of the besotted workman is already over, and he has no chance in the great economic struggle in which the fittest alone survive.

Healthy, happy children make better men and women of us all. A little care and a little planning before birth is often more important than anything that can be done after. On the mother's health and strength depend the life and the future of the children. A weak and sickly woman cannot bear strong and healthy children. Most of the weakness of women is utterly inexcusable. Proper care and proper medicine will cure almost any disorder of the feminine organism. Dr. Pierce's Favourite Prescription has been tested in thirty years of practice. It is healing, soothing, strengthening. It is perfectly natural in its operation and effect. By its use, thousands of weak women have been made strong and healthy—have been made the mothers of strong and healthy children. Taken during gestation, it makes child birth easy and almost painless and insures the well being of both mother and child. Send 31cents in one-cent stamps to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N.Y., and receive Dr. Pierce's 1008 page "Common Sense Medical Adviser," profusely illustrated.

DECISION AGAINST THE C.P.R.

Arbitrators at Chicago Have Handed Out Their Judgment.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—The arbitrators selected to decide whether the Canadian Pacific Railway is entitled to a differntial under the rates made by the United States lines on freight traffic between San Francisco and Eastern points, on or east of the Missouri River, have rendered a decision to the effect that the Canadian Pacific Railway is not entitled to a differential. The Board of Arbitration, consisting of Messrs. W. A. Dix, J. W. Modgeley and Edward S. Washburn, have been in session at the Auditorium Hotel several days hearing the arguments of the representatives of the interested roads. The American lines, represented by Mr. W. J. Stubbs, vice-president of the Southern Pacific, contended that the Canadian railway is not entitled to make any lower rates on freight traffic to and from San Francisco than are made by the American lines, and the different arbitrators upheld this contention.

The Canadian Pacific Railway was represented at the hearings by Messrs. T. G. Shaughnessy, vice-president, and Robert Kerr.

DEATH BY FIRE.

Mrs. Wm. Young of Beverley Township Succumbs to the Flames.

Galt, Oct. 20.—A fire attended with fatal results occurred on the Hector McCaig farm, 9th concession of Beverley, early yesterday morning, whereby Mrs. William Young of Kirkwall received injuries which resulted in her death a few hours afterwards.

Mrs. Young and her 2-year-old child went to Mr. McCaig's Tuesday on a visit, and owing to the disagreeable weather remained over night. Early in the morning Mrs. Young was found enveloped in flames near the door of her room. The child was lying in bed almost suffocated, and several articles in the room were in a blaze. The flames were at once extinguished and a physician sent for, but the poor woman never spoke, and died about 9 o'clock. Mrs. Young, who is about 35 years of age, leaves a husband and three children. How the fire started is a mystery.

AN EVENTFUL VOYAGE.

Frauds, Mutiny, Shipwreck and Threatened Murder—Story of Capt. Pierce, in Charge of Mounted Police Supplies.

Dawson City, Sept. 29 (via Vancouver, Oct. 19, and Toronto, Oct. 20, Globe Special).—The steamers Pingaree and Plow, with two barges, arrived here yesterday with mounted police and Yukon force supplies. Immediately on their arrival Captain Pierce, in charge of the supplies, laid information against certain members of the crews and passengers for looting. One of the men was arrested, and the others are under police surveillance. The captain relates an astonishing tale of mismanagement and lawlessness in the American Yukon Territory. His experience of the trip reads like a chapter in one of Robert Louis Stevenson's novels, and is hardly credible. Frauds, mutiny, fire, shipwreck, starvation and threatened murder are all reported. The boats will proceed to Selkirk in a few days.

CANADIAN BOAT IN DISTRESS.

Selkirk in Danger of Foundering Off Thunder Bay—Noble Life Savers.

Alpena, Mich., Oct. 20.—The Canadian schooner Selkirk was sighted flying signals of distress off Thunder Bay Island yesterday morning. The life saving crew went to her assistance and found that the unfortunate vessel had three feet of water in her hold and her rudder was gone. She was bound from Fort William to Kingston with 60,000 bushels of wheat, and was being towed by the steamer Rosemount. After entering Lake Huron they encountered the furious northeast gale, and the Selkirk broke away from the steamer. For 48 hours she drifted before the storm in hourly danger of foundering. A tug has been sent to bring the boat into port.

Reported Gone to Pieces.

For 48 hours the life savers of Thunder Bay Island, under command of Captain Parsons, have been heroes in saving life. Their work in taking the crew of six men from the schooner Herschell on Tuesday was deserving of high praise. The Herschell ran on the Sulphur Island reef. Captain Clark of the wrecked boat was sent adrift in a yawl and was beached on Bear Island. The Herschell was bound for Sandusky with lumber, and left Alpena Sunday.

Wm. McCabe, Esq., Managing Director, N. A. L.:

Dear Sir,—In answer to your request for me to decide upon one of the following options offered me for settlement of my 15-payment Life Investment Policy for $5,000 which has matured this year, viz:

1st to take the value of the Policy in Cash	$5,000.00
2nd, or fully paid-up insurance for	8,250.00
3rd, or take the profits in cash	2,050 25

and continue my policy without further payments being required from me, the policy participating in future profits.

I find it somewhat difficult to make a decision either of the three options being so satisfactory. I am certainly very much pleased with the results offered me, and as I find many others are giving full testimony to the profit-earning power of this company, I do not hesitate to give my endorsement as well, that the North American Life is one of our strongest Canadian institutions to day giving first class results on Investment Policies, on a safe and conservative basis. I find that my policy, which was originally a Life by fifteen payments, has become an Endowment at the end of the Investment period.

If it was only health, we might let it cling.

But it is a cough. One cold no sooner passes off before another comes. But it's the same old cough all the time.

And it's the same old story, too. There is first the cold, then the cough, then pneumonia or consumption with the long sickness, and life trembling in the balance.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

loosens the grasp of your cough. The congestion of the throat and lungs is removed; all inflammation is subdued; the parts are put perfectly at rest and the cough drops away. It has no diseased tissues on which to hang.

Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral Plaster draws out inflammation of the lungs.

Advice Free.

THE PARTICULARS STAND

In West Victoria Election Case—Other Matters of Political Import.

Toronto, Oct. 20.—In West Victoria election trial, a motion was made yesterday at Osgoode Hall before Judge Osler on behalf of the petitioner to set aside or strike out the particulars on the ground that some of them were issued after the affidavit of the petitioner verifying the same had been sworn. Judge Osler refused to strike out the particulars on the ground that they were tampered with, and (2) that they were a day or so late, and (3) allowing the petitioner to add further charges asked in the motion. The particulars were filed immediately after the judgment.

In North Middlesex particulars must be filed by Saturday.

In South Huron a motion to commit the Conservative member, Mr. Eilber, to jail for not appearing for examination, was enlarged till Friday.

West York Particulars.

Yesterday afternoon Bristol, Cawthra & Barker, on behalf of the petitioner, McNab, in the West York election protest, filed the bill of particulars. Mr. Hill is charged personally with giving money to voters to vote his way. The position of poll constable is alleged to have caught a few persons. Several clauses charge the respondent, R. J. Hayden, hotelkeeper in Toronto Junction; H. E. Irwin, A. B. Rice, respondent's financial agent; A. J. Anderson, a returning officer; J. M. Pearin, newly appointed license inspector of West York, and others with having paid for a livery outfit. A. F. Rutter is charged with advancing money for bribery.

THE BEST ON EARTH.

So Says Robert Meikle About Dodd's Kidney Pills.

London, Ont., Oct. 17.—Robert Meikle, a member of the staff of the Star Dining Hall, is kept busy answering the questions asked him by his many friends at present. They all want to know how he recovered from what, the doctors said, was a fatal attack of Diabetes.

And he invariably answers: Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me, when other earthly means had failed. They are the only medicine on earth that can cure Diabetes, and they do it every time."

If Dodd's Kidney Pills cured Mr. Meikle they will cure you. Try them.

A QUINTUPLE KILLING.

Father and Four Children Murdered in the Galician Settlement of Manitoba.

Winnipeg, Oct. 20.—There are no fresh developments in the Stuartburn quintuple murder case. It looks as though it was the result of a conspiracy, in which four or five persons, including the mother of the children, are implicated. Arrests are expected.

The details of the tragedy are reported to be that Wasyl Bocshko, a Galician, lived with his wife and four children at Stuartburn, Man., about 25 miles east of Dominion City. The man and his children—two boys and two girls—were found dead in their home, having evidently been killed with an ax. The bodies showed by bruises and the floor and walls by blood that the utmost savagery had been shown in the killing. It is supposed they were murdered while asleep, and the crime was committed last Friday night. Some people think Indians or strangers did the deed, while others hold the opinion that the wife and mother, who is missing, is the guilty party. It is said the couple did not live happily together. No arrests have been made.

FEARFUL STORMS.

Entire Coast Line of Newfoundland Swept With Loss to Shipping.

St. John's, Nfld., Oct. 20.—The entire coast line of the island has been swept by the recent storms, and it is feared that there has been great devastation in the northern sections and along the Labrador coast. It is already known that two men were drowned at Rose Blanche, 255 miles west of St. John's, and it is feared that many others have shared the same fate, because a number of vessels were driven seaward near that point.

Owing to the fact that most of the smaller harbors have no telegraph lines, it is impossible to obtain details, but serious damage to shipping is inevitable.

THE BANE OF BUSINESS MEN.

Is Dyspepsia, Which Ruins the Brightest Intellects.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Remove This Curse by Banishing its Cause—Their Action is Speedy, Their Effect Positive and Permanent.

Dyspepsia is the blighting curse of the modern business world. Nine-tenths of the members of all professions, too, are victims of this modern dragon.

The shrewdest, most far-seeing merchants, the most astute brokers, the cleverest lawyers, the most eloquent clergymen, and even the most skilful surgeons and physicians are tortured by Dyspepsia.

Many a bankrupt can blame Dyspepsia for his failure; many a sermon has been spoiled; many a lawyer has lost his case—because of Dyspepsia.

Dyspepsia unstrings the nerves, makes a man irritable, moody, unsociable, cranky; saps the freshness, strength and vigour of manhood, and unfits its victim for work.

Keenness or foresight and Dyspepsia never go together, clear-headedness and Dyspepsia are bitter enemies.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are the best friends the business man and the professional man can have.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets absolutely cure Dyspepsia. They cure it rapidly, thoroughly and permanently.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets cure Dyspepsia by removing the cause. They digest the food and give tone and vigour to the stomach. They fit a man for his business, giving him a clear head and steady nerves, and ensure strength for the whole system.

—It pays to advertise. An Oklahoma girl advertised for a husband and got him. The advertisement and wedding outfit cost $11 and within a year he died and left her $5,000 life insurance. It pays to advertise.

—Two deaths are liable to result from a young man running across the track during the races at Collingwood fair. This should be a warning to the scores of thoughtless people who do this kind of thing at every country fair in the land.

—Municipalities that neglect their duties are sure to get into trouble. A Toronto citizen has brought suit for $10,000 damages on account of injuries sustained, it is alleged, owing to the bad condition of a highway in Etibicoke township.

—Mrs. J. H. Long regrets that through a misunderstanding the papers announced that she would address the ladies of St. John's church only. Mrs. Long wishes to say that she will be only too delighted to see every man, woman and child in Peterborough and Ashburnham at her lecture to-morrow night.

—Lovers of good comedy will be pleased to know that that mirth-provoking success "Side-Tracked," will be presented at the Opera House to morrow evening. "Side-Tracked" is well known as a bright, breezy comedy, with sensational effects, and thickly interspersed with catchy music, songs, duets, trios and dances, and is being presented by one of the strongest musical companies now on the road. Don't miss it. Seats now on sale.

SEWER WORK PROGRESS.

The Contract from Aylmer to Park Streets to be Completed by Saturday.

Mr. Bogue is progressing pretty well with his sewer contract, which extends from Aylmer street on Charlotte street, to Park, to Hunter street west, and along Belmont avenue to its intersection with Homewood avenue. The work from Aylmer street, on Charlotte, to Park street, will, weather permitting, be finished this week. By the change in Mr. McDougall's plans the sewer at the highest part of Park street, opposite Rev. Mr. Bennet's, will have to be laid at a depth of nineteen feet to insure a flow down Park and Charlotte from the junction of Homewood and Belmont avenues.

INSULTING LANGUAGE.

It was Addressed to a Young Girl and Cost the Utterer Just Ten Dollars.

A young man was up in the police court yesterday afternoon charged with using grossly insulting and abusive language as directed against a young girl from Ashburnham.

The offense was committed on George street, at the corner of Hunter street, on Sunday afternoon, as the complainant passed with her elder sister. On hearing the expression used, the latter went back to the young man, who was standing with a group of his friends, and told him that if he did not keep his mouth shut she would find a way to make him do so. He told her that he had his reasons for so expressing himself, and after consulting their mother the girls complained to the police, with the result that the young man was summoned to appear in court.

His excuse was that he uttered the words so rapidly and indistinctly that the girls would have construed it into a remark about the weather, if they had not been familiar with the expression.

A fine of ten dollars or fifteen days in gaol was imposed, and the prisoner was not given five minutes to pay it in. Fortunately his father was present and settled.

Mr. Dumble congratulated the girls on being brave enough to face the court on such a subject, and promised them the same speedy redress should such an occurence again happen.

BECK GOES TO PRISON.

And His Son Who Goes by the Name of Wesley Allen is Sent to the Industrial School.

Magistrate Dumble sentenced Thomas Beck to two years in the Central Prison yesterday on the charge of burglarizing the premises of Mr. John Butcher in 1896.

The evidence in the case was published in yesterday's issue, that of the defence going to show that the watch, which had been traced to the prisoner, had been found by the little boy, Wesley Allen, and given to Beck. The lad's story was, however, so wildly improbable that the magistrate declined to place any confidence in it. Within two months after the robbery the little fellow stated that he had found two watches, which were on the list of missing articles.

After disposing of the older man, Magistrate Dumble decided to send the boy to the Industrial School at Mimico, deeming him too intractable a youth to entrust to the Children's Aid Society, in whose charge he was at a former period in his life, when he escaped from the Toronto officers and made his way home when only seven years old. He was sentenced for an indefinite period not to exceed five years.

THE VETERAN'S MEDAL.

The Minister of Militia Approves of the Design and They Will be Ready Next Year.

The hundreds of veterans of the Fenian Raids, who read the EXAMINER will be interested in the following despatch from Ottawa:

The Fenian raid medals for the Canadian veterans are at last in a fair way to be received. This morning Hon. Dr. Borden decided on the design and the War Office has been notified of the choice, so that it is probable that they may be here for distribution on May 24th next year.

The medals, which are being made at the Royal Mint, will be of silver. The obverse will bear the usual Imperial Army long service medal design. The reverse consists of the British ensign floating in the breeze, surrounded by a handsome wreath of maple leaves and crossed latitudinally by a straight bar bearing the word "Canada." The name of the recipient will be stamped on the medal round the edge.

As the medal is designed for a general service medal the special applicability will be designated by clasps, of which three are authorized bearing the legends respectively of "Fenian Raid, 1866." "Fenian Raid, 1870," and "Red River, 1870." The demand for these medals is so great, being more than was anticipated, that it is certain that the vote of $5,000 made last session will be exceeded, but not probably by a large amount.

HARD TIMES UP NORTH.

The Big Pea Crop was Ruined by Frost.

In conversation the other day with a gentleman who has extensive dealings with north country people he informed our reporter that the outlook for the coming winter for many of the settlers is far from reassuring. Lumbering operations will be conducted on a smaller scale than last year, and crops were very poor as a result of the blighting frosts in many sections on the nights of July 11th and 12th, when potatoes, oats and garden truck suffered enormous damage. Very little wheat is grown in the northern portion of Haliburton county, but peas are a favourite crop, and thousands of acres were ruined. As a result, farmers have no feed for stock, and they have been forced to sell, which accounts for the very large shipments from that district of late. Our informant states that he knew of settlers who usually wintered 20 to 25 head who have sold off all but a couple of cows, and others who had engaged in hog-raising have had to do likewise.

SALE OF STOCK.

Good Prices Realised For Choice Cattle, Sheep, Swine and Poultry at the Ontario Agricultural College.

Guelph, October 19 (Special)—The twentieth annual sale of pure-bred poultry, cattle, sheep and swine was held at the Agricultural College this afternoon. The weather was unfavourable, yet there was a large attendance of farmers from this county, Waterloo and Halton, and a considerable number from a distance. Bidding was brisk and the prices good, especially for cattle, although some of the animals were rather young to bring full value. Quite a sum was realized for the stock offered by the farm and dairy department. There was a large demand for animals of the beef breeds, especially Shorthorns. One ten-months-old bull bought by Mr. Burt, of St. George, brought $108. A number of choice birds sold from 50c. to $2.50 each. In pigs the chief demand was for Yorkshires and Tamesworths, as they appear to be favourites for packing purposes. These would average $20 each or over. The Berks sold very well, however, and so did the sheep. On the whole the sale was very satisfactory, and was ably conducted by Mr. James Taylor.

CANOE MEN DELIBERATE.

ST. LAWRENCE THE MEETING PLACE OF 1899.

Members of the Executive Committee Decide to Get Together in August—Presentation of Hats to the Buffalo Officers.

(Buffalo Express.)

Memories of delightful summer days on stream and forest caused the members of the Executive Committee of the American Canoe Association to linger over the deliberations of the fall meeting at the Iroquois yesterday until the greater part of daylight was taken up before adjournment. Much matter of interest to the canoeists came up, including the reading of reports of retiring officers and discussion of racing regulations. One of the most important matters was discussion of place of meeting for next summer. It was decided to assemble on the St. Lawrence River, at a point to be decided on by the commodore and secretary-treasurer. The meeting will be held from August 4th to 18th, and may be extended a week longer. The committee finally adjourned subject to the call of the commodore.

The four large divisions of the association were represented at the meeting by about thirty delegates, holding proxies for many others. The new officers installed were: Commodore, Frank S. Thorne, Buffalo, and secretary-treasurer, Charles P. Forbush, also of Buffalo. Buffalo will be in charge of the annual meet next summer, and as a foretaste of their ability as hosts the visiting canoeists were well entertained during their visit. Most of the visitors arrived on Saturday and were taken to Point Abino Bay to the clubhouse of the Buffalo Canoe Club. There was an informal dinner at the Point on Sunday and the members returned to town and in the evening were guests of Commodore Forsbush of the Buffalo Club. There was much interesting that among the members on the subject of tours for the summer months. Former Commodore Wilkin relates pleasing experiences on the Delaware and Mr. McKendrick, of Galt, had something to say about the Muskoka district. W. P. Stevens, of Forest and Stream, was a fountain of information on the subject of ideal summer vacations.

[NOTE.—The summer meet of 1900 will be held in Canada and the choice will lie between Muskoka and the Peterborough lakes. A large representation at the camp next summer from Peterborough would do much to bring the canoeists to Pigeon Lake or Stony Lake. The matter will be worked up early in the spring.

THIS MORNING'S RUNAWAY.

The Contents of a Butcher Cart Scattered Along Rubidge Street.

The horse attached to Taylor's butcher cart ran away this morning near the Carbon Works on Rubidge street, throwing out the boy who was driving and scattering the meat along the streets for several blocks.

The horse became frightened through the breaking of a whiffletree. Very little damage was done the outfit, and the boy miraculously escaped with only a slight cut on the wrist.

THE GENESIS OF STREET MUD.

Important Experiments at Cardiff, Wales.

The matter of the composition of material for road making is occupying so prominent a position in present day topics that the following report as an official test, handed the EXAMINER by Mr. John Belcher, C. E., is published with pleasure:

Mud on the streets of city, town or village is a subject of perennial controversy, and the Welsh metropolis is no exception to the rule. To resolve the painful question "Whence all this mud?' the "Western Mail" (Cardiff) has taken the practical step of obtaining cubes of various specimens of macadam in common use and submitting them to tests by percussive attrition and absorption as well as ordinary thrusting. The results of these experiments, which were carried out by Mr. Arch. C. Elliott, D. Sc., M. Inst. C. E., professor of Engineering at the Cardiff University College (Mr. W. S. Boulton, F. G. S., A. R. C. S., furnishing the mineralogical description of each tube), were published by our contemporary on Friday, 23rd September, in a report signed by Prof. Elliott. The specimens included three samples of basalt (submitted by the London Basal Stone Co. Ltd), and cubes of Penlee and Clee Hill Dhu basalts; Cornish, Clee Hill, Wicklow, Guernsey, and Aberdeen granites; Mumbles, Swelldon and Cwmynofydd limestones; sandstone, and neat Portland cement. In the thrusting test the London Basalt Co's three sets of specimens stood a respective average maximum stress per square inch of 9 35, 12 02 and 12 45 tons; the other basalts bore 5 54 and 9.45 tons respectively; the Clee Hill, Wicklow and Guernsey granites went up to 5.49, 6 41 and 7 99 tons; the Mumbles limestone to 5.96, and the other two limestones to 3 99 and 3.09. The real mud test, of course, was that by percussive attrition, the specimens being separately subjected to rapid motion against the ribbed sides of an iron cylinder in a manner calculated to reproduce the action resulting from vehicular and other traffic. The reports on this test and on that by absorption were as follows:

The people of Cardiff and of a still wider area have reason to be grateful to the Western Mail for the enterprise it has displayed in resolving doubts as to the mud-producing tendencies of the various classes of macadam. The task of persuading quarry owners to submit samples for such testing was, we learn from our contemporary, no light one, the request for cubes raising at first a storm of suspicion. When this was got over, long and costly experiment, with the cubes themselves followed, but in the result our contemporary is able to demonstrate the genesis of the mud in the streets of Cardiff where the main thoroughfares are, according to the borough surveyor, laid with Penlee basalt and Arklow granite, and the "minor streets" with local limestone. These experiments, it should be observed, have been specific and precise in character. Very little information has hitherto been available as to the qualities of macadam in common use, and the failing of that which has been forthcoming, except as regards thrusting tests, which only affect the stone in one respect, so to speak, is that it has been vague and general. So far as can be ascertained macadam has never before been subjected to experimental attrition in this country, and no such machine as that specially constructed at the Cardiff University College for the "Western Mail" attrition tests exists in the United Kingdom. A German professor once carried out a few purely attritive experiments on these lines, and the French Government some years ago instituted tests somewhat more closely realizing practical conditions; but so far as this country is concerned, where street mud is so vexed a question, Cardiff (where about 30,000 tons of mud are collected off the streets every year), thanks to the "Western Mail," leads the way in practical experiments. And the result, amongst other things, is the proof of actual demonstration and exact measurement that limestones, whether pure or impure, are utterly unsuitable for use as macadam in any circumstances whatever.

NOTE—Since our city fathers are entering upon a permanent pavement campaign, it would, in view of the above, doubtless pay to take some pains to find out in some inexpensive way the kind of stone best suited for making lasting macadam.

RAILWAY NOTES.

Sparks From the Wheels—Cinders for the Eye.

The trainmen employed on the middle division of the Grand Trunk Railway are in a flutter over the report that the new train running rules adopted by the Grand Trunk system are to be put into effect at once. These rules, which are similar to those in use on the American roads, the Grand Trunk management decided to adopt nearly nine months ago, but the employees raised objections on the ground that that they could not become familiar with them at once. The matter was even brought up in Parliament, and the upshot was that it was decided to give the men time to learn the rules. Another report yesterday was that all the night telegraph operators were to be taken off between Toronto and Belleville, and in view of the fact that even now a committee of telegraphers is in Montreal engaged in drawing up a list of grievances to lay before the company this story also caused uneasiness.

Supt. Fitzhugh, of the middle division, was seen in regard to the matter and positively denied that any telegraphers were to be taken off between Toronto and Belleville. He stated that with the block system in operation and a single track between Toronto and Belleville, it would be impossible to dispense with the operators.

Mr. Fitzhugh also said that the new train running rules would not be put in operation till all the employees were thoroughly conversant with them. Every employe on the entire system will have to pass an examination, to test his acquaintance with the new rules. If a man, however, fails to pass, he will be given another chance, and the railway company will, in fact, instruct the men themselves. All the men, though, will have to have a competent acquaintance with the rules.

Mr. W. E Davis, general passenger agent of the Grand Trunk, has received a communication from Mr. F. I. Whitney, general passenger agent of the Great Northern Railway, in which the latter gentlemen charges the Canadian Pacific with again cutting rates. Mr. Whitney claims to have discovered that Canadian Pacific orders for tickets at cut rates were on sale at Seattle from Sept. 25 to 28. The Canadian Pacific explain their appearance on the market by stating that the orders had been sold by its Alaska agents prior to the receipt of instructions for the restoration of rates, and that orders had been issued to have the market cleared of such tickets. Subsequently, however, Mr. Whitney found that such tickets were still on the market, and a number of them were bought as late as October 11th.

Mr. Whitney closes his letter to Mr. Davis as follows:

"We cannot help being of the opinion that if orders have been forwarded to the Alaskan agents of the Canadian Pacific Railway they are not being carried out, and no matter who is responsible for either the omission or the fault, this company is a sufferer to the extent of losing our entire share of traffic from Alaska, and in justice to the interests we represent we feel bound to place ourselves on an equality with our competitors.

"These facts are given you that you may appreciate the patience and forbearance which we have endeavoured to show with regard to this menacing situation, and that you may be prepared to understand any future action which we may be forced to take to protect our interests."

RUGBY FOOTBALL.

The Colts are practising hard for their big game on Saturday afternoon with Port Hope.

The feature of yesterday's practice was Brundatte's work. He put up a great game and will be much in evidence on Saturday.

In the Port Hope match Garney Bell will play full back and Geo. Burnham will come up on the wing line.

THE TURF.

Those who accompanied "Master Fred" to Chicago have returned greatly pleased with the trip, although having a narrow escape of being "done" by the betting men on the other side.

GOLF NOTES.

"An' what's this game iv golf like, dinnaw ?' said Mr. Hennessy, lighting his pipe with much unnecessary noise. "Ye'er a good deal iv a spoort, Jawnny; did ye iver thry it."

"No," said Mr. McKenna; "I used to roll a hoop once upon a time, but I'm out of condition just now."

"It ain't like baseball," said Mr. Hennessy, "an' it ain't like shinny, an' it ain't like lawn-teenis, an' it ain't like forty-fives, an' it ain't—

"Like canvas back duck or any other game ye know," said Mr. Dooley.

"This what is it like?' said Mr. Hennessy. "I see be th' paaper that Hobart What-in-the-name iv-Gawd'd'ye call him is wan iv th' best at it. Th' other day he made a scoor iv wan hundherd an' sixty-eight, but whether it was miles or stitches I cudden't make out fr'm th' raypoorts. Thim raypoorters has a slovenly style."

"'Tis little ye know," said Mr. Dooley. "Th' game iv golf is as old as th' hills. Me father had golf links all over his place, an' whin I was a kid 'twas wan iv th' principal spoorts iv me life, afther I'd dug th' turf fr th' avenin', to go out and putt—

"Poof, ye mean," said Mr. Hennessy. "They'se no such wurrud in th' English language as putt. Belinda called me down ha ard on it no more than las' night."

"There ye go," said Mr. Dooley angrily; "there ye go! Dy'e think this here game iv golf is a spelling match? 'Tis like ye, Hinnessy to be refereein' a twinty round glove contest be th' rule iv three. I tell ye I used to go out in th' avenin' an' putt mashie like hill-an'-all, till I was knowed fr'm wan ind av th' county to th' other as th' champeen putter. I putted two min fr'm Rascommon in wan day, an' they had to be took home on a dure.

"In America th' game is played more gintee! an' is more like cigaree-smokin' though less onhealthy fr th' lungs. 'Tis a good game to play in a hammock whin ye're all tired out from social duties or shovellin' coke. Out-iv-dure golf is played be the followin' rules: If ye bring ye'er wife fr to see th' game and she has her name in th' paper that counts ye wan. So th' first thing ye do is to find th' rapporter an' tell him ye'er there. Thin ye ordher a bottle iv brown pop an' have ye'er second fan ye with a towel. Afther this ye dhress, an' here ye've got to be dam particklar or ye'll be stuck fr th' dhrinks. If ye'er necktie is not on straight that counts ye'er opponent wan. If both ye and ye'er opponent have ye'er neckties on crooked th' first man that sees gets th' stakes. Thin ye order a carredge—"

"Order what?' exclaimed Mr. McKenna.

"A carredge."

"What for?'

"Fr to tae ye 'round th' links. Ye has a little boy following ye carryin' ye'r clubs. Th' man that has the smallest little boy it counts him two. If th' little boy has th' rickets it counts the man in th' carredge three. Th' little boys is called caddies, but Clarence Heaney that tol' me all this, he belongs to th' Foorth Wa-ard Golf an' McKinley Club, said what th' little boys call th' players 'd not be fit for to repeat.

"Well whin ye dhrive up to th' tea grounds —"

"Th' what?' demanded Mr. Hennessy.

"Th' tea grounds that's lie th' home-plate iv baseball or orderhin' a piece iv chalk in a game iv spoil five. Its th' beginnin' iv iverything. Whin ye get to th' tea grounds ye step out an' have ye'er hat irned be th' caddie. Thin ye'er man that ye'er goin' against come up and he asks ye, 'Do ye know Potther Pammer?' Well if ye don't know Potther Pammer its all up with ye—ye lose two points. But ye come right back at him with a upper cut: Do ye live on th' Lake Shore dhrive? If he doesn't ye have him in th' nine hole. Ye needn't play with him anny more. But if ye do play with him he has to spot three balls. If he's a good man and shifty on his feet he'll counter be askin' ye where ye spend th' summer. Now, ye can't tell him that ye spent th' summer with wan hook on th' free lunch an' another on th' ticker tape, an' so ye go back three. That needn't discourage you at all, at all. Here's yer chance to mix up an ye ask him if he was iver in Scotland. If he wasn't, it counts ye five. Then ye tell him that ye had an aunt wanst that heerd th' Jook of Argule talk in a phonygraph, an' unless he comes back an' shoots it into ye that he was wanst run over be th' Prince iv Wales, ye have him groggy. I don't know whether the Jook iv Argule or th' Prince iv Wales counts for most. They're loike th' right and left bowers iv thrumps. Th' best players is called scratch min."

"What's that fr?' Mr. Hennessy asked.

"It's a Scotch game," said Mr. Dooley, with a wave of his hand. "I wonder how it come out to-day. Here's th' pa-aper. Let me see. McKinley at Canton. Still there. He niver cared to wandher from his own fireside. Bryan on the hog train. Coller button men f'r th' gool standord. Statutes iv Heidelback, Ickleheimer an' Co. to be erected in Washington. Another Vanderbilt weddin'. That sounds like golf but it ain't. Newport society livin' in Mrs. Potther Pammer's cellar. Green goods men declare fr honest money. Li-Hung Chang smells a rat. Wait a minyit; here it is: 'Golf in gay attire.' Lave me see. H'm. 'Foozled his approach'—nasty thing. 'Topped th' ball.' 'Three up an' two to play.' Ah, here's th' scoor! 'Among those prisint were Messrs. an Mestrames'—

"Hol' on! cried Mr. Hennessy, grabbing the paper out of his friend's hands—"That's thim that was there."

"Well," said Mr. Dooley decisively, "that's the golf scoor."

HAVELOOK.

(Received too Late for the Weekly Issue)

George Upton, a young man of about twenty years of age, received Wednesday, as his sentence for stealing in two of Havelock's stores, one year in the Central Prison.

A concert and supper will be held in the I.O.O.F. hall here next Tuesday night, 25th inst. The committee have spared neither time nor money to make this one of the best concerts of the season. Tickets to both concert and supper 50 cents.

On November 3rd a concert will be held in connection with the Presbyterian church. Miss Tessa McCallum, of Galt, is engaged. This is Miss McCallum's second visit to Havelock, and as every person who heard her was delighted with her elocutionary ability a goodly number is expected to be present.

Mr. Mark, of Georgina Island, Lake Simcoe, lies in a very low condition at his son's residence here, Mr. James Mark, C. P. R. conductor. No hopes are entertained of Mr. Mark's recovery.

We are pleased to learn that most of our present staff of teachers have been re-engaged. Miss Mark intends attending the Ottawa Normal next year. Miss Houston, of Norwood, takes Miss Mark's room. Every person is well satisfied with the present staff and pleased with the school board's action.

We congratulate Mr. Gillies on being elected President of the County of Peterborough Teacher's Association at the recent convention held in Ashburnham.

Constable Williams took the prisoner Upton to Peterborough on Saturday last. He will be taken from Peterborough to Toronto.

MRS. HOOPER ESCAPED.

Because She Used Dodd's Kidney Pills and so Cured Female Weakness.

Norwich, Ont., Oct. 3.—Mrs. J. S. Hooper, wife of Mr. J. Stanley Hooper, of North Norwich township, is a living proof of the unapproached value of Dodd's Kidney Pills, in the treatment of diseases of women.

Mrs. Hooper was a martyr to Female Weakness and Kidney Disease for twelve years. Norwich, Detroit and Buffalo physicians treated her unavailingly. She then tried Dodd's Kidney Pills. Four boxes cured her thoroughly and made her as healthy, strong and vigourous as she ever was. Dodd's Kidney Pills are women's best friends.

A Thrilling Story Which Needed but a Touch to Perfect It.

The publisher of fiction in paper covers was not feeling very amiable when the young lady novelist called on him. The truth was that he had been going over a lot of bills and had been tempted to write to his wife and daughters things which he would not have the courage to express under circumstances where they could reply.

"I called to see about my story," said the young lady novelist.

"Oh, the one which is entitled 'Mariotta's Marriage; or, a Life Story From a Book of Cigarette Papers.'"

"Yes, that's it."

"Well, it's a pretty good novel. But you must bear in mind that as litteratoors we're responsible for the education of the public to a certain degree. We must not be too improbable. Sometimes you have to be a little improbable now and then in order to fascinate your reader, but you can be reasonable a good deal of the time."

"But if you try that, isn't your reader likely to become unfascinated?" she inquired.

"Not if you're judicious. Now, the only objection I have to your story is the incident which represents the heroine as jumping out of a third story window on to an awning over a meat store in order to escape the abductors who are on her track. It's too much to risk on an awning. And besides it's more than likely any abductor who knew his business would have a confederate posted outside to catch her when she bounced off. Of course you've got her cornered, and she's got to get away somehow. But I must say it doesn't sound quite artistic to me."

She had been thinking while he talked, and she remarked:

"Suppose we fix it this way: She was on her way home from the milliner's, where she bought the most fashionable hat in the window. She was walking through the park when she saw her pursuers on her track. She knew she must act quickly. Without a moment's hesitation she took off the hat, laid it on the ground and then crouched behind the bunch of mammoth hyacinth blossoms which the milliner had told her would cost $17 extra. How she rejoiced that she had not carried out her threat to go without rather than pay so much! The men who had so often abducted her before were foiled at last. They came within a few feet of her hiding place, and one of them paused, but only to remark that he had never before seen a flower bed and shrubbery in that part of the park. Marietta was saved!"

And the publisher nodded his head approvingly and exclaimed:

"Now, there's some sense to that."—Washington Star.

REMOVING ROCKS.

An Inexpensive and Labor Saving Performance With Dynamite.

The description of any process for lightening the task of getting rid of rocks on a farm is sure of an interested audience, for which reason the story of a rock "shooting," told by a correspondent of Rural New Yorker, is here repeated:

This especial line of economics did not take place on this farm, for I have been fortunate enough to have the rocks removed by former generations, but a neighbor was not so fortunate, and hearing the reports of his "shootings" I went over to see him. I found him about to begin operations on an ugly looking rock that showed about six inches above the surface and which was a botheration every time the field was plowed, cultivated or cut. With an iron bar he sounded around it until he found the straightest side, then with the bar a hole was made about two feet deep slanting enough so that the end of it would be under the rock. A "stick" of dynamite (one-half pound), was crumbled in the hands, let run in the hole and pressed lightly down with a broom handle. Then a piece of fuse two feet long was put in, having a cap on the end, and another "stick" was crumbled on top of the first. This was so that the cap would explode in the dynamite. Then earth was filled in the hole and tamped lightly with the broom handle, a match applied, and we all set out on a brisk walking match until we got out of reach. There was a report and a hole in the ground, and pieces of broken rock scattered about the field were all that was left of the troublesome rock. The cash outlay was about 9 cents and the time of making the explosion was about 15 minutes. There was the broken stone to be hauled off, but in this case he sold the stone for 50 cents a perch, so that what he got for the stone more than repaid him for hauling.

Often a small rock, say three or four feet in diameter, will be turned out of the hole but not broken, then a stick or two is laid on the top of the rock and a bucket of mud (with all the small stones carefully taken from it) is placed on the dynamite, the charge fired as before and a broken stone is the result. The thing wherein most failures by beginners are made is by not putting enough dynamite under the rock. One blast I saw was a case in point; after the blast the stone was in almost the same position as before, but we saw by the impression on the soft earth that the stone had rolled to the top of the hole and almost rolled out, and then for want of a half stick more had rolled back again. Put enough under to do the work or you lose all that you do put under. Another caution is to get as far away from the rock as the fuse will let you or else get behind some tree and close up to the trunk. I saw a shutter of a house broken by a blast that was fired fully 100 yards away. This was, of course, an exceptional case, but one does not want to get hit, even by an exceptional piece of rock.

Fall Plowing of Stubble Land.

The most common mistake in preparing ground for fall grains is waiting until just before seeding time or about the last week in August and the first in September, according to Orange Judd Farmer, and there are the following reasons why early plowing is the best: The weeds that have started after the cutting of the small grains are turned under and kept from seeding. This is no small consideration where the ground is at all foul. If some of the seeds near the surface should start after plowing, go over the field with a harrow of some kind or a cultivator and allow none to develop. The chief value of early plowing is that the land has an opportunity to become well pulverized and compacted before seeding time. If the land is hard when plowed, the numerous workings which should be given it with the rains of late summer and early autumn will dissolve the clods and obliterate damage if present when the seed is sown. Many failures with winter grains can be traced to late plowing and imperfect preparation of the seed bed. Begin plowing as soon as the shocks have been removed from the field. This will vary from the first week in July to the second in August.

Preventing Corn Smut.

For most of the smuts of the other cereals there are methods of treating the seed prior to sowing that, to a great degree, prevent the subsequent attack of the fungus, but there appears to be no such means for preventing corn smut. A farmers' bulletin says experiments have shown that the frequent spraying of the plants and ground with any of the better known fungicides will prevent a serious spread of the disease, but in practice this will hardly be warranted on account of the expense of such treatment. Possibly a more economical and as efficient means to be recommended is the collection and burning of all smut masses before they ripen and scatter their spores. Much could be accomplished in this way by keeping a sharp lookout for the smut boils at every cultivation and at the harvesting of the crop. If attention be paid to the manure and the smut be collected and destroyed as recommended, but little loss will be occasioned by corn smut.

Watering Cabbage In Dry Weather.

The broad leaves of cabbage evaporate water very fast, and, like other leaves, they probably take carbonic acid gas from the air and store it in the cabbage head. They require a great deal of water, and it is a great help to their growth in a dry time if soil is dug away from their roots and water in which some fermented stable manure has been dissolved is poured in the hole. Then replace the soil that has been taken out. This will leave a dry surface and prevent evaporation. The cabbage will also grow faster than if the manure water is poured on the surface soil around the plant, says American Cultivator.

In the Sickroom.

Give the room which has the best means of ventilation and the most sunshine to the invalid. Have dark green holland shades at the windows. Green tempers the glare of the sun in a way very soothing to the tired eyes.

Change the bed linen as often as possible. Once a day is not too often. In making the bed be sure that the under sheet is stretched tight and smooth as a drum cover. Wrinkles in the under sheet cause continual discomfort and sometimes sores.

Keep the medicine bottles, glasses and spoons out of sight of the patient. Every sickroom should be provided with a small bottle cabinet, where medicines may be kept. If this is out of the question, a couple of swinging shelves curtained in silk may be used.

Do not ask the patient what he wants to eat. Ask the doctor what he should eat, prepare it daintily and in small quantities and serve it to him arrayed as tempting as possible. Cover the tray with a spotless linen cloth, use the prettiest china and the brightest silver and glass and adorn the tray with a flower or two. Daintiness is a great appetiser.

Whittier's Only Sweetheart.

There has recently been published a story, said to be authentic, concerning Whittier's youthful and only sweetheart. Her name was Evelina Bray, and there seems to have been no reason why they should not marry, save that she was musical and had a piano, and that was an abomination to the Quakers, and he was poor and wrote verses, which was taken by Miss Bray's father to be a sure sign that he was a ne'er do well. So the parents' consent could not be obtained, and the lovers parted to meet but once again in 50 years. Whittier remained single, but probably he did not cherish the memory of their love as faithfully as did the lady, who in 1848 married Rev. William S. Downing. But after the death of her husband and of Whittier Mrs. Downing made application to be admitted to the Old Ladies' home, which Whittier had founded, not because she was destitute, but, as it is said, because she wished to pass her last days near Whittier's grave. Mrs. Downing died soon after making the application.—Woman's Tribune.

Captain Spike (hoarsely)—What d'you mean, you infernal landlubber, by hauling me out o' bed in the dog watch?

The Bo'sen—Beg pardon, cap'n, but there is a Spanish privateer two p'ints off th' weather bow.

Cap'n Spike—Wh-wh-what's that? A Spanisher up here? Infernal nonsense! Gimme my glass. Eh, by gum, it is! Ha, ha, ha! That's too good! But, see here, you lubber, don't you ever call me for any such triflin reason. I'm goin to turn in again.

The Bo'sen—But, cap'n, she's a-comin up hand over fist. What are we goin to do? Fight her?

Cap'n Spike—Fight her? Oh, you swab! There won't be any fightin. If she gets too close, I'll turn th' hose on her. There goes a gun. Look at that! Look at that! Dropped the shell a half mile to port. If she fires on us again, derned if I don't get in th' small boat and go over and pull their whiskers. There she goes again! Take in sail. Make everything fast. Put about an run fer her. I'll teach 'em not to meddle with a Yankee ship an a Yankee cap'n. Hustle up there!

The Bo'sen—Say, cap'n, there's that old salutin carronade abaft th' hen coop. Shall we get it out?

Cap'n Spike—You kin if you want to.

The Bo'sen—We've got plenty o' powder, but no cannon balls.

Cap'n Spike—Load her up with anything—nails, boots, coal, anything. There she goes again, blast her! Load up.

The Bo'sen—Step aside, cap'n, she might bust. All ready! Let her go!

Cap'n—Well aimed, well aimed! Hit her forward cabin square and busted every window. Derned if an old boot didn't knock down th' cap'n! Give her another!

The Bo'sen—No use, cap'n, she's runnin away.

The Cap'n—So she is. That's too bad. I wanted to get a chance to smash her slats with a boat hook. Well, let her go No use followin her. 'Tain't likely she'll stop this side o' Spain. Fact is there ain't much show in this neighborhood for successful privateerin.

The Bo'sen—Not much, cap'n.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

LAUNDRY LINES.

A clean apron worn while hanging the clothes helps keep them clean.

Calicoes should be washed in clean water, dried in the shade and turned on the wrong side to dry.

Red tablecloths keep their color if a little borax is added to the rinse water and they are dried in the shade.

Bluing added to the rinse water does not whiten the clothes, only covers the dirt and need not ever be used.

Dish towels and common towels can be ironed just as well in half the time if folded together once as if ironed singly.

Letting clothes hang after they are dry or letting them hang through a storm or in windy weather to slat about is not conducive to long wearing or to help the good man's pocketbook.

A clothespin bag made of bedticking of something stout in the form of a pocket, with a slit on the front side, is much easier to get at than a common bag. A bedticking apron, with a large pocket across the bottom, is better than either. A basket exposes the clothespins to dust, and the clothes suffer accordingly.

LITERARY NOTES.

A Pleasing Round Cushion.

The round cushion is rather out of date, yet it still has its uses, and so pretty a design as the one shown should appeal to the artistic embroiderer. It is adapted from a Japanese sketch, and it will be found to work out very effectively with but little labor. The silk for the stitchery may if desired be totally different in color from that of the background, but two colors are on the whole more satisfactory, because the four sided design in the middle would seem to demand a different treatment from the leaves round the edge.

A soft background should be used, and upon this the design can be worked

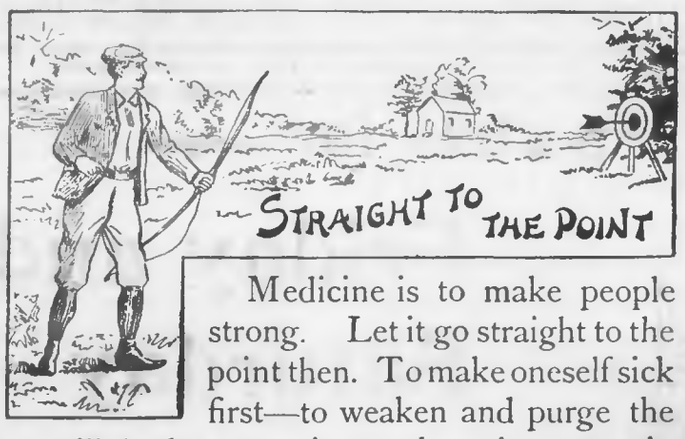
Cable or tapestry silk is effective, since, being very soft and, as it were, "flossy," a series of wee silky puffs is formed on the surface of the material which gives an uncommon and soft look to the embroidery. Of course it is easy enough to use a finer make of silk if desired. Workers do not fully appreciate the good results that are obtainable by the merest tyro with running stitches only or the manner in which these may be adapted to as elaborate a scheme of shading as one could possibly wish to see.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

Make Rich, Red, Life-Preserving Blood

People Who Use This Medicine are Made Bright, Active and Strong



Medicine is to make people strong. Let it go straight to the point then. To make oneself sick first—to weaken and purge the poor ill body, expecting to have it strong in consequence, is not going straight; it is aiming round the corner, and that is not the sort of aim that generally hits the mark.

DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS FOR PALE PEOPLE act directly and straight. They build up and tone up the system at once; their beneficial effect is recognized at once. They strengthen and only strengthen. But be sure you obtain DR. WILLIAMS'—look for the name "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People." Don't accept anything that does not have that name printed on it in this shape

Take care that there shall be no missing words

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers in medicine or sent post paid at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

GAINED THIRTY-NINE POUNDS

The Experience of Miss Flora Ferguson, of Sidney—For Five Years She Was An Almost Helpless Invalid.

From the Sydney, N. S. Reporter.

Many of our Cape Breton readers, especially those residing in Sydney and vicinity, will remember the subject of this article, and a so knew Miss Ferguson when residing at her home on Hardwood Hill, just on the borders of the town. From 1890 to 1895 sickness preyed upon Miss Furguson, and from a birgh and healthy girl she became an invalid, completely given up to weakness and despondency. In the spring of 1895 she left her home and went to the States, where she has a sister and other friends, thinking that a change of climate might benefit her. While there she was attended by medical men, but without any improvement, in fact she gradually grew worse, until she used to spend the greater part of every day on the lounge at her sister's. Friends came to see her, only to go away with the sympathetic remark, "Poor Flora, she is not long for this world." From the beginning of her sickness up to the time when the first box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills was taken, she had tried upwards of twenty different kinds of medicine—some from doctors and some of the many patent drugs for sale at druggists. Hearing from the friend of the value of Dr Williams' Pink Pills, Miss Ferguson resolved to give them a trial, and requested her sister to get her a box. As day by day went by she began to feel better and her spirits to return and in the course of a few weeks she walked a mile to the post office and home again. Miss Ferguson continued taking the Pills until she had used eight boxes, when she was completely restored to health and happiness. While ill she had greatly run down in weight, and at the time she began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, was reduced to 102 pounds, and when she had completed the eighth box her weight had increased to 141 pounds. Recently she called at the home of the editor of this paper to leave her address to have the Reporter forwarded to her at Arlington, Mass. During the conversation with her the above facts were told to Mr. Richardson, the editor, and with beaming countenance Miss Ferguson agreed to have him tell the people "How Dr. Williams' Pink Pills brought her from the gates of death to the enjoyment of health." He was astonished, as being well acquainted with her when in Sydney, knowing how ill she was and seeing her a physically changed person was enough to be amazed at the change.

AGONIZING PAINS OF SCIATICA

Probably no trouble that afflicts mankind causes more intense agony than sciatica. Frequently the victim is utterly helpless, the least movement causes the most agonizing pains. To those who are suffering from this malady, the following statement from Mr. John Hayes, of Hayesville, York Co., N. B., will point the road to relief and cure. Mr. Hayes says:—"For upwards of twenty years I have suffered from weakness and pain in the back. Some four years ago my trouble was intensified by Sciatica settling in my leg. What I suffered seems almost beyond description. I employed three doctors but all to no purpose; I had to give up work entirely, and almost despaired of life. This continued for two years—years filled with misery. At this time I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after using six boxes both the sciatica and the weakness in the back which had troubled me so long, were gone. I was again a well man and feeling fifteen years younger than before I began the pills. Nearly two years have passed since I discontinued the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and in that time no symptom of the trouble has shown itself. Under God I thank Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, for what they have done for me."

Mr. Hayes voluntarily testifies to the truth of the above statement before Edward Whitehead, Esq., J. P., and his statements are further vouched for by Rev. J. N. Barnes, of Stanley, N. B.

Fishing for Health.

When a man breaks down with that dread disease, consumption, and recognizes his condition, he starts out to fish for health. He tries this thing and that thing. He consults this doctor and that doctor. He indulges in all kinds of absurd athletic exercises. He tries first one climate and then another. He tries the rest cure and the work cure. He grows steadily worse.

That is the story of most consumptives. Finally, when the consumptive dies, the doctor shrugs his shoulders and pronounces consumption incurable. A thirty years' test of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has demonstrated that it cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption, if taken in the earlier stages of the disease, before the lungs are too far wasted. In a consumptive there is a weaker spot than even the lungs. That spot is the stomach. A consumptive never really begins to die until his stomach gives out. The "Golden Medical Discovery" not only braces up the stomach, but acts directly on the lungs, healing them and driving out all impurities. Honest medicine dealers will not urge you to take an inferior substitute.

"I had a very bad cough, also night-sweats, and was almost in my grave with consumption," writes Mrs. Clara A. McIntyre, Box 171, Ashland, Middlesex Co., Mass. "A friend of mine who had died with consumption came to me in a dream and told me to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and, thank the Lord, I did so. By the time I had taken half of the first bottle I felt much better. I kept on until I had taken three bottles. That was all I needed. I got well and strong again."

Whenever constipation is one of the complicating causes of disease, the most perfect remedy is Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, which are always effective, yet absolutely mild and harmless. There never was any remedy invented which can take their place. They never gripe.

About Catarrh.

"I was weak and hardly able to walk. My blood was thin and I was as pale as death. Being told about Hood's Sarsaparilla I began taking it and in a few months I had gained twenty pounds in weight. I kept on with it until I was as well as ever." Arthur Mills, Dresden, Ontario.

A Call For an Atlas.

An elderly lady, well dressed and with an air of good breeding, stood in the post-office lobby and looked around irresolutely. She held an envelope in her hand, and her helpless look attracted the attention of a young woman.

"Are you looking for a place to drop your letter?" the young woman asked.

"Y-yes," replied the lady.

"Here's the place," said the young woman, and she pointed to the slots labeled "East," "West" and "City."

But still the lady hesitated.

"Thank you," she said.

She looked about her; then she leaned forward toward the young woman and in a low whisper asked:

"Is San Francisco east or west?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

HUMAN SACRIFICES

On the Altar of Diabetes, Saved by Dodd's Kidney Pills, Only.

Hardly a family in the country is free from Diabetes. Great thirst, failing sight, numbness in the thighs, bleeding gums, swollen ankles, emaciation, nervousness, pale or turbid urine, loss of sexual power, decaying teeth, pains in the loins or small of the back, are all positive signs that Diabetes is in the system.

Do you know how it ends? IN DEATH. A premature, horrible, agonized, pitiful death. The victim has no peace, no ease in life. His days are filled with tortures. His nights are waking dreams of agony. He longs to die, yet fears the terrors of his end. He dies, a bloated, fetid, repulsive mass of corruption. That is the only end of unchecked Diabetes. Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure it. They drive it out of the system thoroughly, create new, clean blood, rebuild the diseased kidneys, and restore robust health.

TATTLING CLOTHING.

HOW A MAN'S GARB MAY PROCLAIM HIS RANK IN LIFE.

A Philosophical Tailor Tells How He Reads Character as Well as Vocation In the Men's Garments That Pass Before His Critical Eye.

"You may talk about getting knowlege of your fellow men through the art of phrenology or palmistry; about being able to read the people you meet by observing the lines about the mouth, the turn and form of the nose or ear or the shape and expression of the human eye, but I'll tell you," said Frank S. Flanagan, proprietor of the Pantorium, "there is nothing so clearly indicative of a man's character as the clothes he wears. We clean and press men's clothing here, and it is never necessary for him to tell us his vocation in life. We learn it from his clothes. We know whether he is married or single, and if married how much his wife thinks of him; if single, whether he lives at home or is boarding. He is no mystery to us. We know whether he is a doctor, lawyer, newspaper man, gambler, priest, college professor, merchant, actor or what not. We can tell whether he is bowlegged, nervous or indifferent. If he likes children or is in love, his clothes bear that telltale. In fact, you never know a man until you clean him. When I get my hands on a man's suit of clothes, he is no longer unknown to me.

"You take the ministers. Of course they all wear a garb that is significant of their calling. The back of the coats they bring here to be fixed are always shining like a plate glass mirror. Their lapels are out of line from much pulling and hauling to improve their appearance. Their trousers shine, too, with a brilliancy that speaks of long vigils and hours of prayer, with perhaps an extra polish obtained in putting down carpets or too frequent rubbing with the palms of the hands, smacking their legs in laughter while cracking jokes. They do not wear creases lengthwise in their trousers pressed by the iron, but the creases circle around the legs. That's caused by holding the children on his lap. Pshaw! You can always tell a preacher's clothes.

"The lawyer's clothes are almost as easily distinguished as the preacher's. The seat of his trousers is always thin. You see, he generally sits on a wooden or cane bottom chair. This part of his trousers is only an adumbration. If the hole is worn completely through, he adopts one of two measures. He either wears a longer coat or has his pants 'half soled.' If he wears a longer coat to hide the laxity of his apparel, he is continually grabbing the bottom edge of it to keep the wind from disclosing his secret. If he has his trousers patched and continues to wear his sack coat, he looks shamefaced and backs out of one's presence like a tumblebug. And then, too, the inside coat pocket of a lawyer is always full of papers. This makes the pocket sag, and it soon gets out of shape. The elbows of the lawyer's coat are always shiny. In studying he puts his head in his hands and rests his elbows on the table.

"I can tell a doctor too. His clothes, while generally clean and well preserved, have the smell of iodoform about them. Then, too, he always leaves his clothes to be fixed at a certain hour. Other men call for their clothes about on time. Not so with the physician. He is always two or three hours late. He is very apt to leave a small vial of morphine tablets in his vest pocket.

"A most peculiar suit of clothes is worn by the pickpocket—yes, I have them for customers too. His pockets are as numerous as the political pie hunters. Pockets on the inside of pockets. Pockets under the waistband. Pockets everywhere. I never saw the like of places to conceal stolen articles. He might be searched a hundred times and still retain his 'swag.' I wish you could have seen a pair of pants I fixed up for one of those circus grafters. That pair of pants just had exactly 48 pockets.

"Gamblers and liquor dealers have more neatness about their dress than any others. They dress in more ostentation than the men of other callings. The gambler generally leaves cards or poker chips in his pockets, and I have no trouble in finding him out.

"Take the grocery man, for instance. His clothes smell of almost everything from fish to peppermint candy. They are more or less soiled from coming in contact with lard and other greasy substances. They wear an apron in front, which protects that part of the suit.

"It's funny to see the newspaper man's clothes. He don't have time for the use of a coat. There are two full moons in his pantaloons, and nary a patch is there. His trousers are fringed at the bottom, and he generally wears his pants turned up. He is fairly neat in appearance—that is, keeps his clothes clean, because he seldom has more than one suit.

"The bowlegged man is a daisy. He likes his trousers creased in order that he may appear straight limbed. He sits tight in the saddle of his pants. His suspenders are short. The buttons on his trousers have hard service. His vest is shorter than otherwise, but the point of the knee to the side of the crease gives him completely away. That may be the reason that women like bowlegged men, because they keep their pants pressed and creased.

"The college professor has neat clothes, but in them you will find fine particles of chalk dust, etc.

"Old Commodore Vanderbilt, whose head was so long he could eat out of a churn, gave it as his opinion that to be successful in life a young man must be natty. Now, the longer we live the more forcible becomes his advice. Each succeeding generation becomes neater in appearance. There was a time when a dirty, tobacco splattered shirt front signified dignity and profundity of intellect. But things have changed and from out a heterogeneous mass of pseudo natty people our young man of today is evolved. We find him to be neater and cleaner than we were; but, try how he will, man can never escape from the fact that his tailor knows more about him than his wife."—Kansas City World.

He Was Too Mediæval.

"The more I think," observed the studious grandee, "about our great national hero, Don Quixote, the less do I regard him as a true type of Spanish chivalry."

"Your words are almost heresy," replied another grandee. "But why do you think thus?"

"Well, for instance, he was defeated in his gallant attack on the windmill, and yet, though the windmill was unable to write or give its own version of the affair, we have no record that the immortal Quixote ever celebrated the victory."—New York World.

Twilight Fancies.

The day is o'er; the cricket's trill
Sounds cheerily without,
But silent is my hearth and chill—
No forms are roundabout.

Yet not alone am I tonight,
For shapes unseen are here.
Upborne by airy pinions light,
They drift from everywhere—

Dear phantoms of my childish friends,
Dim emblems of a love
That to mortal earthly spirit lends
A halo from above!

I see no more the lonely hearth
Nor moan my cheerless lot;
Encompassed by the children's mirth,
My sorrows are forgot.

Forgotten are the cares of life
And man's inhuman wiles,
For naught may be of sin or strife
Where holy childhood smiles.

So, as the ev'ning shadows fall,
I sit in calm content,
Grateful to the King of all,
Who hath such blessings sent.

And what if brainless men deride
My life upon the hill!
I spurn them all, for at my side
The children linger still!

BALLADE OF THE PRIMROSE WAY.

Life, through the arc of a century,
Cronies two we have faced the road,
Cheek by jowl, since the first young day
When the primrose path before us glowed.
Mind you the wonders the vista showed?
Cloth of gold where the sunlight lay?
Mind you the cowslip balls we stowed?
Glinting guerdons of Primrose way.

Life, you're a faithful votary,
Years and a day to keep the code.
Yours was a rare knight errantry,
For hobble-de-hoy my fancy rode,
But then the cowslip crop we snowed.
Crowfoot furrows we reap today.
Carols have changed to a palinode,
And lost forever is Primrose way.

What a world of meaning this statement embodies. Just what you are looking for, is it not? Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor—the great sure pop-corn cure—acts in this way. KILLED BY SEWER GAS.

A Deadly Warning to School Trustees and Parents Everywhere.

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 20.—Within two weeks 25 children, pupils in Public School 28, have died of what was believed to be diphtheria. Investigation shows that a sewer pipe leading into the building had been tapped. The sewer gas, which accumulated at night, was fanned into the class room through the cold air pipes during the day.

A Bishop for Brazil.

Washington, D.C., Oct. 20. — The House of Bishops of the Episcopal Convention took final action yesterday on the establishment of a bishop in Brazil. The bishop and church in Brazil are to remain directly responsible to the authorities here until it has advanced to the point of having three bishops, at which time, by the joint action of these three, a national church for Brazil, independent of supervision by the United States, may be established.

Our Apples in England.

London, Oct. 20.—Canadian apples offered for sale at Covent Garden yesterday were, upon opening, found to be in a bad condition. Many of them were spotted and partially blighted. Prices in consequence were poor. Nova Scotia apples were in fine condition, Kings bringing from 17 to 21 shillings, Pippins 28 to 30 shillings a barrel. Best Blenheims brought from 18 to 20 shillings, and Gravensteins ranged between 13 and 17 shillings.

Was It Due to Magnetism?

London, Oct. 20.—Newspapers, in their reference to the loss of the Mohegan, recall a story to the effect that peculiar and variable magnetic conditions exist near the Manacles, which are liable to disturb ships' compasses. The wreck of the steamer Palmyra in that vicinity on March 14, 1885, in similar circumstances, is mentioned.

A Chatham Lady's Case.

CARRYING A PAIL OF WATER OR OTHER HOUSEHOLD WORK MADE HER HEART BEAT VIOLENTLY.

She's been Restored to Perfect Health by Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

There are many women in this land who find household duties a drag and a burden. The least exertion tires them, gives them a pain in the back and side, makes their heart palpitate and their head ache. To such we would commend for consideration the following statement made by Mrs. James Ranken, Baldoon Street, Chatham, Ont.:

"I saw by the advertisement of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, that they were a specific for weakness of the heart and nerves, general debility, dizziness, fluttering, palpitation, etc. I was so weak that I could not go to the Central Drug Store to get them myself, so I sent my son for a box.

"When I commenced taking these pills I was dreadfully nervous, suffered a great deal with weak heart action, sometimes my heart almost stopped beating. Carrying a pail of water or other similar exertion, while performing my household duties would make my heart beat violently. I did not obtain restful sleep, and was easily startled and frightened.

"Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have toned up my nerves, caused my heart to resume its healthy action, and invigorated my entire system."

TAKEN A STRONG HOLD

Upon the British Public Has the Fashoda Affair.

THE SITUATION IS GRAVE.

Parisian Financial Circles Fear the Chauvinists—If War Is Averted It Will Be Because Britain Is "a Nation of Shopkeepers"—Strong Hold of British Trade in France.

London, Oct. 21. — (Toronto Globe Special).—The Fashoda affair has taken an exceedingly strong hold upon the British public. An indication of the feeling here is afforded by the speeches of the Duke of Devonshire and Sir Michael Hicks-Beach. Additional importance is given to their utterances by the fact that the Duke of Devonshire is President of the great Defence Committee, while Sir Michael Hicks Beach as Chancellor of the Exchequer represents the great paying department. Their statements that Great Britain will adhere to the line laid down in the Fashoda despatches, and Sir Michael's sensational remarks that "there are greater evils than war," and "we shall not shrink from anything that may come, knowing that we are supported by a united people," have deepened the impression already made by the publication of the Fashoda despatches.

Fear the Chauvinists.

Parisian financial circles were yesterday less hopeful of a peaceful solution of the difficulty. Their fear is that the Chauvinists, who have been gaining in strength, will get the upper hand in the Chambers. The safety point is that in the event of a rupture France would have to assume the responsibility of beginning a naval war and fighting alone. M. Lockroy, the present Minister of Marine, has often asserted the inefficiency of the French fleet in its present condition, and all appear to realize that France would be overmatched in a naval struggle. Moreover, it is realized that Great Britain purchases enormously from France. Great numbers of peasants and small farmers, who now sell exclusively to British buyers, would be absolutely ruined. Most of the more important French industries are more or less dependent upon many imports from Britain, especially coal. The Soleil, which is not friendly to Britain, recently pointed out that British purchases from France are forty-three times as great as those of Russia.

The best opinion here still is that France will withdraw.

TRAFALGAR DAY.

An Occasion Which May Add Fuel to the Controversy Between France and Britain.

London, Oct. 21.—The London morning papers have cooled down to an exceedingly cautious and conservative tone in dealing with the Fashoda question, apparently realizing that the public on both sides of the channel is heated to danger point. There is a marked effort to avoid an offensive tone.

The Times says: "Sir Michael Hicks-Beach has gone some way to persuade our neighbors that we really mean what we say. The time has come when it is absolutely necessary to dispel French dreams on this subject, unless very dangerous consequences are to result; but the Chancellor of the Exchequer might have performed the operation more dexterously."

The Daily News, which voices the general feeling, says: "The country is determined to maintain its rights, but there is no occasion to provoke our opponents or to add fuel to the controversy."

The Trafalgar celebration, falling today, is a particularly unfortunate coincidence, and may have just the effect of adding the fuel which the Daily News deprecates, if any warm-blooded patriots take advantage of the occasion.

The Feeling in France.

Paris, Oct. 21.—The drift of opinion on the Fashoda question among commercial men in Paris was shown by a resolution adopted yesterday afternoon by the Municipal Council of this city urging the French Government, without sacrificing the material interests of the country, to use its utmost efforts to avert a conflict with Great Britain over this dispute.

COURIER FROM MARCHAND.

Capt. Baratier Has Arrived at Cairo With the Important Message.

Paris, Oct. 21.—Capt. Baratier, the special messenger conveying despatches from Major Marchand, the leader of the French expedition at Fashoda, has arrived at Cairo, from which place he will telegraph a summary of his despatches to the Government.

Marchand's Message.

Paris, Oct. 21.—M. Delcasse, Minister of Foreign Affairs, has ordered that the report of Major Marchand as to the condition at Fashoda, which was expected at Cairo last night, be telegraphed textually.

Owing to its probable length it is expected that at least 48 hours will be required to reduce it to the French cipher code at Cairo, and to translate it in Paris.

Russia and France.

Berlin, Oct. 21.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Cologne Gazette wires that interest in the Nile question is rapidly increasing, and Russia's conduct in this matter will conform to the expectations formed in connection with her alliance with France. Russia has attempted to raise a large loan in Paris, and a similar attempt will be made in Berlin.

PLAYTHING OF FRANCE.

Sham Fights Against Forts and Batteries by a Flotilla of Domestic Torpedo Boats.

Paris, Oct. 21.—The alleged war preparations of France are the absorbing subject of discussion here at present. According to the French papers there were important naval experiments at Toulon yesterday evening. A flotilla of torpedo boats was detailed to make an endeavor to force the entrance of the harbor, and the whole garrison was called to arms and the forts and batteries were manned, ready for instant action. The result of the experiments have not been made public.

Vice-Admiral Barrera presided yesterday at a secret council of war at Brest, in which the chiefs of the maritime forces took part. Confidential orders were subsequently issued to the garrison. The Aurore asserts that five classes of the naval reserves around Brest have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness for active service.

FRANCE MAY HAVE TROUBLE.

One of Their Missionaries in China Burned to Death.

Paris, Oct. 21.—At the Cabinet meeting yesterday the Minister of Foreign Affairs, M. Delcasse, read a despatch from the French Minister at Pekin, M. Gerard, announcing that a French missionary and several Chinese Catholics have been massacred or burned in a chapel at Paklung by a riotous mob. M. Gerard, it was added, immediately demanded reparation from the Chinese Government.

DREYFUS IS IN PARIS.

Has Been Brought From Devil's Island to the Gay Capital.

Paris, Oct. 21.—An evening newspaper announces that Captain Albert Dreyfus is already in Paris, and is now confined in the fortress at Mont Valarien, to which he was secretly brought.

GERMAN EMPEROR'S VISIT.

Strict Police Precautions Being Carried Out to Ensure His Safety.

Constantinople, Oct. 21. — Emperor William, usually accompanied by the Empress, is engaged in a ceaseless round of sightseeing, though he adheres closely to the programme of places to be visited and his route is revealed only to those personally concerned and immediately beforehand.

The strictest police precautions are carried out to insure his safety.

ALMOST A PLAGUE PANIC.

A Death in Prof. Nothnagle's Bacillus Culture Establishment the Cause.

Vienna, Oct. 21.—The death of Barisch, the employe in the bacteriological department of Professor Nothnagle's establishment, who contracted the bubonic plague here while assisting in cultivating plague bacillus for purposes of scientific investigation, has almost created a plague panic in Vienna.

The remains were buried yesterday with remarkable precautions, the body having been soaked in disinfectants and placed in a double metal coffin, carefully soldered. Barisch's two nurses have developed alarming symptoms. They have been isolated.

His duties in the Nothnagle establishment were to clean and feed the rabbits, rats and guineapigs that were the subjects of experimental inoculation. His widow says that familiarity with danger made him careless.

Judge Morson of Toronto has reserved judgment in the case of A. E. Jones against R. S. Robinson for $35 due on Wabigoon lots. Nervous Prostration

Sick Headache and Dizziness—All Cured.

Little Girl Has Grown Plump and Rosy Since Taking Hood's.

Nervous mothers and sickly children endure a vast proportion of the suffering which is caused by impure and impoverished blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla gives relief by purifying and enriching the blood. Read this statement:

"I was bothered with sick headaches and dizziness. I also had nervous prostration and weakness in my stomach, which made me feel very ill indeed. I decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, which was highly recommended by many, and by the time I had taken four bottles I was in perfect health. About a year ago my little girl, then six years old, had bronchitis and chicken pox. We were told that her was the careful treatment she might receive at the hospital. We took her there and for eight days they had no hope of her recovery, but later she had a change for the better. Her sickness, however, left her very delicate and weak, and she did not grow any for a year. It was then I thought I would try Hood's Sarsaparilla, inasmuch as I had used it for myself and found it such a good medicine for building up a constitution. She had not taken two bottles before she had improved wonderfully. She has grown rosy and plump and is quite herself again. I have great faith in Hood's." MRS. M. HICKERSON, 938 Bloor Street, West, Toronto, Ontario.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE amount of money invested in drinking places in the United States is over nine hundred millions, an amount almost equal to the values of the farms of Ontario.

REV. DR. COCHRANE, of Brantford, would doubtless be glad he is dead, if thereby he escapes seeing the alleged portraits of him that some of the newspapers are printing.

MONTREAL'S butter shipments to Europe are now 206,712 packages, or 12,206 more than a year ago. The Montreal Gazette, the Herald thinks, spoke too soon when it wanted the Minister of Agriculture to explain why butter shipments had fallen off this year.

THE Chinese Emperor wanted his people to wear trousers, read newspapers and thus become civilized. If this benighted gentleman's ideal of civilization places "pants" and the press on a par as civilizing factors, it's no wonder the Dowager Empress wants to knife him.

THE beer called "Regal," which is simply lager spelled backward, has, after proper legal investigation, been declared intoxicating if taken in sufficient quantities—say by the barrel—and it can't be supplied in a backward way. The man who wishes to go on a spree must take his "spell" in a straightforward way—l-a-g-e-r.

THE Hon. G. E. Foster, says the Ottawa Free Press, has been unburdening his soul at Woodstock, N. B., on the subject of the plebiscite. He sees no good in it, and says nothing can come of it to benefit the temperance cause. Perhaps Mr. Foster might explain what good his $120,000 commission did for the cause, and what the Government, of which he was a member, did to promote it.

THE only beneficial commercial "trust" is that respecting patent medicines. A reach in the recent trust in nostrums seems to threaten the public with patent medicines at low rates. It is said that more persons die indirectly of over-eating than from starvation. It is also probably true that more disease is caused by perpetually gulping down every kind of patent medicine than by natural causes. Skeptics assert that the alleged cases of faith healing result more from the cutting off of the supply of medicine from the harrassed stomach than from faith—the evils arising from indiscriminate dosing ceased, and the imaginary disease vanished.

THE Montreal Gazette denounces in no measured terms the evil rule of Ontario under Liberal administration. The reply is made that a comparison shows that while Quebec is groaning under a heavy debt and burdensome taxes, Ontario has no debt, but a big surplus, and does not collect a cent of taxes. Ontario's management of our timber resources is made one special object of attack. A rabid Conservative journal which seems to have a special spite against the Ontario Government admits—which is for it great praise—that "the forests of Ontario are being moderately protected, but the forests of Quebec are in a course of decimation." The Mail and Empire made the admission.

"HON. J. I. TARTE," says the London Advertiser, "is no desk hack. His untiring activity in the performance of his duties has taken him in the past few months through Quebec, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Western Ontario. He has inspected many important public works in these provinces and has been enabled by personal observation to measure their exact value and necessity." The Tiser omitted to mention that Mr. Tarte visited Peterborough and opened our exhibition, fell in love with our pretty girls—in a purely Platonic way of course—and cast sheep's eyes of evident favour upon the darling of our hearts, the Trent Valley Canal—the future highway of "No. 1 Manitoba hard" to the seaboard. But then the poor Advertiser, having only access to Carling's brewery and the modest and muddy Thames, can have no idea of water stretches like that afforded Mr. Tarte during his recent elysian progress over their far-reaching expanse, and therefore its failure to mention Mr. Tarte's visit to Peterborough to enable him "to measure the exact value" of the Trent waters as media of transportation, is perfectly excusable.

PETERBOROUGH can make this boast. While other towns and several cities are simply talking about improving their municipal government by the practical abolition of the ward system, and the election of councillors and aldermen by general vote, Peterborough has done it without much talk. All the progressive towns and cities are falling into line. The latest to propose a try for the reform are London and St. Catharines. St. Catharines seems to have needed a tornado to stir it up to a sense of the unsatisfactory condition of its present system, and London has had a bitter enough experience of party politics in municipal matters to fly to almost anything for relief. We can tell the enterprising Londoners that no matter what system they adopt for the election of their representatives, it will be of no effect so long as they measure civic requirements by a political tape line. The London Advertiser in advocating the reduction of the number of aldermen, says: "Quality not quantity is the desideratum."

CANADIAN TURKEYS FOR GREAT BRITAIN.

Prof. Robertson, in his annual report for 1897, says:—Until recently it has been usual in Great Britain for different firms to make a specialty of dealing in the products of one particular country. It is becoming more common for individual firms to handle poultry from several countries. This will ultimately result in the poultry of the best quality and in the best condition finding its way quickly into the hands of the best customers. Poultry has not been generally used as an article of diet in the same sense as beef, mutton and bacon. The price was, relatively, considerably higher. When Canadian turkeys become known in Great Britain and are available there at the reasonable prices, at which they can be laid down with a profit to the producers in Canada, they will no doubt create an ever-growing demand for themselves. Formerly turkeys were obtainable only from November till March; now through the facilities provided by cold storage, they are found an the bills of fare in nearly all hotels, every week of the year. While they do not appear so generally after March on the tables of private houses, no doubt there will be an increasing demand for them at what was formerly out-of-season times.

FATTENING OF TURKEYS.

As a rule the turkeys in Northern France and in many counties in England, are fattened to a better finish than the turkeys in Canada. The practise in these places is to feed the turkeys particularly well for about three weeks before the time at which they are to be killed. During the fattening period the turkeys will gain in weight quicker and produce a better quality of flesh if they are kept in large sheds. These sheds may be wire netted in front, as the birds must have plenty of light and fresh air. Ten feet square of floor room will be enough for every ten turkeys. The sheds should be furnished with perches made from scantlings slightly rounded on the top, about three inches wide, and about three feet above the ground. These may be removed during the day time.

The shed should be kept clean. A quantity of coarse grit and sand should be provided. Fresh straw should be put on the floor quite often.

Meal composed of a mixture of ground oats, ground barley, ground wheat and ground buckwheat, makes a first-class food. It should be prepared in the form of a paste or dough mixed with skim-milk, sweet or sour. Some feeders prefer the sour milk. This soft feed should be given in the morning and also in the afternoon. During the fattening period it is not profitable to feed whole grain, unless it be boiled and steamed until quite soft.

During the last ten days of the fattening period, it is a good plan to add about half an ounce of fat per bird to the fattening mixture. That gives the flesh an exquisite soft quality. The feeding of Indian corn is said to result in a yellow shade of flesh, most noticeable in the fat of fowl.

The effect of feeding milk is to whiten the flesh, which is desirable. Regular feeding in the manner indicated will cause the birds to put on a large quantity of good flesh on the most valuable parts. The French poultry fatteners put one-third ounce of salt per quart in the water used in preparing the food.

CHICAGO PEACE JUBILEE.

Weather Worse Than on the Preceding Days of the Affair.

Chicago, Oct. 21—The weather yesterday, the last day of Chicago's Peace Jubilee, was even worse, if possible, than that of the preceding three days. Rain fell fitfully and a cold breeze blew constantly.

At 1.30 p.m. the President was driven to the First Regiment Armory, where, together with Mayor Harrison, he was received by a large gathering of railroad employes. After the reception the President addressed the railroad men.

The Vote in Ontario.

Toronto, Oct. 21.—Mr. F. S. Spence has received all the returns for Ontario of the plebiscite on prohibition and he has made up the figures as follows:

Ontario.
For Prohibition	154,503
Against Prohibition	115,273
Majority for Prohibition	39,230

The last return to come in was from Muskoka and Parry Sound, where the majority for prohibition was 1,143.

Healthy, happy children make better men and women of us all. A little care and a little planning before birth is often more important than anything that can be done after. On the mother's health and strength depend the life and the future of the children. A weak and sickly woman cannot bear strong and healthy children. Most of the weakness of women is utterly inexcusable. Proper care and proper medicine will cure almost any disorder of the feminine organism. Dr. Pierce's Favourite Prescription has been tested in thirty years of practice. It is healing, soothing, strengthening. It is perfectly natural in its operation and effect. By its use, thousands of weak women have been made strong and healthy—have been made the mothers of strong and healthy children. Taken during gestation, it makes child birth easy and almost painless and insures the well being of both mother and child. Send 31cents in one-cent stamps to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N.Y., and receive Dr. Pierce's 1008 page "Common Sense Medical Adviser," profusely illustrated.

Children Cry for CASTORIA.

TO RUN ON CRUTCHES.

Hon. J. M. Gibson's Opponent in E. Wellington Handicapped

IN EAST WELLINGTON'S RACE.

A Row at the Meeting—The Conservatives Refuse to Hear Mr. Park—How Dr. Coughlin Prepared a Bed of Punishment for His Own Political Back—The Speeches.

Fergus, Oct. 21.—The formal nomination of candidates for the bye-election to take place in East Wellington a week from yesterday was held yesterday afternoon in the Town Hall here. Hon. J. M. Gibson was placed in nomination by the Liberals, and Dr. J. B. Coughlin by the Conservatives. The latter is the same candidate who ran on the Conservative ticket at the last general election, and, like his opponent, he enjoys the distinction of living outside the electoral district of East Wellington. Dr. Coughlin has been seriously ill, and is physically handicapped by the fact that he will have to make his run on crutches.

The meeting was, excepting on one or two occasions, a most orderly one, although very equally divided politically. The exceptions occurred when Mr. James Park, the late independent candidate, after being nominated, attempted to speak, but was refused a hearing by the Conservatives present, at the instigation of their candidate, who asked his friends to stand by him in the refusal, on the plea that it would infringe upon the time allotted to his friends.

Dr. Coughlin referred to Mr. Park in terms of bitter denunciation because of his alleged desertion of the independent ranks, and in so doing prepared a rod for his own back, as he was not very long ago a pronounced Liberal himself.

Hon. J. M. Gibson.

Mr. Gibson was given most respectful attention, considering the tension of feeling exhibited a few moments previously. He was brief, as he was to speak again in the evening at Arthur. Referring to the fact that the chief argument of the Opposition was that he was an outsider, he said it was sufficient for him that the Liberal party of East Wellington had unanimously invited him to be their candidate. (Applause.) This was no doubt a great disappointment to the Conservatives. The campaign of the Conservative party was again one of misrepresentation. He then exploded many Opposition statements, and closed a masterly speech by pointing out that his opponent was, as well as himself, not a resident of the riding.

Dr. Coughlin.

Dr. Coughlin, who was well received by his friends, charged Mr. Park with deserting the independent cause to rally around the Liberal standard. He believed there was a cause for this, and did not think James Park was doing it for nothing. The speaker exhibited a map of East Wellington to show how the village of Arthur, where he lived, was gerrymandered out of the east riding by the Liberals.

After the formal nomination speeches were delivered by the candidates and Mr. McBrady, Col. Matheson, Hon. Mr. Harcourt and Mr. Henderson, M.P., and the meeting broke up after four hours of speechmaking at 6 o'clock.

C. M. BOWMAN SAFE.

The Petition Against the Liberal Member for North Bruce Will Be Dropped.

Toronto, Oct. 21.—Arrangements have been made for the trial at Toronto of the North Bruce election petition on November 14. It had previously been set down for Wiarton for to-morrow. The change is the signal that it will be abandoned. The respondent here is Mr. Charles M. Bowman, M.P.P., Liberal, who defeated Mr. D. M. Jermyn, Conservative, by over 400 majority.

YUKON IS FREEZING OVER.

Many Vessels on the Sandbars Will Be Icebound.

Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 21.—The steamer Garonne, which left St Michaels a day after the Roanoke, arrived yesterday morning with a number of Klondikers. The Yukon is now freezing over. J. H. Payne of Seattle, L.A.W. trick rider, said several steamers were on sandbars in the river, and ice was forming round them when he left.

Dr. McGibbon of Stevenson took an overdose of Indian hemp for neuralgia and narrowly escaped death. He will probably recover.

ASSURANCE CO.

OFFICE OF W. A. MURRAY & Co.,
17 to 27 King St., East, Toronto,

Wm. McCabe, Esq., Managing Director, N. A. L.:

DEAR SIR,—In answer to your request for me to decide upon one of the following options offered me for settlement of my 15-payment Life Investment Policy for $5,000 which has matured this year, viz:

1st to take the value of the Policy in Cash	$5,000.00
2nd, or fully paid-up insurance for	3,280.00
3rd, or take the profits in cash	2,050 28

and continue my policy without further payments being required from me, same policy participating in future profits.

I find it somewhat difficult to make a decision either of the three options being so satisfactory. I am certainly very much pleased with the results offered me, and as I find many others are giving full testimony to the profit-earning power of this company. I do not hesitate to give my endorsement as well, that the North American Life is one of our strongest Canadian Institutions to day giving first class results on Investment Policies, on a safe and conservative basis. I find that my policy, which was originally a Life by fifteen payments, has become an Endowment at the end of the Investment period.

"ALLEE SAMEE ME NO PAY."

Chinamen Decline to Pay Tax on Cordwood in British Columbia.

Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 21.—The life of a Chinaman in British Columbia is not a happy one just now. Organized labor throughout the province is endeavoring to establish a boycott on all restaurants and hotels employing Chinamen, and the British Columbia Government has decided to collect the wood tax. This is a tax of 25 cents a cord on all wood cut on Government reserves for fuel purposes. The Chinamen are almost exclusively in this business on the mainland, there being too little money in it for the more enterprising white. The tax has never been collected in the past by the Turner Government, and now the Semlin Government has decided to collect it. They are met with a flat refusal to pay from Mr. Chinaman, who says "Me pay two bittee cord, me no profit make; allee samee me no pay." The Government has decided to force payment on thousands upon thousands of cords cut for this season's market.

RAN AWAY TO DEATH.

Three Boys Seeking Their Fortunes Find Early Graves.

Buffalo, N.Y., Oct. 21.—Fred. Berner, William Berner and Charles Coatsworth, three young boys, were instantly killed by a Lehigh Valley passenger train near Cheektowaga crossing at 12.30 o'clock yesterday. They were horribly mutilated, and their heads were torn from their bodies. The boys had planned to run away from home, come to Buffalo and seek their fortune. When they left their homes in Cheektowaga in the morning they said they were going to school. Instead they hid their books, and were waiting to board a freight train when they were killed.

Wants to Leave Her Husband.

Ottawa, Oct. 21.—Mrs. Marie Laurencell, formerly of Hull, and now of Montreal, has instituted an action in the Superior Court for separation from her husband, Edward Robideaux of Hull. The plaintiff, who was a widow with a family of three children, was married four months ago to the defendant in Montreal. She alleges in her complaint that she was very badly used by her husband and that he was using indecent language before her children. Hence the action for separation.

MRS. HOOPER ESCAPED.

Because She Used Dodd's Kidney Pills and so Cured Female Weakness.

Norwich, Ont., Oct. 3.—Mrs. J. S. Hooper, wife of Mr. J. Stanley Hooper, of North Norwich township, is a living proof of the unapproached value of Dodd's Kidney Pills, in the treatment of diseases of women.

Mrs. Hooper was a martyr to Female Weakness and Kidney Disease for twelve years. Norwich, Detroit and Buffalo physicians treated her unavailingly. She then tried Dodd's Kidney Pills. Four boxes cured her thoroughly and made her as healthy, strong and vigourous as she ever was. Dodd's Kidney Pills are women's best friends.

The Lungs and Sleep.

A physician quoted by the Boston Transcript says that acute insomnia may be promptly cured by the practice of deep breathing. Draw into the lungs as much air as possible and do not exhale it until obliged to, and then as slowly as possible. It is somewhat of a task when the night is oppressively warm, but if persisted in is fairly sure to relieve that hyperæmia of the brain which everyday folk call wakefulness. The tricks of the sleepless to induce sleep are many, but none is found to be more immediately efficacious than this plan of forcing the lungs to take the burden off the brain and nerves.

Why Suffer Agony?

A BLUNT SPEECH.

Mr. Hazell, British M.P., Said Words at Boston That Are in Everybody's Mind.

Boston, Oct. 21.—Walter Hazell, M.P. of Leicester, England, treasurer of the London Peace Society, who is here, says it is impossible that war between Great Britain and France can result over the Fashoda issue. Some peaceful settlement, he believes, will be reached soon.

In discussing American foreign affairs, Mr. Hazell said: "We hoped the United States and Spain might adjust their differences without war, but at the same time we had great sympathy with your humanitarian impulse toward suffering Cuba, but your trend of policy toward expansion and imperialism is another matter, in which you, as a powerful nation, must judge for yourself. I may say, however, that there is disappointment in the minds of our thinking men at the turn affairs are taking. We have always thought your power lay in the development of the unequalled resources lying within your own borders. American ownership of the Philippines will make entanglements in the far east certain. English sympathy with the American side of the late war was based on the assertions, made at the beginning, that the motive was purely humanitarian."

NOT AN UNMITIGATED EVIL.

The Late War Has Taught Them a Severe Lesson and They Will Be Governed Accordingly.

Manzanillo, Oct. 21.—Col. Sanchez Parron, Spanish commander here, stated to a correspondent that the loss to Spain of her colonies would not prove an unmitigated evil. "Hereafter," said the Colonel, "the youth and strength of our country will not have to be given up for military service in pestilential climates, the death roll will decrease, and other improvements will follow that will make Spain once more a colonial power."

Speaking of the insurrection of Cuba, Col. Parron attributes this to the overkindness of Spain and the efforts of a few renegades, such as Gomez and the agitators who inflamed as lazy a lot of malcontents as can be found in any country.

SPAIN LOOKING FOR SYMPATHY.

The Peace Commissioners Will Not Consent to American Demands.

Paris, Oct. 21.—The Spanish Peace Commissioners have not yet received from Madrid either instruction or permission to bid adieu to Cuban sovereignty without further seeking to attach to this sovereignty some condition providing for the assumption of the Cuban debt by the United States. If they are as at present disposed and instructed, the Spaniards will not, at to-morrow's meeting, recognize affirmatively the United States' position, and will stop on the point of results.

Should they flatly reject American insistence, the Spaniards, while recognizing the physical power of the United States against unaided Spain, will dumbly extend their palms upwards, and shrug their shoulders. They regard the situation as pitiable, and are not averse to any sympathy it may excite. They affirm that the American answer to their debt proposition is very long, and they have not yet had time to meditate fully upon it. They thus far, apparently intend not to yield, and will to-morrow make another written presentment, and expect an extended discussion thereon. Whether they will to-morrow be met with, or at the close of the session, receive as to Cuba the American ultimatum of terms and time, must be then developed. While this is possible, it is now not quite probable.

Porto Rico Quiet Under U. S. Rule.

San Juan, P.R., Oct. 21.—The city remains orderly and all is quiet elsewhere. Major-General Brooke is installed in the palace and Brigadier-General Henry remains as commander of the district of Ponce. Brigadier-General Grant has been appointed commander of the District of San Juan.

Senors Rivera, Blanco, Lopez and Carbonnel, Ministers of the Insular Government, have tendered their resignations to General Brooke, stating that they will perform their functions if desired until their successors are appointed.

Three Years' Suffering!

Mr. Alphons Herr, Foreman at A Meyer's Bakery, St. Catharines, Ont., Completely Cured of his Kidney Troubles by Doan's Kidney Pills.

The sickness and suffering that those who are afflicted with any disease or derangement of the kidneys are called upon to endure makes them welcome gladly the remedy that gives relief.

Doan's Kidney Pills have been doing more for kidney sufferers in St. Catharines, and throughout Canada, than all other remedies combined. One of those who has found them a blessing is Mr. Alphons Herr, foreman of A. Meyer's baking establishment.

He says that for three years he suffered a great deal from his kidneys, and for the last year he was very bad. He was unable to control his water, and had to rise many times during the night. He experienced scalding sensations which amounted to agony.

"I have taken one box of Doan's Kidney Pill," said Mr. Herr, "and they have cured me. They were a quick, sure remedy. I am thankful that I am at last rid of the terrible suffering and discomfort; and I must give Doan's Kidney Pills all the credit for making me a well man."

Doan's Kidney Pills are the only reliable and satisfactory remedy in the world for Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Dropsy, Backache, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Puffiness and dark circles under the eyes. Urinary Troubles, Weakness of the Kidneys in children, Female Complaints, Severe Headache, Dizzy Spells, etc. Sold by all druggists, or sent by mail on receipt of price, 50c. a box or 3 for $1.25. The Doan Kidney Pill Co., Toronto, Ont. Remember the name, DOAN'S, and refuse all others.

Mrs. Selina E. Core, Amherst, N. S., says: "At times I suffered intensely from palpitation and fluttering of my heart. I was weak and my nerves shattered, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have regulated my heart, toned my nerves and built up my health."

WAR ON THE SCALPERS.

Railroad Companies Have Taken Vigorous Action in Chicago.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—The fight between the railroads and the ticket brokers, resulting from the efforts of the former to prevent the scalping of tickets by the latter, has been taken into court. Seven railroads yesterday petitioned for an injunction restraining the sale by the brokers of excursion tickets issued by the boards on account of the Peace Jubilee in this city. The brokers against whom the injunction is levied number 32, and include nearly all the downtown ticket scalpers.

EXPORT DEMAND HEAVY.

The Wheat Markets Were Excited and There Was a Rise in Price All Round—The Prices.

Thursday Evening, Oct. 20.

Liverpool wheat again showed marked strength to-day. There was a partial reaction late in the session, but at the close the spot article reflected an advance of 2d per cental over yesterday, with the December and March options up 2⅝d and 2⅝d respectively. Paris wheat advanced a net 30 to 35 centimes and Paris flour 25 to 55 centimes.

Chicago's speculative market opened up very strong after the holiday of Wednesday, the higher cables and the continued heavy export demand and rushing of grain to the coast being the bull elements. Northwest and primary receipts were large, but prices for the cash article improved all over the country. The Chicago close was less strong than the opening, but it reflected the following net advances over the final figures of Tuesday: Oct. 2⅛c, Dec. 2¼c, March 2c.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

East Buffalo, Oct. 20.—In the absence of fresh sale cattle, and a moderate amount left over, the market presented no particular features. One load of held over heifers sold for $3.25, a shade lower than Monday's prices. Calves were in moderate supply, fair demand, and sold a little higher than yesterday. Choice to extra was quotable at $7.25 to $7.50, good to choice $6.75 to $7.25.

Sheep and Lambs—The offerings were 14 loads. The demand was not particularly active, but there was sufficient to absorb a portion of the offerings. A couple of loads of Canadas were sold about steady, but at the close there were no bids. Lambs, choice to extra, were quotable at $5.55 to $5.75, good to choice, $5.25 to $5.50, common to fair, $4.75 to $5.25. TO AN HONORED GRAVE.

Funeral of the Late Rev. Dr. Cochrane at Brantford—Touching Service at Zion Church.

Brantford, Oct. 21.—The funeral of the late Rev. Dr. William Cochrane took place yesterday afternoon. Special family services were held in the house, after which the remains were taken to the church, where impressive services were conducted.

Business was suspended and nearly the whole population appeared to have turned out. Flags were at halfmast and the City Council and other public bodies attended. Hon. A. S. Hardy came up from Toronto; Hon. William Paterson, all the local clergy and many from outside points were present. Bells were tolled as the solemn procession passed.

The officiating clergymen were: Rev. G. C. Patterson, Moderator of the Presbytery of Paris; Rev. Dr. Torrance, Moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada; Rev. Dr. Warden, general agent of the church and secretary of the Home Mission Fund, and Rev. Dr. McMullen of Woodstock.

After the ceremony in the church was concluded an opportunity was given the public to take the last view of the remains of the departed. As soon as this was made known a line filed down one aisle, then out the side entrance. Many a tear was shed as this line passed through the church.

The crowd was so immense that this lasted about an hour, after which the funeral formed in the same order in which they arrived at the church, and proceeded to Greenwood Cemetery, where Rev. Dr. Robertson, superintendent of the Northwest Territories, and Rev. Mr. Patterson of Embro, performed the closing ceremonies at the grave of the departed.

A COW IN A SEWER TRENCH

And Thereby Hangs a Tale.

A cow falls into a sewer trench and, as is proper where a cow is concerned, thereby hangs a tale. And the tale is this. Last night the comfortably nourished cow belonging to Dr. King was brought from the pasture and on entering the yard—with the curiosity of her sex—she investigated the mystery of a sewer trench, dug to put a service into the doctor's premises. Lo, down went the cow, like McGinty's subaqueous journey, to the bottom of the trench, which was about ten feet deep. The trench was narrow as well as deep and the cow was broad, therefore she was wedged in, or in surgical parlance, impacted in the trench almost immovably. The fit was very tight and the poor cow was hungry as well as cramped before she got out. She went down at 7 o'clock and it was three o'clock this morning before she emerged into the upper air, in the form of an attachment to a windlass. A gang of a dozen men was collected but slow progress was made, and it was not till a space about her was excavated to admit of the fitting of Doc. Robinson's veterinary harness to the imprisoned bovine that any progress could be noticed. The work was long and tedious and it was three o'clock before the end appeared; and the wind-up was in the form of a windlass, or rather derrick, which had to be employed to effect the delivery. The difficulty of getting the cow out of her unexpected habitat painfully reminded the doctor of the difficulty that some physicians experience in getting money out of some of their patients.

If the cow had been a Jersey there would have been no trouble, for valuable goods are put up in small parcels; she would have fitted into the trench with the wobbling facility with which a lady's foot fits in a man's boot. Another point, this, in favour of the golden butter breed—the Lilliputian Jersey.

If the cow that had the experience narrated had belonged to a milkman, and had fallen into a waterworks trench, one could have understood her motive, but what on earth she wanted in a sewer trench is as hard to find out as she was to get out.

LIFE ON THE ROLLING CAR.

The Way the Bridge Gang Now Building the Bethune Street Bridge is Fed and Housed.

As is generally known, work on the construction of a new bridge across the creek at Bethune street is advancing rapidly, and will witness completion the early part of next week, it is expected.

The new structure will be a great improvement over the old one. The number of spans has been reduced, so that there is a great deal less obstruction to the passage of ice in the spring, which has heretofore formed a considerable shove at this point. The bridge is of wood, and rests on piles driven from 5 to 13 feet, according to situation and nature of the earth. Piles driven where the old mud sills were in the way, had their points tipped with iron, and the piledriver, as it forced the piles relentlessly down, would split the old timbers like box shooks. The bridge is very solidly constructed, and is capable of bearing much heavier traffic than the Lakefield line, which it specially serves, will ever demand. The substructure will be probably and also part of the planking, leaving the remainder of the planking and the railing to be placed next week. The work is in charge of Mr. John Rear as foreman, and he must be, as his long service with the company proves, a first-class man, for it is contrary to all reason that a Rear man should be made a fore-man—it's like putting the caboose before the engine.

The foreman and his gang are very comfortably housed in a boarding car, which is side-tracked under the lee of the Rathbun Company's ware house, corner of Bethune and Murray streets. This car is provided with lockers underneath the floor for the carrying of supplies, tools, etc. Inside, the car is divided into three compartments, the kitchen, fitted up with the most modern culinary appliances, and presided over by Mr. John Conner, a who was for a long time in that capacity in the employ of the Rathbun Company. Mr. Rear says their clever cook can put on and does put on as good a meal as can be provided in any hotel. Everything in the line of pots and pans is clean and bright, even the cook's face is beaming with good nature. The dining room is not large, but it is sufficient to comfortably seat a dozen men. When it is not in use as a dining room it becomes a parlour, where on nights and rainy days the men play pedro, read, chat, or write letters to their wives, present or future. In a town like this there is more outside attraction and the parlour is less used than in some lonely country district.

The dormitory is provided with a dozen commodious berths, affording comfortable beds, where one could with a clear conscience, sleep as soundly as upon eider-down.

MEN'S MEETING.

An Interesting Gathering at St. John's.

A well-attended meeting of men was held last night in St. John's school house. An interesting discussion took place on church matters of present importance. The chief matter dealt with was the Sunday school building fund. The chairman of the committee, Mr. R. M. Dennistoun, made a full statement regarding it. The committee found that the extension could not be erected for the money entrusted to them and they therefore had determined to refer the matter back to the vestry, with the recommendation that building operations be deferred.

The action on the part of the committee was fully discussed last night and generally endorsed,

The forthcoming dedication festival, falling on All Saints' Day, was then brought forward, and evoked unusual interest. It was spoken of as a matter of congratulation that Rev. T. C. Street Macklem, Rector of St. Simon's, Toronto, has been secured as preacher.

Steps were then taken to form a Men's Society, in which all the male members of the congregation will be eligible for membership. Meetings will be held every three weeks for the discussion of church matters in order that all may become better acquainted and more closely connected with the progress of the church. Mr. T. R. Owens will act as president, and Mr. Joseph Bell as secretary, till the close of the year. The meeting concluded last night, all present well satisfied with the information given.

A HUNDRED AND FIFTY PER WEEK

IS WHAT GEORGE KINCAID PULLS IN IN THE KLONDYKE.

He is in Good Health and is Doing Well—The Peterborough Party is Also Well and Prosperous.

A day or two ago Mr. John Conroy returned from the Klondyke, and brought to Mr. John Kincaid a letter from his son George, who is in the gold mining regions. George reports that he is comfortably settled in Dawson, is well, and is contented and prosperous.

He has erected a comfortable cottage and Mr. Morgan Kincaid, his cousin, a son of Dr. Kincaid, is with him in the capacity of housekeeper. George is working at his trade—a carpenter, and is pulling in $150 per week, a pretty tidy figure, especially when we consider the comparatively low price of living. As an example. George got his dinner at a restaurant the other day, and he got a splendid meal of beef-steak and onions for only $1.75. This but a little calculation will show that it is cheap. A carpenter in Peterborough would consider himself in clover if he got a regular wage the year round of $15 per week. He can get a good meal, even of beef-steak and onions, for 25 cents. The wage of a Klondyke carpenter is ten times larger per week than that a Peterborough carpenter, and, at this rate, the Dawson City carpenter's meal should have cost him $2 50, so that, keeping the ratio in mind, the juicy beef steak and the succulent onion is dearer in plenteous Peterborough than it is in the hyperborean regions of the Klondyke, to which it has to be imported at fabulous freight charges. On the same principle of ratio, a barrel of flour costing sixteen dollars in Dawson City is cheaper than P. terborough flour at $4.50 per barrel. The time was in Peterborough when flour was $10 per barrel, and there were then no such fancy prices as $150 per week for a carpenter's services.

But George is not concerned about the prices. He of provisions on hand and is therefore quite independent for that length of time at least, of the fluctuations of the provision market. With his full share of provender, with money coming in at the rate of $25 per day, with a snug little cottage, and his cousin Morgan, as cook and house keeper, he lives as snug as a bug in a rug, and has no fear of being unable to keep the wolf—or rather the polar bear—from the door.

He is well pleased with his Dawson life and finds conditions not at all bad. He is making preparations to stay till he has "made his pile." He has taken up a mining claim and will work it this winter. He will therefore have profitable occupation at the season when carpentering operations are impracticable. We hear a great deal of the terrible weather of the Klondyke, but Mr. Kincaid says that the day he wrote he was wearing his coat for the first time in four months. He says that he frequently meets the members of the Peterborough party that went from here last spring, and reports them all in good health and doing well.

CHARLOTTE STREET E. L. OF C. E. NOTES.

Last Monday evening the Charlotte street League held its usual monthly missionary meeting.

There was a large attendance to hear Rev. Mr. Symonds, of St. Luke's church, who gave an exceedingly entertaining address on "Missions." The League choir, by its appropriate selections, helped to make the meeting very interesting.

OBITUARY.

The Late Thomas R. Hewson, D. L. S.

The numerous friends of Mr. Thos. Hewson, D. L. S., will be greatly pained to learn that his brother-in-law, Mr. J. J. Lundy, this afternoon received a telegram announcing Mr. Hewson's death at Sudbury. He had been engaged for the past two or three months completing a survey for the Ontario Government. Over a fortnight ago he was attacked with typhoid fever and was placed in the excellent hospital at Sudbury. His condition developed serious symptoms and about ten days ago the attending physician apprised his wife, who at once went to her husband's bedside where she remained to the last. The crisis of the disease was due to day, but the scale turned against the patient and death ensued. The deceased gentleman was a native of Cobourg, where he was educated and where his father and family live. Mr. Hewson has been a practising surveyor for many years. For about fifteen years Mr. Hewson has made Peterborough his home, and until his marriage with Miss Maggie Lundy last spring, when they took up residence in Hamilton. Especial sympathy will be extended to the bereaved wife on the occasion of her early widowhood. The prospect of a happy life has been prematurely clouded by the shadow of death.

The funeral takes place in Cobourg on Saturday at 4 p.m.

TRAFALGAR CLUB HOP.

It Proved to be an Unqualified Success Last Evening—Excellent Music and a Tasty Supper.

The members of the Trafalgar Bicycle Club gave, last night, what is hoped by those present, will be only the first of a series of hops, in the Foresters' spacious apartments on Simcoe street.

Over a hundred young people were present and the evening proved one of the most enjoyable ever spent in the rooms. The capable committee which was in charge of the details is deserving of the highest credit for the capable manner in which they discharged their duties. An orchestra composed of Messrs. Butcher and Gliddon and Misses Bell and McCabe furnished music for dancing of a quality which has seldom been heard at local assemblies.

The supper was furnished by Mr. Ed. Welsh, Hunter street, and it is needless to say that he more than upheld his reputation as an A1 caterer.

As last evening's assembly was such an unqualified success in every particular, it is rumoured that the Trafalgar Club is meditating giving a masquerade ball in the near future.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

The List of Delegates Will be Published To-morrow—A Large Number Expected.

As there is a probability of a shortage in the necessary number of billets for intending delegates, the Billeting Committee would be glad to receive the names of any parties who would be willing to entertain or pay for one or more and who have been overlooked by the Canvassing Committee. Kindly communicate with the Secretary-Treasurer of the Executive Mr. A. J. Johnston, at Mr. Nugent's drug store.

It is thought now that the delegates present will number in the neighbourhood of about four hundred.

We had hoped to be able to publish the names of the delegates to the S. S. Convention to-night, but quite a number of names have been received from Toronto too late, so we have delayed the whole list until to-morrow.

ONE YEAR IN THE CENTRAL.

Two Charges Were Preferred Against Young Upton in Havelock.

James Upton, who was arrested here last week, says the Havelock Standard, on a charge of breaking into A. C. Denike's drug store on the night of Sept. 29th, and stealing a quantity of coppers and goods, was sentenced to one year in the Central Prison, Toronto, with hard labour, by Police Magistrate Elmison, of Peterborough, on Wednesday afternoon.

When Upton appeared for examination, another charge was preferred against him by F. C. McMaster for breaking into his hardware store on the night of Sept. 9th and stealing a number of small articles. The prisoner pleaded guilty to both charges and was sentenced as above. He stated that he was unaided in the first offence but was assisted afterwards by a young follow by the name of Gorden, of Toronto. In the latter case, Crown Attorney Wood, of Peterborough, conducted the prosecution.

A PECULIAR CASE.

A Dog Makes as Much Trouble as the Proverbial Bull in a China Shop.

Some time ago Mr. A. Richards went into the store of Mr. John Maldens, Havelock, followed by his dog, which became frightened and jumped into the window, breaking, as well as quantity of dishes, a plate glass window in trying to get out.

Mr. Maldens claimed some $70 damages and afterwards sued for $60. The case was tried in the Division Court at Norwood on June 1st and adjourned to be argued before the judge at Peterborough. After hearing argument the Court held that Mr. Richards was notliable and gave judgment in his favour.

Mr. W. A. F. Campbell for Maldons; Mr. Geo. J. Sherry for Richards.

RAILWAY NOTES.

Sparks From the Wheels—Cinders for the Eye.

A fiendish attempt at train wrecking took place Wednesday evening on the Grand Trunk Railway a short distance west of Brockville. But for the successful working of the air break, many lives would have been lost.

Express No. 14, due there from Toronto at 8.50, was the train against which this dastardly attempt is made. A large number of Brockville people were on board, on their return from the consecration service service at Kingston. The train reached Lyn all right, and had reached a point about half way between that village and Brockville, when a sudden shock was experienced. Engineer John Kain, of Belleville, was at the throttle. He applied the air-break at once, and in a few minutes the train came to a standstill. Headed by Conductor Gilchrist, of Toronto, an investigating party located the trouble. It proved to be a new steel rail, of the heaviest pattern used on the road, and which, twisted and bent into the form of a "V," lay to one side of, but partially on the track. The train was running with such speed at the time that the rail was partially brushed aside and bent out of shape, but those who inspected the obstruction and the damage done are of the opinion that nothing saved an absolute horror but the successful working of the air-brakes. They consider that with the old hand-brake nothing could have saved the entire train from destruction.

The crossing planks were badly torn out, but the engine remained on the track, and beyond a severe shaking up none of the passengers were injured.

From tracks plainly visible in the sand it would seem that the work was done by one man. It was not supposed this was possible, but the tracks showed that the rail had been lifted from the rack on the side of the road, one end at a time, and then swung across the srack. There was an impression among local railway hands that the parties aimed at by the would-be train-wrecker are members of No. 14.

This, it seems, is not the first similar attempt made against the same train. Only a few nights ago an obstruction was found on the track near Gananoque, and it is thought in some quarters that the wrecker is some person who has been put off the train, and is trying to get even. The county detectives are working on the case, but so far no clue has been found.

HUNTERS, NOTICE!

To the Editor of The Examiner:

SIR,—You will oblige many of your readers by inserting the following brief instructions as to souvenirs of the chase, etc.

Question—If I get a buck this fall, what should I do with the head?

Answer—Long necks look best, therefore cut the skin from back of neck, where it joins the body, cut around the neck to the brisket in front. So much for length. You may now cut the skin up the back of the neck to the top of the head; be sure not to cut up the front of the neck, for although it can be sewn up, it usually makes a seam and detracts from its appearance when mounted. If the head can be sent in early, rub a lot of salt on the neck skin. Do not put the flesh sides together without salt, or they will sweat, and the hair will come off inside of a day. If you cannot get in for a month, you could take the skin right off, by cutting from the top of the head to each horn, then cut close around thr horn, then skin on down over the face, being careful about the eye. Cut off the ear close to head, go on down to the lips. Leave the lips on; split them from inside and rub in lots of salt. Do not dry it by fire or in the sun. If kept frozen you need not skin it.

For a bird, if frozen it is all right. For a little time open the mouth and fill it with salt, pushing some down the neck, and hang it up by the beak. If you hang a bird by the legs, the moisture and blood will run down into the head and neck, and cause the feathers around the eyes and beak to drop off. In killing a bird do not take it by the legs and knock its head upon a stump; it will smash the skull which is needed. Just put your foot upon its breast and death will soon end it.

If away for a long time, cut from the top of breast bone down to vent, push up the leg and cut through at the bend, also tail. Skin around the body till you come to the wings, break them, cut through the sinews and skin the neck. With a little perseverance you will now turn the skin over the head, skin down to the beak. Leave the skin attached to the skull, leave in the leg and wing bones, rub salt all over the skin, return the skull into the skin, and fill the neck and body with a little dry grass.

E. ELCOME, Taxidermist.

WEDDING BELLS

Nuptials of Miss Jennie Archambault of Lindsay, and Mr. Henry Lee of Trent Bridge.

A very pretty wedding took place on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mr L. Archambault, Lindsay, the contracting parties being Mr. Archambault's second daughter, Jennie Mabel, and Mr. Harry Launcelot Lee of Trent Bridge.

The bride was becomingly attired in a navy blue travelling costume, and was assisted by Miss Mary M. Fadden of Peterborough, while Mr. George Lee, brother of the groom, attended the groomsman.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. H. Marsh, rector of St. Paul's, and was witnessed by a small company of the immediate relatives.

After the wedding dejeuner the happy couple, amid congratulations and showers of rice, left by the G. T. R. for a short honeymoon trip to Toronto and other points. Many handsome and costly presents attested to the popularity of the bride. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Lee will reside at Trent Bridge.

As the Misses Lee, of Trent Bridge, were being driven to Havelock to take the train for Lindsay to attend the wedding of their brother, they were almost run down by the C. P. R. Klondyke flyer when nearing Havelock. On approaching the crossing the ladies and the driver were watching for their train, and did not notice the approach of the flyer in the other direction and when the train was seen they had reached the track. The driver, with great presence of mind, whipped up his horse and the buggy just cleared the rails as the train whizzed by, cutting a dog in two which was following close behind. It was a narrow escape and will not soon be forgotten by those who were so nearly the victims of a horrible accident. At the point where the crossing is, there is considerable woods and a train cannot be seen till quite close.

THE TRUCE OF THE BEAR.

Rudyard Kipling's poem entitled as above, is now given in full as follows:

Yearly with tent and rifle, our careless white men go
By the Pass called Muttiance, to shoot in the vale below, Yearly by Muttiance he follows our white men in—
Matun, the old blind beggar, bandaged from brow to chin,

Eyeless, noseless, and lipless—toothless, of broken speech,
Seeking a dole at the doorway, he mumbles his tale to each—
Over and over the story, ending as he began:
"Make ye no truce with Adam-zad—the bear that walks like a man!

"There was a flint in my musket—pricked and primed was the pan
When I went hunting Adam-zad—the bear that stands like a man,
I looked my last on the timber, I looked my last on the snow
When I went hunting Adam-zad fifty summers ago!

"I knew his times and seasons as he knew mine that fed
By night in the ripened maizefield and robbed my house of bread—
I knew his strength and cunning, as he knew mine that crept
At dawn to the crowded goat-pens and plundered while I slept.

"Up from his stony playground—down from well-digged lair—
Out on the naked ridges ran Adam-zad the bear,
Groaning, grunting and roaring, heavy with stolen meals,
Two long marches to northward and I was at his heels!

"Two full marches to northward, at the fall of the second night,
I came on my enemy, Adam-zad, all weary from his flight,
There was a charge in the musket—pricked and primed was the pan—
My finger crooked on the trigger—when he reared up like a man.

"Horrible, hairy, human, with paws like hands in prayer
Making his supplications, rose Adam-zad the bear!
I looked at the swaying shoulders, at the paunch's swag and swing,
And my heart was touched with pity for the monstrous, pleading thing.

"Touched with pity and wonder I did not fire then
I have looked no more on women—I have walked no more with men.
Nearer he tottered and nearer, with paws like hands that pray—
From brow to jaw the steel-shod paw, it ripped my face away!

"Sullen, silent and savage, searing as flame the blow—
Faceless I fell before his feet fifty summers ago.
I heard him grunt and chuckle—I heard him pass to his den.
He left me blind to the darkling years and the little mercy of men.

"Now we go down in the morning with guns of the newer style,
That load (I have felt) in the middle and range (I have heard) a mile?
Luck to the white man's rifle, that shoots so fast and true,
But—pay, and I lift my bandage and show what the bear can do!"

(Flesh like slag in the furnace, knotted and withered and gray—Matun the old blind beggar, he gives good worth for his pay.)
"Rouse him at noon in the bushes, follow and press him hard—
Not for his ragings and rearings flinch ye from Adam-zad.

"But (pay and I put back the bandage) this is the time to fear,
When he stands up like a tired man tottering near and near;
When he stands up as pleading, in monstrous, man brute guise,
When he veils the hate and cunning of the little swinish eyes.

"When he shows as seeking quarter, with paws like hands in prayer,
That is the time of peril—the time of the Truce of the Bear!"

Eyeless, noseless and lipless, asking a dole at the door,
Matun, the old blind beggar, he tells it o'er and o'er;
Fumbling and feeling he rises, warming his hands at the flame,
Hearing our careless white men talk of the morrow's game:

Over and over the story, ending as it began;
"There is no truce with Adam-zad, the bear that looks like a man!"

—Rudyard Kipling.

Their only hope is Dodd's Kidney Pills. They won't fail. They never do.

AN EGYPTIAN PUZZLE.

How Thieves Are Detected by the Use of Uncanny Charms.

The most curious and complicated charms are those used in the recovery of stolen property and the detection of thieves. Strange to say, the Egyptian practice of seeing figures shifting over the ink poured into a boy's hand is, with certain minor differences, known in Sindh. The Vinyane Waro, or finder of lost goods, rubs some dark substance over the thumbnails of a youth not arrived at the age of puberty, or directs him to look at a black spot painted on the bottom of a bright brass pot.

The soothsayer during this period recites the azimah (charm) three different times, after which the seeing commences. The boy first sees a bhaugi, or sweeper, appear in the ink and clean the floor, after which farash (tent pitchers) approach and prepare a pavilion. They are followed by a train of servants, who spread carpets and erect a kind of throne for the king of the Jinn, who presently appears in state, accompanied by his suit.

Before him the loser of the article appears, to advance as a complainant, and the monarch sends his chobdais (mace bearer) for the thief. The latter being violently dragged into the presence, is bastinadoed till he shows the spot where the goods are concealed, and is then dismissed. When the charm is concluded, the boy accurately describes the person of the guilty man and the place where he deposited his plunder.

The natives of Sindh aver that this incantation is not a diabolical one, as it is only to be mastered by the 40 days' fast and the other ceremonies usually gone through during the study of the tas khir (or acquisition of power over angels and demons). Consequently few practice it, and the knowledge is confined to certain families. I never saw the operation, but have heard of it sufficiently often to be assured that my informants were not deceiving me. Moreover, traces of it are to be found in southern Persia and other parts of the eastern world. It probably originated in India, that poisonous source of three parts of the superstitions which have inundated Europe and Asia and traveled westward to Egypt and the Maghrib. As a support to my conjecture, it may be mentioned that in Sindh it is practiced by some Hindoos as well as Moslems.—Sir Richard Burton in Humanitarian.

A Call For an Atlas.

An elderly lady, well dressed and with an air of good breeding, stood in the post-office lobby and looked around irresolutely. She held an envelope in her hand, and her helpless look attracted the attention of a young woman.

"Are you looking for a place to drop your letter?" the young woman asked.

"Y-yes," replied the lady.

"Here's the place," said the young woman, and she pointed to the slots labeled "East," "West" and "City."

But still the lady hesitated.

"Thank you," she said.

She looked about her; then she leaned forward toward the young woman and in a low whisper asked:

"Is San Francisco east or west?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Not the Right Kind.

"What do you know about journalism?" asked the editor of the applicant for a place.

"I know the business from A to Z," was the reply.

"Well, then," returned the editor wearily, "you won't do. We want somebody here who can learn something."—Somerville Journal.

QUEER IDEAS OF FUN.

SAVAGES WHO LAUGH ONLY WHEN SOME ONE IS HURT.

The Writhings of a Victim Under Torture Send Them Into a Frenzy of Merriment—Fearful Punishments That Evoke Yells of Glee.

The laugh, which is now so closely associated with good humor and kindly feeling, originally implied nothing of the sort. It expressed almost the reverse. It was the crow of triumph over a fallen foe.

Such is its nature still among savages and barbarous peoples, and its unexpected manifestations are occasionally very startling. Dancing on the body of a prostrate enemy is to them hilarious business. The writhing of a victim under torture is the funniest thing imaginable. A new device for torment is a clever jest. The inflicting of a ghastly wound as some poor wretch runs the gantlet makes them yell with glee. The things that shock or horrify or disgust the civilized man are about the only things worth laughing at from a savage's point of view.

With the exception, therefore, of rough practical jokes, which may possibly wrinkle his stolid features with a momentary grin, the barbarian has no appreciation of civilized humor. He can't see where the fun comes in if nobody is hurt.

This was curiously illustrated not long ago when a considerable number of Chinamen went to a New York theater to see a burlesque performance. When the American part of the audience laughed, the delegation from Chinatown sat with faces absolutely blank, but the moment any hint of brutality, tragedy or tears appeared on the stage their heavy features lighted and were wreathed in smiles. It was a strange thing to witness, but it was all in perfect keeping with the cruel instincts of their race.

Even the knowledge that he is himself to be the next victim does not spoil the fun of a cruel spectacle for a barbarian thoroughbred. Here is an instance:

A number of Siamese who had been engaged in a bloody revolt were captured red handed and sentenced to military execution. A platoon of soldiers was drawn up with loaded muskets, before whom the doomed men were led out in squads of five or six to be shot, while those who were waiting their turn stood by, under guard, looking on.

When the first volley was fired, the victims, torn by the storm of bullets, leaped into the air with violent contortions and fell dead. And this to the poor wretches who were about to go through the same experience seemed so fine a show and so excruciatingly funny that they were fairly convulsed with laughter.

Such is the humor of savages, and such doubtless were the beginnings of mirth the world over. Strange as it may seem, there are many hints of this barbarous origin in the fun of the most highly civilized. We no longer laugh at really tragic occurrences, it is true, for other and more humane emotions are too strongly excited.

But if we chance to see a ridiculous mishap which does not quite rise to the dignity of tragedy—an accident by which some one is greatly inconvenienced and annoyed without being seriously injured—the remnant of the savage breaks loose in us, and we laugh till the tears come.

Why else are we amused when we see a well dressed man thrown sprawling in the mud or deluged with dirty water from an upper window or driven up a tree by a cross dog or an ugly bull? Why else do we so keenly enjoy the agony of a man who has accidentally pounded his finger nail, instead of the tack he was driving into the carpet, or laugh at the unfortunate who blindly steps on a stray barrel hoop which flips up and slaps him in the face? Instances might be multiplied without limit.

It is noticeable that children often laugh at things which do not amuse adults, but, on the contrary, shock and pain them. That is because the child's finer sensibilities are as yet imperfectly developed. He is still near the savage state. There is a very prevalent sentiment to the contrary, but this is the fact.

In proportion as men become truly civilized, however, their sense of humor becomes refined, and they revolt at any suggestion of brutality. Yet it is worthy of remark that the gentlest among us are frequently amused at a picture or a story representing things the actual occurrence of which would shock us greatly.—Boston Post.

Essential.

"There is no denying," exclaimed the Chinese emperor, "that China is a great country. Our nation is one whose importance the world cannot fail to recognize."

"The other countries are the ones who carry on the real contests," mildly suggested Li Hung Chang.

"I know it. But we're the stakes."—Washington Star.

HOW POMP WAS CONVERTED

Rainy Sunday at Church, Where He Was the Only Sinner.

Dr. Payson, the famous and beloved preacher of Portland, Me., used to tell the following pointed story:

One very stormy Sunday he went to church, more from habit than because he expected to find anybody there. Just after he had stepped inside the door an old negro came in and asked if Dr. Payson was to preach there that day, explaining that he was a stranger in town and had been advised to go to his church.

"Upon that," said Dr. Payson, "I made up my mind to preach my sermon if nobody else came."

Nobody else did come, so the doctor preached to the choir and the old negro.

Some months afterward he happened to meet the negro, and stopping him asked how he enjoyed the sermon that stormy Sunday.

"Enjoy dat sermon?" replied the old man. "I 'clar, doctor, I nebber heerd a better one. You see, I had a seat pretty well up front, an whenebber you'd say somethin I'd jess look all roun, ter see nobody on'y jess me. An I says to m'self, 'He must mean you, Pomp; you's seoh a dretful sinner.' Well, doctor, dat are sermon set me a-thinkin what a big sinner I war, an I went an j'ined the church down home. I'ze a deacon now."—Christian Endeavor World.

One Way of Posting a Letter.

The island of St. Kilda is often visited by tourist steamers in the summer, but its regular mail communication with the mainland, some 150 miles distant, is confined to the annual visits of the steamer which brings the factor and his stores, says Household Words. But if at other times the inhabitants desire to communicate with Great Britain they employ the following curious device: A man cuts the rough model of a boat from a billet of wood, hollows it partly out, places in the hollow a tin or small bottle containing a letter, nails on a deck, and when the wind is blowing toward the mainland launches the tiny craft, having first connected it with a bladder, which drives along before the wind and acts as a tug to the little mail-boat. But the set of the gulf stream frequently drives this curious craft out of its course, and as often as not it reaches the Shetland islands or the coast of Norway, where, however, the letter is pretty sure to be found and posted to its destination.

A Duel of Blankets.

A returned missionary from southeastern Alaska tells in The Midland Christian Advocate of a strange custom among the Indians of that region:

When a difference arises between two of them, and a friendly settlement seems impossible, one of them threatens the other with dishonor. He will cover the face of his foe with shame. He executes his threat by tearing up a certain number of his own blankets. The only way his antagonist can get even with him is by tearing up a greater number of his own.

If the contest is prolonged, it results in the destruction of all the blankets they have, each Indian destroying his own. The one who destroys the greater number is regarded as having won the fight.

Girls who have to stand on their feet most of the time work as hard as any day-laborer yet they do not get what is rightly called exercise. Close, confining, indoor occupation gives no exhiliration to the nervous system nor active circulation to the blood. It wears, tears and drags a woman's life away. The whole physical system grows sluggish and torpid under it.

No wonder so many sales girls and factory girls and housewives suffer from indigestion and constipation and bilious troubles. No wonder they are subject to the diseases of the delicate special organism of their sex. The wonder is rather that they can stand it as well as they do.

But "a poor weak woman," as she is termed, will endure bravely and patiently agonies which a strong man would give way under. The fact is women are more patient than they ought to be under such troubles.

Every woman ought to know that she may obtain the most eminent medical advice free of charge and in absolute confidence and privacy by writing to Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y. Occupying this position for thirty years he has had a wider practical experience in the treatment of women's diseases than any other physician in this country. His medicines are world-famous for their astonishing efficacy.

The most perfect remedy ever devised for weak and delicate women is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. His "Golden Medical Discovery" is the only permanent digestive and nutrient tonic. The two medicines taken alternately, form the most perfect and successful course of treatment ever prescribed for female troubles complicated with a sluggish, overwrought, nervous, diseased constitution. In severe constipation Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be occasionally taken with the others. They never gripe.

VULTURES OF INDIA.

GIANT BIRDS WHICH ARE NUMEROUS AND USEFUL.

When the King Vulture Comes to a Carcass, the Other Varieties Have to Stand Off Until His Majesty Has Gorged Himself.

If the city of Bombay had a tutelary bird, there is no manner of doubt what bird that should be. I do not know, says a writer in The Times of India, why the ancient Egyptian defied the ibis, but if Bombay bore the proud figure of a vulture rampant on her shield everybody would know why. Of all the unsalaried public servants who have identified themselves with this city and devoted their energies to its welfare no other can take a place beside the vulture. Unfortunately the vulture has never lent itself to the spirit of heraldry. The eagle has, strangely enough, though the difference between the two has never been very well marked in the popular mind. The translators of our Bible had no notion of it.

Modern natural history has disentangled the two names and assigned them to two very different families of birds, the distinction between which in its essence is just this—that while the eagle kills its prey the less impatient vulture waits decently till its time comes to die. Popular sentiment persists in regarding the former as the more noble, but there can be no question which is the more useful.

It is not easy indeed to realize to oneself the extent and beneficence of the work carried on throughout the length and breadth of India from year's end to year's end by the mighty race of vultures. The writer continues: The vultures that one sees in such numbers on Malabar hill belong to two species, which are easy enough to distinguish when once one's attention has been turned to the difference between them.

The commoner of the two, the white backed or Bengal vulture (Gyps bengalensis) is a smoky black bird, with a band of white extending the whole length of the wings on the underside. This band is broken by the dark body, and that serves to distinguish the bird at a glance.

The other species is the long billed vulture (Gyps pallescens) of Barnes. Jerdon confounded it with another species. Its general color is brown, darker or lighter according to age, sometimes almost whity brown; but, however white the underparts may be, body and wings are alike. The two species are about the same size and larger than one would suspect who has only seen them at a distance. A good specimen will measure over seven feet from tip to tip of the wings.

There is one curious difference in their habits. The long billed vulture breeds always on high cliffs, while its Bengal brother is content to build its nest on any tree big enough to bear the weight of such a ponderous edifice. I have seen a single mango tree groaning under the weight of two or three nests on the other side of the harbor. Each nest contains one egg, generally white, but sometimes blotched with brown. Once fairly in the air, no bird surpasses the majesty of its flight. The question has often been hotly discussed whether birds can sail without flapping their wings.

The difficulty originated, of course, with somebody of that unfortunate class who must reason about a question of fact instead of looking. He demonstrated that such a feat was impossible. The vultures kept on doing it all the same, and any one may watch them. For hours together they will sail in circles, or rather in spirals, without the slightest motion of their wings beyond trimming them to the wind like the sails of a boat. Of course there must be a wind.

There are two other kinds of vultures which may occasionally be seen in Bombay. One is the king vulture (Otogyps calvus), a royal bird, not indeed larger than the others, but of nobler aspect and prouder character. It appears singly or with its mate and will not consort with the herd. When it comes to a carcass, the others have to stand by until it has dined. There is no difficulty in recognizing this species by its deep black color, relieved only by two pure white patches on its thighs and by the blood red tint of its bare head and neck. Our fourth vulture is the foul bird known as Pharaoh's chicken, as well as by other less reputable names. Its title in science is Neophron ginginianus.

It is one of the commonest birds about Poonah and everywhere on the plains of the Deccan, but seldom visits the coast. I have, however, seen a pair on more than one occasion about the flats. It is a white bird, not much bigger than a kite, with only the quill feathers of the wing black. Its bill is long and thin, its naked face yellow and its tail wedge shaped. Its neck is not bare, but clothed with long, rusty white feathers, pointing backward. It does not stand upright, like the true vultures, but carries its body like a duck and walks like a recruit. By these signs you may know Pharaoh's chicken. It makes its shabby nest of sticks, rags and rubbish on trees, ledges of public buildings or anywhere about March and lays two white eggs, more or less blotched with brown.

TWIN TORTURERS!

Lumbago and Rheumatism made Harmless by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Lumbago and Rheumatism cause endless pain and suffering. Every man and woman who runs chances of getting wet, or catching cold, is liable to suffer from one or both. Our hospitals are full of sufferers from these diseases; none are more painful. Every nerve is on fire; every joint is a centre of agony; every muscle an area of torture. To move hand or foot makes the victim shriek with agony.

Rheumatism makes more cripples than all the railroad accidents that ever happened. Twisted, mis-shapen caricatures of humanity, who cannot walk without misery, are to be seen every day. The kidneys are to blame. If they are healthy you needn't fear Rheumatism or Lumbago. Dodd's Kidney Pills keep the kidneys healthy and cure Rheumatism and Lumbago.

Dodd's Kidney Pills ALWAYS CURE.

THE BEST ON EARTH.

So Says Robert Meikle About Dodd's Kidney Pills.

London, Ont., Oct. 17.—Robert Meikle, a member of the staff of the Star Dining Hall, is kept busy answering the questions asked him by his many friends at present. They all want to know how he recovered from what, the doctors said, was a fatal attack of Diabetes.

And he invariably answers: Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me, when other earthly means had failed. They are the only medicine on earth that can cure Diabetes, and they do it every time."

If Dodd's Kidney Pills cured Mr. Meikle they will cure you. Try them.

The Two Tone Wax Seal.

The two tone seal in wax on an envelope made to match the two tone monogram on the paper is a mystery to any one not in the secret, which the New York Herald explains. For instance, a silver monogram and raised ornamentation on a blue background is easily duplicated in the seal. The background is of wax to match the background of the monogram. When ready to seal the envelope, dip the seal in the oil and wipe it quite dry, except the engraving, where the oil remains. Then dip the oily seal into the silver powder and brush across the seal, leaving no silver except in those same indentations of the engraved monogram. Melt the wax and drop it on to the proper place and seal as usual. The oil will have taken up the silver powder into the monogram and the warm wax taken it out of the monogram, so that all the raised ornamentation is coated over with the silver powder.

So much depends on the purity of the blood that by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla many different diseases are cured.

Three Years in Bed.

From Kidney Disease—Although a Man of Three-Score and Ten, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills gave him back perfect health.

This is to certify that I was sick in bed the most of the time for three years with kidney disease. I took several boxes of pills—different kinds—and a great many other kinds of patent medicines; besides that I was under treatment by four different doctors during the time and not able to work. I began to take Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and since that time have been working every day, although a man nearly 70 years of age. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have cured me.

FEEDING A SKELETON.

A Hotel Man's Experience With a Freak Boarder.

"Once in awhile I have some freak boarders," said a hotel manager. "One time I had a living skeleton who came very near breaking me up in business. He came here for a long stay, as he was going to make the rounds of all the museums in town. His manager came to me and made arrangements for the skeleton to live at my hotel while he was in the city. I supposed that a living skeleton didn't live on much of anything but water, so I made him a rate away down—$3 a week, I believe—it was for board and room. The skeleton arrived early one morning, so the first meal he had at the hotel was breakfast.

"After he had finished his breakfast and gone to his room I went to the dining room and asked the waiter what the skeleton had eaten. I nearly fell dead when the waiter told me that the new boarder had consumed three cups of coffee, two orders of beefsteak, four fried eggs, two big baked potatoes, half a loaf of bread and a plate of buckwheat cakes. What do you think of that? That was certainly the worst surprise party I ever experienced. But there was no way out of it. I had made the rates and I could not 'fire' the skeleton out. He staid with me nearly six weeks, and he came close to eating me out of house and home."—Exchange.

Long Service.

A description of the old New England Sabbath is calculated to make restless children of the present day and possibly some of their elders thankful they were not born two centuries ago.

The Sabbath began Saturday afternoon with the going down of the sun.

Sunday morning a horn was loudly blown to announce the hour of worship. Service began at 9 o'clock and lasted for eight hours, with an intermission of one hour for dinner and conversation. In the earliest days the congregation sat on rude benches, their seats being assigned them at town meeting. The service consisted of several parts, which are chronicled in an ancient diary as follows:

"Preliminary prayer or invocation; chapter of Bible read and expounded; psalm in meter, read out line by line by Deacon S.; long prayer on various matters, one hour and a half; sermon of 100 to 250 pages; at close of service, baptism; sinners put on trial, confessed before congregation. Minister C. bowed right and left, no person stirring till he had passed down and out of the meeting house."—Youth's Companion.

THE TIMMER MARKET.

It Is a Unique Affair Held at Aberdeen, Scotland.

On the last Wednesday of August every year is a fair, called the "Timmer market," held in the Castle square in Aberdeen, Scotland. Some 50 or 60 years ago nothing could be bought at it but wooden articles, from which arose the name "Timmer." Now, however, it is the Scotch housewife's last chance of getting her berries for preserving. Every patron of the market knows that after that month the only chance of fruit is gone; hence the rush. Great and small, rich and poor, alike turn out.

Booths set to the best advantage and numbering perhaps 200 are arranged in rows, ample room being left for the buyers and pleasure seekers between. Fruit stalls, old clothes dealers, shooting ranges, wheels of fortune—everything to make a penny—can be found there. Schools and colleges have no recognized holiday on that Wednesday, yet the average "med" is a regular attendant. Up and down he parades, blowing his trumpet in the face of every one he meets and looking the very picture of happiness.

By 7 o'clock the "tarry rope" lamps are lit and the fun commences. Country "bumkins" fetch their "lasses" and buy them candy and pears or whatever is wished for, provided that the cost does not exceed sixpence. The elite of both sexes mix with the crowd and "treat," the one the other. When all is about sold out, the students start for home with a rush, upsetting the stalls as they go. Nothing of course is said by the police, it being "Timmer" day. Should any one be so absentminded as to forget the months and the days thereof he has no doubt whatever from the head splitting noise of the last Wednesday in August.

INCALCULABLE GOOD,

AN EXPRESSION OF FAITH.

Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills have done me an incalculable amount of good. I think they are the best, surest and quickest acting cure for nervousness, unhealthy action of the heart, insomnia or sleeplessness, anemia or impoverished blood, loss of appetite, general debility and ill-health. For nine years, before I commenced taking Dr. Ward's Blood and nerve Pills, my heart was weak and in an unhealthy state. Its action was so much impaired that I could not walk across the street without suffering great distress, my heart fluttering and beating so rapidly that I could scarcely breathe, causing faintness, loss of strength, and leaving my nerves all unstrung. My sleep was very much disturbed, I had no appetite and there was little strength or vitality in my blood; I was always excessively nervous.

I have now taken three boxes of Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills and since taking them I have not been away from my business an hour. Before taking these pills it was a frequent occurrence for me to be away from business. As a result of taking Dr. Ward's Pills my heart is perfectly healthy and strong and gives me no distress or trouble whatever. They removed all nerve trouble, made my nerves strong and gave me healthy sleep. These pills also made my blood rich and strong and gave me a healthy appetite. Dr. Ward's Pills have given me perfect health, restoring my lost strength, in place of continual ill-health, weakness, heart trouble and nervousness. In justice I cannot speak too highly of this wonderful medicine. Signed, Miss N. Millward, Walton St., Port Hope, Ont.

Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills are sold at 50c. per box, 5 boxes for $2.00 at druggists, or mailed on receipt of price by THE DOCTOR WARD CO. Limited, 71 Victoria Street, Toronto. Book of information free.

Montreal, Oct. 21.—Police Magistrate La Fontaine has rendered his decision in the case taken by one Morin against Messrs. Colin, Fortier and La Montague, on the charge of keeping a common gaming house and profiting by the rise or fall in the price of stocks. The Magistrate reviewed the evidence and in closing said that while he did not express any opinion as to the legality or illegality of the business done in these places, yet he thought it would be as hard for the Legislature to stop speculation by legislation as it would to stop men from eating and sleeping. It was no more against the law for a stock broker to deal in futures than it was for a farmer to sell in March his next hay crop.

The Story Is Discredited.

Washington, Oct. 21.—The sensational Spanish report of a naval battle between Admiral Dewey's vessels and the insurgent navy in the Philippines is received with absolute incredulity in both the Navy and War Departments. If there has been any recent action Admiral Dewey has failed to mention it, and neither General Otis nor United States Consul Wildman have regarded it as worthy of notice.

Too Costly.

The San Francisco Argonaut tells a new story about Stephen Massett, so well known years ago as "Jeems Pipes." When he was the editor of the Marysville (Cal.) Herald, Mr. Hittell, the well known California pioneer and author, engaged him in argument on religion, which Mr. Hittell attacked, finally winding up by saying, "See here, Massett, you ought to get my book on 'Evidences Against Christianity;' that will convince you."

"Very well," said Massett, "I will." So the next time he entered a bookstore he asked for it. The clerk showed him the work in two volumes. "How much is it?" said Massett.

"Three dollars," replied the clerk.

"What!" exclaimed Massett. "Three dollars! Take it back, sir, take it back; I prefer to remain a Christian."

TREE OF TIBET.

Fabulous Prices Paid For the Leaves of the Sacred Growth.

Few persons probably have heard of the marvelous tree of Tibet. Nevertheless for a long time it has enjoyed a great reputation in the east. It is a sacred tree, and fabulous prices were paid for a few of its leaves.

In his "Souvenirs de Voyage au Tibet" Pere Huc speaks of this wonderful tree. It is essentially of a literary and artistic turn of mind and has the strange habit of producing images and hieroglyphics upon its leaves. Sometimes religious figures take the place of the letters. Pere Huc called the mysterious thing "the tree of a thousand images." These images are found on the leaves, on the stems and on the trunk. Near the temple of Buddha, in the village of Lionsar, Tibet, this great tree has stood for years, the plague and the puzzle of all the botanists who have ever received the gift of faith.

A great antiquity was given to the tree; indeed it was claimed that it had existed from time immemorial. But an investigation not many years ago proved the images on the tree to be fakes. The trick was simple enough, like every other trick when it is found out. In the spring and in the summer on dark nights a lama, endowed with acrobatic power, with his pockets full of hand stamps, climbed all through the tree and stamped the leaves with all sorts of holy images and characters, the most numerous being the following formula: "Om mane padone om" (Glory to Buddha in the lotus). This is also stamped upon the bark, and the leaves and portions of the bark are sold to visitors.

GENUINELY HARD UP.

Out of Three Hundred Accepting Free Beds Only Five Had "the Price."

A short time ago a curious test was applied at the London Congregational Union's Free Shelter For Homeless Men at Medland hall, in the east of London. The object of the test was to ascertain if the men were really as penniless as they represented themselves to be. The free shelter is intended for men who have not the fourpence necessary to pay for a night's lodging elsewhere, and one night Edward Wilson Gates, the shrewd superintendent of the philanthropic work of the union, announced that he would give sixpence to each man present who could prove that he had some money, but less than fourpence. A chuckling laugh passed over the 300, that being the maximum allowed in the hall.

"But how shall I know that you have less than fourpence?" asked Mr. Gates.

"Search us!" cried the men.

"You really mean it?"

"Yes."

"Very well, but if any one objects let him go to the gallery, and I guarantee that he shall not be turned away."

Only five of the 300 went up stairs, and the others were thoroughly searched by experienced men. Two hundred and forty-nine had nothing, one had a farthing, 11 had a halfpenny, one had three farthings, 13 had a penny, two had a penny farthing, four had three halfpence, nine twopence, three twopence halfpenny and two had threepence halfpenny. Thus out of the 300 men 295 had not the fourpence necessary for a "fo'penny doss" at a lodging house. It seems pretty clear, therefore, that the men were genuinely "hard up."—London Quiver.

Goldsmith's Generosity.

A beggar once asked alms of Oliver Goldsmith as he walked with a friend up Fleet street, and he gave her a shilling. His companion, knowing something of the woman, censured the writer for his excess of humanity, saying that the shilling was misapplied, as she would spend it for liquor. "If it makes her happy in any way, my end is answered," replied Goldsmith.

Another proof that the doctor's generosity was not always regulated by discretion was at a time when, after much delay, a day was fixed to pay the £40 due his tailor. Goldsmith procured the money, but a friend calling upon him and relating a piteous tale of his goods being seized for rent, the thoughtless but benevolent author gave him all the money. The tailor called and was told that if he had come a little sooner he could have had the money, but that he had just parted with every shilling of it to a friend in distress, adding, "I would have been an unfeeling monster not to have relieved trouble when in my power."

Adulterated Rice.

So cheap and common an article of food as rice is adulterated. The purpose is to give the grains an attractive color, the articles used being oil and paraffin, but the effect on the rice is deleterious. Those oily substances, a New Orleans paper says, soak into the grain and make it hard. The result is that more cooking is needed, and even then the rice often remains hard and to that extent is made indigestible. In addition the oil adds to the weight of the grain, and thus again is the buyer cheated.

HEADACHE

AND NEURALGIA.

Too many times the origin of a headache is miscalculated, and one begins dosing the stomach for it, when an application of Griffith's Liniment would draw out the pain and give immediate relief—It will cure any ache, no matter how severe.

"I suffered from severe headaches and could not obtain any relief until I had used Griffith's Menthol Liniment—the cooling, soothing action of this magical application always takes away the pain. I have not had a headache last longer than ten minutes since I began using this wonderful liniment." L. DEAS, 187 Centre avenue, Toronto.

Swiss Funeral Customs.

Swiss funeral customs are most peculiar. At the death of a person the family inserts a formal black edged announcement in the papers asking for sympathy and stating that "the mourning urn" will be exhibited during certain hours on a special day. In front of the house where the person died there is placed a little black table, covered with a black cloth, on which stands a black jar. Into this the friends and acquaintances of the family drop little black margined visiting cards, sometimes with a few words of sympathy on them. The urn is put on the table on the day of the funeral. Only men ever go to the churchyard, and they generally follow the hearse on foot.

Tough Fare.

In a New Zealand town one of the municipal candidates, a pronounced Scotsman, had received a present of a huge Scotch thistle, which at the moment happened to be lying on the table of his committee room. A friend, entering, withdrew suddenly with the remark, "I beg your pardon; I didn't know you were at luncheon."—San Francisco Wave.

Two Ways of Putting It.

"I notice, Miranda," remarked Mr. Neggschoice, "that your first husband's clothes do not fit me."

"No, Cyrus," coincided Mrs. Neggschoice, with a little sigh. "You don't fit them."—Chicago Tribune.

A TORONTO TRAGEDY.

A Demented Mother Kills Her Three Small Children.

WANTED TO KEEP THEM GOOD.

The Most Pitiable Story of Mrs. Eliza Burrell—Ill Health Had Weakened Her Mind—The Story of the Crazy Woman—Tells How She Strangled Her Babes.

Toronto, Oct. 22.—The quiet neighborhood of Logan avenue was thrown into intense excitement last night by one of the most horrible tragedies ever perpetrated in Toronto. Into a pretty cottage filled yesterday morning with the merry laughter of little children, grim, mocking insanity entered, and before he passed into the street again, three fair, curly-headed children, the eldest not more than five years of age, lay cold in death. The soggy rain and the darkness that enveloped the street made a fitting accompaniment to the deed.

The scene of the tragedy was 559 Logan avenue, the home of Charles E. Burrell, marble polisher at the corner of Parliament and Winchester. It is a two-storey frame dwelling, with green shutters, and a low wooden fence in front. The house stands by itself, a vacant lot intervening between it and the red brick residence of the first neighbor, Mr. W. H. Collins. The Collins family were about the only intimate friends the Burrells had. When Mr. Burrell's first wife died he married again, and three young children, Stanley, Harold and Ethel, ranging in age from 5 to 1, were the fruits of the union. There was insanity in the young wife's own family, but Mr. Burrell didn't know of it.

She was a nervous, frugile little woman, who suffered with rheumatism of the heart, melancholia succeeded, and Dr. J. R. Pyne, who was called in, advised immediate removal to the hospital, but the husband said there was no need of it. Thursday was wash day, and the rheumatism seemed to have disappeared, for she engaged in the family laundry all day. With the family also lived three children of the former marriage, Nellie, a young girl of 17, and two boys attending Bolton avenue school. The family passed the noon dinner hour most happily yesterday, and separated each for his respective work in the best of spirits. Mrs. Burrell remained to wash the dishes and act as the guardian angel of the children.

When Mr. Burrell, father of the dead children, returned home from his work at Gibson's marble works, at Winchester and Parliament streets, he found his wife busily engaged in getting the supper ready. The kettle was steaming, and everything was in apparent readiness for his return. Mr. Burrell at once noticed that the children were not in their usual places at the table, and enquired of his wife as to whether they had eaten their supper. The reply given by the woman was that she had given them their supper early and had put them to bed for the night. The father then asked that the children be brought downstairs again, but his wife said, "Oh, they are all right where they are."

Mr. Burrell stood at the foot of the stairway, and was about to go up, when his wife seized him, and begged of him to allow them to sleep and not arouse them. The father, determined to see the children, went upstairs to the room, and his wife followed him. The door was closed, and as he entered his eyes fell upon the youngsters lying cuddled together in the cot. When Mr. Burrell realized that the children were dead, he exclaimed, "My God! have you killed them?" His wife, with downcast head, replied, "Yes, I have."

Mr. Burrell, although grief-stricken, ran out for a neighbor, Mr. Jack Dorst, and returned with him to the house.

Mrs. Burrell was standing in the kitchen when the two men entered, and Mr. Dorst questioned her as to why she had committed the awful deed. Mrs. Burrell did not appear alarmed in any way, and said that she did not expect to live very long, and if the children lived after her that they would surely sin. She was satisfied in her mind that they were angels, and that they were better off in heaven. Mrs. Burrell then went on to tell how she had committed the deed. She took the three children upstairs about 3 o'clock, and sat them upon a large bed in the room. The mother had a straw in her hand, and tickled the children until they nearly went into convulsions with laughter. All the time the mother held a stout red cord in her hand, and she made a loop in it, large enough to admit of a child's head. Seizing little Ethel, the youngest of the three, she put the cord about its neck and choked it to death. Stanley, a boy 5 years of age, quickly noticed the peculiar actions of the mother, and asked what was the matter with the baby. Mrs. Burrell, in her mad frenzy, did not reply, and proceeded to put the loop about his neck. The child could not offer any resistance, as it was a cripple, completely paralyzed on one side. In the same way the woman took the remaining child and took its life.

When the tragedy was discovered by Mr. Burrell, the three children were found lying in the cot, side by side, and Harold was laid across the bottom. There were no wounds on the body, with the exception of slight abrasions of the skin caused by the cord being tightened about their necks. The children, from appearances, had died without a struggle, and looked as though they were in a peaceful slumber.

When the police went to the house, Mrs. Burrell did not offer any resistance and calmly submitted to being placed under arrest. The patrol wagon was summoned and the woman was taken to Police Headquarters on Court street, where she was placed in a cell with the other female prisoners. The prisoner is 37 years of age and is short in stature. She was sleeping peacefully last night and does not, from appearances, resemble a person capable of committing such a terrible act.

She is the second Mrs. Burrell, and has been married six years. By his first wife Mr. Burrell had six children. They are: Rev. Wm. R. Burrell, pastor of Sheridan Avenue Baptist Church; Rev. Charles Edward Burrell, pastor of the Baptist Church at Westport, Ontario; George and Arthur, at present attending Bolton avenue school; Mrs. Robert Staff of Burk's Falls; Elizabeth, who lives with her brother at Westport, and Nellie, aged 17, who, up to Thursday, lived at the Bolton avenue home. Nellie is at present living with her brother, Rev. Wm. R. Burrell.

"I wanted them to go to heaven right away," said the demented woman to her pastor, Rev. P. C. Parker of First Avenue Baptist Church, who arrived shortly after the discovery of the deed. "I wanted them to go before me." And then she continued with the utmost unconcern, and with absolutely no conception of the enormity of her act, to say: "If I went away there would be nobody to take care of them and they might grow up bad. They're not bad now. They're little angels."

Mr. Parker and her distracted husband remonstrated with her.

"I told her," said the clergyman, "that her father and the rest of us could have taken care of them, but she could not be led to see it in that light. She doesn't seem to feel her position at all. She thinks she has done right."

Mrs. Burrell had been sick in the hospital twice this summer, supposedly with inflammatory rheumatism. After spending two months there she returned home in July. About the middle of August she was taken sick again, and returned to the hospital. The doctors said she was suffering from melancholia. She seemed to be bothering about her children all the time.

To Druggist Charles R. Sneath Mr. Burrell said he felt it hard, but he wouldn't want to see anything done to his wife. He realizes that she was not responsible for her act. Mrs. Burrell, who is a native of London, Eng., has a sister in the asylum for the insane at the present time.

J. E. CARLISLE ARRESTED.

He Is Charged With Assaulting L. W. Smith on Saturday Last.

Toronto, Oct. 22.—Acting under instructions from the Crown Attorney, a warrant was yesterday morning sworn out for the arrest of J. B. Carlisle, the well-known insurance man, charging him with having committed an aggravated assault on L. W. Smith. As soon as he heard of it, Carlisle gave himself up, and appeared before the Magistrate. He was remanded until Monday, and allowed bail in $1,000.

Last Saturday evening, shortly after 6 o'clock, Smith and Carlisle had an argument, and, in consequence of a remark passed by Smith, Carlisle struck him between the eyes. At 2 o'clock in the morning Smith was found in a semi-conscious condition on the doorway of his house on Major street. Besides a black eye Smith was suffering from a blow on the throat, which apparently paralyzed his vocal chords, for he has not been able to speak since. His condition is serious.

Apples at Low Figures.

London, Oct. 22.—Canadian apples sold at Covent Garden yesterday as low as nine shillings and sixpence per barrel. Nova Scotia Ribstone pippins brought seventeen shillings and sixpence. The prices all round were much lower than at previous markets owing to the large quantity arriving.

Record Cargo of Salmon.

San Francisco, Oct. 22.—The British steamer Waterloo, which sailed yesterday, has on board one of the biggest cargoes of salmon and fruit that has left this port for many months. She will take away 59,695 cases of salmon and 34,480 cases of canned fruit. The cargo is valued at $351,000.

LOOKS VERY LIKE WAR

Tension Between Britain and France at Breaking Point.

MAJOR MARCHAND'S REPORT.

Capt. Baretier Telegraphs to His Government—He Will Finish the Message Verbally—Reported Preparations at British Dockyards—France Becoming More Defiant—Russia Is to Back France.

London, Oct. 22.—A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from Portsmouth says the British Admiralty has issued orders that no dockyard repairs are to be commenced upon ships belonging to the reserve squadrons unless they can be completed within 48 hours.

A PARTIAL REPORT ONLY.

Major Marchand's Telegraph Report Incomplete—More to Come Verbally by Capt. Baretier.

Paris, Oct. 22.—Major Marchand's report, telegraphed from Cairo, was received during the course of the night. It does not mention the arrival at Fashoda of General Kitchener, and only gives an account of the incidents of the expedition, with an elaborate description of the route followed, the points occupied, the manner of occupation, the raising of the flag, the force left at each point, and treaties of submission concluded with the tribes, in addition to referring to an encounter with the Dervishes. The report only goes as far as the beginning of September, and says that on August 20 the supplies of the party were abundant.

The reason for the omission of any mention of the arrival of General Kitchener at Fashoda is said to be the fact that the report of Major Marchand was not ready when Captain Baretier left Fashoda. When the Captain started from that place he did not think he would go beyond Khartoum. Major Marchand, however, deemed it advisable to send the finished portion of the report, intending to despatch the remainder of it as soon as Captain Baretier returned. But the Captain, on arriving at Omdurman, found there instructions telling him to go on to Cairo, from which place he will proceed to France.

It is believed in certain quarters that Captain Baretier is the bearer of a verbal report, which the French authorities were not willing to trust upon the British telegraph lines.

Captain Baretier of Major Marchand's expedition, on his arrival at Cairo with the report for the French Government, said the mission had not lost an officer or a soldier. He added that the health of all the members of the party was very good, and that revictualling on the march was easy.

THE PRECISE POSITION.

France Demands an Outlet on the Nile, and the British Government Is Considering It.

Paris, Oct. 22.—A despatch to the Temps, from London, asserts that the precise position regarding the Upper Nile question is this:

Great Britain, having declared her claims on Fashoda, asked France to submit whatever proposals she wished to make. M. Delcasse, the French Minister, replied plainly that France demanded an outlet on the Nile, a reservation being made concerning the geographical points to be determined upon. Lord Salisbury, the British Prime Minister, is now consulting his colleagues on the subject.

Russia Will Back France.

Berlin, Oct. 22.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Cologne Gazette, in a despatch to the paper on the political situation, says:

"Here also interest in the Nile question is rapidly increasing and Russia's conduct in this matter will conform to the expectations formed in connection with her alliance with France."

According to the Gazette's correspondent, the Russian Finance Minister, acting in concert with Count Muravieff, Minister of Foreign Affairs, has attempted to raise a large loan in Paris, and a similar attempt will be made in Berlin.

France Still Acting Warlike.

Paris, Oct. 22.—The Temps last evening published a despatch from Nantes saying that the fourth battalion of the infantry regiments comprising the 21st division, with headquarters at Nantes, have completed their war equipment. Each man, it is added, has received 120 rounds of ammunition and his camp outfit, and the officers of all the four regiments of that division have been supplied with revolver cartridges. The division is now in readiness to march when ordered, and it is believed these troops are intended for coast defence. The defence of St. Nazare is also being organized.

Britain Will Not Budge.

London, Oct. 22.—Government circles here are apparently satisfied that the Fashoda question will not lead to war. At the same time, the determination is reiterated not to budge from the position which the British Government has taken up, no matter what the outcome may be. It is said on good authority that the British Government has also determined not to brook unreasonable delay, and that in the event of France declining to evacuate Fashoda, the Marchand party will be removed from that place, although it is not expected that it will be necessary to resort to such extremes.

France More Defiant.

Paris, Oct. 22.—A remarkable change has come over French opinion on the Fashoda question during the last 48 hours. The attitude of the public is more inflamed and more defiant. This is partly due to the tone of the British press, but more to the threatening speech of the British Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, which the Autorite

WALLACEBURG, ONT.—The following letter will prove of interest to working men and others who may be in a condition similar to that of the writer:

"For three years I was subject to poor spells. I always felt tired, could not sleep at night and the little I could eat did not do me any good. I have been working at the barber trade for about 20 years and for the last four years I have been very closely confined and have had my meals very irregularly. I was taken with a and the doctors said it was caused by my stomach troubles. I lost flesh and became so weak I was hardly able to stand up to the chair to work. One day I happened to be looking over some testimonial letters and I thought I would try Hood's Sarsaparilla. Before I had taken two bottles I began to feel better and in a short time I felt finely and had gained 21 pounds in weight. I have taken nearly five bottles and now I feel like a man again. I am than I have ever been in my life. My wife and children have also taken Hood's Sarsaparilla for a blood medicine and realized much benefit from it. As for myself I cannot say too much for it. I firmly believe that if it had not been for Hood's Sarsaparilla I would not have been able to work at my trade any longer." JOHN W. COUGHLIN.

HOME WORK AND HOME WORK FOR PUPILS.

The Toronto School Board may be "as wise as serpents," but they will be hardly as "harmless as doves" if they carry out their intention of abolishing home work in the schools in the slipshod manner they propose. A resolution puts it in the hands of parents and guardians to say whether or not the children under their care shal study home lessons. The result will be that home lessons being assigned, part of the pupils will come to school with them learned and the exempts, whose parents may by the whim of the moment, forbid home studies, unprepared; therefore, anything like class instruction is impossible and the danger of disastrous confusion is much more than a danger, it is a certainty. A highly qualified and experienced educationalist informs the EXAMINER that this plan is totally impracticable and will lead to the most unfortunate results if applied to schools. He says that the assignment of home work must be general if home work is given at all.

Now, in spite of the wise dictum of the Toronto School Board, it is not desirable that home lessons be abolished. Of course the system is much abused by injudicious teachers, but that does not prove that it is wrong. An advantage that can be abused, can, if properly used, be turned to good account. For ordinary pupils the advantage of home lessons, which should, of course, be guaged to the capacity of such pupils, is the reliance upon their own powers and capacitiy it teaches. For more advanced pupils the home lesson to a certain degree, is indispensable. The function of the teacher in the higher grades, in relation to the lessons assigned, is to correct and direct, in effect to teach; and of the pupil to learn; and there is obviously little time for study during school hours.

There should, with obvious exceptions, such as ill health, etc., be home lessons, but in the majority of cases they should be of a review character, founded upon work already done by the pupil. The one fault with our present system of instruction is the rapidity of progress, which almost necessarily involves imperfect mastery or, at least, momentary mastery of lessons. Under pressure a clever pupil will recite, say, this morning, a lesson perfectly, but the same process is not repeated and in two week's time he has only a dim memory of the lesson recited a fortnight ago. Such lessons should be rubbed in and rubbed in, especially in the lower grades. For this reason home lessons of reasonable length, to be founded on work gone over, might with advantage be retained, even if the system of assigment of home lessons in new subjects be abandoned. We want thoroughness and there cannot be thoroughness without constant and sufficient review, to impress school knowledge indelibly upon the memory.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE Montreal Gazette's heading-writer, says the Montreal Herald, hit the nail on the head when he wrote that the object of the prohibitionists who promise to wait upon the Government in connection with the plebiscite vote is simply "to bother Laurier." But we are mistaken if the Premier will really be much bothered by the visit. When the people of the country show they are ready for prohibition a Government that will not then be prepared to give it to them may expect to be bothered. But not until then.

THE Attorney General has made a wise choice in selecting Mr. S.T. Bastedo for the important position of secretary of the new Fishery Department, established pursuant to the decision of the Privy Council, giving Ontario jurisdiction over the fisheries within her boundaries. Mr. Bastedo has had a lengthened and responsible experience as private secretary to Sir Oliver Mowat, and more recently as private secretary to Hon. Mr. Hardy. It would indeed have been difficult for the Attorney General to have selected a gentleman better qualified, both by ability, aptitude and in every respect, to perform the duties of so important a position, with efficiency and satisfaction, to the Government and the people. The EXAMINER extends the congratulations to Mr. Bastedo which the circumstances so strongly suggest.

THE Kingston Freeman's special edition, commemorative of and descriptive of the consecration of Archbishop Gauthier, is a splendid specimen of newspaper enterprise and literary ability. The Freeman's souvenir contains an elaborate and well written report of the gr at ecclesiastical pageant which will be a grand memory, while lasts, to those who participated in it, and also an interesting history to the diocese of Kingston, the oldest see in Ontario and the fourth oldest in America. The illustrations, represented by over a score of portraits of visiting prelates, other ecclesiastical dignitaries and priests, are excellently presented. The entire edition is a souvenir number which is in all respects a most creditable journalistic production and furnishes evidence that Mr. Daley, the publisher, is alive to the responsibilities that attach to a progressive newspaper publisher, whose productions should be a reflex of the events of his constituency and worthy, both in typography and literary tone, of the interest they represent.

SATURDAY NIGHT of Toronto denounces in unmeasured language the attacks that have been made against the officials sent by the Dominion Government to the Yukon district. Summing up, it says:—

The fact remains still in the history of the world, that Dawson City is as orderly a mining camp as was ever constituted. The Dominion Government has administered it as well as any government could undertake a new thing with which it was entirely unacquainted. Everybody has been treated as well as they could be treated by those who were novices in the business, and yet there is not a reputation which has been saved out of the administration of the Yukon. I would not take twenty thousand dollars a year and go into that country and try to do any official business, for I would expect what reputation I may possess would be entirely destroyed before I could get back. The men who are writing down Mr. Sifton in the newspapers, if they were appointed to official positions, would be known as scoundrels before six months had elapsed, and they would probably be unjustly accused.

SINGLE TAX OR RELATION TO EMPLOYMENT.

Men are too many, or jobs too few. That is the obtrusive fact in the labour question. It is the one fact which, however superficially, accounts to all minds for a condition in which so many men hunt in vain for work. To state it is merely to state in another form the problem of the unemployed. Because men are too many or jobs too few, there are at all times unemployed men. When that is so, the wages of employed men are perpetually threatened and perpetually tend downward. Lack of employment, therefore, is at the root of the labour question.

If it were possible to bring about a condition in which there was no lack of employmen, in which jobs were hunting for men instead of men hunting for jobs, the labour problem would be solved. It would solve itself. There would then be such a universal and insatiable demand for men to work that no one would work for less than he earned. Or, if any were willing to work for less than they earned they would be in such exceptional demand that their wages would rise to the earning point in spite of themselves.

This condition would be brought about by the single tax. If the single tax were in operation, men would no longer hunt for jobs; jobs would hunt for men.

The reason is plain. Only one thing is required to stop men hunting for jobs and set jobs hunting for men. That thing is the land. I speak now not only of individual working men, but of that complex industrial mass in all branches and grades which is properly called "labour;" and I speak not merely of land in the sense of fertile soil, but of land in all its characteristics as the natural and social environment of man. Let labour have free access to this and labour will provide itself with everything else. Deny this to labour, and though you provide it with everything else it will be helpless. If labour had all the money and all the machinery in the world it would be impotent without land; but if it had all the land in the world, all the money and all the machinery would be subject to its control as a matter of course. When labour has the freedom of land it can plant and reap; it can dig and build; it can make machinery and use it; it can dictate its own money system; and the more work it does, the more work it will be asked to do, and the higher, consequently, wages will rise.

This freedom of the land would be secured to labour by the single tax. That tax, though in form and name, and in substance, too, a method—the best, because the natural and just method—of raising public revenues, is also a radical industrial reform. By lifting taxes from labour and labour products, and putting them upon land in proportion, not to its area, but to its value, the single tax would take every year for common use approximately the actual and possible ground rent of all the land in the community. Land not worth a high ground rent would not pay a high tax; but, be the ground rent high or low, it would be exacted, whether the land were in use or not. Obviously, then, no valuable land could be kept out of use. To keep it so would not pay. Unless put to use it would be eaten up every year or two by taxes. Landowners would have to use their land. But they could not do that without calling in labour to help them. Unaided they would find it impossible to use the land well enough to make their taxes good. So they would be compelled to hire workingmen; or, if workingmen wouldn't be hired, to take them into partnership. In one way, if not in another, the land that landlords now hold vacant would be utilized to its fullest capability. That would make jobs, and it would keep on making them time without end, faster than men would appear to do them.

Consider a moment. There are scores of thousands of acres of coal land of great value, which is now unworked. If its possible royalty were taken in taxes every year its owners would have to allow it to be worked. There are millions of acres of town and city lots of enormous value, which are bare of buildings, though the people who want the buildings are like the sands of the sea shore for number. If the possible ground rents of these lots were exacted of the owners in taxes every year, the owners would have to allow them to be built upon. So, also, there are millions of acres of farming land, owned by railroads and syndicates, land of splendid fertility and tempting value, which is now lying fallow while farm hands beg for work and city workingmen struggle for bread. If the possible ground rent of that land were demanded every year in taxes, the owner would have to work it or abandon it to men who would. Think of the jobs which the consequent demands for workers would make.

The supply of workers would then augment demand for work, until no conceivable increase of population, nor any possible improvement in labour-saving machinery, could lessen it. It would find its only check in exorbitant wages—in wages, that is to say, which were in excess of the earnings for which they were demanded.

These are some indications of how the single tax would alter the most notable industrial condition of our time, that of men hunting for jobs, to a condition which would be characterised by the phenomenon of jobs hunting for men. By thus raising wages to the full earnings of the worker, this simple land reform would make workingmen secure in civilized comfort, and guaranteeing to labour absolute independence, would abolish all that is hateful in the present relationship of employer and employed.—Louis F. Post, in Labour Day Review.

HOME FAILURES

And Serious Losses From Use of Common Adulterated Dyes.

DIAMOND DYES

Are Used by all Wise and Economical Women

The only pure, harmless and successful package dyes for home dyeing are the Diamond Dyes.

The imitation package dyes and the common soap grease mixtures are so largely adulterated with foreign substances that they are positively dangerous to use and handle. No lady who values her garments and materials will care to risk the colouring powers of these adulterated dyestuffs. Suffice it to say, the colours are dull, muddy and lifeless and cannot stand the most ordinary washing.

The Diamond Dyes have a long record of triumphs and well-done work that has never been equalled in the history of home dyes. In every part of the world they give delight and satisfaction, and are hailed as true money savers.

Easy, pleasant and profitable home dyeing is only possible with the tested and popular Diamond Dyes.

As there are still storekeepers who sell inferior package and soap grease dyes for the sake of long profits, so see to it that your dealer gives you the Diamond Dyes when you ask for them. Every genuine package has the name "Diamond."

It is poor judgment to pay ten cents for adulterated dyes when you can buy guaranteed Diamond dyes for the same price.

OFFICE OF W. A. MURRAY & Co., 17 to 27 King St., East, Toronto.

Wm. McCabe, Esq., Managing Director, N. A. L.:

DEAR SIR,—In answer to your request for me to decide upon one of the following options offered me for settlement of my 15-payment Life Investment Policy for $5,000 which has matured this year, viz:

1st to take the value of the Policy in Cash	$5,000.00
2nd, or fully paid-up insurance for	3,380.00
3rd, or take the profits in cash	2,050 25

and continue my policy without further payments being required from me, same policy participating in future profits.

I find it somewhat difficult to make a decision either of the three options being so satisfactory. I am certainly very much pleased with the results offered me, and as I find many others are giving full testimony to the profit-earning power of this company. I do not hesitate to give my endorsement as well, that the North American Life is one of our strongest Canadian Institutions to day giving first class results on Investment Policies, on a safe and conservative basis. I find that my policy, which was originally a Life by fifteen payments, has become an Endowment at the end of the Investment period.

as definitely stated to Great Britain, includes the retention of Fashoda.

Will the Esquimault Fleet Move?

Vancouver, Oct. 22.—The London, Eng., Daily Mail cabled its British Columbia correspondent yesterday: 'Relations France and Britain over Fashoda critical. Watch."

The inference is that the warships at Esquimault may make a move.

TRAFALGAR DAY

Celebrated in Britain With an Increased Burst of Patriotism.

London, Oct. 22.—Exceptional interest was taken yesterday in the celebration of the anniversary of the battle of Trafalgar, fought Oct. 21st, 1805, when the British fleets under Admiral Nelson gained a brilliant victory over the fleets of France and Spain, commanded by Admiral Villeneuve. The cause of this increased outburst of patriotism here is the dispute with France over the Fashoda question, which in some quarters is looked upon as a matter which may possibly bring about war between those two countries. The Nelson column on Trafalgar square was profusely decorated, and entwined with a spiral chain of laurel leaves, while festoons hung from each corner of the capital to the lions at the base, which were elaborately embellished with anchors, wreaths, flags and evergreens, with a background of crimson cloth, with floral shields in each corner, inscribed with Nelson's great victories, namely: "St. Vincent," "Camperdown," "The Nile" and "Trafalgar."

The morning was showery and misty, but many hundreds of people were present to cheer to the echo the hoisting of the Union Jack on the top of the pedestal at 8 o'clock.

At Portsmouth the masts of the old-time line of battle ship Victory, Nelson's flagship at Trafalgar, and the vessel on which he died, were hung with garlands of laurel. The provincial towns celebrated the day by hoisting the Union Jack on all the public buildings.

FIGHTING IN SOUTH AFRICA.

Lutheran Missionary Was Massacred and the Guilty Tribe Has Defied Transvaal Government.

Pretoria, Oct. 22.—Serious trouble is brewing with the Magato tribe in the Zoutpansberg District, south of the Limpo River. The natives massacred a Lutheran missionary and his family at the town of Zoutpansberg, and the Transvaal Government sent an expedition to punish them. The affair has now assumed serious proportions.

Chief Opefu, with 20,000 followers, fully armed, and four cannon, supplied by white traders, has attacked the Leager. Heavy fighting is proceeding. The ultimatum of the commanding officer of the Transvaal troops, General Joubert, demanding an unconditional surrender has been ignored by the tribesmen; and he has summoned 3,000 Burghers to reinforce the 5,000 now in the field. The campaign promises to be prolonged.

DUE TO THE CUBAN DEBT.

Spanish-American Peace Commissioners Make Another Adjournment.

Paris, Oct. 22.—The joint session of the Peace Commission yesterday lasted from 2 p.m. to 4.30 p.m. During this time the commissioners discussed the second series of written arguments put forward by the Spanish for the purpose of prevailing upon the American commissioners to assume the Cuban debt. No definite conclusion was reached and the commissioners adjourned until Monday, when the Cuban question will again be discussed.

Who Should Assume the Debt.

London, Oct. 21.—The Speaker, in a long article on the Peace Commission, says:

"The reluctance of America to annex Cuba is mainly due to a desire to escape the burden of the Cuban debt. At the same time the doctrine of international law by which a debt incurred by a ruler binds his successors, rests upon slight foundation.

"It is monstrous that a tyrant should be able to burden future generations simply because he is in possession of the material government. If investors felt that in international law loans incurred against the will of the people would not attach to the country in the event of a change of government, there would be less of that monetary support of misgovernment which has disgraced the high finance of the nineteenth century.

"For fifty years Spain has ruled Cuba in defiance of the will of the Cuban people and in spite of the constant protest of the United States. The cost of her military operations were met by loans specially chargeable upon Cuba, in the first place in order to punish the Cubans and, in the second, in order to arrange for a cheap retreat in the event of being driven out by America.

"In a word the debt has been charged upon Cuba largely with the object of saddling it upon the United States. The bondholders were encouraged to look to the supposed doctrine of international law as part of the security while they knew they were lending to Spain against the will of both Cubans and Americans. It is to be hoped that the United States, while assuming sovereignty over Cuba, will refuse to pay any part of the debt except the money used in the development of the island, thereby setting a most useful precedent by which tyrants and financiers will do well to take note."

AGAIN THE DREYFUS CASE.

Some Prospect of a Reconciliation of the Factions—A Suit for Libel.

Paris, Oct. 22.—It is believed that the Court of Cassation will take up the Dreyfus case next week, and the general impression is that the decision will be in favor of revision. The court has obtained documents concerning Comte Esterhazy, the late Lieutenant-Colonel Henry, and Madame Pays and their mutual relations. It will demand all the documents bearing on the case and call witnesses, including Col. Picquart.

M. Cavaignac, the former Minister for War, is credited with the intention, when Parliament re-assembles, of calling upon the Government to take the question of Dreyfus revision out of the hands of the Court of Cassation, but it is believed that no precedent exists for such interference.

The Soir says: "M. Faure will send a message to the Chamber of Deputies regarding the Dreyfus case when Parliament re assembles, and it is predicted by some that he will appeal for a reconciliation of the factions now disturbing the country's tranquility."

A DERANGED REPORTER

Causes Excitement by Being Polite to Queen Wilhelmina.

Amsterdam, Oct. 22.—While Queen Wilhelmina and her mother were about to take a train yesterday on their return to Apeldoorn, a reporter, dressed in a bicycle costume, advanced an offered his arm to the young Queen. He was immediately arrested. It was at first reported that the Queen had been assaulted and great excitement prevailed. But it appeared later that the reporter was subject to derangement. He explains that he merely desired, out of politeness, to escort the Queen to the train.

"Some fellows" will, sometimes, take a little too much.

Next morning they'll be sorry for it, even as thousands of "other fellows" have been sorry for similar mistakes, thousands of times before.

Their heads will ache, their eyes will be bloodshot and "glarey," their nerves unstrung, their hands shaky; there'll be a ringing, or a roaring in their ears, and they will yearn, with a great yearning for a "bracer."

The best, surest, and speediest bracer, in a case of this kind, is one (or two) of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets will cool the fevered blood, calm the shaking nerves, soothe the aching brain, tone and brace up the entire system, and impart steadiness, freshness, strength and vigour to the frame.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets can be carried easily in the vest pocket; they are pleasant as "candy" to taste, and positive, rapid and permanent in their effect.

One or two of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets taken just after meals, will correct acidity of the stomach, cure Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Heartburn, Biliousness and all other stomach troubles, except cancer.

DECLINE IN PRICES.

There Was a Downfall of Wheat Prices in Liverpool and Chicago—Live Stock Markets—Prices.

Friday Evening, Oct. 21.

After the rapid rise of the past few days, to-day's reaction in the wheat markets came not unexpectedly. Realizing by Liverpool and reports of a better turn in the Fashoda affair brought about the recession. Liverpool futures opened steady this morning, but eased off later, the December delivery closing 1½d and the March option 1¾d per cental below yesterday's final figures.

All Chicago deliveries declined about 1¼c per bushel, following Liverpool's lead. Bulls used the Manitoba crop damage reports and stories of a set-back to the Australian grain in the effort to bring about a rally, but the close was about at the low point of the day.

WOMEN'S WAYS.

At 16 or 60 a woman will tell her age.

Every married woman believes she is "on her feet" too much.

Women never lose things. They put them in a good place, and can't recall the place.

Women enjoy being martyrs, which may account for the fact that there are so many bad husbands.

An unusual girl is one whose favorite books have something else happen in them besides a love affair.

We can tell how old a woman is by looking at her cooking stove. If she always has something stowing on the back part she is getting along in years.

No woman who drives up in front of a store in her buggy and compels clerks to come out is popular, though she may be only 16 and have dimples and money.—Atchison Globe.

Concerning Portieres.

Portieres, it should be remembered, are supposed to have their origin in a need. They are intended to do service to shut out disagreeable drafts, sometimes sounds. Such being their service, it is manifestly unsuitable that they should be tightly shirred on a pole in a way that takes several sharp and reaching pulls to draw them. They should be invariably on rings and move easily and quickly over the pole, the arrangement of the cords that draw them aside instantaneously being preferred. Their design should be simple, solid colors of a neutral tint being the most acceptable. It is rare that a figured pattern is satisfactory.

They should not hang in a doorway where the doors are open and set back. They sometimes cover acceptably a door that must be permanently closed, but otherwise they replace a door that is removed for reasons. Their texture, while thick, should be soft and pliable, hanging in easy folds. Nothing is more tasteless than a stiff, wiry fabric to screen a doorway. The poles should be within the door frame and set perhaps six inches from the top, never over the molding and finish of the door.

Norwich, Ont., Oct. 3.—Mrs. J. S. Hooper, wife of Mr. J. Stanley Hooper, of North Norwich township, is a living proof of the unapproached value of Dodd's Kidney Pills, in the treatment of diseases of women.

Four boxes cured her thoroughly and made her as healthy, strong and vigorous as she ever was. Dodd's Kidney Pills are women's best friends.

STAND BY THE TOWN.

At the risk of being voted tedious, circumstances still call for the direction of public attention to an abuse of privilege which not only involves the practice of unfair dealing to fellow citizens but also vitally involves the prosperity of the town. There is little reason to doubt that the majority of our citizens recognize, and are willing to be directed in their actions, by the principle underlying the plain duty of helping those who help them. No one can be independent; all need the aid of others, and in no sphere is this more applicable than in the commercial sphere. Our merchants embark their all in establishments whose effect, though the primary object on the part of the merchants is to make a living, is the subserving of the convenience of the people. The more the services of our merchants are demanded, the better and cheaper service they are able to supply. Our merchants are the heaviest contributors to the rent roll and tax roll of the town, and their prosperity is an index to the prosperity and commercial importance of the town.

Peterborough has within its borders the best, the biggest and most complete mercantile establishments of any town in Canada, and far superior to most of the minor cities; and in all the principal lines as good goods can be got from our local merchants, and at as low prices, as can be obtained in the retail shops of the large cities.

Attention has been heretofore called to the unfairness of citizens of the town going to the cities to make purchases, which should be made with our local merchants—spending money, which the patronage of local merchants has helped to create, with outside dealers. A man in business in Peterborough who depends on Peterborough for a market for his wares or products might be considered by some as morally guilty of getting money under false pretences if he spends it abroad, in cases, especially, in which he can get as good value from his neighbours in business who have helped to make his money.

There is in this connection an extremely false idea that better values can be obtained in the city than the town and a few examples, to show in what way many persons are misled to do an unfair thing to town merchants and, through them, to the town, may be given.

A Peterborough lady, who has for some years been getting her furs in Toronto, a few days ago purchased a pair of Persian lamb gauntlets in that city. A lady friend threw doubt upon the genuineness of the bargain the lady imagined she had got, and suggested a visit to a local furrier, who showed several pairs of gauntlets which the lady herself admitted were superior in fur and finish to her Toronto "bargain;" and she was taken down an indefinite number of pegs, when, on inquiring, the price of the superior gauntlets of town make was found much lower than that of the Toronto "bargain."

Another lady went to a local merchant and selected a jacket at $14. Everything was satisfactory but the size, which was not quite what a good dresser demands. The merchant could not obtain another size from the Toronto wholesale house where his stock was bought, and was referred to a big retail shop in Montreal, which had bought from the same Toronto house. The jacket of the required size was got from the Montreal retail store, and the price was $17, for identically the same jacket for which the Peterborough merchant charged $14, with express charges and postage added for the out of town purchase.

Examples like these could be furnished daily, and the above are given as a sort of argumentum ad crumenam—an appeal to the purse—for the persons that patronize city merchants should know that they are, as a rule, paying bigger prices, often for inferior goods, than are called for in Peterborough stores, while at the same time they are, in spirit, disregarding the divine command, "Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself."

We are sure that if our citizens would look at the matter in the right light, they would not lay themselves open to the charge of ignoring the fact that our local merchants have the first claim upon the patronage of citizens, especially when they are as well served and as cheaply, or counting express charges, a good deal more cheaply. But there are some who should have full knowledge of the tendency of the practice and a deep interest in the welfare of the town who are offenders. The Board of Trade exists primarily for the advancement of the mercantile interests of the town. Therefore a prominent member who makes large purchases in Toronto that he should have made—and could have made with as good advantage—in town, hardly lives up to his obligations of membership, besides setting an example which, from his prominence, will tend to create followers.

Another point might be referred to. The town council have hardly lived up to the principle that outsiders should not be employed in civic contracts, by going to Toronto to secure an overseer of sewer work. No word of objection is taken to this gentleman's ability, and if the town fathers can honestly assert that no capable resident of the town could be found to do the work, then of course there is nothing more to be said. If such persons could be found in the town—and one would think there might be—then the councillors are to blame for passing over the claims of residents and taxpayers, which should have first consideration.

DEATH OF KENWARD MARK.

A Gentleman of the Kindliest Disposition and of the Strictest Integrity—His Thorough Uprightness Won for Him Many Warm Friends.

Kenward S. W. Mark, a former resident of Peterborough, died yesterday afternoon at Havelock. The deceased was a veteran of the Crimean War and had been a resident of this county for twenty years. He had for a couple of years resided at Georgina Island, Lake Simcoe, as a missionary to the Indians there, and with his daughter, Miss Alberta Mark, had charge of the school.

Early in the summer his health gave way and in the holiday season he spent some time in the vicinity of Peterborough. He returned home improved in health, but the improvement was only temporary and paralysis, caused by effusion of blood on the brain, followed. Mr. Mark was brought to the residence of his son, Mr. James Mark, at Havelock, where he died.

The deceased was born in London, England, on July 9th, 1835. He enlisted, when eighteen years of age, in the 20th Regiment of Infantry, and, although connected with the paymaster's office, on the outbreak of the war with Russia he went with his regiment to the Crimea, taking part in all the engagements of that war, including the ascent of the bloody Heights of Alma, the battle of Balaklava and the struggle at Inkerman. His regiment was of the besieging force that compelled, after the terrible seige, the evacuation of Sebastopol, and he wore the Crimean medal with the clasps representing the various engagements of the war. His many personal remembrances of the war will long remain green in the memory of his friends, who are familiar with the various incidents which he took such pleasure in relating.

After the war Mr. Mark came to Canada and engaged in the teaching profession near Kingston. He afterwards taught in Percy and Seymour township and in 1875 came to Peterborough county, teaching the school at Blairton, at that time a thriving village at the iron mines. Later he taught at Allandale and was for some years principal of the Public School at Keene. Leaving there he taught a year at Marmora and then retired owing to his hearing becoming defective. He then came to Peterborough where he lived for four five years and a little over a year ago was sent by the authorities of the Methodist church to Georgina Island.

He had united with the Methodist church in Canada when he was twenty-eight years of age and from that time until his death was a valued local preacher. At the time of his death he was a member of the George street church in town. He was married to Miss Ann Clixby, daughter of Mr. Wm. Clixby, of Howe Island, who, with one son and four daughters, survives him. The son is Mr. James Mark, conductor on the C. P. R., who resides at Havelock. The daughters are Miss Maggie Mark, of the teaching staff of the South Central school; Mrs. Henderson, Otonabee; Miss Emma Mark, Havelock, and Miss Alberta, who resides at home. The late Geo. K. Mark, M. D., who recently died in Peterborough, was the eldest son of the deceased.

Deceased was a member of the Masonic Order, and was a past master of Keene Lodge No. 374, A F. & A.M. He was also connected with the Orange Order and was a strong advocate of temperance. He was also connected with the Army and Navy Veterans' Association, of Toronto.

The deceased was a gentleman of the kindliest disposition and of the strictest integrity. He was most successful in his profession, and his geniality and thorough uprightness of character, made him many warm friends, whose deep sympathy will be extended to those who mourn the death of a loving husband and father.

The funeral will take place under Masonic auspices at 2 o'clock Sunday from the C.P.R. station, the remains arriving in Peterborough on a special train from Havelock. A joint emergent meeting of the two local lodges and an emergent meeting of Keene Lodge will be held in the lodge room, Water street at 1 30 p.m. to-morrow afternoon for the purpose of attending the funeral.

KILLED IN MID-OCEAN.

Sad Death of Mr. Harry Wilson While on his Way to the Old Country.

Mr. J. T. Hawkins, of No. 282 Hunter street, is in receipt of a letter from Mr. John Flemming of town, announcing the sudden death of Mr. Harry Wilson, while en route to the Old Country.

The two men were working their passage in a cattle ship, and not liking their sleeping quarters, shifted them to what is known as the bunker hatch. When the cover of the hatchway was being lifted the next morning it slipped from the hands of the man who was raising it, and falling down into the hold struck a bundle of hay and rebounding fell with all its weight across Wilson's abdomen as he lay in his bunk. It is thought that internal rupture must have resulted as the injured man only lived two days after the accident. He was buried in the Atlantic.

The deceased was well known in town, being a former employee at the Wm. Hamilton Works, and a member of the Fire Brigade Band.

TRADE SALE OF RUBBERS.

The Gough Bros. Syndicate are Large Buyers at the Annual Sale in Montreal.

The thirty-first and largest annual sale of India rubber boots and shoes, being seconds of this year's production, were sold at auction this morning at Benning & Barsalou's salesrooms, Nos. 86 and 88 St. Peter street. There were about 300 buyers present from all parts of Canada, and it is thought that by the time the sale is brought to an end the sales will exceed anything of the sort ever held in this country. Prices averaged about the same as last year, and are therefore satisfactory. The sale will foot up to about $75,000, as against $60 000 for the last year, and the quantity sold is in the neighbourhood of 7,000 cases.

Among the buyers present were: Pocock Bros., London; Western Shoe Co., London; Gough Bros., Peterborough; Hally Bros., Toronto; Day-Gough Co., Port Hope, and numerous others.—Montreal Star, Oct. 20th.

Safe, Sure, and Painless.

What a world of meaning this statement embodies. Just what you are looking for, is it not? Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor—the great sure pop-corn cure—acts in this way. It makes no sore spots; safe, acts speedily and with certainty; sure and mildly, without inflaming the parts; painlessly. Do not be imposed upon by imitations or substitutes.

Peterborough's Modern Store

THREE STRONG POINTS ABOUT OUR GREAT STORE.

POINT NO. 1—SERVICE: In all the plans of this store the public is the first in the order of precedence. This store is a public convenience. It undertakes to supply the wants of the people in Dry Goods and to do so in the best manner possible. Our facilities are the best known to modern merchandising to-day. Neither money or pains have been spared to make it first-class in every branch of its store service.

POINT NO. 2—SAFETY: We know we cannot permanently secure your confidence by selling you what you will be sorry for having bought—for any article bought from this store, if returned promptly and in good condition, the money will be refunded. Our intention is that you may send by any messenger, even a child for what you need, with the assurance that no advantage will be taken, so you run no risk. ONE PRICE TO ALL.

POINT NO. 3—ECONOMY: Your trade is sought here simply on the merits of the goods. Unless our values are right we know you will not continue to come. Unless your money goes farther here than elsewhere, quality of goods considered, we shall not expect you to come. Our store news is published for your information and you will find it strictly and literally true. You can save money by buying your Dry Goods here.

Peterborough ladies are appreciating our efforts to give them high-class Dressmaking at popular prices. No necessity to go to the city to get your dress made in up-to-date style. We can accommodate you at prices a half less than what you pay for the same class of work in the city. We have to apologize to our many patrons who were disappointed in not getting their dresses last week but with additional help this week we expect to be able to fulfil all engagements at the appointed time.

JACKETS.

Our Mantle department is bustling with activity these days. One reason is because the prices are away below what you might reasonably expect to pay for the high standard of qualities and styles in the make up of our garments. If you are seeking Jackets this week see what the big Simcoe Street store is showing. We are headquarters.

MILLINERY.

There is a certain distinctiveness about our Millinery that is noticeable at once in comparison with other Millinery. The materials used in the making of our Millinery is quite different to the sameness seen in trimming in other shops. While in Paris we picked up some elegant things in the way of trimming that are out of the common, things that are not to be seen elsewhere. But they are quicker seen than described. COME AND SEE. Compare our prices for Walking Hats with other stores and don't buy ours unless they are cheaper. Compare our prices for the popular little Sailor with other stores and don't buy ours unless they are cheaper. Leave your order for your New Fall Hat with our Milliner. You will be sure to get satisfaction.

CARPETS.

The best qualities at little prices. Our assortment covers everything in the line of Carpets from Hemp to the finest Velvets, equal to anything in the large cities Our prices are lower than the lowest quotations received from the large cities to-day. But come and be convinced. Seeing is believing.

HUNTING PARTIES RETURN.

The Winch Camp Breaks up and also the One at Rainy Point.

THE WINCH PARTY.

Last evening the members of the Winch party returnted from Lake Ketchecum, where they have been camping since the tenth. The party was composed of Richard Hall, Mayor Davis, R. J. Winch, H. C. Winch, T. H. G. Denne, D. J. Lundy, Geo. Gobell, Harold Nelles, and Mr. Samson, the latter of Toronto.

The fishing was good, Messrs. Richard Hall and A. L. Davis being especially successful. Partridges were also plentiful, and the camp fared royally. Very few fish were brought home, as the party consumed eleven at a meal on an average, and it kept the fishermen of the party fairly busy to keep the larder supplied. This year the mountain trout are very firm, and the weight of those caught averaged from one to four and a half pounds. Before breaking up camp a cruise was taken under the guidance of Mr. H. C. Winch, through Bottle, Sucker, Beaver, Gold and Gull lakes. The scenery is described as being gorgeous at this season of the year. The grass carpets the shores to the waters of the lakes and the brilliant colouring of the leaves makes a grand background.

Alex. Preston, of Toronto, was taken back as cook, and the party were delighted with him. The manner in which at Mr. Hall's suggestion, he roasted the hind quarters of a porcupine, shot by the latter gentleman, and served to a couple of his friends, will long remain a standing joke with the members of the camp.

THE NEIL PARTY.

The members of the Rice Lake Hunting Club, also returned yesterday from camp. Their lines were cast in pleasant places whilst down at the lake, as the entire party was housed in the commodious cottage on Rainy Point, which is owned by Messrs. Neil and Talbot.

Ducks are reported to be very plentiful at Rice Lake, but so wild that it is very difficult to get a shot at them. The party went down on the fifteenth and secured in all thirty three birds. The camp was composed of Messrs. Harry Neil, Albert Talbot, Mac. Poussette, W. L. Allen, Col. J. Z. Regers, H. Odette and Bert Whatley.

WEDDING BELLS

Marriage of Miss Beatrice Coe, Formerly of Peterborough.

A wedding of interest to many in town was celebrated at Claude on Wednesday, 19th inst., when Miss Beatrice Coe, formerly of Peterborough, was married to Mr. J. A. Black, of the City Solicitor's Office, Toronto.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Geo. Washington, at the residence of the bride's brother in-law, Dr. Emmerson.

The bride was attired in Cuban blue, and was unattended.

The gift from the groom was a handsome gold watch and chain.

THE CAUSE OF THE LOW WATER.

Shutting off the Water Supply too Suddenly at Dam No. 4 Stops the Mills.

Yesterday the water in the river was so low for a few hours that the mills and factories depending upon it for power were unable to run. The low water was caused by the contractors on the Trent Valley Canal, Messrs. Browne, Love and Aylmer, suddenly shutting off the water at No. 4 dam, about three miles from Lakefield. If the stop logs had been put in gradually—one at a time, the water in a short time would have risen to the point of overflow, and the supply would not have been materially affected, nor for any length of time.

It is understood that one of the conditions of the contract is that the water in the river shall not be so hadled as to interfere seriously with operations depending upon the normal volume of water.

When any part of the body isn't doing the work that nature intended it to do, it puts the whole system out of tune—out of harmony. Sickness in one part of the body is likely to run into all parts of the body. When children stand a row of bricks on end, they knock the whole row down by upsetting one brick. That is exactly what happens to the health when the bowels fail to perform their proper function. Constipation makes trouble all along the line—puts the liver out of order, is bad for the kidneys—bad for the stomach. It holds in the body poisonous matter, and because it cannot go any place else, it gets into the blood. The blood carries it all over the system. That makes sluggishness, lassitude, bad breath and foul taste in the mouth, fills the stomach with gas and causes windy belching, stops digestion in the stomach, causes sour stomach, heartburn and headache. You can avoid all such trouble, for Dr. Pierces Pleasant Pellets CURE constipation and its attendant evils.

Send 31 cents in one-cent stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N.Y., for his "Medical Adviser." It is a book of 1008 pages, profusely illustrated.

The Young Lad who Stole the Jewelry in Lakefield will be Given Another Chance.

Reginald Hunter, aged 16, of Lakefield, who was arrested on Friday of last week, and found guilty of entering the premises of Mr. C. J. Blomfield, and stealing therefrom a locket and two rings, was before County Magistrate Elmison this morning for sentence.

Mr. Blomfield appeared and asked that leniency be extended towards the lad, stating that he had recovered the stolen property. As he was the injured party, the magistrate decided to act on his suggestion, and gave the youth another chance to live an honest life.

The boy's statement in reference to the theft was that he was down along the lake shore, behind Mr. Blomfield's house, when he noticed that one of the shutters was open and the window partly raised. Knowing that the family was away he entered through curiosity, and in wandering around through the rooms, came across the locket and two rings lying on a small table. He took them, and giving one ring to a sister living in Peterborough, kept the rest of the jewelry himself. As he had not tried to dispose of it, this was considered a point in his favour.

The prisioner was allowed to go on suspended sentence on condition that he did not return to Lakefield.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

THE WORLD'S BEST AND MOST RELIABLE MEDICINE.

A Marvellous Cure in Hamilton, Ont.

When Life is in Danger and When Doctors Fail, PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND Gives New Life.

Miss Blake, writing from 303 Hughson Street, Hamilton, Ont., says:

"For years I suffered greatly, and was under the care of doctors who finally told me I was going into consumption. I was becoming worse through the use of medicines, and I gave up my doctors. While in a very critical condition, not able to sleep or rest, always faint and weak, appetite and digestion bad, and my system run down and little life left in me, I commenced to use Paine's Celery Compound. After taking one bottle I felt much relieved. I have used in all seven or eight bottles, and am now a new woman, can enjoy life, and am as well as I wish to be. Many thanks for your great medicine."

BENJAMIN WEST.

How the Great Painter Brought About a Revolution In Art.

Before the days of Reynolds, Gainsborough and Constable English artists did not expect any one to pay such prices for their pictures as for those of foreigners, or even to buy anything but a portrait. "What could I do with it?" an English connoisseur is said to have replied to a gentleman who had asked him why he did not purchase a historical picture he greatly admired. "You surely would not have me hang up a modern English picture in my house unless it were a portrait!"

The cause of this low estimate of English art may be seen in the facts mentioned by Mrs. Bell in her "Life and Works of Thomas Gainsborough." She says that the first attempt made in England to represent a modern historical event exactly as it occurred was made by Benjamin West in his famous picture of the "Death of Wolfe," exhibited in 1771.

Such was then the rage for mythological subjects that when it was rumored that West was painting a picture in which the actors were represented in modern costume George III, the archbishop of Canterbury and members of the Royal academy declared that they would have nothing to do with the bold innovator.

Sir Joshua Reynolds and the archbishop visited West in his studio to urge him to clothe English and French soldiers in the costume of antiquity. West refused, saying that the event to be commemorated happened in the year 1758, in a region unknown to the Greeks and Romans and when no warriors who wore classical costume existed. His visitors went away, but returned when the picture was finished.

Reynolds seated himself before the picture, examined it for half an hour and then, rising, said to the archbishop: "West has conquered. He has treated the subject as it ought to be treated. I retract my objections. I foresee that this picture will not only become popular, but will occasion a revolution in art."

The picture turned the time against the classicism which had prevented English artists from producing original pictures.

Even portrait painters, except Gainsborough alone, represented their sitters as Psyches and Cupids, Dianas and Junos, the Graces and the Fates. One artist painted the portraits of a lady and daughter as "Virtue and Beauty Sacrificing to Diana."

LIFE'S CLOSING DAYS

Need not be Sad and Pitiable as they Used to be.

Dodd's Kidney Pills Keep the Body Young and Strong — Build New Tissue in Place of Old—Cure and Prevent Disease.

When old age begins to creep upon us the infirmities of life make themselves felt.

It is then that the terrible effects of the follies and excesses committed in our younger days, appear.

The vital forces are weak, the stream of life is gradually drying up. The silver cord will soon be loosed, and ere long the golden bowl will be broken.

The aged and the ageing have not enough vitality to make up for the daily wear and tear. Thus many days, yes, many years of life and strength are lost, are allowed to slip away from us, when they might be retained, to add to the sum of our earthly happiness.

By stimulating the Kidneys and restoring them to sound health, Dodd's Kidney Pills keep off the breaking-down attacks of old age.

By putting the Kidneys in good health, Dodd's Kidney Pills ensure a full supply of pure, rich blood, on which the broken down nerves, muscles, bones and tissues feed, and which makes new tissues to replace the old and worn out matter.

Dodd's Kidney Pills thus renew the system, by ensuring the provision of abundant material for the creation of new tissues; they also fortify the body against the attacks of disease and old age, by keeping the Kidneys in condition to supply the needs of the system, in the way of nourishment.

Use Dodd's Kidney Pills and be young. They will make new bone, muscle and sinew, give strength, vigour and staying-power.

Try Dodd's Kidney Pills, it will cost you only fifty cents.

THE WHEAT CROP.

The Place It Occupies In the Regular Routine of the Farm.

In spite of the fact that we hear so much of the great bonanza farms of the west the bulk of American wheat is still grown, according to The Rural New Yorker, upon the small farms where the wheat crop forms part of the regular farm rotation. This authority in considering the place which wheat fills in the regular routine of the farm, states that in New Jersey more wheat is grown than ever before, and it usually follows potatoes in the farm rotation. Practically all of the fertilizer used in five years is applied to the potato crop. After the potatoes are dug the ground is fitted by plowing and harrowing and sown to wheat with a fair seeding of timothy. Wheat grown in this way yields all the way from 18 to 30 bushels per acre. The grass following it is cut two years. Then the accumulation of stable manure on the farm is spread on the sod to be plowed under in the spring for the corn crop. Years ago wheat followed corn, and a good deal of the stable manure was applied to this crop. The new rotation works much better, giving on the whole better wheat, more potatoes and better grass, while the farmers all agree that the corn crop makes the best use of the stable manure.

In western New York there has been a great change in wheat culture of late years, and the journal mentioned gives some notes from correspondents as typical of the practice of good farmers. One of them writes:

"The wheat crop here usually follows oats or barley. Land that has previously raised barley is considered the best, as the ground can be plowed much earlier. The best farmers here plow the ground as soon as the oats and barley are harvested and then roll as fast as plowed, which helps hold the moisture and sprout the grain that has been left on the ground; then they harrow with a spring tooth harrow as many times as possible before sowing and perhaps roll down a number of times. Many who have thistles and quack grass go over the land a couple of times with a wheel cultivator that will cut up all the ground or a gang plow. A few top dress with barnyard manure, but most farmers put all their manure on the corn ground. Nearly all use 150 to 200 pounds of fertilizer per acre. There are of course a good many varieties of wheat sown here. I think that at least two-thirds is Lancaster or Lancaster and Clawson mixed, using six to eight pecks per acre."

Another says: "The best farmers about here manure sod ground, plant beans; the next spring sow barley or oats; as soon as possible after harvest plow and cultivate thoroughly, put on all the fine rotten manure they can make through the summer and use phosphates on what land they cannot cover with manure. They sow about two bushels to the acre, using about 200 pounds of phosphate per acre on ground without manure."

The Early Richmond Cherry.

There is no canning fruit that we prize higher than the cherry called the Early Richmond. It is a sure bearer, ripens just after strawberries and is a heavy bearer. I have grown them for 35 years, and they can be relied on to produce a crop four years out of five. The trees are not long lived, and to make sure of a family supply a few trees should be planted every six or eight years.—Waldo F. Brown in Home and Farm.

Success comes to those who persevere. If you take Hood's Sarsaparilla faithfully and persistently you will surely be benefitted.

Always Relieves Quickly.

Mr. J. L. Madge, Virden, Man., writes: "I used Hagyard's Yellow Oil for the past 10 years and find it a splendid remedy for neuralgia, bronchitis, croup, sprains, chilblains, etc., in fact we use it for almost every pain and and it always relieves quickly."

ANDERSON AT ANDOVER.

An Able and Acceptable Attempt at Alliteration Anyhow.

Augustus Anderson's Aunt Abbie anxiously awaited Augustus' arrival at Andover. Aunt Abbie annually asked Augustus, and Augustus always accepted, and autumn after autumn, arrived at Andover as arranged.

Augustus arrived and anxiously asked Aunt Abbie about apples. Aunt Abbie answered, "Aye, Augustus, apples are abundant." Augustus ate an apple, and Aunt Abbie asked Augustus' assistance about arranging asters. Augustus assisted Aunt Abbie about anything asked, and Aunt Abbie always appreciated Augustus' amiable acts.

Aunt Abbie's asters artistically arranged, Augustus asked Aunt Abbie about afternoon amusements. Aunt Abbie allowed Augustus any agreeable amusements appropriate and attainable.

Augustus ardently admired Andrew Arnold, architect, and also Andrew's adjacent antiquated abode. Augustus' absorbed attention amused Andrew.

Augustus accompanied Andrew around Andover, asking about architecture, and Andrew accommodatingly answered all Augustus asked.

As afternoon advanced Augustus again arrived at Aunt Abbie's abode, and Andrew's and Augustus' appearance allayed Aunt Abbie's anxiety about Augustus' absence.

Augustus' abstracted air attracted Aunt Abbie's attention, and Aunt Abbie asked about Augustus' afternoon amusements. Augustus' animated account amused Aunt Abbie; also Augustus' anxiously asking about accompanying Andrew Arnold around Andover another afternoon. Aunt Abbie amiably assented.

Aunt Abbie's assistant, Ann, arranged an appetizing array. Augustus's appetite appeased, Aunt Abbie arranged Augustus' attic apartment, and Augustus agilely ascended.

Aunt Abbie and Ann awoke, and Augustus, already awake and attired, appeared. After Aunt Abbie, Augustus and Ann ate, Augustus accompanied Aunt Abbie around, admiring all Aunt Abbie's arrangements, assisting Aunt Abbie and Ann and anxiously awaiting afternoon, Andrew Arnold and additional adventures at Andover.—Youth's Companion.

SKIMMING AND CHURNING.

The More Buttermilk There Is the Greater the Loss of Fat.

Take but little milk out with the cream. As we showed long ago, the more buttermilk there is the greater the loss of fat, its "richness" being the same. And, more than this, the more milk in the cream the greater the probable per cent of fat in the buttermilk. Twenty to twenty-five per cent skimmed out as cream makes more than twice as much buttermilk as 10 to 12 per cent skimming does.

Take 12 per cent skimming, 4 pounds of it butter, and we have but 8 pounds of buttermilk per 100 of whole milk, while with 20 per cent skimming we have 4 of butter and 16 pounds of buttermilk—twice as much buttermilk, and therefore twice as much fat lost if of equal richness, more than twice as much loss because the milky cream is more viscid and churns harder. There is a mechanical reason for the increased difficulty in churning. The bulk of cream is increased, the churn is "fuller" and the fall of cream a shorter distance, and therefore the concussive force is weakened.

This truth has already gained a widespread acceptance, and we speak of it now because it is gaining fresh confirmation with its spread in practice and because those who skim in the old way that was considered proper before the Babcock test showed its wastefulness needed to be jogged into better work.

The temperature of churning is steadily being lowered also. The old dairy thermometers were marked at 62 degrees for churning. The newer ones are marked at 60 degrees. In practice the temperature must be varied to suit the conditions, and summer conditions at least call for a much lower starting temperature than is marked on any dairy thermometer. Many of our creamerymen now churn at 56 degrees, and a few still lower, while among the select private dairyman who churn for a fancy trade, some of them churn in the forties.—Creamery Journal.

The imbecility of some men is always inviting the embrace of death. It is the delight of such men to boast of what "tough fellows" they are, and tell how they overwork themselves and how they neglect little disorders and little illnesses that put other people on their backs.

It may not sound nice to say so, but it is a fact that the average man is just that kind of a boastful, cheerful idiot. If his head aches, it isn't worth paying any attention to: if he feels dull and drowsy during the day, it isn't worth serious consideration; if he is troubled with sleeplessness at night, he doses himself with opiates. When he suffers from nervousness, he walks into the nearest drug store and orders powerful medicines that even a physician prescribes with care. He is a very knowing fellow, but without knowing it, he is hugging death. There is a wonderful restorative tonic and health-builder that will keep the hardest working man in good working shape; it is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is made of pure native roots and barks. It contains no minerals, no narcotics and no opiates. It simply aids nature in the natural processes of secretion and excretion. It tones up the stomach and facilitates the flow of digestive juices. It makes a man "hungry as a horse" and then sees to it that the life-giving elements of the food he takes are assimilated into the blood. It invigorates the liver. It drives out all impurities and disease germs from the system. It is the great blood-maker and flesh-builder. It is the best of all nerve tonics. It cures bronchial, throat and lung affections as well.

"I had indigestion and a torpid liver," writes Mrs. A. I. Gibbs, of Russellville, Logan County, Ky., "Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cured me."

If constipation is also present, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be taken. They never fail; they never gripe. Druggists sell both medicines.

RILEY'S FIRST HIT.

Wrote a Poem "by Poe" and Palmed It on the Public.

James Whitcomb Riley began his career in a newspaper office in Anderson, Ind., by writing humorous rhymes as "advertising locals"—"doggerel" he called them. At the same time he wrote many rhymes with the serious intention of having them, if possible, recognized as poems. But he could not get them published. Even compositions whose worth he had tested—those that "would please people when I'd stand up and read 'em to them"—would be returned promptly by every magazine to which he offered them for publication. The Hoosier dialect was too "low down" for the average magazine editor.

Finally in a freak of boyish indignation, to prove that what editors really wanted was not originality, but imitation, he devised the scheme of writing a poem in imitation of Poe and of palming it off on the public as a real poem of Poe's recently discovered. The scheme was very skillfully planned and very deftly executed and successful beyond anything the clever deviser of it had ever dreamed. From one end of the country to the other "Leonainie" was hailed as a veritable "find," a bit of genius' most genuine ore. Riley had his revenge. He had some trouble, however, in proving that he was not an intentional forger.

He lost his newspaper position, but he immediately got another and a better one—on the Indianapolis Journal. "Come and get pay for your work," said Judge Martindale, the editor. The turn in the tide had come. Soon appeared, in 1883, "The Old Swimmin Hole and 'Leven More Poems." Indiana recognized her own. The "Hoosier Poet" was acclaimed by his compatriots everywhere. But when in 1886 the volume in prose and verse appeared, "The Boss Girl and Other Stories," James Whitcomb Riley became a name as well known in one state as in another.—Chicago Record.

HUMAN SACRIFICES

On the Altar of Diabetes, Saved by Dodd's Kidney Pills, Only.

Hardly a family in the country is free from Diabetes. Great thirst, failing sight, numbness in the thighs, bleeding gums, swollen ankles, emaciation, nervousness, pale or turbid urine, loss of sexual power, decaying teeth, pains in the loins or small of the back, are all positive signs that Diabetes is in the system.

Do you know how it ends? IN DEATH. A premature, horrible, agonised, pitiful death. The victim has no peace, no ease in life. His days are filled with tortures. His nights are waking dreams of agony. He longs to die, yet fears the terrors of his end. He dies, a bloated, fetid, repulsive mass of corruption. That is the only end of unchecked Diabetes. Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure it. They drive it out of the system thoroughly, create new, clean blood, rebuild the diseased kidneys, and restore robust health.

CORYDON'S COMPLAINT.

The garlands on my crook are faded,
That every morn I once renewed,
To gather which in streams I waded
Or searched the woodland's solitude,
Whose blooms in dewy wreaths I braided—
Gold, watchet, white and rosy hued.

Now fie on love and all his folly!
My goodly mien is quite foregone;
My looks, that were so plump and jolly,
Are changed to meager, lean and wan;
In mournful slough of melancholy
Right bogged and mired is Corydon.

Sweet, dainty maid, for whose disdaining
I do in scath and sorrow fare,
Beauty once lost nor skill nor feigning
Its lovely aspect may repair.
Behold these wretched blossoms waning!
As you are now, so once they were.

EXPERT TOBACCO TESTING.

Cuban Buyers and Their Highly Developed Sense of Smell.

The greater part—in fact, nearly all—of the tobacco raised in Cuba and not used by the Cuban cigar makers is shipped to the United States. At certain seasons of the year the Havana hotels are filled with tobacco buyers from the United States. Some of them deal through the brokers in Havana, but some who know the country and the language go out into the tobacco district and deal directly with the planters, often buying a promising crop before it is picked. The tobacco buyer has necessarily to be a good judge of tobacco. He goes down into the very center of the bale of tobacco he is examining, extracts some samples and tests them in different ways.

The first test is that of smell. The Cuban tobacco has a strong and peculiar odor. A little variation one way or the other makes the tobacco good or bad. After smelling it the buyer is likely to roll a rudely constructed cigar out of the leaf and smoke it. He will inhale the smoke and endeavor to determine exactly the flavor. He will also examine the ash carefully and test also the combustion of the tobacco—that is, try to find out how long it will hold fire. It is a great annoyance to a smoker who is talking or writing or otherwise engaged to put his cigar into his mouth and find that it has gone out. No cigar ever tastes so good after it has once gone out, and a fine Havana cigar is positively rank when it has met such a catastrophe. So one quality sought for is that of holding fire. If a sample smoked by the buyer will keep lighted four minutes, it is considered very good. Some will burn for five minutes and even longer without being puffed.—Ohio State Journal.

THE BEST ON EARTH.

So Says Robert Meikle About Dodd's Kidney Pills.

London, Ont., Oct. 17.—Robert Meikle, a member of the staff of the Star Dining Hall, is kept busy answering the questions asked him by his many friends at present. They all want to know how he recovered from what, the doctors said, was a fatal attack of Diabetes.

And he invariably answers: Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me, when other earthly means had failed. They are the only medicine on earth that can cure Diabetes, and they do it every time."

If Dodd's Kidney Pills cured Mr. Meikle they will cure you. Try them.

Hiram Powers and Young Leighton.

It was on the advice of the American sculptor, Hiram Powers, that as a lad Frederick Leighton was allowed to follow his predilection for an art career. The question was settled in Florence about 1845, when he was about 15 years old. His father showed a portfolio of sketches to Powers and asked if he would recommend him to bring him up as an artist. The sculptor asked for a week to think the matter over. At the end of that time he said, "Mr. Leighton, your son may be as eminent as he pleases." "Shall I make him an artist, then?" asked Mr. Leighton. "That is out of your power," was the reply. "Nature has done it for you." So it was agreed that young Frederick should study to become a painter, but only on condition that he should not neglect any other part of his education in consequence.—Art Amateur.

Refreshing Sleep.

Sleep, refreshing sleep, has a wonderful influence. It is the time which the vital force uses to repair the system, to assist digestion and to prepare the whole being for the labors of a fresh day. Even "40 winks" in many cases is a great benefit, and in many cases of fever and nervous troubles patients should seldom be aroused, unless it is absolutely necessary, to administer medicine. Opiates, when given, frequently but mock the patient with a seeming relief, only to result in some aggravation of the trouble. They more or less paralyze the digestive organs, prevent vital repair, goad the brain into feverish dreams and leave the nerves irritated and finally depressed rather than rested.—New York Ledger.

Gratifying Improvement.

Cabby's Rich Fare.

"Princess street, sir?" said a cabby outside a Yorkshire street railway station to his fare. "Why, that's not half a minute's wauk from 'ere."

"Never mind, drive away," answered the gentleman.

"But I can't charge you less than 18 pence, sir; that's the legal fare."

"All right, my good man, only start quickly, and I'll give you a couple of fares."

Cabby jumped upon the box with a beaming face, flicked up his horse and shouted jocosely to an imaginary wife:

"Don't wait dinner if I'm late, Mary Ann! I'm takking the king o' Klondike to 'is himperial habode!"—London Telegraph.

The Insurance Man's Guess.

"He is the stupidest man—he never opens his mouth without putting his foot in it," said the young girl of the clerk who had taken her to the natatorium.

"Perhaps that is the only way he can make both ends meet on his small salary," remarked the insurance man.—Spokane Spokesman-Review.

Mr. M. T. Wigle

Of Kingsville, Essex Co.

CURED OF ITCHING PILES OF 23 YEARS STANDING

M. T. Wigle, better known to every one in the vicinity as "Uncle Mike," was troubled for over 23 years with itching piles. At times he was so bad he would have to quit work. The irritation became so intense with constant rubbing that they became ulcerated and would bleed. He had been treated by many physicians, but found nothing that gave him relief. Reading in the paper the cure of a friend who had suffered in a like manner, and been cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment, he procured a box. After the third application he got such relief that he had the first comfortable night's sleep he had enjoyed in years. The one box made a complete cure, and he says he would not be without it for $50 a box if it could not be replaced. Mr. Wigle is a wealthy farmer, well known in the community in which he resides. It is over two years since he was afflicted, and he has never been troubled since.

Physicians fail to make a cure when Dr. Chase's Ointment gave Immediate Relief. . .

A Spanish Trick—1585.

The relations between the two countries, which Drake's raid into the south sea had for a time threatened with open rupture, had greatly improved—at least in outward appearance—and in 1585, under special promises of immunity from molestation on religious or other grounds, Philip had invited to his ports a fleet of English corn ships in order to supply the deficiency of his own harvests. No sooner, however, had the English ships arrived than an embargo was laid upon them, and their crews arrested.

One ship, the famous Primrose of London, managed to escape. While lying off Bilbao quietly discharging her cargo she had been visited by the Corregidor of Biscay and his guard disguised as merchants. Suddenly called upon to surrender, the crew flung themselves upon the Spaniards, drove them all overboard and made sail. Some of the discomfited Spaniards, as the shore boats fled, were seen clinging to the English vessel. These were humanely rescued and carried in triumph back to England, and among them was the Corregidor himself. Upon him were found his official instructions, setting forth expressly that the embargo was ordered for the purposes of the expedition which Philip was preparing against the English. This was enough for the queen and the powerful public opinion of commercial circles in London, which had obstinately clung to pacific relations with Spain. A retaliatory embargo was proclaimed, letters of general reprisal were issued, and Drake was let loose.—From Publication of Navy Records Society.

SHREWD BARGAINING.

The Obstinate Woman, the War Tax and the Worried Bank Teller.

"Yes, madam, before I honor the check you must stamp it."

"Stamp it? What with?"

"Why, a 2 cent stamp of course."

"What is that for?"

"War tax, madam. Here is the stamp. Two cents, please."

"But I don't understand. I won't be done. So there!"

"I assure you I am not trying to do you, and this is my busy day."

"I won't buy any stamps of you just for spite. The postoffice"—

"Postage stamps won't do. You must have an 'I. R.' stamp."

"Just because you say so? Not much! I know your tricks. You buy those stamps by the job lot and make your poor customers suffer for your benefit. You can't bunko me, even if you are rich."

"There is no desire to bunko anybody, madam. You must affix the stamp and cancel it, or you can't have the money. That's all."

"But it's my money. Why can't I have my own money without being compelled to pay you to give it to me? Why, you have had my balance of $4.68 here for nearly two weeks. You have certainly lent that out several times to some poor wretches at 100 per cent a week"—

"This is no pawnshop, madam"—

"And now you want to work me for 2 cents more. Well, you can't do it. So there!"

"Stamp your check or get no money."

"Won't eh? I'll send my lawyer here with a power of attorney. I want you to know that I know something about the law"—

"He won't get it either without the stamp, madam."

"Won't he, though! You don't know him. Anyway, my brother is a second lieutenant in the 'Steenth regiment, and I'll get my money back even if he has to call out the whole regiment. So there!"

"You can have it all now if you affix the 'I. R.' stamp"—

"What does 'I. R.' mean? 'Isabella Regina,' queen of Spain, eh? What do you take me for? A Spaniard?"

"By no means, madam. It means 'internal revenue.' Hurry, please."

"Oh, you can't rattle me! My great ancestor was not a monkey, but a mule. When I get the check back, can I use the stamp again?"

"No, madam. You would be liable to indictment if you did. This is my busy day. Don't you see the line waiting for you? Please hurry up. Here! I will take 2 cents out of my own pocket and pay for the stamp myself, just to get rid of the unpleasantness. There! Now cancel it, please."

"Ah, I thought you would back down! Tried to bunko me, and it didn't work, eh? Look out now! No punched nickels in that money just to get even. That's right. Thanks. Good morning! That's what I call shrewd bargaining. If I can only keep up these clever tactics to the end, I'll be richer than Hetty Green."—New York Journal.

MRS. GEO. ADAMS, UXBRIDGE, ONT.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills Cured Her of Fainting Spells, Partial Paralysis and Heart Trouble After the Doctors Had Given Her Up to Die.

The beginning of this year very few people in Uxbridge, Ont., thought Mrs. Geo. Adams, a well-known and highly-respected lady of that town, would be alive to see the incoming of spring.

She was so weak and wasted, her appetite was gone, there were dark circles under her eyes, her heart was bad, those terrible faint spells and smothering sensations came over her so frequently that it seemed to be only a matter of time till she would pass to the great majority.

More than that there were times when she became partially paralysed, and the doctors who were in attendance had given up all expectation of her recovery. At this time a friend in Toronto, hearing of Mrs. Adams' serious condition, advised the use of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. It was the last ray of hope, and Mrs. Adams concluded to try the remedy.

On February 3rd she got the first box and started taking them. That was a Thursday, Friday night the first good effects of the medicine were made evident in Mrs. Adams getting sound, refreshing sleep, the first good night's rest she had had in months.

From that time on every day found her improving in health and getting stronger. The terrible pains that used to shoot through her head and arms disappeared, the spells of numbness and partial paralysis that came over her at times bothered her no more. Soon she was able to resume her household duties, and in addition bake her own bread, a thing she had not attempted for the past two years.

To-day Mrs. Milburn is thankful to Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills for sparing her life to her children and husband, and under date of April 4th, 1898, wrote as follows:

"I had given up all hope of recovering, and frequently thought I could not live through the day.

"Fainting spells, numbness and partial paralysis came upon me very often, sometimes seven spells in half a day. I was in this helpless and hopeless condition when a friend advised me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, which I secured at Mr. Nicholl's drug store. I hadn't taken them long when I noticed a great change for the better, and before I had used half a box I was up doing my own housework.

"By the time the first box was completed I was able to walk down town and back quite easily, a distance of half a mile each way.

"I cannot speak too highly of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills as they saved my life and restored my health."

ELIZABETH ADAMS.

T. C. Nicholls, B A., the popular druggist and stationer of Uxbridge, who sold Mrs. Adams the pills is ready to vouch for the truthfulness of the above statement.

This case of Mrs. Adams is only one of the thousands that Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are curing all over Canada. Anyone afflicted with weak, palpitating, throbbing heart, sleeplessness, faint and dizzy spells, pale and sallow complexion, thin, watery blood, dyspepsia, weakness, loss of flesh, spinal disease, St. Vitus Dance, etc., will find Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills the remedy indicated.

For women they are absolutely beneficial, imparting a rosy colour to the pallid cheek and giving relief from pain and weakness. Growing girls and nursing mothers have heavy drains on their systems, and will find in Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills the very elements that are needed to keep up their health and strength.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are sold by all druggists, or sent by mail on receipt of price, 50c. a box, or 3 boxes for $1.25. T. Milburn & Co., Toronto Ont.

ECHOES OF THE PLEBISCITE.

The Reports of the Secretary and of the Auditors Submitted.

At a meeting of the Central Committee of the local Prohibitionist organization the other evening, the following report was received from the Secretary :

To the President and Members of the Peterborough Plebiscite Association :

GENTLEMEN,—In presenting this report I am glad to say that as far as the County of Peterborough is concerned our efforts to gain Prohibition were not in vain, as you will see by the result of the vote given hereafter. This was largely due to the work of the plebiscite organizations throughout the county.

There were in the neighbourhood of 80 campaign meetings held in this county, of these 23 were conducted by Mr. Jas. Stubbs, 24 by speakers provided by the Central Committee, and the remainder by township or village organizations. The principal expenses connected with these meetings were horse hire and rent, but these were met by the collections taken up at these meetings. There were 12 business meetings of the Central Committee held, and the committee rooms were opened every evening for a week and a half before polling day.

During the campaign the following villages and townships were organized for campaign work : Smith, Dummer, Otonabee, South Monaghan, North Monaghan Belmont, Havelock, Norwood and Lakefield. Mr. Jas. Stubbs was organized to work up enthusiasm in the northern townships, Harvey Burleigh, Chandos, Anstruther and Methuen, and he did good work. Twenty-three public meetings were held within three weeks and they were well attended. The collections from these meetings amounted to $14.90.

A special appeal was made to the most of the religious bodies, through their pastors for contributions on behalf of the plebiscite fund. This, generally speaking, was met by a literal response and the sum of $139 80 was realized. The remainder of the fund was raised by subscriptions and collections from campaign meetings, which amounted to $148 57, making the total amount of $288.37. The debts contracted by the committee, such as salaries, horse hire, printing, etc., amounted to $272.25, leaving a balance of $16.12 on hand.

Each Young People's Society in town was provided with campaign literature every week during the campaign for distribution. This was fairly distributed. The literature was also sent to different persons in the country and to Young People's Societies, where possible. About $40 was spent in purchasing literature and cartoons. The cartoons were posted up both in the town and in the country.

On Wednesday evening, Sept. 28th, a very successful lecture was delivered by Mr. Jo eph Gibson, of Ingersoll, in the George street Methodist church. There was a fair attendance at this meeting. The collection amounted to $16 11.

On Thursday, Sept. 29th, (polling day) some good work was done by the scrutineers and those drawing voters. The latter, however, were not equal to the demand.

The vote in the Plebiscite District of East and West Peterborough, as you no doubt know, resulted in a large majority in favour of prohibition. The total vote polled was 3,866. Out of this 2,758, or 71 per cent. of votes were cast in favour of prohibition, and 1,169, or 29 per cent. of votes were cast against it, making a total majority of 1,589 in favour of prohibition.

In conclusion I would suggest that a permanent organization be formed, to meet at the call of the executive committee, when they see fit to do so.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

G. G. PRATLEY,
Secretary.

The report was received and adopted, after which the auditors reported, as follows, on the financial statement of Mr. Geo. W. Powell, treasurer :—

We hereby certify that we have examined the accounts and financial statement of the treasurer of the Plebiscite Committee and find them correct.

The receipts were	$288 37
The expenditure was	272 25
Balance in treasurer's hands	$ 16 12

Disfigured For Life

Almost Entire Face a Solid Sore
Tried Everything for Weeks But Kept Spreading Until Thought There Was No Cure. Tried Cuticura. In Few Days Better. In Short Time Cured.

Our little girl's humor commenced with a tiny sore on one nostril, but it kept on spreading till we thought she would never get it cured. For several weeks we tried everything we could get for the blood, both externally and internally but it kept getting larger all the time, till both nostrils, the upper lip, a part of the lower lip, and up one side to the eye, were a solid sore. We thought there was no cure, and that she would be disfigured for life. Finally (as a last resort) we tried CUTICURA REMEDIES. We used a part of a bottle of the CUTICURA RESOLVENT and nearly a box of CUTICURA (ointment), and followed the directions minutely. After a few days it began to look better, and in a short time she was entirely well, with no scar or trace of the humor. I send you this testimonial, and you may use any part of it that you wish.

Mr. Davidson is a young man of ability and industry, associated with good principles, which command respect and success, both personally and professionally. His numerous circle of friends in Peterborough will unite in wishing him the largest measure of success in his new sphere of professional activity.

Mr. J. B. Grafton, Mrs. Grafton and Miss Grafton sailed by the steamer Aller from New York on Saturday to spend the winter in France. It is the intention of Mrs. and Miss Grafton to remain the greater part of the winter in the south of France, during which time Mr. Grafton will attend to the French and English buying, returning for them before leaving for home. The best wishes of their many friends that they may have an enjoyable trip, go with them.—Dundas Banner.

IT WAS "ALL THE WAY."

The second of A. Q. Scammon's attractions appeared in the Opera House last evening in "Side Tracked." The play, which was presented here last year, has been considerably improved and a large number of specialities introduced of so excellent a character as to make "Side Tracked" one of the premier attractions on the road this season. The company is a strong one, and the ludicrous climaxes which follow each other so closely seem to be thoroughly entered into by the caste with the result that the audience was kept in a merry mood from the rise of the curtain until the National Anthem announced the close of the performance. E. H. O'Connor and Gertrude Barnes are the cream of the company, as the tramp and his sweetheart, the lunch room girl. The latter's cake walk with Wm. R. Healy, the policeman, was about the most killing thing in that line ever seen on the local stage. All the other well known characters in the play were assumed in such a manner as to warrant the assertion that Peterborough will not be visited by a better balanced comedy company this season. The specialties are simply immense and crop out at every opening.

ASHBURNHAM BREVITIES.

Good progress is being made on the waterworks system. Pipes are now laid from the bridge to Stewart street, also on Lake and Mark streets. The water has been turned on, on some of these streets, so that a measure of fire protection is already being enjoyed by the villagers.

Mark street Ladies' Aid is a flourishing organization. They were organized only nine months ago, and have already raised more than one hundred dollars. Their ambition is to pay off the parsonage debt, and at the present rate of progress their ambition seems very fair to be fulfilled.

Rev. J. E. Moore, Ph. B., is conducting special services at Selem.

The Mark street E. L. of C. E. intend having a social evening and entertainment in the basement of the church on Monday evening, October 31st, Hallowe'en. A good programme and a good time is promised all who attend. All welcome.

FRENCH YELLOW BOOK

Concerning the Fashoda Incident Has Been Issued.

THE NATIONS FACE TO FACE.

The Great Question Is: "Will France and Great Britain Come to Blows Over Fashoda?"—The Situation Is Extremely Ominous—Naval Preparations in Both Countries Continue—Eye-Openers.

Paris, Oct. 24.—A semi-official note issued last evening says: "There is no foundation for the alarmist rumors regarding the relations between France and Great Britain. It is equally incorrect to say that extraordinary measures have been taken at any of our naval ports."

The French Fashoda yellow book just issued is voluminous, but it does not include Major Marchand's report, which will be published later. The despatches were largely anticipated by the English Fashoda blue book.

The diplomatic conversations recorded show a curious endeavor on the French side to represent that Marchand's mission was quite as important as General Kitchener's, on the ground that the struggle was against the Khalifa and barbarism.

Judging from the yellow book despatches the foregoing represents the French standpoint. M. Delcasse considers that as Marchand reached Fashoda first, England had no right to demand an evacuation of Fashoda prior to negotiations.

SITUATION OMINOUS.

France Preparing to Fight Any Power Provoking Her—Britain Ready for the Sea.

London, Oct. 24.—Never since Great Britain and France began to dispute over Egypt, nor during the most acute stage of the Niger differences between those two countries, has the situation looked so ominous as to-day.

In spite of the hope expressed in the sober journals of both countries that the matter would be amicably arranged, it is a fact that the French naval and military authorities are making feverish preparations for war, and though calm reigns at the British dockyards at Portsmouth, Chatham and Devonport, it is only the calm of preparedness, and significant orders have been arriving there from the Admiralty indicating the belief that Great Britain and France are on the brink of war.

As M. DeBlowitz, the Paris correspondent of the London Times, writes on Saturday:

"Never before has there been witnessed such a state of fever as is now prevailing in Great Britain nor so great an exaltation of public feeling over a matter of foreign policy, while on her side France is promptly and rapidly, without looking forward or backward, preparing to fight any power provoking her.

"The French statesmen, however, still cling to the hope that the Marquis of Salisbury will offer some exchange which will enable them to retire from Fashoda without apparent sacrifice of dignity.

"This hope is based on a conversation between Lord Salisbury and Baron De Courcel (the French Ambassador at London), which figures in a most important despatch in the yellow book which the French Government will issue at once."

It is learned by the Associated Press that Baron De Courcel in this despatch says Lord Salisbury during the conversation referred to asked him what were the desires of France in the Soudan.

To which the Baron replied that France wished for an outlet on the Upper Nile.

Lord Salisbury then responded that he could not promise anything and must consult with his colleagues on such a matter.

Frenchmen infer from this attitude of the British Premier that he is willing to discuss the French claims, and they even talk of negotiations being in progress.

The English newspapers, however, vigorously combat this impression and warn France not to be led away by such illusions. They declare that the evacuation of Fashoda must precede anything else.

The Times, referring to the Fashoda question, says: "It is not we who are trying to humiliate France, but it is France that seeks to put a great humiliation upon us. We have beaten the Khalifa and we have effectively occupied the provinces he usurped. We are now asked to clear out at the orders of an exploring party of nine Frenchmen, who owe their escape from destruction to our military success, or, if we are kindly permitted not to clear out, we are to pay a compensation for our title of what we have wrestled from the Khalifa. This is not a thing we can consent to discuss upon any such high-handed summons. We are there in effective occupation, and there we intend to remain."

Punch hits off the popular feeling in this matter in a cartoon representing John Bull outside his door-step. The organ is labelled "Fashoda" and a monkey in French military uniform is sitting on the organ screaming and beating a tiny drum. The organ-grinder asks, "What you give me if I go away?"

John Bull, "I'll give you something if you don't!"

The French naval preparations were at first declared to be mere routine arrangements, but they are now admittedly directed against Great Britain.

On the British side a feeling of absolute self-confidence is displayed. "Everything ready," is the burden of all the statements from naval quarters. In fact, the British navy has practically been on a war footing for a year. An authoritative pronouncement to this effect has come from the Secretary to the Admiralty, Mr. W. E. Ellison Macartney. Referring to the preparations on the other side of the Channel, he said: "So far as the British Admiralty is concerned the ships, officers and general administration are now ready to meet the wishes of the country."

A prominent dockyard official in an interview declared that the circumstances of the present crisis had been fully provided for in the mobilization scheme. He added that the British naval authorities have all their ships ready, and could commission a squadron of cruisers and have them off the French coast in less than 24 hours.

The official also pointed out that it was not for nothing that the British naval manoeuvres were put off this year. He added that the British ships at the present moment have a larger supply of coal on board and available and a larger stock of provisions than ever was known before.

The British Admiralty list to-day shows five British battleships and eleven fast cruisers are lying in the Mediterranean, while the British Channel squadron, which was last reported off Villagarca, Spain, consisting of eight battleships and five cruisers, constitutes the most modern and powerful homogeneous fleet of warships afloat.

An Ominous Move.

Cherbourg, France, Oct. 24.—Orders have been received at the military naval arsenals here to prepare for the arrival of a large body of troops to-day. The barracks are being hurriedly put in order for their reception.

Ready for the Drum Call.

Paris, Oct. 24.—M. DeBlowitz, the Paris correspondent of the London Times, says: "France is ready to march at the drum's call, but I am convinced that the call will not sound. What is Fashoda to France, compared with its value to England? In case of war we should be fighting to keep Marchand in Fashoda, when in truth he has already departed."

To Raise the Whole Question.

London, Oct. 24.—The French yellow book on Fashoda seems to indicate an intention on the part of the French Government to utilize the Marchand affair as a means of raising the whole Egyptian question. This impression is confirmed by the comments of most Paris papers yesterday morning.

M. Lockroy, the Minister of Marine, explains that the movement of troops to Cherbourg is merely one of relief forces for Crete and the colonies.

MONEY'S PULSE.

Financial Men do Not Expect a Fight—Paris Figaro Sizes Up the Situation.

London, Oct. 24.—While the gravity of the Fashoda question is fully appreciated, there is an underlying feeling on the stock exchange that a peaceful solution will be found. This is evidenced by the recovery in prices, in spite of the absence of reassuring news. On the whole prices were wonderfully well maintained last week, holders showing little disposition to realize.

The steadiness of consols has a good effect; foreigners were fractionally lower, but Americans exceptionally firm.

Figaro's Optimism.

Paris, Oct. 24.—The Figaro declares that there is not a single statesman worthy of the name in Europe who believes in the possibility of a conflict between England and France. "When England finds an equivalent for Fashoda," the paper adds, "the trouble will no longer exist."

A Losing Joke.

Mr. Jones was clerk in a city office, and owing to the jealousy of his fellow clerks was daily subjected to many petty annoyances. One day his enemies thought they had hit on a plan which would amuse them and add to Jones' discomfort. The next morning when Mr. Jones entered the office one after another came up and said to him in a tone of horror:

"Why, whatever is the matter with you? Are you ill? You look simply ghastly."

Mr. Jones sat listening quietly for a few minutes. Then suddenly, to the surprise of everybody, he got off his stool and slipped into the manager's office. A short time only had elapsed when the manager appeared, followed by Mr. Jones, and, addressing the astonished clerks, said:

"As Mr. Jones is so unwell I have granted him permission to take a day or two's holiday; so you must divide his work equally among you until he returns."—Pearson's Weekly.

DR. WARD'S BLOOD & NERVE PILLS

READ THE PROOF!

GENTLEMEN,—I have for a long time needed something to make blood and build up my system. My blood was watery and thin, lacking strength and vitality. Last January a friend said:—"Why not try Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills? They will supply the oxygen your blood needs and give you health and strength." I told him I was very skeptical as to any benefit that could be derived from any proprietary medicine and had no faith in them. There the matter rested until four months ago, when reading so much about what Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills have done for so many people with impoverished blood, I concluded to give them a trial. I have taken four boxes and my unbelief so far as Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills are concerned has been entirely removed. They are a splendid blood builder and strength restorer, and an invaluable medicine for weak, enervated people. This has been my experience, they having given me strength of body and strong healthy blood.

THE GOVERNOR.

I am monarch of all I survey,
My word there is none to dispute;
I'm a ruler of people today,
I'm a real bifalutin galoot;
I'm a potentate, that's what I am,
I can run affairs here as I please:
When you meet me, get down and salaam,
When you speak to me fall on your knees.

I was working away t'other day,
Never dreaming of what was in store,
When a warship put into the bay
And let off a flush and a roar,
And they called me out there and said they,
"Be your name Smith, Roberts or Jones,
You belong in the States, so hooray
For the governor of the Ladrones!"

I am monarch of all I survey,
They acknowledge that I'm the whole thing;
I worked with my hands yesterday,
But today I'm as good as a king;
I'm one of the earth's potentates,
The word that I utter is law,
I'm the only man here from the States,
So "hurrah" for me, durn you, "hurrah!"

I rule over all in these isles,
I speak and the people obey;
The maidens now vie for my smiles
Who passed me with scorn yesterday!
I am lord here of man and of brute,
So squat on your marrow bones
And indulge in a proper salute
To the governor of the Ladrones.

The Velvet Bean.

A cut of the velvet bean is here reproduced from The Rural New Yorker. It is from a photograph sent by a Georgia correspondent. The bean is described as a strong vigorous grower, the blossoms attractive to the eye, but of an odor objectionable to most people. According to seedsmen and others, a large acreage has been planted in Florida and the gulf states, and small plantings for experiment at the north have been numerous. The bean is described in a bulletin of the Florida station as follows: "The pods are very thick and leathery, do not crack open when ripe and are difficult to open by hand. The pods contain from three to five large, plump, fine looking beans, irregularly colored with purplish and brownish patches. The foliage is much like that of other beans. The vines grow from 10 to 20 feet in length."

AFTER HONEY HARVEST.

Protection Against Robbers—Removing the Surplus—Marketing Honey.

The usual honey harvest generally closes by midsummer at least, but the work should not be dropped by any means, for we can probably save more just at this time by strict attention than any other time in the year. Concerning this point, A. H. Duff gives some practical suggestions in Farm, Field and Fireside:

Each colony should be in good shape to protect itself from robbers, for now is the time they get in their work. Two principal things should be looked after, and one is to arrange all hives so that no cracks or openings are left, except the entrance proper, that will admit bees. The next and most important is to see that each colony has a laying queen—that is, a queen that is properly fertile, as some queens may lay without being fertile, being what is termed drone layers. Drone laying queens are good for nothing and really worse than none. Such queens may be detected by the appearance of their brood, it being the same as drone brood, but found in the worker cells, and the cells containing it are raised or lengthened, and the cappings are oval or rounded, while the capping of worker brood is flat. This brood will also be found irregularly scattered through the combs.

A queenless colony and also a colony containing a drone laying queen are always subject to being robbed, and just after the honey harvest, especially if there has been much swarming, is the time these defects present themselves. If not supplied, the result is robbing and the loss of all these colonies, besides much damage being done good colonies from the effects of it. A colony of bees may be strong, and as far as numbers are concerned plenty able to protect their hive, but they will not do it when thus queenless, and the presence of a good queen will have the desired effect even if the colony is a very weak one. Young brood, from the egg up, will have the same effect, and being thus supplied with it the bees can rear a queen. Frequently a frame of brood is given them for this purpose instead of giving them a queen.

All surplus honey should be taken away from the hives and bees, provided it is intended for market, for it will become darkened—that is, the surface of the comb—and this destroys its appearance. It will not damage the honey by any means, as its quality and flavor is improved by leaving it until fall on the hives.

In regard to marketing honey, the journal mentioned offers this advice: Substantial, attractive packages should be used to market honey in. Many farmers raise considerable honey in the comb in ordinary frames of large size and do not take the trouble to use the section box. Frequently it is taken to market in a dauby mess, which makes it so inconvenient to handle that it is of but little value. Many would pay as much or more for this old fashioned honey as the finest of section boxes would bring, if in shape so that it could be handled and not wasted. Nice comb of this kind may be cut in attractive squares and placed in glass jars and sold at a good profit, and you would be surprised at your success in finding plenty of customers for it.

Of course the convenient package for comb honey is the section box, and all should use it in connection with other improved fixtures in the way of hives, etc. For extracted honey the glass jar as a retailer is the best, and the quart size the best to use, being of a proper size to sell readily. Square tin cans holding 60 pounds each are the best to ship honey in or to store it if but a limited quantity is raised.

Rye and Rape For Hog Pasture.

In recommending rye and rape to follow peas for hog pasture, a writer in Country Gentleman says: The rape is not sown with the rye, but after the rye is eaten off. When the peas are pastured off in July and August, the rye is sown early, say latter part of August or early September. This fall sown rye affords the first green bite in spring. About June 1 the rye ground is plowed and harrowed quite well and again several times later. The rape seed, Dwarf Essex, is drilled in about the middle to the end of June, at the rate of two pounds per acre, in just the same way as if a turnip crop were to be grown. A turnip seeder is the best to sow the rape seed and in drills 28 inches apart. The plants are not thinned in drills, but rows kept clean with cultivator. When five or six inches high, the rape may be pastured with swine and will afford a continuous autumn and late fall pasturage till ground freezes. Rape is exceedingly hardy and will stand 50 degrees frost. The rape ground should, if possible, be plowed before ground freezes late in fall, so as to be ready for the barley crop, heavily seeded with clover, that is to follow.

She Originated the Idea.

Mrs. Lydia Ely, an artist living in Milwaukee, was one of three or four women who originated the idea of a soldiers' home during the last year of the civil war. By means of a fair held in June, 1865, they raised over $200,000. By her efforts a soldiers' monument costing $30,000 has been erected.—Boston Woman's Journal.

Umbrellas.

The cause of umbrellas wearing out in little holes at the top is they are rotted by the water that is held in the folds. They should be opened to dry, or if there is a superstition about opening an umbrella in the house they may be stood on their heads. When not in use, an umbrella should not be rolled.

TWIN TORTURERS!

Lumbago and Rheumatism made Harmless by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Lumbago and Rheumatism cause endless pain and suffering. Every man and woman who runs chances of getting wet, or catching cold, is liable to suffer from one or both. Our hospitals are full of sufferers from these diseases; none are more painful. Every nerve is on fire; every joint is a centre of agony; every muscle an area of torture. To move hand or foot makes the victim shriek with agony.

Rheumatism makes more cripples than all the railroad accidents that ever happened. Twisted, mis-shapen caricatures of humanity, who cannot walk without misery, are to be seen every day. The kidneys are to blame. If they are healthy you needn't fear Rheumatism or Lumbago. Dodd's Kidney Pills keep the kidneys healthy and cure Rheumatism and Lumbago.

PHILIPPINE HORSES.

An Opportunity For American Enterprise In the Far East.

An Englishman traveling from China to London was a caller in the editorial rooms of The Horseman, says that paper, and while there gave much valuable information concerning the resources of the various portions of the orient and the Philippine islands in particular. Discussing the horseflesh common in the east, he said:

"Your government has a splendid chance to do much for the improvement of the horses in the Philippines by sending over mares as well as geldings for the use of its cavalry. I have learned that the army regulations here require that only geldings shall be purchased for use in the cavalry and artillery branches of the service, but in view of the fact that the United States will be found to undertake the entire regeneration and reconstruction of affairs in that country it might make its cavalry mounts serve a dual purpose. The mares will do very nearly as well as the geldings, and when the opportunity is presented—that is, when the soldiers can be sent home—the mares would bring two or three times as much as the geldings. Besides the financial aspect of the transaction, which, after all, is unimportant, the American mares would make the very best sort of foundation stock for a new and improved breed, and it would not be long before those who obtained them could sell their produce at very satisfactory figures, provided American stallions should be taken over there to mate with them. The American mares might not perhaps be as satisactory in that country in the service as might be wished, for the change of conditions will be very great, but they will do as well as—in fact, better—than any others for your soldiers, and their progeny, reared in the Philippines, will be better than all others put together for use there. Of course your government is going to keep all the territory it has conquered and for which it has shed the blood of your brave men, and it might just as well begin now as later the regeneration of one special interest when it has the opportunity to do so by sending mares instead of unsexed animals for the use of the soldiers. There will be plenty of bidders for the mares when there is no further use for them, not only among the residents of the islands themselves, but among the residents of other parts from three to five days' sail from Manila."

Better Horses.

The man who attends the races on the grand circuit cannot fail to observe an improvement in the horses that take part in them. Of course there has been a great advance in the matter of speed, as the records show. But there has been a wonderful improvement in other respects also. The trotters are much better gaited than of yore, and many of them require little booting or weighting in order to go right. Improvement in shoeing may be credited with a part of this, but better horses are the main cause. So far as sticking to the trot is concerned there is no comparison with the old time trotter with his frequent breaks. Among the pacers the improvement in gait has been marvelous. The old wiggler is no more, and the smooth gaited modern pacer is about as smooth as anything that goes in harness. So far as the quality and style of both trotters and pacers go there has been a great advance. The horses of the present day are more "breedy" looking, but too many of them are small, and here is the greatest objection to the American harness horse. There is room for vast improvement in the size of our horses, and this must come if they are to remain in favor as road and coach horses. Breeders have demonstrated that both size and quality are possible in connection with speed, and the three form the too rare combination that commands big money in market and on the turf alike.—American Stockman.

IT IS NOT A FACT.

So Says Chinese Minister Regarding Report of Li Hung's Marriage to the Empress.

Chicago, Oct. 23.—Wu Ting Fang, Chinese Minister to the United States, before his departure for Washington, said that the report of a marriage between Li Hung Chang and the Dowager Empress was absurd.

"This is the most absurd of all rumors," said Wu Ting Fang. "It is impossible. No reliance is to be placed on telegrams coming from southern cities about what goes on in Pekin. It is not there like it is here. Your President goes about shaking hands with the people. We have different ways. This news could not come from Pekin. It was made at Hong Kong. The report is untrue."

STRUCK ON THE ROCK OF AGES.

Chisholm of Cleveland, With a Cargo of Barley, Going to Pieces.

Port Arthur, Ont., Oct. 23. — The steamer Dixon arrived Thursday evening from Duluth with six of the crew of the steamer Chisholm, owned by Bradley of Cleveland, who were picked up from a yawl boat by the Dixon. The steamer Chisholm left Duluth on Sunday evening, having the schooner John Martin in tow. The steamer had a cargo of 92,000 bushels of barley, the schooner 1,260,000 feet of lumber.

On Monday at 5.30 p.m. the schooner cut the tow and had her fore and main sails set and was soon lost to view, as the weather was thick and wind blowing hard. This occurred off Keeweenaii Point. The steamer, when endeavoring to make Washington Harbor on Isle Royale, struck on the Rock of Ages, near the southwest end of the island. The Chisholm went hard on and rapidly started to go to pieces. The crew of 16 abandoned her, reached Isle Royale in safety, when Captain Smith sent five of them, under Mate Wilesman, to Port Arthur to report to Mr. Bradley. The boat is rapidly breaking up and there is no chance of much salvage. The steamer's crew think the schooner has water-logged and gone ashore somewhere along the south shore. It is understood neither the steamer nor consort is insured, but the cargoes are a total loss; loss about $150,000.

Wrecking Expedition Sent.

Duluth, Minn., Oct. 23.—A wrecking expedition has been sent by the Inman Tug Line to the steamer Henry Chisholm, which is stranded on the Rock of Ages. The Chisholm was built in 1890 and registered 1,339 net tons.

"Why Women Cannot Sleep."

The highly organized, finely-strung nervous system of women subjects them to terrors of nervous apprehension which no man can ever appreciate.

The peace of mind, the mental poise and calmness under difficulties, which is necessary for happy womanhood is only possible when the sensitive feminine organism is in a perfectly healthy condition. If there be any weakness or derangement in this respect no remedy in the world so completely restores womanly health, nervous vigor and capability as the wonderful "Favorite Prescription" invented by Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute of Buffalo, N. Y. It purifies, heals and strengthens; insures functional regularity; provides physical reinforcement and sustaining power at periods of special weakness and depression.

It is the only medicine which makes the coming of baby safe and comparatively easy. In a personal letter to Dr. Pierce, Mrs. Marguerite Collin, of Cutler, Algoma Co. Ont., says:

"I was a sufferer and was cured by Dr. Pierce's wonderful medicine. When I commenced the medicine I could neither eat nor sleep. My hands and feet were constantly cold, I had a wasting, trouble some drain for three months, and my monthly periods were never regular. I took Dr. Pierce's Pheasant Prescription and it cured me. I feel well. I thank the World's Dispensary Medical Association."

A FINE BEGONIA.

A Useful Sort For Winter Flowering—How to Propagate and Treat It.

The begonia Gloire de Sceaux is herewith figured, after Gardening, as one of the most useful sorts for spring and winter flowering. The stems are stout, erect and from one to three feet high, with leaves dark green, tinged reddish beneath and from six to eight inches in width. Flowers are pale pink and 1½ inches broad.

A correspondent of the journal mentioned says: Plants 2 years old are best for decorative purposes, as they then send out numerous flowering shoots from such portions of the previous year's stems as have been retained. Older plants are not reliable. In propagating I prefer to take the cuttings in spring if they are obtainable. These will make nice specimens the following spring. Usually, however, it is impossible to procure good material for cuttings until the old plants are cut down later in the year, and when started so late they seldom make fully developed specimens before the second year.

For this and most other winter flowering begonias I use a rather coarse compost made up of good loam, leaf mold, cow manure and sand, two parts loam to one part each of the other constituents, with the addition of a small quantity of charcoal. Good drainage is very necessary, and during the winter months the plants should be kept in a temperature of 60 degrees.

Overbearing and Black Knot.

I have grown plums and cherries for years and have never had any serious trouble with black knot. It is very likely this trouble will be more common this season than last owing to the large crop of fruit last season. In this section there was the largest crop of plums ever known, and growers have not yet come to a realizing sense of the necessity of thinning the fruit. The plum trees were so weakened by overbearing that they became an easy prey to the black knot and all other diseases of the plum.

Black knot is always more prevalent in years following a heavy crop of fruit. I do not believe that spraying with anything will prevent this troublesome disease. Keep the trees in a healthy, growing condition, and never allow them to overbear. This will do more good than spraying. On my 200 plum and over 300 cherry trees I do not find from year to year three pieces of black knot. Therefore I cannot say that any one variety is more subject to it than another.

If I had a tree that persisted in bringing forth a crop of black knot, I would certainly move it, root and branch. The secret of success in growing fine plums lies in keeping the trees in a thrifty, growing condition and never letting them overbear. Never prop up the branches of a tree, but thin the fruit until the tree can bear up its burden. By following this plan there will be no off years of fruiting, no black knot, no small, inferior fruit, and no glut in the fruit market, says A. A. Halliday of Vermont in Rural New Yorker.

DYING BY INCHES!

But Dodd's Kidney Pills will Yet Renew Life.

Thousands of persons die in the prime of life because doctors think Bright's Disease and Diabetes incurable. But Dodd's Kidney Pills cure them both. They have cured thousands of cases.

These diseases and other Kidney complaints are as common as ordinary colds. But people don't realize that they are afflicted till the disease has eaten deep into the system. Even then, Dodd's Kidney Pills will positively cure.

Thousands of people are dying on their feet, but do not realize it. They notice one or more of these symptoms: shortness of breath, loss of memory, failing sight, ravenous appetite, pale or reddish urine, with brick-colored deposit, scalding when urinating, constipation, nervousness, pains in the loins. Their only hope is Dodd's Kidney Pills. They won't fail. They never do.

The Care of Hardy Ferns.

During the hot and dry summer months the fernery should be watered frequently, particularly that containing delicate leaved plants like Osmunda regalis and Onoclea sensibilis. These require plenty of moisture to be at their best, and there should be no excuse for not having small beds look well until cold weather. At least keep the soil cool around the roots by a light mulch of ripened hay. All evergreen kinds can well stand a certain amount of dryness, and for this reason as well as for the winter effect they should always be included in plantings.—Meehan's Monthly.

Floral Notes.

If flowers in the house are desired from November to late spring, nothing will supply them with greater ease and certainty than the winter blooming bulbs, especially hyacinths, which are a good old standby.

When asters are in full show, one realizes their great value as a feature of the late flower garden.

THE BEST ON EARTH.

So Says Robert Meikle About Dodd's Kidney Pills.

London, Ont., Oct. 17.—Robert Meikle, a member of the staff of the Star Dining Hall, is kept busy answering the questions asked him by his many friends at present. They all want to know how he recovered from what, the doctors said, was a fatal attack of Diabetes.

And he invariably answers: Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me, when other earthly means had failed. They are the only medicine on earth that can cure Diabetes, and they do it every time."

If Dodd's Kidney Pills cured Mr. Meikle they will cure you. Try them.

Dr. A. W. CHASE

COMES TO THE AID OF

Catarrh Sufferers

SUCCESS in life is almost impossible for a man with bad breath. Nobody wants to do business with him. Nobody wants to associate with him. He is handicapped everywhere. Offensive breath comes from Catarrh; sometimes from Catarrh of the Stomach, sometimes of the lungs, sometimes of the head, nose, and throat. It is from Catarrh somewhere, and Catarrh is another name for uncleanness.

Many men understand this, and make every effort to cure it, but it is beyond the reach of ordinary practice.

No self-respecting man can ignore Catarrh. If he has it in any form he makes constant effort to be rid of it.

There is something about the manner of life and the climate of Canada that seems to breed diseases of the mucous membrane. Medical science ordinarily doesn't try to cure Catarrh; it "relieves" it; but Dr. Chase has been curing Catarrh for over thirty years, and his name is blessed by thousands who have shaken off the grasp of this insidious disease.

MARMALADES.

A Few General Directions and Some Special Recipes For These Popular Preserves.

From the standpoint of wholesomeness or popularity fruit jams and marmalades differ widely, but as far as making is concerned they are identical. Only currants and berries can be used for jam proper, while marmalade has the entire range of larger fruits from plums to quinces. The substitution of granulated for coffee sugar and the heating of both the sugar and the fruit before they are combined has given both conserves a finer color and flavor. But in spite of this jams—especially currant and raspberry—have lost their old time prestige. Familiarity with the possible results of eating fruit seeds was the "handwriting on the wall" that sealed their doom. On the other hand, marmalades were never so delicious, so varied or so popular as now.

No other preparation of fruit requires such close attention from first to last. Constant and thorough stirring with a wooden ladle to prevent the mass from adhering to the bottom of the kettle will alone insure success. A porcelain lined kettle is better than a granite ware one, because thicker.

Marmalade requires a little longer cooking than jam, because the gelatinous skins and seeds are rejected. The fruit is first cooked until soft. Then mashed through a puree strainer to free the pulp from skins, etc. It is then returned to the fire. The sugar added on the mixture cooked slowly and steadily until it is smooth and a little cooled on a plate is firm and free from water. Those general directions preface the following recipes in Good Housekeeping for several kinds of marmalade:

Plum Marmalade.—Wash, weigh and cook the fruit, strain, add three-fourths of a pound of sugar to every pound of fruit and cook 25 minutes.

Pineapple Marmalade.—Pare and dig out the eyes, grate the fruit or chop it very fine. Cook in its own juice and the least water possible until it can be easily pierced with a fork.

Peach Marmalade.—Pare, stone and weigh the fruit and allow a lemon to every three pounds. Carefully pare the thin yellow rind from the lemons and cook it with the fruit. Put the sugar and pulp over the fire. Boil five or more minutes and carefully remove all the white scum which rises. Add the juice of the lemons and cook ten minutes, stirring constantly. If preferred, the chopped kernels of one-third the pits can be used instead of the lemon peel.

Crab Apple Marmalade.—Wash, quarter and core the fruit, cover the cores with cold water and stew an hour. Strain the liquid over the apples and cook until soft. Strain the pulp, add sugar and cook half an hour; then test and cook longer if necessary.

Quince Marmalade.—Pare, quarter and core the fruit and drop the latter into cold water. Cover the parings and cores with cold water, stew slowly for two hours and then strain through a strong jelly bag, extracting all the gelatinous substance possible. Drain the first on a cloth and cook until tender in the liquid strained from the cores and parings. Mash the fruit through a coarse sieve, add the heated sugar and cook 15 minutes.

Nasty Skin Disease Permanently Cured.

B. B. B. is making medical history. No other remedy anywhere can produce such cases of "permanent cures" as are being published from time to time.

Even in the severest and most chronic diseases of the skin and blood, where other treatment has utterly failed, Burdock Blood Bitters makes cures so thorough and perfect that after many years there is no sign of the disease returning. We don't ask you to accept our statement that this is so. Here's proof from Mr. N. Mitchell, Carman, Man.:

"During the winter of 1892-93 I was covered with pimples on the inside of my right leg, between the knee and ankle. As I never had anything of the kind before I was anxious about it, and sought medical advice, but getting no relief from the doctor, I tried a bottle of B. B. B., applying some of it to my leg, as well as using it internally, and to my surprise the nasty disease, whatever it was, disappeared within three weeks, and I am thankful to say it has never reappeared to this day."

THE FREE PASS EVIL.

An Enticing Railroad Ticket Defudes an Unsuspecting Household.

"Now, look here," he said when he came home one evening, "this summer is half gone, and we haven't taken that trip yet. You'd better begin to pack up right away, and tomorrow or the day after we will get away from the city for a few days anyway."

"But can we afford it, John?" she asked.

"Afford it!" he exclaimed. "Haven't I a pass, and isn't the pass good for myself and family, so that you and the children all come in on it too?"

"Yo-os," she replied doubtfully, "but"—

"No 'buts' about it," he interrupted. "What do you suppose that pass is doing lying around in my pocket? Why, it's just like throwing away money not to use it. Suppose we shouldn't go. How do you think you would feel about it next winter when I raked the pass out of some pocket and you stopped to think what a chance you had missed? I tell you it isn't everybody that gets passes to summer resorts, and when the chance came my way I was quick to grab it off."

"Where is it to, John?" she asked.

"By George! I've clean forgotten," he answered. "Hold on a minute, and I'll see."

After he had found out and told her she sighed and said she would be ready to start in two days and asked how long he wanted to stay.

"Oh, two or three days will be enough," he replied. "I'm not strong enough financially to make any very extended stay, but I'd feel as if we were cheating ourselves if we didn't get some good out of the pass."

"I suppose we will need some bathing suits for the children," she suggested.

"Of course," he answered.

And thus it came to pass that they took their little midsummer trip, and when it was all over and they were back home again he went over the figures with great care and discovered that he had spent just $38.15, in addition to incurring all sorts of discomfort for three days, in order not to waste a pass that represented about $6 in railroad fares.

But he'll do it again next summer if any one gives him a pass. It is human nature.—Chicago Post.

A SHOOTING SUSPECT TRAMP ARRESTED.

SUPPOSED TO HAVE SHOT A TWEED BUTCHER.

Arrested in Peterborough on Sunday Morning—Quick and Clever Work of the Police—Evidence Connecting the Suspect With the Crime—The Wounded Man Improving.

The Peterborough police force made a neat and important arrest Sunday morning before a majority of the citizens were out of bed. This was the arrest of a tramp, supposed to have been guilty or concerned in the shooting of a butcher named Perry, in Tweed, on Saturday night, about eleven o'clock. The story told by a gentleman of the town, who heard it at the Central Ontario Junction, is that two tramps set upon Perry, a butcher, with the intention of robbing him. Perry, being apparently well able to take care of himself, closed with the larger of the two miscreants and shortly had him on the ground. At this the smaller tramp fired a revolver at Perry at short range. The bullet struck Perry in the neck and lodged in the vicinity of the throat.

At 7 o'clock yesterday morning Chief Rozzel received the following telegram from Chief of Police Wilson, of Tweed:—

Two young men boarded 55 at Havelock. One about 5 ft. 10½ in., the other 5 ft. 6 in., about 150 lbs. Supposed to be parties who shot Perry here last night. Arrest and hold.

Immediate action was taken and was necessary. Through freight 55 would be due at Peterborough in about twenty minutes. Chief Rozzel, Stewart and McGinty were at the station in time to meet the train and were informed by the conductor that he had put two tramps off the train at the canal, on of the river. One man was tall, wore a light overcoat and had a thin moustache. The other man was shorter. In regard to the latter the conductor stated a circumstance that developed important significance later on. When the fellows were put off the train it is probable that no excess of tender treatment was used. At any rate the shorter man in reaching the ground fell and stained his clothing on one side with the wet sand and soil.

The police divided their forces. Constable McGinty was sent across to Ashburnham to pick up the trail there, while the Chief and Constable Stewart came up town and entered the village by the Hunter street bridge, keeping their eyes open, and making constant enquiries. Meanwhile Constable McGinty had made his circuit reaching Elizabeth street by way of Stewart street, having seen nothing suspicious. He met the other two near Lipsett's hotel, and the three went on east, making diligent enquiry. They were informed by a milkman that a suspicious looking character was seen on the boundary going north.

THE THREE POLICEMEN

now hot on the trail, went east, and were speaking of the men as they turned the corner, and there, not fifty feet away, was the man they were looking for. He had fairly fallen into the alert officers' arms. He was closed in upon and when placed under arrest mumbled some growl about being persecuted, —he had "slept in a barn the night before."

"Then," said the ready witted McGinty, "what about this mud on your coat. Did ye get that in the barn?"

All the way over to the cells the man was complaining of being harshly used. He had been arrested before and hadn't done anything wrong and now he was nabbed again. He was so profuse in his protestations of innocence as to give ground for the police thinking that he was trying to screen himself from a more serious charge than vagrancy.

On being searched at the police station there was found upon the prisoner's person a thirty-two calibre British bulldog revolver with every chamber but one loaded and the latter had evidently recently been discharged.

The prisoner gave his name as James McFee and he was as having formerly passed through their hands, having spent a term of three months as a vagrant.

McFee, evidently during his solitary confinement in the cell, had considered the advisability of changing his name. Last night at eight o'clock a representative of the EXAMINER went with Constable Stewart to the cells and, as suggested by the latter, said to the prisoner:

"What's your name?"

"Harty"—in a mumbling tone.

"What's that?" said the officer, as if he had not heard aright,

"McFee—James McFee."

The prisoner does not perhaps exactly correspond to the telegraphed description, which speaks of the shorter man as 5 ft. 6 inches in height, whereas the prisoner is only 5 ft. 3 in. But when the description sent by the Tweed Chief of Police speaks of the taller man being 5 ft. 10½ in., one cannot have much confidence in hasty glance which fixes one man's height to the

FRACTION OF AN INCH.

It is not probable that either man stood still to be measured, so that the discrepancy between the estimated and actual height is not to be accepted as proof that McFee is the wrong man. The police think that there are many connecting links. Two men whom the Tweed police were in search of boarded a freight at Havelock; two men were put off the train in Ashburnham. One of these on being ejected had his clothing soiled with mud or sand. The man arrested by the police corresponded generally to the conductor's description, and the earth on his clothing, hardly dry, was further evidence to connect him with the men that were wanted for the probable murder at Tweed. A man was shot in the neck at Tweed. The prisoner arrested, who is identified as a professional tramp, had a pistol in his pocket with

At any rate the police feel certain that they have got the right man, and the force is entitled to the greatest credit for the speedy and heady work they put in, resulting in the prompt arrest of the suspect. On the receipt of the telegram at 7 o'clock there was only twenty minutes to get the force together and get to the station in time to meet the train. Then the conductor had to be interviewed and then the party had to go a long distance, feeling their way, yet a man giving abundant evidence of having been connected with the crime at Tweed had his wrists inside the bracelets within about half an hour after he was ejected from the train at the canal, and was inside the cells before half the people in town were awake.

James "Harty" McFee may be innocent and should be held so till proven otherwise, but in the event of Perry dying from his wound, McFee's neck was in a good deal more comfortable condition last Saturday morning than it is now or likely to be for some time to come, that is if we place due value upon the circumstances connecting him with the shooting of Mr. Robert Perry, of Tweed.

McFee was arraigned for remand this morning and lodged in gaol.

Chief of Police Wilson, Tweed, arrived the Klondyke Flyer, and says McFee corresponds to the description he has heard in Tweed of the appearance of the man who shot Perry. He will take his prisoner east to-night.

A despatch from Tweed at 3 o'clock says that Perry is improving, and is likely to recover.

BROKE A BLOODVESSEL.

A Valuable Mare Belonging to Mr. Pat. Clunan Meets With an Accident.

This morning, as Mr. Pat Clunan's man was returning from the Driving Park after milking the former's cows, which are kept there, the horse which he was driving suddenly stumbled and fell on Aylmer street, near the railroad crossing.

The fall resulted in the breaking of a bloodvessel in the mare's head and by the time she reached the stable she was very weak. It is thought, however, that she can be saved, and a great effort is being made to keep her alive with stimulants until she gains strength. The loss by her death would be considerable, as she is well bred and is in foal to the Duke.

CHURCH CHIMES.

The third in the series of addresses to men given in St. John's church by Rev. E. V. Stevenson was given yesterday to a large audience. The subject was hardly an address—rather a monologue Bible study of the life of Abraham, in which his career, devoted to the implanting among the peoples of the East the monotheistic idea—that of the one true God, was graphically outlined. His characteristic faith, which was unshaken by the distant and humanly improbable fulfilment of the divine promise, was also dealt with. The hour was very profitably spent.

St. Andrew's congregation enjoyed a musical treat of unusual excellence at both services yesterday. In the morning the anthem "Lord we come before Thee now" was well rendered, Mrs. T. W. Martin and Miss Faulkner taking the solos in excellent voice. Mr. Watt, of Knox Choir, Montreal, sang "Gloria in Excelsis" in a manner which impressed the congregation in a most favourable manner. He has a rich baritone voice of unusual richness. In the evening Mr. Ed. Knowles, formerly of town, who is now connected with the Knox church choir, sang a duet with Miss Faulkner, entitled "Saviour, O Draw me Nearer to Thee." Mr. Knowles voice has lost none of its sweetness, and the congregation was given another opportunity of enjoying it when he sang the solo, 'O Happy Day," which was probably the greatest musical treat enjoyed by the congregation in years.

FELL INTO THE SEWER AND BROKE HIS NECK.

A Shocking Fatality Occurred on Charlotte Street.

DECEASED IS CON. MAHONEY.

It is Thought That in Endeavouring to Cross the Street After Nightfall That he Stumbled and Fell Into the Excavation.

Mr. George Comstock, whilst peering into the sewer excavations on Charlotte yesterday morning, made a gruesome find, when he discovered the dead body of Cornelius Mahoney lying at the bottom of the deep trench. A large crowd collected in a few moments and Coroner Bell was notified of the occurrence. On his arrival a cursory examination revealed the fact that the man's neck had been broken and he ordered the remains to be taken to Belleghem's undertaking establishment, the body not having been identified at that time.

Shortly afterwards the deceased was recognized as being Mr. Con. Mahoney and during the day a which transpired on Saturday evening, came to light which clear up in a measure the mystery which surrounded the man's death.

It seems that at about eight o'clock on Saturday evening, as Harry Brisbin was delivering goods for his father, a man corresponding in description to Mahoney, offered him ten cents to drive him out to J. J. Meharry's. The offer was accepted and the man was taken out Charlotte street and left at Mr. Meharry's, stated to have been in an intoxicated condition. Master Roy Armstrong was also in the delivery rig. About an hour later, when in the west end, young Brisbin was surprised in turning the corner of Park street to Charlotte to see the same man standing in front of Donovan's grocery.

This is the last seen of the deceased alive and the supposition is that in endeavouring to cross the street he accidentally fell into the sewer excavations and thus came to his death.

The matter of the manner in which danger signals were displayed around the excavations will probably play a prominent part in the inquest which is taking place this afternoon in the Council Chamber. Statements vary in regard to this particular. Officer Stewart says there were lights, Mr. Webber, who lives on Charlotte street in the vicinity of the point where the accident took place, says there was ONLY ONE LIGHT.

Harry Brisbin saw only one, but Councillor Denne states that when he was going home there were two lanterns displayed.

Cornelius Mahoney, the deceased, was brought up on the Thos. Eastland farm in North Monaghan, and is well known throughout the farming district between here and Port Hope, having worked during the harvest season all through the country hereabouts. He was about sixty years of age and has been known by Mr. William Collins, [illegible], for the past 47 years, the latter having been on the Webber farm when Mahoney was working for Mr. Eastland. Mr. Samuel McIlroy, G. T. R. signalman, recognized the deceased as having worked on farms in Hope township, down around Garden Hill, where he went by the name of "Seeney." For the past four or five years the deceased has worked during the winter for Mr. John J. Meharry, cutting wood for him at a place he has down in the country, and it was probable it was with some idea of seeing Mr. Meharry about such matters that he wished to be driven out there on Saturday evening. That he was married is known, although he was always reticent about referring to his family affairs. At one time he stated to Mr. Meharry that on his return from the lumber shanties one winter he found his house empty and his hearth cold, his wife having deserted him in his absence.

BURIED ALIVE.

Mr. James O'Keefe has a Strange Experience in the Sewer.

On Friday afternoon last whilst Mr. James O'Keefe was engaged in digging the excavation extending from the sewer to Dr. King's residence on Charlotte street the side suddenly gave way completely covering him with earth.

Half a dozen men were soon at work, and though his exact location under the earth was unknown, they were fortunate in finding him and uncovering his face in three or four minutes. O'Keefe was unconscious when released but finally regained consciousness. He never knew what happened him after being covered by the earth and is very sore yet from the pressure to which he was subjected.

When being uncovered he received a nasty cut on the forehead with a shovel.

LOCAL RUGBY COLTS' FIRST VICTORY.

THE BOYS DEFEAT THE PORT HOPE HIGH SCHOOL TEAM.

The Score was Eight to Nothing at the Finish—Peterborough Team Used Their Heads Well on the Field.

Profitting by the experience gained recently in their match against Upper Canada College, the local Colts were successful on Saturday afternoon last in winning from the heavy team of the Port Hope High School by the score of eight points to none.

The Peterborough boys were in the game all the time, and played ball from the drop of the hat. Their determined rallies in times of danger, when the ball had been worked down to within a few yards of their touch line, won them golden opinions from the spectators. The halves used their heads well by endeavouring to make all their headway by runs in the first half, when the wind was against them, and availing themselves of the assistance of the breeze in the last half by kicking high punts whenever the opportunity afforded itself. When the half-back line become more accustomed to one another's play, the team will be greatly strengthened. On Saturday a number of good chances were lost through inaccurate passing at critical moments, due, doubtless, to some changes which were made in the team and which a few more practices should remedy. Mr. Al. White, of Osgoode Hall, made a capable and satisfactory referee and Mr. Archie Stethem was an efficient umpire. The two teams lined up in the following order :

Port Hope.		Peterborough.
Maybee	back	G Bell
Wood	halves	F McGrath
Hayden		Holling head
Hume		N Bell
McLean	quarter	A J McClelland
Wood	scrimmage	A Brundrette
Hamilton		F Burnham
Alcott		K Donbie
Thompson	wings	B Collins
Barrett		A Collins
Race		G Burnham
Sutton		H Morgan
Leach		S Bradd
Burrell		W Robinson
Boyell		E Maybee

The Port Hope boys missed their train to Peterborough and had to take a later one to Millbrook and drive from there. The additional expense to which they were put and the incurring of a disagreeable drive in the rain in order to keep their engagement, shows a sportsmanlike spirit which is not often encountered and is to be much commended. The game was somewhat delayed through this accident, but things were rushed after the ball was put in play.

Peterborough assumed the offensive from the start, Hollingshead and Norman Bell making a neat run together with the ball which was passed out to them from the first scrimmage. When the latter was brought down Brundrette broke through for ten yards from the next scrimmage and Norman Bell repeated the trick, going about the same distance. The ball was shortly afterwards thrown in from the side line by Port Hope, and being secured by Capt. McGrath, was kicked into touch. Bradd was so close after the pigskin that Maybee, the Port Hope back, had to resort to a safety touch. This counted first blood for the Colts, scoring them one point.

From the visitors' kick-off McGrath made a good run with the ball, which he caught and passed to Hollingshead when brought down. "Holly" carried the pigskin a few yards further before being collared.

THE NEXT PRETTY PLAY

was made by Bradd, who gained ten yards by a quick dash. Several chances to do some good work when the ball was passed back to Hollingshead were missed through that player passing too low.

The visitors who had been getting the short end of the game from the start, began to wake up, and Hayden did some fine punting from the half back line. His first efforts in this line gained 25 yards for his team, which however, was almost regained by a kick by Norman Bell, who secured the ball from McClelland, the latter passing back from the scrimmage. Hayden again made a fine long punt almost to the Peterborough touch line, but Garnet Bell relieved well. A succession of scrimmages and short runs resulted in the ball being worked down to within five yards of the Port Hope touchline, but an offside play on the part of some of the local men resulted in the awarding of a free kick to the visitors, which was well followed up. A few moments later and another free kick was given Port Hope from the 25 yard line, bringing the ball far down into Peterborough territory. A succession of scrimmages resulted, however, in the ball being slowly worked out into the field again. Hayden made a good run and almost got over the touch line when he was brought to earth by Hollingshead. McClelland went through a couple of scrimmages like an eel, helping the team materially to get out of a dangerous corner and there was a shout when McGrath's fine run for again took the ball into Port Hope territory. A moment later the same player took the ball from Hollingshead and with the whole field after him almost managed to cross the Port Hope touch line. The ball was scrimmaged only a few yards out, but the whistle blew for half time before further gains were made.

The Port Hope kick off when play was resumed was badly fumbled, but Norman Bell went through the line with the ball, which was passed out from the scrimmage and a couple of high punts from Hollingshead resulted in such gains being made that the visitors had to rouge, thus raising the Peterborough score to 2.

Hollingshead's good work in punting resulted in the local team scoring two more points shortly afterwards on safety touches, although at one time it looked very blue for Peterborough when a succession of bad plays on the part of the home team resulted in the visitors working the ball down to within a few feet of the Colts' touchline. But for a desperate rally at this juncture, the score would have been materially altered. McClelland did his little trick of going through the lines a couple of times and Brundrette also broke through and the ball was finally dribbled out of [illegible] way.

With the score standing at 4—0 Norman Bell made a fine run and crossed the Port Hope touch for a try, scoring four points more. Burnham made a fine kick for the goal, but the high wind made scoring difficult, and he failed to convert the try. Time was called a moment later, and the Colts left the field jubilant, having won their first victory by the creditable score of 8—0.

NOTES.

Bradd set the team a good example by his close following up after the ball. He is very speedy.

Hayden of Port Hope could hold a position on any of the good teams in the Province. Without him the visitors would have been comparatively weak.

Brundrette's work in the scrimmage should win him a place on the Peterborough Seniors.

Almost Distracted

Dreadful Suffering by a Newmarket Woman.

The Bones in the Nose Affected—Face Would Swell Until Her Eyes Were Closed—How Relieved.

NEWMARKET, ONT.—"I have had a good opportunity of noting the great medicinal powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla. My wife has been a sufferer from catarrh for the past four years, and the disease had gone so far that the bones of the nose had become affected and particles had come away through an opening in the left side. Her eyesight was also affected to the extent that for nearly a year she was unable to read for more than five minutes at a time. She suffered and at times was almost distracted. She was treated by four different doctors, one of whom was a specialist. They all said they could not do anything for her, as the disease had gone too far. Her nose would swell about every three days until her eyes would almost be closed. Then it would break through and the swelling would subside for a day or two. About Christmas she commenced taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and since that time has steadily improved. She has not been troubled with any swelling since, and the sore on the side of the nose has all healed. She is on the road to a complete cure. I cannot speak too highly of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and I cheerfully recommend it to any person who is suffering with catarrh." W. H. FOGSTER.

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, do not be induced to buy any substitute. Be sure to get Hood's.

OUR OTTAWA LETTER.

(Special Correspondence of The Examiner.)

Ottawa, October 22nd.—In connection with the election trials which are at the present time occupying—it may almost be said wasting—the valuable time of the Provincial High Court Judges, an incident in connection with the last election in old York is worth recalling. The opposing candidates were Lord Charles Beresford and Sir Christopher Furness, who ran so close an election that, on the recount, they tied on the undisputed votes. Upon learning of this state of affairs Sir Christopher wrote to his agents as follows:—"I notice we are equal in admittedly good votes, and that five of my ballots and twelve of my opponent's are reserved for the judges. Looking at this in a business way, I think I shall gain five votes and Lord Charles possibly eleven, leaving him with a majority of six. Then there remains the scrutiny, a tedious, worrying and expensive process. I think that we can strike off enough absolutely bad votes to wipe away the majority, even allowing that Lord Charles would be able to strike out some of our votes on the same grounds, giving me the seat. But I do not wish, and have never wished, to win or keep a seat on technicalities, and therefore I have decided not to proceed further and thus save Lord Charles and myself much worry and expense." In these days of Imperialism, when everything "as it is in England" is considered the proper caper, it would be well worth while for politicians on both sides to follow the example set in old York.

GOOD NEWS FOR THE FARMERS.

The experiments which have been conducted by the Department of Agriculture during the past spring and summer, with the view to determining the cause, the cause, the methods of prevention, and the treatment of, tuberculosis, are sufficiently advanced for definite results to be available, and the report thereon is shortly to be published. One very gratifying result already announced, viz: the fact that not more than seven per cent. of the animals tested throughout the Dominion have been found infected. It had been thought that the disease was much more prevalent, but there is little doubt the thorough inspection of herds and immediate destruction of infected animals has had a most beneficial effect in eradicating it.

Another useful item for the farmers is a bulletin which has been issued by the Department of Agriculture containing specific directions for the proper packing and safe carriage of Canadian apples, cheese and eggs to the British market. This information is the outcome of the experience obtained from last year's shipments and the Canadian producer, conscientiously and intelligently following these instructions, may rely upon getting his goods on the British market in first class condition and there finding for them an ever increasing sale, the demand having been greatly stimulated by the efforts of the Ministers of Agriculture and Dairy Commissioner during their recent visit to the Old Country.

AN INTERESTING REPORT.

An interesting report upon the Yukon, its prospects and possibilities, is that which will be made by Explorer Tyrrell on his arrival in Ottawa, probably next week. Mr. Tyrrell's experience in exploring the northern wilds of Canada is probably more extensive and covers a wider range than that of any other one man, and his technical knowledge and expert experience render him peculiarly qualified for the arduous undertaking entrusted to him by the Dominion Government, viz: to go into the country and make a thorough examination of the indications and conditions and to form some estimate of the extent and value of the gold bearing belt.

From the preliminary and partial statements that have been published, Mr. Tyrrell's report will apparently be highly satisfactory. He believes that the country has vast riches, that the mining industry will prove permanent, that next year's output will be double that of this year, and so on.

UTILIZING THE SAWDUST.

The experiments which have been in progress for some weeks past at Edward's lumber mills, in which Professor V. B. Emerson, of Pittsburg, Pa., has been endeavouring to convert the refuse sawdust into commercial products of considerable value, are being crowned with remarkable success. Every week seems to develop and extend the scope of the professor's discoveries, and in addition to the pure carbon

HEAVY FIRE LOSSES.

According to returns just published this has been a bad year for the fire insurance companies, and the month of September the worst of all. Of course the disaster in New Westminster is in a great measure responsible for this, as $800,000 was the insurance loss sustained therein. The insurance loss for the nine months of the year has been $350,120 in excess of the same period last year, and the total loss $2,285,-000 greater: the actual figures for the first nine months of each year being: Total loss, 1897, $5,180,020; 1898, $7,472,520; insurance loss, 1897, $3,563,020; 1898, $5,920,-040.

THE G. T. R. SEMI-ANNUAL REPORT.

Not the least satisfactory of the many encouraging signs of progress and prosperity is the report of the G. T. R. for the past six months. Business has been good, the earnings have been large and the outlook is better than ever. This is not only important to those immediately and financially interested in the company, but it is of the greatest possible concern to the country generally, for nothing has militated more against the bringing of British capital into the Dominion than the ever recurring deficits in the working of this pioneer road. For many years it has given Canada a bad name in the British money market and this practical demonstration of the fact that the tide has turned will do much to place the Dominion where she should be.

THE QUARTER'S TRADE RETURNS.

In spite of the fact that last year's trade returns were so greatly in excess of the previous showing, the increase is being maintained to such an extraordinary extent that the first three months of the present year, shows an increase over last year's figures of about $7,000,000. The figures for 1897 were $30,707,393 as against $37,655,256 for the last quarter.

NO MANDATE FOR ACTION.

Montreal Herald.

The prohibition organizations appear disposed to use the results of the plebiscite as a lever to secure Governmental action. It is reported that a delegation will wait on the Government in the course of a week or two, and urge that prohibitory legislation be introduced, the majorities in the English Provinces in favour of prohibition being advanced as justification for the demand.

We have no hesitation in saying that such a demand will weaken, and not strengthen, the cause the prohibitionists have at heart. That cause, or any other great public movement, can succeed only when its principle is accepted by a large majority of the electorate, and such majority can never be secured unless respect is felt for the judgment and reasonableness of its advocates. It may not be complimentary to democracy to say that it can seldom disassociate the cause from its advocates. Yet such is the case, and if the extreme wing of the prohibition party, in the face of the small majority in favour of their proposals, and the small vote that was cast, insist upon action by the Government, their cause will certainly incur the penalty that follows injudicious advocacy.

There exists, we believe, what might almost be characterized as a crystallization of public opinion throughout the Dominion that the recent vote was not conclusive enough to warrant Federal prohibitory legislation. The only mandate which the Government should be asked to recognize, when so revolutionary a proposal as prohibition of the liquor traffic is in the balance, is that given by a preponderating majority of the whole electorate, for only then could a reasonably strict enforcement of the law be expected. No such mandate has been given. It is true that some of the Provinces have recorded large majorities of the votes cast, in favour of prohibition, but it is national legislation that is be asked for, and, therefore, the vote of these provinces cannot be considered apart from that of their sister Provinces. Partial, or provincial, prohibition is not in the power of the Federal Parliament. The prohibitionists can approach that Parliament only for legislation affecting the whole Dominion. And such legislation in the face of the opinion of Quebec, is impracticable. No Government would be justified in forcing such a law on a Province so unitedly opposed to it. When to this obstacle in the path is added the opposition and indifference to the proposals shown in all the Provinces, the difficulties in the way of Governmental action are simply insurmountable.

BANK DEPOSIT PAID TO WRONG PARTY.

One William Andrew had a sum of money lying to his credit as a deposit, with a Loan and Investment Company, in Toronto. After residing in different parts of the Province of Ontario including Streetsville, he had finally moved to the State of Missouri. It happened that another man of the same name had at one time resided at Streetsville, and had removed from the province to Winnepeg, leaving behind him a number of unpaid creditors. By some means a letter from the Loan Company addressed to Andrew No. 1, at Streetsville, came to the hands of the other man's creditors, who were thus led to believe that the moneys belonged to their debtor. They at once took legal proceedings, and attached the deposit moneys, which were eventually paid over to them under an order of Court. Andrews having been notified of the proceedings by registered letter, addressed, to him at Winnipeg. When Andrews No. 1 subsequently required his money, the company refused payment, relying upon the order of the Court for their protection. In the action which followed, the Court was of opinion that there was nothing in the attachment proceedings to bar the first Andrew of his right to recover the deposit, as he was not a party to the proceedings. It was also pointed out by the judge who tried the case that the proceedings did not apply to moneys in the company's hands belonging to Andrew No. 1, but to moneys which the company erroneously supposed to be in their hands belonging to Andrew No. 2. Judgment was accordingly given for payment of the deposit with costs.

East Northumberland Petition.

In the East Northumberland Provincial election case, Tuttle v. Douglas, Mr. W. D. McPherson, for the petitioner, on Saturday moved before Mr. Justice Osler to set aside the cross particulars delivered by the respondent against the defeated candidate, on the ground that the claim to the seat originally made by the petitioner on behalf of the defeated candidate had been abandoned and notice of abandonment filed and served before delivery of the cross-particulars. The order was granted.

Appeal in North Waterloo.

In the North Waterloo Provincial election case, Shoemaker v. Lackner, the petitioner on Saturday lodged an appeal against the refusal of the trial Judges to declare the respondent disqualified for bribery. The point that such an appeal does not lie will probably be raised.

DEATH OF SHERIFF MURTON.

The Deceased Gentleman Passed Away at Hamilton on Sunday Evening.

Hamilton, Oct. 24.—John W. Murton, Sheriff of the County of Wentworth, died last evening about 9 o'clock. He had been ill for a long time and his death had been expected for some weeks. His vitality was wonderful. The deceased gentleman was 82 years of age and had been sheriff for three years. He was a Canadian by birth, having been born in the Township of Ancaster, this county. In 1868 he entered the coal business and continued it under the name of Murton & Reid, and Murton & Co., until he was appointed sheriff. As a Mason he was widely known. Deceased has held the office of secretary of the Royal Canadian Humane Society and was a member of the Board of License Commissioners of this city. He leaves a widow and five sons, as follows: Edward C., Charles A., John F. and Ralph of this city, and Percy of Missouri.

Power From Decew Falls.

Hamilton streets were partially lighted last night by electricity generated at Decew Falls, about 33 miles east of the city. Although the fluid has been coming to the Cataract Power Company's station for a week, it has not been taken by the Hamilton Electric Light Works, which lights the city streets, till last evening, when a 1,000-volt current was turned on to its wires.

In Kentucky.

An anecdote of Bishop Thomas U. Dudley reveals in his own words the secret of his success.

When it was first known in the city in which he was settled that he was to go to Kentucky, some of his friends were disposed to be critical.

"You are not going to Kentucky, are you?" asked one.

"Yes, indeed."

"Do you know what kind of a state that is? I saw in the paper that one man killed another in a Kentucky town for treading on a dog."

The bishop said nothing, and the man continued impatiently, "What are you going to do in a place like that?"

"I'm not going to tread on the dog," was the calm reply.—Sioux City Journal.

When any part of the body isn't doing the work that nature intended it to do, it puts the whole system out of tune—out of harmony. Sickness in one part of the body is likely to run into all parts of the body. When children stand a row of bricks on end, they knock the whole row down by upsetting one brick. That is exactly what happens to the health when the bowels fail to perform their proper function. Constipation makes trouble all along the line—puts the liver out of order, is bad for the kidneys—bad for the stomach. It holds in the body poisonous matter, and because it cannot go any place else, it gets into the blood. The blood carries it all over the system. That makes sluggishness, lassitude, bad breath and foul taste in the mouth, fills the stomach with gas and causes windy belching, stops digestion in the stomach, causes sour stomach, heartburn and headache. You can avoid all such trouble, for Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets CURE constipation and its attendant evils.

DEAR SIR,—In answer to your request to me to decide upon one of the following options offered me for settlement of my 15 payment Life Investment Policy for $5,000 which has matured this year, viz:

1st to take the value of the Policy in Cash	$5,000.00
2nd, or fully paid-up insurance for	3,220.00
3rd, or take the profits in cash	2,050 25

and continue my policy without further payments being required from me, and policy participating in future profits.

I find it somewhat difficult to decide between either of the three options being satisfactory. I am certainly very much pleased with the results offered me, and as I find many others are giving full testimony to the profitable power of this company. I do not hesitate to give my endorsements as well, that the North American Life is one of our strongest Canadian institutions to day giving first class results on Investment Policies, on a safe and conservative basis. I find that my policy, which was originally a Life by fifteen payments, has become an Endowment at the end of the Investment period.

JURY'S FINDING.

The Burrell Children Were Strangled by Their Mother, Who Was a Trouble-Brooding Woman.

Toronto, Oct. 24.—"We find that at No. [illegible] Logan avenue, in the city of Toronto, on the 21st day of October, between the hours of 8 and 6 o'clock p.m., the said children, Stanley, Harold and Ethel Burrell, came to their deaths, each being strangled by its mother, Isabella Burrell."

Such was the verdict of the jury empanelled by Coroner Powell on Saturday at Bolton Avenue Fire Hall to enquire into the facts surrounding the death of the three children who were strangled by their mother, Mrs. Burrell, on Friday afternoon.

After viewing the bodies the evidence of witnesses was heard.

Charles Edward Burrell, father of the dead children, explained that in the house in which the deed was committed there were, besides the three dead children, three others by his first wife. He left home at 6.25 in the morning for work and at that time the children were left alone with their mother. The day of the tragedy was the first day that the children were left alone in the care of the mother.

Continuing, the witness said that his wife was well in body and mind up till last March, when she was removed to the General Hospital suffering from rheumatic fever. She remained in the institution for two months and then left. She took sick again on Sept. 6 and went back to the hospital for further treatment. She was discharged on Oct. 1.

The husband, in answer to questions, said that his wife was particularly fond of the children, and at times became very anxious as to their future welfare.

Further questioned as to any insanity in his wife's family, Mr. Burrell said that her sister was at present confined in an asylum near London, England. The father added that about three weeks ago his daughter Nellie was compelled to take Harold from his mother, as she was hurting him.

Several times recently he heard his wife tell the children that she would soon have them little angels. Very often his wife would become sullen and gaze intently at objects. She never displayed any feeling towards the witness, but she at several times spoke of Nellie's attachment for the dead children.

Turning to the time of the discovery of the crime, witness said he became suspicious because the children always met him at the door, and he missed them. Mrs. Burrell, after the finding of the bodies, appeared satisfied with what she had done.

Dr. Sheath said there were no finger-marks, but there was evidence that the death of each child was caused by strangulation.

The report of the post mortem examination on the body of Harold, made by Dr. Anderson, showed that death was due to asphyxia, due to strangulation.

Dr. H. B. Atkins gave evidence of Mrs. Burrell's treatment at the General Hospital in September. He saw her almost daily and she was suffering from heart disease, brought on by the previous attack of rheumatic fever. She appeared, while a patient, to be very depressed. The doctor attributed the depression to be due to the disease. She expressed herself to the nurses of the institution as being suspicious of the other patients, and appeared to the witness as being a trouble-creating woman. Mrs. Burrell, he thought, was suffering from acute melancholia when she had committed the deed.

Mrs. Burrell, mother of the children, appeared in the Police Court on Saturday and was remanded until Monday. In the meantime she will be examined by the jail physician.

The funeral of the little ones will take place at 2 o'clock this afternoon, to the Norway. Rev. Dr. Parker will conduct the burial service.

THE KAISER ON THE MOVE.

He Has Left the Sultan, His Harem and the Kiosks.

Constantinople, Oct. 24.—The Emperor and Empress of Germany left here for Palestine at 5.10 Saturday evening. They received an ovation from the crowds of people assembled to witness the departure of their Majesties.

Augusta Visits the Harem.

Constantinople, Oct 24.—At the grand farewell banquet here Friday night, the Sultan sat between the Emperor and Empress of Germany. At about 10 o'clock Their Imperial German Majesties withdrew to the Merssain Kiosk, and the Emperor afterwards returned the farewell visits of the diplomatic corps. In the meantime, the Sultan and his son, Prince Mahemmed-Slim-Effendi, conducted the Empress, the wife of the German Ambassador and the maids of honor to the Harem, where they conversed with the Valideh Sultana, the Princess and other ladies, Artin Pasha's daughter acting as interpreter. Emperor William presented a gold snuff box to the Turkish Minister of Foreign Affairs, Tewfik Pasha.

William as a Designer.

Constantinople, Oct. 24. — Emperor William has designed a marble fountain, which he proposes to erect in Constantinople as a gift to commemorate his visit and that of the Empress Augusta Victoria to the Sultan at his capital.

The Doctor Is Dead.

Vienna, Oct. 24.—Dr. Mueller, who attended Herr Barisch, the surgical assistant at Prof. Nothnagle's bacteriological establishment, who died on Tuesday from bubonic plague, died yesterday morning.

Another Nurse Takes the Plague.

Vienna, Oct. 24.—The Neue Freie Presse states that another nurse who was in attendance upon Herr Barisch, the assistant in the bacteriological establishment of Prof. Nothnagle who died from the bubonic plague on Wednesday last, has been attacked by the disease.

King Menelek Is on the Warpath.

London, Oct. 24.—King Menelek is on the warpath with 40,000 warriors and several batteries of artillery. His object ostensibly is to chastise the rebellious chief, Ras Mangascia, but the remainder of the Abyssinian army is being rapidly mobilized, which is scarcely necessary for the purpose of crushing a mutiny.

The European governments take considerable interest in the matter, because it is pretty well known that if Italy withdraws from Massowah, Russia will seize that port and hold it against all comers, including Abyssinia.

Boers and Kaffirs.

Pretoria, Transvaal, Oct. 24.—The Magate Kaffirs have been repulsed by the force of Burghers sent against them. The Burghers chased them into the mountains, killing several of the natives. The Burgher artillery did good execution, and the Transvaal forces suffered no loss. The fact that the natives attacked the Burghers is regarded as a declaration of war.

FRANCE IN DANGER.

Internal Dissensions Are Endangering the Unhappy Country Even While on the Verge of Foreign War.

Paris, Oct. 24.—The absolute calm of the past week is thought by pessimists to be that which precedes the storm. On Tuesday Parliament will meet under circumstances which, for more than a generation, are without parallel. France is avowedly divided against herself by the violence and vituperation of both the opponents and the partisans of revision—for when Frenchmen quarrel among themselves they show no mercy—menaced with a conflict for supremacy of the civil and military authorities, which may strike at the very existence of the republican form of Government; confronted with the possibility of war with England over about half an acre of malarial African swamp; exasperated by professional patriots, nationalists, revolutionists, socialists, reactionary leaders, popularity hunters and free lance journalists. Here is the stage setting in, which are to be enacted the two great events so much dreaded by timid observers—the assembling of the Chamber on Tuesday, and the opening of the Dreyfus revision by the Court of Cassation on Thursday.

M. De Roulede and the league of the Patriots have announced their determination to assemble at the Place de la Concorde on Tuesday, and "Denounce by word and act, insults that the Cabinet has allowed to be heaped upon the army, the flag and the nation." What is Catarrh?

Is the Question Half so Vital to the Sufferer as what's the shortest Road to Relief and a Permanent Cure?—Japanese Catarrh Cure Wears the Crown as the King of Catarrh Cures.

Incurable! No, it's not in the vocabulary of possibilities! Japanese Catarrh Cure has lifted the load of despair that for years has galled the catarrh sufferer. It's a new sun to the sufferer's horizon, whose healing but penetrating rays dispel the fog of misery and distress, and leave the patient looking in the sunlight of good health, in a new world, full of new hopes. Mrs. Emily A. Parr, Chilliwack, B. C., writes a timely story of the doing of Japanese Catarrh Cure. Her husband was a great sufferer for many years from acute catarrh. He tried all kinds of advertised remedies and doctors' treatments, but in every case the catarrh came back. One year ago he commenced treating with Japanese Catarrh Cure, and to day he is a well man. Mrs. Parr says also: "My nephew had catarrh so badly, his breath was so foul it was unpleasant to go near him." He, too, was cured by this great catarrh remedy. The only guaranteed catarrh remedy. An absolute guarantee in every package, 50 cents. At Ormond & Walsh's, Gilchrist & Macpherson Co., Toronto.

Belleville, consisting of forty members elected by "A coalition of Revolutionists, Socialists and Anarchists," has also declared its intention of assembling on the Place de la Concorde on Tuesday, and making a counter demonstration against De Roulede and his league, who are accused of plotting to establish a military dictatorship.

Meanwhile the Government is taking extraordinary precautions to preserve order, which recall the most exciting days of Boulangism. The garrison of Paris, now amounting to 50,000 men, will remain in barracks, ready to move at telephonic notice. All traffic will be suspended on the Qual D'Orsay between the Rue de Solferino and the Esplanade des Invalides. No one unprovided with a deputy's ticket will be permitted to cross the Pont de la Concorde; no group consisting of more than three persons will be allowed to appear on the Place de la Concorde. Large bodies of cavalry and infantry and the Garde Republicaine will be concealed in the Tuileries Gardens and behind the Palais Bourbon.

Meanwhile, Royalists like Louis Desmoulins, encourage street demonstrations and declare that "The Republic having at least destroyed every other form of authority, the ground is now prepared for the advent of Judge Lynch, who will certainly put in his appearance in Paris on Tuesday." Moderate and well-balanced papers, like the Figaro, the Temps, the Debats, the Matin, the Soleil, and even M. Millerand's Socialist Rappel, call imperatively upon all good citizens to hold aloof from public manifestations of every kind.

What will become of the Brisson Cabinet when the Chamber meets is the question on every one's lips. Its downfall is predicted from almost all quarters, but in Parliamentary circles the belief is gaining ground that as Fashoda looms up as an ever-increasing danger, and as the feeling of the country is absolutely opposed to going to war for it, the Opposition will insist that the Brisson Cabinet shall be compelled to bear the opprobrium of yielding to Lord Salisbury's demands, and will not permit the resignation until a satisfactory arrangement with England is concluded. In other words, just as Sagasta's adversaries in the Cortes will not permit him to withdraw until he has drained his cup to the dregs by signing the treaty of peace with the United States, so Brisson's opponents in the Chamber will not allow him to retire until he has disposed of the Fashoda nightmare as best he can. Consequently Fashoda is the crux of the situation.

Turks Getting Out.

London, Oct. 24.—The evacuation of the Island of Crete by the Turks is now in full swing. The troops mostly embark at night time, in order to avoid exciting the Mussulmans. The foreign admirals intend that the Turkish civil officials shall follow the troops, the administration of the island remaining in the hands of the admirals until the powers decide upon the final form of government for Crete.

The number of foreign troops on the island will be increased to 14,000 men, pending the complete pacification of Crete.

Weyler Forbidden to Go.

Madrid, Oct. 24.—The Minister of War, General Correa, has forbidden General Weyler's proposed journey into Andalusia, fearing that the General will do just what his friends have declared he will do—that is, foment new disaffection toward the Government in the Southern Provinces.

John Morley to Write the Book.

London, Oct. 24.—It is now definitely known that Mr. Gladstone's sons have appointed Mr. John Morley to write their father's life. Probably no fitter choice could have been made.

MAJORITY 14,000.

The Plebiscite Returns Now Nearly All in to the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery.

Ottawa, Oct. 23.—The Clerk of the Crown in Chancery has received all the plebiscite returns from the Provinces of Ontario, Manitoba, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island. From Quebec all the returns have been received except from the electoral districts of Compton, Richelieu and Gaspe. When these three constituencies have been heard from they will add between two and three thousand to the Quebec figures against prohibition. There are scarcely any returns from British Columbia and the Northwest Territories, and therefore, while it is known that there will be a majority for prohibition in both places, it is mere conjecture as to what the majority will be. In New Brunswick it is said that the people of St. John voted in the county as well as in the city, and these have been included in the returns, while they had only the right to vote once. The total majority for prohibition will be about 14,000.

GRAND TRUNK IN CONTROL.

Its Interests Conserved in the Reorganization of the Central Vermont.

Toronto, Oct. 22.—The Grand Trunk Railway, which is financially interested in the Central Vermont, will be benefited by the bill which has been introduced into the Vermont Legislature for the reorganization of the latter road. Messrs. C. M. Hays, general manager, and Charles Percy, treasurer of the Grand Trunk, are among the gentlemen provided for on the board of directors of the reorganized company. The majority of the stock is given the Grand Trunk, which in return guarantees the interest on $12,000,000 first mortgage 4 per cent. 40 year gold bonds. The company formed under this bill stands ready to buy the road as soon as the court decrees it shall be sold, and take the road and operate it. The road is now practically controlled by the Grand Trunk.

Doan's Kidney Pills

THE REMEDY SHE USED.

Our representative called at the residence of Mrs. E. Toole, Kent Street, Lindsay, Ont., and was favoured with an interview. Mrs. Toole states:

"For three years I have suffered terribly with pain in my back and limbs, and also with excruciating pains in my head and neck. I felt very dizzy and when I awoke in the morning seemed to be in a stupid or dazed condition, so much so that it would be a couple of hours before I was able to do anything. Many a time I had to walk the floor for hours at night, on account of the pain from which I suffered. I had no appetite, and was very nervous and easily startled; sometimes feeling that I was about to faint from the fluttering and palpitation of my heart.

"All last summer I was attended by a physician, who said I had diabetes, and I can say that I have taken a great deal of medicine, but received no benefit from the same. In fact, I was in an awful state. No one but myself knows how much I suffered!

"I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills, and have taken two boxes of them. From the first I commenced to improve. They have worked a wonderful change for the better in my health. They have cured all the pain, restored restful sleep, strengthened my nerves, and given me a good appetite. In fact, I am sure the pills were exactly the medicine I needed; and I cannot express the joy I feel at this change in my health, which is all caused by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills."

Doan's Kidney Pills are sold by all druggists, or sent by mail on receipt of price, 50c a box or 3 boxes for $1.25. The Doan Kidney Pill Co., Toronto, Ont.

Quebec, Oct. 21.—The arrival of Canada's new Governor-General and Lady Minto and their first landing on Canadian soil, which will take place here on the 12th proximo as nearly as can be judged, is to be made the occasion for an imposing military demonstration. All of the local corps are to be ordered out. The Hussars will turn out in full strength to form the escorts for the Lieutenant-Governor and the new arrival. They will be divided into two parties. The larger, under command of Major T. H. Hetherington, will be drawn up on the breakwater on the arrival of the steamer to welcome the Governor General and escort him to the citadel.

Their Excellencies Lord and Lady Aberdeen will leave Ottawa on Nov. 3. From there they go to Toronto for a few days, thence to Montreal and Quebec. A farewell ball is to be tendered here by the citizens.

SHOT BY BURGLARS.

A Tweed Butcher in Critical Condition From a Tramp's Shot.

Tweed, Ont., Oct. 24.—Mr. Robert Perry of this place was shot on Saturday evening. He was about to close up his butcher shop when two men stepped up to him and told him to throw up his hands and demanded his money. He struck the one nearest to him and knocked him down, and the other shot a revolver at him, the ball entering the lower jaw close to the neck. The men escaped, and are supposed to be tramps. They boarded a freight train going west, which was in at the time. One of the men has been arrested at Peterboro. The ball has not been extracted as yet, and Mr. Perry is in a very critical condition.

UNEXPECTED HONOR.

The Amusing Predicament of a South-western Railroad Official.

They were talking about having a boom at Hardy, Ark., one fall during the administration of President Harrison. The town is situated on the beautiful Spring river and has the Memphis road. The idea of the boomers was to make a resort of the place, either for summer or winter pleasure seekers. About the time the boom was being planned the announcement was made that Russell Harrison, the president's son, was coming west and would pass through Hardy on his way to Kansas City. It was accordingly arranged that speeches should be made while the train stopped, not to speak of an ovation of anvils and fireworks.

For some reason the Harrison party did not pass through Hardy as arranged, but it happened, remarkably enough, that a private coach full of the Memphis road's officials was fastened to the north bound train that reached Hardy about half past 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The youngest member of the party was Mr. B. L. Winchell, the assistant general passenger agent of the road. He was then past 30, but every railroad man in the country who knew Ben Winchell would have said that he did not look more than 20.

Mr. Winchell was standing on the broad vestibule at the rear of the private car as the train rolled into Hardy, when a deafening noise ahead caused him to wonder if the engine had blown up. He leaned over the rail and looked forward. A great crowd was gathered and anvils and cannons were being fired by the dozen. The train stopped so that the crowd was placed at the end of the private car. Cheers were proposed and given with a will, and shouts of "There he is!" "Hurrah for the president's son!" and "How young!" were heard on every side. Then the cannons and anvils were touched off again and some of the skyrockets and Roman candles were fired off in the face of the glaring afternoon sun.

Mr. Winchell was dazed. He did not understand the meaning of it all. He thought that they were advertising the town, but he could not understand the meaning of the shouts and exclamations. Then it struck him that there might be some important personage in a forward car, and he at once went to look. The train started on before he got through, when one of the officials who had got the hang of the situation met Winchell and rushed him back.

"Hang it, Ben," he shouted, "go back on the platform and bow, make a speech—do something, for heaven's sake! You're the president's son."

Winchell didn't understand anything about it, but he went back on the platform and bowed and smiled until he felt like an automaton. Then it was explained to him. The people of Hardy were shocked to learn next day that they had not seen the president's son, and they at once declared all boom proceedings off.—Detroit Free Press.

Probably Not.

It was said of Oliver Wendell Holmes that some of his best jokes were made at times when there was nobody to appreciate them save a chance listener.

One such fortunate listener tells of a reply which she, sitting in a street car, heard Dr. Holmes make to a complaining writer of little wit and less talent.

"I've worked with all my heart on that book," said the young man, who had been treating the doctor to a long account of a recent collection of poetry which he had edited. "I've used my best taste and judgment and research, and I feel confident that nobody could have done the thing better or more thoroughly than I have. And what reward do I get? Harsh criticisms for my omission of a few popular poets and a paltry $100."

"A hundred dollars!" echoed the Autocrat of the Breakfast Table wearily. "Why, I wouldn't have written that book for $1,000, I'm sure!"

The collector of poetry smiled with gratification, but the listener turned to regard a passing dray lest her face should betray her.—Youth's Companion.

TARTE IS TRUE TO THE TRENT VALLEY CANAL.

ITS IMPORTANCE AS A FACTOR IN SOLVING THE TRANSPORTATION PROBLEM.

His Speech at Sorel—Proclaims Himself in Favour of the Canal.

At a demonstration and banquet held in honour of Hon. J. Israel Tarte, Minister of Public Works at Sorel, Quebec, on Thursday, the Minister of Public Works was given an ovation. In his address at Sorel, as in Peterborough, Mr. Tarte spoke again on a subject that lies very close to his heart, the transportation question.

He began his speech by a reference to his early days, and traced his progress from the time he was an orphan boy in the district and selling farm produce in the market place at Sorel, to the present time when he is a member of the Federal Cabinet. He then went on to speak of the construction of the new workshops for the Public Works Department at Sorel. He took credit to himself for the adoption in those workshops of the principle of day labour, although he had not been able to make all his colleagues in the Ministry see eye to eye with him in the matter.

After two years' experience he had come to the conclusion that day work gave the best results and under it the working man received fair value for his labour. As a friend of the workingmen of the Province of Quebec he had a piece of advice to give them—that was, educate themselves. They were physically and intellectually the the equals of any race. He regretted that they had not received as much instruction in the past as they should have done in order to be placed upon an equal footing with the workmen of other nationalities. At the present time instruction of the brain was even more necessary than skill with the hands.

The minister proceeded to speak of his recent trip to the West and the lessons he had learned therefrom. The chief of these was that there was an enormous commerce waiting to be there developed for the Canadian route which was not only the shortest but the best. It was in order that that route might be made equal to the requirement of the trade that he had had the workshops located at Sorel and the new dredges now being constructed there. That was why the canals were being deepened to 14 feet, a work that would be completed by June next. Mr. Tarte next spoke of the enormous traffic that had already been developed by the Parry Sound railway, which had this season alone carried 15 000,000 bushels of grain to Montreal. Yet when he had predicted that very thing at a banquet at Montreal just about a year ago he had been laughed at. So now he told them that if the Canadian route were developed as it should be there was no limit to the trade that could come down the St. Lawrence. Passing on Mr. Tarte proclaimed himself in favour of the construction of both the Trent Valley Canal and the Ottawa and Georgian Bay Canal as works which would do much to build up the St. Lawrence route.

Then the Minister went on to say that in his opinion the port of Montreal should become as great a trade centre as the port of Buffalo. It was animated with that idea that the Government had acted when they had brought about the extension of the Intercolonial to Montreal. It had been said by some that that extension would prevent the construction of the South Shore Railway. Nothing was more absurd. The one did not prevent the other. The Government was determined to build up the Canadian winter ports, and when they had the trade secured there would be ample traffic for both the Intercolonial and the South Shore.

THE HUMBLE BOY.

He Bided His Time and Got Even With His Tormentors.

One midsummer term an unfledged, weak kneed youngster presented himself at a well known public school and was immediately pounced upon by the boys and hauled off to be broken in. They practiced all the usual tricks upon him, and he bore them meekly—so meekly, in fact, that the boys were contemptuous and made scathing remarks about his effeminacy and lack of spirit.

After this he was taken to the lumber room and sternly commanded to black all the boots for the following day. The boys were supposed to attend to their own footgear, but the task generally fell to the lot of the weakest among them, and it was a favorite plan to order newcomers to do the work unaided. This particular new boy received the order resignedly and said, "Thank you, sir," quite humbly, when one of the monitors kicked him and told him to hurry along. He seemed almost overwhelmed with gratitude for the honor done to him and promised to discharge his duty manfully if he were only given sufficient time.

He was therefore left to himself, and the boys went away in high feather, thanking their stars that a happy chance had sent such a willing slave to pander to their needs. An hour passed, and then it occurred to the monitor before mentioned to go and see how the new boy was getting on. He threw open the door of the lumber room, and a sight met his eyes which almost choked him.

The new boy had a white buckskin cricket boot in his hand and was busily covering it with blacking.

"You big idiot, whatever are you doing?" screamed the monitor. "You're rubbing white boots instead of black ones."

"Yes, sir, I am," answered the new boy with studied innocence. "That's what you wished me to do, isn't it? The others are black enough, so I thought I'd get through the white ones first. I've polished 15 pairs, but they don't look very nice somehow."

The monitor stormed and raved, but he could not renew the color of the cricket and tennis boots, and their owners had to make the best of a bad job. They've given up trying to score off guileless new boys now.—Chums.

London's "Silly Season."

The "silly season" is come to be an institution in England, and a vastly entertaining one it occasionally proves to be. It is not actually a season, but is the series of discussions that appear in the London papers after the close of parliament. Then news is scarce and British fathers and mothers are allowed to air their grievances in the public prints. The frequent inconsequence of their complaints gave the institution its name, but of late years the London Daily Telegraph has set the ball a-rolling by having some notable writer discuss a theme, which is later taken up by "Paterfamilias," "A British Mother" and other well known public characters. It was in the "silly season" that the now famous question, "Is Marriage a Failure?" was propounded, and others of equally wide interest have been advanced and canvassed in the same way.—San Francisco Argonaut.

The Holland Throne.

A Chillicothe man, H. T. Houghnay, once occupied the throne of Holland, though only for a minute. "It was when I was a ship officer," said the captain, "that myself and another officer were being shown through the royal apartments during the absence of the king and the queen. Little Wilhelmina was then only a few days old. The throne was nothing grand in my eyes. I have seen nicer looking barber chairs in America. When the guards were not looking, I jumped upon the throne and exclaimed, 'Behold the king, the king of Holland!' In an instant the soldiers hustled me out of there, and it was only by the most liberal use of Dutch money that I persuaded them not to send me to the guardhouse."—Kansas City Star.

Brier Wood Pipes.

The brier pipes used in the United States were formerly imported to a large extent from Europe. The greater number came from France, but a good many were supplied from England. Now they are almost exclusively made here. American brier pipes are now produced in very great variety and of every quality, from the very cheapest to the very finest, and they are made in better styles and put up more suitably for the trade than those imported, with the result that they have all but entirely supplanted brier pipes of European make in this market.—New York Sun.

WAR ON PAPER YET.

British Officials, However, Expect War With France.

BARON DE COURCEL'S PROPOSAL

Lord Salisbury on the Baron's Indefiniteness—What the French Suggest—Views of Leading French Papers—Both Sides Still Continue Preparations for War—The News by Cable.

London, Oct. 25.—(Toronto Globe Special.)—The general opinion here is that England cannot negotiate until Marchand has been withdrawn, especially as the French yellow book contains admissions of proceedings which are regarded as tantamount to acts of war. The sentiment is that it is better to face now what is felt to be a disagreeable necessity.

Officials Expect War.

I am told that official circles expect war. However, a banker who is in close touch with the Government made the statement yesterday afternoon that an amicable solution is probable.

A report has come from Paris last evening to the effect that Baron de Courcel has been empowered to offer the withdrawal of Marchand from Fashoda in exchange for a concession on the part of the British of the right of France to an outlet on the Nile for her Central African territories. The report adds that discussion of this offer has been reserved.

Is Salisbury Weakening?

The Cabinet will probably meet on Wednesday. Opinion is divided, some holding that Lord Salisbury is weakening, while others maintain their belief that he is preserving a firm attitude.

The French Chambers meet to-morrow. A stormy time is expected, and the overthrow of the Brisson Cabinet is regarded as probable.

AN IMPORTANT DESPATCH.

Lord Salisbury on Baron De Courcel's Indefiniteness — What the French Suggest in Settlement.

London, Oct. 24.—The French Ambassador to Great Britain, Baron de Courcel, will arrive here from Paris to-night, and there is good authority for the statement that he is the bearer of a proposition to the Marquis of Salisbury, which may satisfy both Governments.

The British Government will issue another blue book to-night, the most important feature of which will be a despatch, dated Oct. 12, from the Marquis of Salisbury to the British Ambassador at Paris, Sir Edmund Monson, reporting the previous interview with Baron de Courcel, in which the latter wished to ascertain what solution of the question was possible, and in which the Marquis of Salisbury says:

"'I generally insisted that the Nile valley had belonged and still belonged to Egypt, and that whatever diminution that title had suffered by the Mahdi's conquest had been removed by the victory at Omdurman."

The Marquis of Salisbury then pointed out the helplessness of Major Marchand's position, which Baron de Courcel denied, and finally the British Premier, in response to Baron de Courcel's suggestion, offered to supply Major Marchand with food and ammunition in order that he might be able to reach French territory.

Baron de Courcel then said France wanted an outlet to the Nile, and the Marquis of Salisbury requested that the whole proposition be made in writing.

This was the last interview between the Ambassador and the Premier on this subject. Baron de Courcel then went to Paris, and it is thought that the proposition which he brings to-night embodies the points indicated in this conversation.

The Salisbury despatch, in conclusion, said: The extreme indefiniteness of Baron de Courcel's propositions made it impossible for me to express or form an opinion relative to the territory claimed by France in the Bahr-el-Ghazal region. Under the circumstances, the discussion has been fruitful of misapprehension. I informed the Baron that it was in no way my duty to discuss the French claims now, but that in abstaining therefrom I must not be understood as in any degree admitting their validity.

The Times says: "Lord Salisbury's version of the interview with Baron de Courcel is decidedly a despatch to relieve the British mind."

The Standard says: "The blue book removes apprehension regarding Lord Salisbury's position which it would have been unsafe to leave uncorrected."

The Daily News thinks the blue book confirms the impression left by the yellow book, namely, that France is seeking a loop hole.

The British Cabinet Council has been fixed for Thursday next.

The British Admiralty issued a number of significant orders to-day. The dockyards at Portsmouth, Devonport and Chatham have each received instructions to prepare six 30-knot torpedo boat destroyers for commissioning, so that they will be able to put to sea in 24 hours.

Overtime has been ordered begun on the first-class cruisers Europe and Andromeda, so as to hurry them for sea service.

Several gunboats in the different dockyards have been ordered to postpone unnecessary refitting.

SCHOOLS CLOSED FOR TROOPS.

France May Be Peaceably Disposed, But Has a Very Strange Way of Showing It.

Paris, Oct. 25.—The municipality of Toulon has been notified that the place will be the centre for the important military and naval preparations, and to arrange for the immediate reception of four battalions of infantry, 1,500 marines and 600 artillerymen. Consequently the municipality has decided to close the schools of Toulon, which will be used to lodge the troops.

The naval authorities of Toulon have been ordered to expedite preparations for fitting out a new squadron of warships.

The newspapers here yesterday warmly praise the exposition of the French side of the Fashoda question presented by the Minister of Foreign Affairs, M. Delcasse, in the yellow book issued on the subject.

The Figaro says: "If the British Government rejects France's just proposals, it can only be because the Government of Great Britain desires before everything else the humiliation of France."

The general tone of the French press comments is reflected by the Eclair, which remarks: "An agreement regarding Fashoda can be arrived at, provided Great Britain does not persist in asking for the immediate recall of Major Marchand. But, as to an outlet on the Nile, we have an absolute right thereto, and will brook no refusal."

A Compromise Possible.

London, Oct. 25.—The afternoon newspapers here yesterday discuss the report of the French Ambassador, Baron de Courcel, on the subject of the conversation he had with the Marquis of Salisbury regarding the proposed French outlet on the Nile, as being the leading feature of the yellow book on the Fashoda question issued by the French Government.

The Conservative organs scout the idea of the Marquis of Salisbury entertaining the surrender of the Bahr-el-Ghazal valley to the French, and the Pall Mall Gazette and the Globe suggest that the Ambassador misunderstood the Premier, and call upon the latter to make some explanation.

The Liberal and Radical papers are not displeased at the prospect of a compromise being arrived at, and they believe that, provided Major Marchand is recalled, the dispute is susceptible to an arrangement by which France will receive some satisfaction in the Bahr-el-Ghazal district.

The Siecle's Head Is Level.

Paris, Oct. 25.—The Siecle, after urging peace, remarks: "France would hardly come off better in a war with England than did Spain in the war with the United States. France would be better employed in developing her colonies than in thrawling England."

The Aurore declares that France ought never to have gone to Fashoda, adding: "It was a stupid mistake, and now England calls on us to get out. Well, it is no use talking, we shall have to get out, otherwise there will be war, which would be madness."

France Will Get Out.

London, Oct. 25.—The Paris correspondent of the Daily Chronicle claims to have authority to say that a decision has already been taken by the French Government speedily to evacuate Fashoda, and that M. Delcasse, the French Foreign Minister, will do his utmost to facilitate a pacific solution.

MONTREAL IS EXCITED

Because of Rumored Charters of Steamships by the British.

Montreal, Oct. 25.—A well known citizen said yesterday that he had seen a telegram to the effect that the British Admiralty had chartered the entire fleet of the Cunard Company, and that similar action would be taken by the British Government regarding other trans-Atlantic liners. This action on the part of the imperial authorities, is, of course, in anticipation of trouble with the French Republic.

Activity at Halifax.

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 25.—Admiral Fisher, commander of the British squadron stationed in the North Atlantic, has received from London a significant order to collect his vessels, which are now scattered.

Shot Himself in the Ear.

Gananoque, Ont., Oct. 25.—Joseph Lalonde, who recently returned from the Klondike and bought out the boot and shoe business of J. E. Lewis, tried to end his life last evening about 9 o'clock with a revolver. The bullet entered the ear, passed through the base of the brain and, taking a downward course, lodged somewhere in the jaw or neck. He had been despondent for some weeks past through business troubles. He is not expected to recover.

AMBUSHED NEGROES

Fire Upon a Sheriff's Posse in Mississippi.

ONE KILLED--THREE WOUNDED.

Fight Between White Men and Blacks—In All-Day Fight Negroes Lost Ten Men Killed and Several Wounded—Governor Sends Men and Good Counsel.

Meridian, Miss., Oct. 25.—The most bloody race conflict that has taken place in Mississippi since the exciting days of the reconstruction period is raging in Scott County, 50 miles west of Meridian. It grew out of an assault on Charles D. Freeman, a white man, by Billy Burke, a negro. Freeman and Burke became involved in a quarrel, which ended in Burke assaulting Freeman with a hoe.

A warrant was sworn out for the arrest of Burke, and Constable Thompson, with 15 men, went to the house of Burke, who lives a mile from Harperville, at 9 o'clock Saturday night to execute the writ. When Constable Thompson and his posse arrived they found Burke fortified in his little log hut with 50 or 60 negroes ambushed on the premises, and the officer's demand for a surrender was answered with a volley. Officer Sibley, one of the posse, was instantly killed and three others, including Constable Thompson, seriously wounded. The posse was thrown into confusion by the volleys, but the fire was returned and for a time a desperate battle raged in the dark. The negroes were greatly in the majority, however, and the officers retired and sent runners for help. The Sheriff responded with heavy reinforcements and the battle was renewed Sunday morning.

The fight was kept up all day, and when the last courier reached the nearest telegraph office, 10 miles from the scene of the battle, at a late hour Sunday night, he reported 10 negroes had been killed and several wounded. Four negroes were captured and taken to Forest, where they are guarded by 200 white men to prevent their rescue by negro sympathizers. A general alarm has been sent out over Scott and the adjoining counties of Rankin, Newton and Smith, and hundreds of white men are under arms and on their way to Harperville.

Sheriff Stevenson, realizing the danger apprehended, immediately wired Governor McLaurin at Brandon for aid in quelling a probable widespread disturbance. Upon receipt of this telegram the Governor procured a special train at Brandon and accompanied by a posse of 30 men, armed with shot guns proceeded to Forest. Arriving there early in the evening they found that there was small danger of riot assuming proportions beyond the ability of the posse on hand to keep order.

Governor McLaurin of Brandon naturally counsels moderation, but in the excited state of the public mind a great fear is expressed that the posse will not regard this suggestion favorably. Their presence, however, will undoubtedly have a great influence in restricting the number of fatalities after enough negroes have been killed to satisfy the outraged feeling of the whites in that section.

CLINGING TO THE MASTS.

Shipwrecked Crew of the Irma Suffered for 29 Hours.

Halifax, Oct. 25.—The Irma, laden with salt, bound from Basse Terre to Halifax, went ashore at three o'clock Sunday morning during a heavy rain storm and blow. The crew took to the rigging, and were seen in that position early yesterday morning.

All day Sunday and last night the surf washed over the vessel. The waves broke over her and both topmasts fell. It was too rough to approach the wreck until nine o'clock yesterday morning, when a lifeboat managed to get alongside. The sea calmed down considerably, and with the assistance of ropes the crew were safely taken from the wreck and brought to the city. They had been exposed to the sea and cold for twenty-nine hours, and could not have survived the cold much longer. Two of the crew had almost perished.

A COMPROMISE PROPOSAL.

The American Reply Is to a Certain Degree in This Nature.

Paris, Oct. 25.—The American Peace Commissioners were in session yesterday from 10 a.m. to almost 2 p.m., when they repaired to the joint session. They took with them a carefully prepared written answer to the amended proposals of the Spaniards regarding Cuba. It is understood that the American reply is, to a certain degree, in the nature of a compromise proposal.

The consideration of the Porto Rican and Ladrones questions has been merged with the Cuban question, and all the points involved are being carried forward to a simultaneous conclusion. When this has been arrived at, the Philippine question will be taken up.

CRUELTY CHARGED.

The Spaniards Claim That the United States Is Inconsiderate.

Madrid, Oct. 25.—The Imparcial yesterday said: No victor ever treated the vanquished as the United States is treating Spain. The Government has received a grave despatch from Porto Rico, announcing that the American General there is acting towards Spain as the European nations have treated China. He ordered a Spanish steamer to embark the remainder of all Spanish troops at Porto Rico, in spite of the protests of her captain, who had orders to go to Havana to embark sick soldiers. Our Government will probably protest against such action.

Later in the day it became known that the Minister of War, General Correa, had resigned.

Lindsay Votes a Bonus.

Lindsay, Ont., Oct. 25.—A bylaw was voted on here yesterday by the property owners for the granting of a loan of $20,000 to R. Sylvester, agricultural implement manufacturer of Lindsay. The voters gave a majority in favor of the loan of nearly 500.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1898.

STAND BY ONTARIO.

Hon. Mr. Hardy is daily emphasizing his claim to being the right man in the right place as Premier of Ontario. His attitude all round towards the lumber interests of Ontario have been in favour of the people getting the best value for our immense areas of timber land. He showed this in his position as Commissioner of Crown Lands for so many years and in his legislation for securing the cutting of Ontario logs in Ontario. In defence of the rights of this Province he is ready to close with the Dominion Government in a contest involving the rights of Ontario, Mr. Hardy, like the British Government in regard to Fashoda, has put his foot down in regard to the practical demand of the United States that the recent Ontario legislation requiring the sawing of Ontario logs in Ontario, be disallowed. Hon. Mr. Hardy has issued a manifesto telling the United States plainly in effect, that the legislation complained of from their point of view is from his point of view, just and justifiable, that it is an answer, not to be misunderstood, to the hostile and hoggish fiscal legislation of the United States. The legislation complained of is the child of the Dingley Bill, which is directed specifically against Ontario lumber, while it provides for the free entry of Ontario logs into the United States, for the benefit of American saw mills. Mr. Hardy's manifesto represents a manly stand for the rights of the Province, and politely, but plainly, intimates to the Dominion Government that the timber interests of the Ontario must not be sacrificed in the interests of a desirable international treaty. If it comes to question of the success of the Quebec Treaty as against the rights of Ontario, the treaty must look out for itself. Hon. Mr. Hardy is faithful to his trust.

THE Mail and Empire calls the political fight in East Wellington a "stern fight." If a stern fight is anything like a stern chase the organ's candidate won't reach the wire by election day.

THE Conservative organs are becoming wearied of being in Opposition and are usurping the function of government. They are dissolving Parliament, and bringing on a general election at once. It's La Minerve this time.

THE good Tory organs are basing their somewhat decided objections to Mr. Tarte on the ground that he is a "Conservative." They certainly ought to know whether such an objection is well taken and justifies the vigourous berating with which Mr. Tarte is favoured.

GENERAL KITCHENER is an Irishman and that accounts for the fight in him. He has justified Conan Doyle's fervid poetical estimate of the value of the Irishman as a fighter :—

Who carries the gun?
A lad from the Emerald Isle,
Then let him go, for well we know,
We've tried him many a while.
We've tried him east, we've tried him west,
We've tried him sea and land,
But the man to beat old Erin's best,
Has never yet been planned.

General Kitchener is not only an Irishman, but like ex-Councillor Cahill, a County Kerry man and as we know taught the Dervishes how to foot the Kerry dance, the 21st Lancers setting the example—"up the centre and down again" through the writhing ranks of the Dervishes.

THE CROP OUTCOME IN OUR NORTHWEST.

WILL NOT BE SO BAD AS HA BEEN REPORTED.

Manitoba's Crop of Good Wheat Will Exceed that of Last Year—Damages Not so Serious.

(Special Despatch to the Globe.)

Winnipeg, Oct. 23.—Mr. F. W. Thompson, manager of the Ogilvie Milling Company, estimates that, despite the unfavourable weather of the fall, Manitoba's crop of good wheat will be larger than last year. He places the total yield for Manitoba and the Territories at 38,000,000 bushels. Of this 15,000,000 bushels was threshed and in good condition, while 7,000,000 bushels more was well stacked and in good order. Of the remaining 15,000,000, about 4,500,000 bushels were in stook and would be slightly damaged. Reports from country points, where threshing was resumed on Friday and Saturday, state that the grain is turning out well and in many cases has not suffered in the least from recent rains.

SAVED BY PLUCKY INDIANS.

Narrow Escape of the Schooner Bavaria in the Gale.

Manitowaning, Oct. 25.—The three-masted schooner Bavaria, Captain M. Mahoney, lumber laden from Byng Inlet to Walkerville, and owned by Kidd & Riley of Sarnia, went ashore one mile south of Cape Smith in a terrific gale of wind from the southeast last Tuesday morning. Captain and crew, some seven men, were drenched with the heavy seas and stood small chance of being saved had it not been for the brave and hardy Indians of Wikwemikongsing who, bringing a boat five miles in a wagon, after repeated efforts to launch, and with a full boat, succeeded in making a plucky rescue. A huge fire ashore with a warm meal greeted the famished sailors, and Captain Mahoney expressed warm thanks for the kindness extended to his crew and himself.

A Diamond Mine.

Worked for the Benefit of All Economical Homes.

A diamond mine! Where? Right here in our own Canada, and worked for the benefit of all economical homes.

The variety of diamonds in this mine is wonderful, and the supply is practically inexhaustible. All the latest colours are represented in these diamonds; they are of the first water, and under the most severe tests they are always found reliable true and genuine.

These diamonds are known as Diamond Dyes, celebrated all the world over for their brilliancy, purity and durability. These Diamond Dyes possess marvellous and astonishing powers. When used according to directions that accompany each one they give new life and beauty to all faded, dingy and dead-looking garments. Each of these Diamond Dyes gives a return to the user in money value of from ten to twenty times their cost.

Have you tried any of these Diamonds—Diamond Dyes? If not, then look up some old faded dress that you have laid aside, or some jacket, blouse, ribbons or hose, and give these wonderful Diamonds a trial. They will surprise you with the magnificence of their work.

Now, just a word of warning if you are a novice in the work of dyeing. Beware of adulterated package and soap grease dyes that bring only trouble, disappointment and vexation of spirit, as well as a complete ruin to your materials.

THE STOVEL INQUEST.

The Coroner's Jury Makes a Recommendation in Its Verdict.

Toronto, Oct. 25.—Coroner Spencer continued the inquiry last night at Millard's undertaking establishment into the facts surrounding the death of the late Charles W. Stovel of Walkerton, who was fatally injured at Bay and Front streets by a trolley car on Wednesday afternoon last. After 40 minutes deliberation the jury returned the following verdict:

"We find that deceased came to his death on Oct. 18, 1898, by collision with street car No. 460. The jury further say that no blame can be attached to the motorman, and they recommend that the city pass a bylaw requiring all cars to sound the gongs and slacken speed at every through crossing."

CHARGE AND COUNTER-CHARGE.

Political Battalions Occupying the Attentions of the Courts—More Election Particulars Brought Down.

Toronto, Oct. 25.—Several documents bearing on election cases were filed yesterday by Registrar Grant of the Court of Appeal. Henry Eilber, Conservative member-elect for South Huron, filed a deposition with regard to his failure to attend for examination, for which a motion to commit him for contempt of court had been made out.

More Nipissing Charges.

No fewer than four voluminous additions were made to court literature on the Nipissing election case. The petitioner, Mr. William Hewitt, makes 149 charges in all. The ordinary ones are all represented in it. Several aliens and others not entitled to a ballot voted. Other charges spoke of treating Indians, and Louis Volvis got a free pass to the Klondike. In a second document Mr. Hewitt specifies the votes to which he objects, numbering several hundred. Voting at improper hours is said to have been permitted in Nipissing.

The Other Side.

The respondent, John Loughrin, replies with counter charges of the usual sort. Railway fares, hire of teams, personation of voters, treating and money bribes are on the list. Mr. L. B. M. Robert, he says, got a loan of $50 for being chairman of a political committee. Thirty-seven is the number of accusations preferred by Mr. Loughrin. He adds a second document, in which 85 charges are made in the counting of the ballots.

Muskoka Appears.

Added particulars in the Muskoka petition are also to hand, with Samuel Bridgeland as respondent and G. E. Langford as the petitioner. Meat, drink and refreshment to farmers, free medical attendance, traveling expenses, the remission of timber dues, offers of employment, the intimidation of voters go to swell the number of charges to 107.

North Toronto Case.

Kerr, Macdonald & Company, on behalf of the Liberal petitioner, H. Summers, in the North Toronto election case, moved for a commission to examine Mr. W. Yorkes, Mr. Marter's election agent. Messrs. W. D. Macpherson and James Baird opposed the motion on the ground that the particulars had not yet been filed in the case. His Lordship reserved judgment.

Denies Drugged Liquor.

The examination of Dr. Willoughby, and of John Douglas, Liberal member-elect in East Northumberland, were filed yesterday. Dr. Willoughby denies the charges of drugged liquor, and of treating.

THE PETITION DISMISSED.

Mr. Fox, M.P.P., Will Hold the West Victoria Seat.

Lindsay, Ont., Oct. 25.—The election protest trial of West Victoria commenced here yesterday afternoon before their Honors Judges McLennan and Osler. The petitioner is Mr. P. O. Reilly and Mr. Fox is the respondent.

The court room was crowded, and much interest was manifested. There are 68 charges made against the respondent and his agents. A preliminary question as to the status of the petition was raised by Mr. Nesbitt. It was admitted that the petitioner was paid $35 by Mr. McKay, the Liberal candidate, for his services as caretaker of the Liberal committee rooms at Lindsay. It was contended that payment disqualified him from voting at the election, and, therefore from being a petitioner. The court overruled the objection. A number of witnesses were called and examined, but nothing of a serious nature was brought out.

The trial was continued last evening, and after getting into some four or five further charges and not succeeding in any of them, the balance were withdrawn, and the petition was dismissed with all costs to the respondent. Mr. Fox still holds his seat.

EAST WELLINGTON.

Speech by Hon. G. W. Ross—Popularity of Hon. J. M. Gibson.

Mount Forest, Oct. 25.—This town enjoyed a visit yesterday from Hon. Geo. W. Ross, Minister of Education. In the afternoon he visited the Public, Model and High Schools, and in the evening he addressed a mass meeting in the opera house in the interest of Hon. J. M. Gibson's candidature in East Wellington. If last night's meeting can be taken as an index of the feeling in the riding the Commissioner of Crown Lands will be returned on Thursday by a tremendous majority.

Ribbon is prettily combined with embroidery in the latest work on linen, as shown by a design in the New York

RIBBON RUN IN TABLE SCARF.

Tribune, a part of which is here reproduced. It is for a table scarf or a bureau cover of hemstitched linen or muslin. The ribbon is run in and out of buttonholed slits, leaving a space of muslin between each length of ribbon, whereon is either embroidered a bouquet of flowers or, as is often seen on linen, an applied figure in guipure. The ribbons should match the color of the flower. For instance, with violet ribbon the bouquets should be violets; pink calls for rosebuds or any other pink flower, etc.

OFFICE OF W. A. MURRAY & CO., 17 to 27 King St., East, Toronto.

Wm. McCabe, Esq., Managing Director, N. A. L.:

DEAR SIR,—In answer to your request for me to decide upon one of the following options offered me for settlement of my 15-payment Life Investment Policy for $5,000 which has matured this year, viz:

1st to take the value of the Policy in Cash..... $5,000.00
2nd, or fully paid-up insurance for..... 3,250.00
3rd, or take the profits in cash 2,050 00
and continue my policy without further payments being required from me, as a policy participating in future profits.

I find it somewhat difficult to make a decision either of the three options being so satisfactory. I am certainly very much pleased with the results offered me, and as I find many others are giving full testimony to the profit-earning power of this company, I do not hesitate to give my endorsement as well, that the North American Life is one of our strongest Canadian institutions to day giving first class results on Investment Policies, on a safe and conservative basis. I find that my policy, which was originally a Life by fifteen payments, has become an Endowment at the end of the Investment period.

Do not think for a single moment that consumption will ever strike you a sudden blow. It does not come that way.

A LAD DROWNED.

Three Boats Wrecked Without Insurance—Loss $50,000.

Kingston, Oct. 25.—Yesterday word came from Wellington that it was not Capt. Lafrance who perished off the M. T. Co.'s barge Hector, but a deck hand named Leduc, aged 18. When the barge ran ashore and the great waves went over her, Leduc, with other sailors, jumped overboard. All reached shore but Leduc, and some time after his body was washed ashore. His home is at Valleyfield. His father was on board the Kildonan, the associate of the Hector.

The tug lies in 45 feet of water; she is worth $20,000, the Hector $10,000, and the Kildonan $18,000. They were uninsured. The total cargoes, 1,700 tons, are insured. The Hector was formerly named the Glenora and had been in difficulty twice before, but came off safely. The Walker's crew signalled from Nicholson Island that they were safe.

Mule Meat In Oregon.

One day last week, while the boys were out riding the range for horses, they got hungry for meat, and as eating cattle is equivalent to eating gold they slew a young mule and ate him. They all say that it was the finest steak that ever found its way into their interiors, and we may expect a shortage in the mule market in the near future. Out of the generosity of their hearts they sent a chunk of the mule to the editor, without stating what kind of animal it was cut from, and as it looked blacker than the beef we had been used to and as we knew the boys were riding for horses and not for cattle we thought it was horse outlet and turned it over to Mrs. Journal to feed her chickens, with the result that for several days the eggs had a darker hue and a richer flavor than ever before. Had we known it was mule it might have been all right, but we draw the line at horse for table use.—Fossil Journal.

A RAILWAY DECISION.

The Joint Traffic Association Railroad Case Decided in Favor of the United States.

Washington, Oct. 25.—The United States Supreme Court yesterday decided the Joint Traffic Association railroad case in favor of the United States and against the railroads. The case is considered one of the most important that has ever come before the Supreme Court, not only to the railroads, but to the general public, and because of the vast railway properties represented by the Traffic Association. The association was formed on Nov. 19, 1896, by 31 railways, representing the great trunk lines and their network of branches. The purpose of the association, as stated in the articles of agreement, was "to establish and retain and maintain reasonable and just rates, fares, rules and regulations on State and inter-State traffic."

Justice Peckham announced the decision. He said that the court could distinguish no difference between this case and that of the Trans-Missouri case, decided a year ago.

Under the decision yesterday, the decision of the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York and of the United States Court of Appeals are reversed.

Wheat Options Advance at Chicago and Liverpool—War Talk a Factor in the Upturn—The Prices.

Monday Evening, Oct. 24.

Liverpool wheat continued strong this morning, opening at a premium over Saturday's final figures. At the close the December option reflected an advance of 2¼d, and the March option an advance of 1¾d per cental for the day.

To the war scare and to the above advance in the Liverpool market may be chiefly attributed the excitement which prevailed on the Chicago board to-day. Other bullish factors were the extremely small increase in the American visible supply and the failure of the large receipts to more than meet the heavy foreigh and domestic demand. Such bearish news as increasing Russian and Danubian shipments was not listened to, and all deliveries advanced from 2⅜c to 2⅝c per bushel over Saturday's final figures, closing at the top price. Sales of flour were made in New York on Friday to go to Italy and Australia, which is quite unusual. Two cargoes of wheat were bought on that day in New York for Mediterranean ports. This shows that Russian and Danubian wheat must be held above parity with American wheat. Argentine cables that frost has done partial harm to wheat crop, and that the weather continues too cold.

Visible and Afloat.

As compared with a week ago, the visible supply of wheat in Canada and the United States has increased 250,000 bushels; that of corn has increased 70,000 bushels, and that of oats has increased 84,000 bushels.

To recapitulate, the visible supply of wheat in Canada and the United States, together with that afloat to Europe, is 35,808,000 bushels, against 35,158,000 bushels a week ago, and 51,420,000 bushels a year ago.

Trade was fair, but prices have not improved any since Thursday. Prime beeves sold at from 4c to 4¼c per lb. Pretty good and from 4c to 4¼c per lb.; pretty good animals at from 3c to 3½c per lb.; common dry cows and thrifty young stock, at from 2½c to 2¾c, and the leaner beasts and buffalo bulls at about 2c per lb. Calves sold at from $3 to $8 each, or from 3c to 5c per lb. Sheep sold at from 3c to nearly 3½c per lb., and the lambs at from 3¾c to 4¾c per lb. Fat hogs are dull of sale, and pretty low-priced, at about 4¼c per lb. for hogs just off the cars.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

East Buffalo, Oct. 24.—Receipts of cattle, sheep and hogs during the 48 hours ended at noon to-day: Cattle, 335 cars; sheep and lambs, 77 cars; hogs, 246 cars. Shipments: Cattle, 162 cars; sheep and lambs, 27 cars; hogs, 60 cars.

Cattle—The offerings were 310 loads, including 109 loads of Canada stockers. There were too many for the volume of orders and attendance of buyers, especially as there was a large run last week. There was a small proportion of good quality of cattle, and the medium grades were a strong ¼c lower, and the half-stocker and common kind nearly ½c lower. The choice, scarce kind held up fairly under the adverse conditions that prevailed, but the bulk of the offerings were from 15c to 25c lower and weak. Canada stockers were generally of better quality, but 15c to 15¼c lower. French cows and springers were in moderate supply—15 loads—and good demand. Top grades were firm and higher. Calves were in fair supply, good demand and lower, in sympathy with the general decline. Good to best smooth, fat export steers, $4.90 to $5.20; good to best, $4.75 to $5.10; good to best butchers' steers, $4 to $4.40; common to good butcher bulls, $3 to $3.15; heifers, $2.65 to $2.85; good to best fat, $3.75 to $4; stockers, choice to extra quality, $3.25 to $3.75; common to good do., $3.40 to $3.65; feeders, good to extra, $4 to $4.10; common to good, $3.85 to $4; fresh cows, choice to extra, good bags, $50 to $65; good to choice, $45 to $50; shipping cows, $2.40 to $3; springers, good to extra, $35 to $50; calves, choice to extra, $7 to $7.25; good to choice, $6 to $6.50; calves, heavy, $3.75 to $4.25.

Sheep and Lambs—The offerings were quite liberal, 85 loads, including nine loads of Canada lambs. The quality of the stock was not above medium for the bulk of the sale, there being only a small proportion of strictly extra lambs. The general market was 10c to 15c lower. Sheep were in small proportion and firm. At the decline there was a fairly steady trade. Lambs, choice to extra, were quotable at $5.50 to $5.65; good to choice, $5.25 to $5.50; common to fair, $4.75 to $5.25; feeders, $5.15 to $5.50. Sheep, choice to extra, $4.40 to $4.65; good to choice, $4 to $4.40.

Social and Sale.

The Ladies Aid Society of St. Andrew's church will hold a social and sale of useful and fancy articles in the school hall on Friday afternoon and evening, Nov. 18th. Music and refreshments.

After-thought Raspberries.

Mr. Wm. Smith left at the EXAMINER office Monday morning a bunch of ripe garden raspberries picked on Oct. 24th. This is remarkable for this time of the year and is a practical tribute to the mildness of our climate, or rather, perhaps, of the season.

Special Meeting of Presbytery.

There will be a special meeting of the Presbytery of Peterborough in one of the rooms in the norther annex of St. Paul's church, at nine o'clock, on Wednesday. The business will be to consider a call for Warkworth to Rev. Mr. McCoy, of Toronto.

A Highway to Hawaii.

The Canadian Pacific Railway is certainly a live corporation. It can land the traveller at the Artic circle, under the shadow of the North Pole, or at Tasmania, under the southern cross, or drop him down in far Cathay, or dump him in Jankahi, in Japan. Now it has opened a highway to Hiwaii, Uncle Sam's new possession. The EXAMINER has received a pretty folder description of the scenic beauties of Hiwaii, and containing directions how to reach this new field of tourist enjoyment.

Our Autumn Leaves.

Have you noticed that the brilliant hues that usually characterize the foliage of our maples, are this year almost entirely wanting? Instead, the almost universal tint is a vivid canary, giving the appearance when the sunlight is transmitted through the gold leaf foliage, of molten gold at a gentle boil, when a slight breeze gently swayes the tremulous lungs of the tree. The absence of bright tints is perhaps due to the frostless fall weather, it being noticed that with a few snappy frosts the oxygenization of the chlorophyll results in the fantastic kaleidoscopic effects of infinite variety of positive tints.

Stockings Cheaper Than Wool.

Unusual numbers of ladies have been observed crowding into C. B. Routley's fancy goods store lately, the explanation of which is a remarkable sale of stockings, socks and ladies' woollen undervests, which has been in progress during the past week. It's quite evident the ladies know a good thing when they see it, for on enquiry it has been ascertained that the sales have mounted up to hundreds of dollars. Mr. Routley is not in the stocking business to stay, and his instructions are to clear them out at whatever they will bring, as the goods are hypothecated from the manufacturers.

Our Visitors.

To the strangers within our gates, who come here to enlist our interest in Sabbath school work, a hospital welcome will be accorded by all classes of Peterborough citizens. We extend the freedom of the Peterborough Bookstore to the delegates during their visit, and will allow them a special discount of 10 per cent. off our already low prices. They will be interested in finding in Peterborough such a bookstore as will favourably compare with the largest in any city in the Dominion. On investigation they will also find that the extent and variety of stock carried, as well as the low prices offered, are unequalled anywhere in Canada.—A. H. STRATTON & Co.

CON. MAHONEY WAS SMOTHERED TO DEATH.

HIS NECK WAS NOT BROKEN AS AT FIRST SUSPECTED.

A Coroners Jury Takes Considerable Evidence, and Then Adjourns Until Thursday Evening Next.

The jury empanelled to learn the cause of the death of the late Cornelius Mahoney, who was found dead in the Charlotte street sewer on Sunday morning, met yesterday afternoon in the council chamber at two o'clock. The jury was composed as follows:

Wm. Yelland, foreman; W. J. Morgan, T. C. Elliott, P. Lee, S. Jordan, D. W. Little, R. D. Philp, T. Barrie, J. S. Knapman, W. H. Bradburn, F. Batten, C. N. Brown, C. Cameron.

Coroner Bell, after the body had been viewed, stated the duties of the jury before taking the evience.

Wm. Creamer sworn, testified that he had seen the body of the deceased and had identified it as that of Cornelius Mahoney. He had not seen him since last week. He knew nothing about his death. He formerly lived around Springville.

Harry Brisbin, sworn, testified that he had seen Mahoney about 7.30 on Saturday night near corner of Park and Charlotte streets. He inquired the way to the gravel road. Roy Armstrong was with him. He asked the boyes to drive him to Cavanville, and later on had asked to be taken to Meharry's, which the boys did. Mr. Meharry lives on the other side of Mr. T. E. Bradburn's. He was seen again about 9 o'clock going down Charlotte street. Brisbin did not see him again after this until morning, when he was seen in the sewer trench on Charlotte street between Downey and Reid streets. There were about a dozen men near the place when he got there. There was a light at Downey street and one at Reid street. A red light in each case. Mahoney was intoxicated when he asked the boys to show him the way. Witness was not positive as to whether the electric lights were burning or not, although he thought they were. There were two red lights displayed at the sewer, one at each end of the works.

The Coroner stated that he came down town at about ten o'clock Saturday night and noticed the lights being suddenly lit. He did not know whether they were lit before or not.

Witness stated to Mr. C. Cameron that the spot where the man was found was about fifteen yards from the light, which was on the east side of Reid street. The sewer was about 18 feet deep. When the man was first seen he was under the influence of liquor and staggered, but seemed more soberer at nine o'clock, though he still staggered in his walk.

Roy Armstrong corroborated the statements of the last witness, with the exception of thinking that the sewer was about 12 instead of 18 feet deep. He thought the moon was shining. At nine o'clock witness saw Mahoney pass Donovan's store and go to the west side of Downey street. There was one light west of Downie street and one east of Reid. The sewer could be crossed at either Reid or Downie streets, the earth not obstructing the crossings. There was no protection between the roadway and the sewer on one side, the earth being all thrown one way. The excavation of the sewer was distinctly visible.

Mr. George Comstock stated that he was not the first to discover the body. Two small boys had told him at about 8.30 a. m. Sunday that there was a man in the sewer. They had pointed out the body to him. The body lay about sixty feet from the west side of Reid street. The witness went into Mr. Lytle's house and told him about the accident. Mr. Lytle telephoned to the police. The man was on his knees and shoulders. The head was under the body. Witness thought that deceased had fallen in from the south side of the sewer by the position in which the body lay. The sewer was eleven or twelve feet deep.

At this juncture the jury adjourned to visit the scene of the accident.

On resuming his evidence Mr. Comstock stated that the trench had been filled in to the extent of fully five feet after the body was found. It was otherwise in much the same condition.

Dr. Eastwood testified to having made an examination of the body of deceased, and finding a slight wound on the back of the head. From this superficial examination he could not testify as to the cause of death. After hearing the deposition of the last witness he judged that deceased was stunned and unable to breathe, dying from suffocation. There was no evidence to lead him to suspect foul play.

To Mr. Edwards witness stated that he would not judge that deceased had struck on one of the cross pieces, but rather that he had struck on the back of his head and the body had then pitched forward forcing the head beneath it.

Mr. Comstock was recalled to give further evidence. He saw three braces or props across the sewer. Of two of them, one was directly below the other. One was a few feet from the top, one about four feet from the bottom, and one about eighteen inches west of these two. The body was on the east side of the two braces. The head and shoulder of the deceased were to the north side of the sewer, with the feet extending to the south. There was a mark on one of the braces. Some clotted bloody hair lay on the ground, as though it had fallen from the brace. Mr. Lytle picked this up. He thought the man fell from the south side.

To Mr. Edwards, witness said he thought that the head had struck on the brace. It was within the possibilities that the brace might have so changed the position of the man that he might have fallen from the north side.

After hearing the evidence of the last witness, Dr. Eastwood expressed the opinion that the presence of the brace might have materially altered the position in which the body might have otherwise fallen. It was possible for deceased to have approached the sewer from either side. There was no dislocation of the neck as far as he could make out in his hasty examination.

Coroner Bell stated that he had seen the body before it was moved and he did not think that the deceased had struck the brace at all.

The jury then adjourned until Thursday evening at eight o'clock, when additional evidence will be taken.

About Coffee.

Few, very few, know how to buy coffee. A grocer who has little respect for his customers can deceive them any time. We've paid strict attention to coffee buying and ever since we began business have refused to handle any brands but the most wholesome and unadulterated. Our fresh ground coffee comes a little higher, but it always suits—it always will. We pay a big price for the best roaster bean, sometimes as big as to leave us but a very small margin of profit; but that does not matter if our trade is pleased. Our coffee mill is run by electricity, and we grind your coffee fresh on the spot every time—giving you the full benefit of the aromatic flavour of the fresh ground bean. Best results are obtained when blended with genuine Mocha (some blend with Rio, an inferior article,) at same price. Java is mild; Mocha is strong. We also keep in stock Ch. ue & Seaborn's Old Government, Java and Mocha coffees. E. F. MASON & Co, Grocers and Tea Merchants, George street, Peterborough. dw

TAKEN TO TWEED.

Chief Wilson Much Pleased With the Promptness of our Police.

Chief Wilson, of the Tweed police force, arrived in town yesterday afternoon to take the prisoner Hardy, alias McFee, back to Tweed, where he is wanted on the very serious charge of shooting with intent to kill.

An EXAMINER reporter, in conversation with Mr. Wilson, learned a few of the facts in connection with the shooting. It appears that two tough looking tramps went into Mr. Perry's butcher store on Saturday evening, just about closing up time, and immediately demanded the surrender of his money. Perry at once closed with one of them, when, it is alleged the prisoner seeing that his friend was getting the worst of it, fired at Perry and shot him in the neck. The would-be robbers at once decamped and early next morning were seen to board the west bound freight. Peterborough police were at once notified, and within a few hours word was sent back that one man had been captured.

Chief Wilson was more than elated over the capture and is loud in his praises of the Peterborough police.

The chief and his prisoner left on the midnight train last night for Tweed, where on his arrival he was met by a large number of citizens, who take a deep interest in the matter, Perry being an old and highly respected citizen. The prisoner's right name is Edmund Hardy, and he has always been associated with the tough element. He has been tramping for three years. There is one point of evidence which will tell very strongly again the prisoner. A short time ago a Tweed bank clerk gave him a suit of clothes, and these, it is said, were recognized by Mr. Perry. Tweed people are quite satisfied that their Chief of Police has earned his money for the next year, the fact being that he has no salary, only his fees, and if his description of the robbers sent to the Peterborough police was a trifle misty, it corresponded pretty well with the salary drawn.

LATER:—Chief Rozel received word to-day that Hardy alias McFee has been identified by Perry as the man who shot him. The bullet entered the left cheek near the jaw bone, shattering the latter badly. Perry is on his feet, but the bullet has not been recovered. The highwaymen got some eight dollars in silver out of Perry's left-hand pocket, but if they had searched his hip pocket the haul would have been a big one, as he carried a big roll of bills.

WEIGHING OF MEAT ON THE MARKET.

A COMMITTEE TO GET AT THE ROOT OF THE TROUBLE.

The Band Room to be Renovated—An Understanding Will be Arrived at With the C.P.R. in Connection With the Harper and Le Plante Lots.

A meeting of the committee of the whole council was called last evening at eight o'clock, and the council was summoned to meet at nine. No meeting of the council was held, however, as several matters which were to be discussed were not in readiness for presentation.

The council met in committee of the whole with Mr. W. H. White in the chair.

Mayor Davis stated that he had called the meeting for two purposes, the first being in reference to the present market bylaw. A deputation of farmers had waited upon him, and he understood the facilities for weighing meat were so poor that on a busy day the market would be over before all could have their beef weighed. The scales were in such a position that the meat became dirtied in the handling. The deputation represented that the farmers would be willing to submit to the most stringent measures being meted out to any found bringing in meat of false weight.

Councillor Dawson objected to any change whatever being made in the bylaw under the provisions on which it had been leased to Mr. Baptie.

Councillor Allen thought that the wishes of the farmers should be deferred to, as a great deal depended on the market, and it was desirable that any reasonable request it be granted the farmers.

Magistrate Dumble's letter and the evidence in the recent test case was then read, as recently published in the EXAMINER.

Councillor Cobb advocated purchasing a sufficient number of pairs of scales to give the required facilities for weighing all the beef that was brought in.

On motion of Councillor Robinson and the Mayor, the matter was left in the hands of the Market Committee, with instructions to attend the market on Saturday morning and ascertain how best to meet the difficulty.

Councillor Robertson asked what was to be done about paving the hog pens.

It was decided the season was too far advanced to take the risk of laying concrete, which might absorb the frost.

A deputation from the band was received. Mr. Jos. Crowe was the spokesman and stated that an effort was being made to put the organization on a first class footing. It was found necessary to renovate the band room which was in a bad state of disrepair. During the winter the citizens would be invited to attend the rehearsals and it would be necessary to have the place repainted and papered.

On motion of Councillor Denne and the mayor twenty-five dollars was voted to assist the bandsmen.

The second matter for which the council was called to meet in Committee of the whole, the mayor stated, was to come to an understanding with the C.P.R. regarding the siding which the company was desirous of laying to the Matthews Co. packing house. The council had assured the company, verbally, that there was no objection to a spur being laid across George street, but it was desirable to have a bylaw passed to this effect.

A discussion then arose as to the liability which the town would assume in so doing, in relation to the lots already affected by the erection of the C.P.R. freight sheds, and this old bone of dispute was the subject for an hour's argument.

The matter was finally settled by the mayor stating that he and Mr. T. F. Matthews would see Mr. Leonard, of the C.P.R., on Wednesday, and arrange for him to consult with a committee of the whole council and finally settle the whole question in dispute.

WELCOME THE DELEGATES

This week Peterborough has the pleasure of entertaining four or five hundred delegates to the annual Convention of the Sunday School Association. On behalf of the town the EXAMINER cordially welcomes the delegates, not because of the duty of hospitality to our fellow Canadians from other parts of the province, but we welcome them more "for their work's sake," for the cause they represent, a cause which has to do with moulding the religious and normal character of the men and women upon whom the responsibilities of future citizenship, will rest the demand for the work that represents the achievement of the great destiny that awaits our beloved Canada, which will be great in proportion to the fitness of the instruments in the form of citizens, who will be the chief elements in building our future. In this regard the Sunday school movement is of prime importance, as the hand maid of the church and the secular school. It is to be hoped that in the multitude of counsellors there will be both safety and practical results in the direction of unifying the forces of the Sunday school work and more thoroughly equipping them for the great work dependent upon them. The EXAMINER hopes that the stay of the delegates will be pleasant and that they will return to their homes with most pleasant recollections of the town of Peterborough, which is to retain pleasant recollections of its temporary citizens.

MACADAM PAVING.

"Asphalt is too expensive for most residential streets; brick is too noisy; cedar blocks have proved a failure.

"The good old macadam still is the best sort of pavement, and when laid, as it has been, in Wellington, Simcoe and Temperance streets, and properly maintained, as is done in England, it makes a better, cheaper roadway than any other material.

"Noiseless, clean, sanitary and easy on horses, macadam should not be overlooked for what are considered more 'modern' pavements."—Toronto Star

Many engineers and practical men will endorse the above, and so will many citizens who have the highest idea of the desirability of asphalt on business streets, but would rather have the quieter, cooler, less dusty or less slippery macadam in front of their houses.

But not such alleged macadam as has been laid in Ottawa.

No sub-drainage has ever been provided here, which is the first requisite for a good roadway. Macadam himself when asked the three most essential requirements for a good road replied: 1. Drainage. 2. Drainage. 3. Drainage. Sub-drainage, gutter drainage, and such a construction and slope of road as will ensure surface drainage, have all been neglected in the so-called macadam paving in Ottawa, nor until very lately was there any attempt to prepare the road-bed well or lay the stone properly.

The first piece of thoroughly good macadam pavement done in Ottawa will be a revelation to most people. There can be almost as much care well used with macadam as with asphalt.—Ottawa Journal.

VICTORIA MUSEUM.

It Will be Temporarily Opened on Monday, Oct. 31st and the Five Succeeding Days.

The Committee of Victoria Museum has been engaged for some months in fitting up the rooms and arranging the articles on exhibition.

This has entailed a large amount of labour, and it was deemed advisable not to open it until a sufficiently interesting collection could be presented, and also the appointment of a car etaker.

Owing to the lateness of the season, and the absence of proper heating arrangements, it will not be possible to keep the rooms open during the winter months.

The committee met yesterday and appointed a caretaker, and fixed the date for temporarily opening the museum for Monday, Oct. 31st, and five succeeding days following, during the hours from 2 to 5 p.m.

The committee requests that all citizens intending to deposit articles in the Museum, will notify the secretary or any other member of the committee, or the Historical Society, at once, so that they may be properly registered.

SEWER CONNECTIONS.

The Necessity of their Being Put in at Once—the Reduced Cost an Inducement.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR:—On my return to town on Saturday I was very much surprised to find that so few connections had been made to the sewer already completed, especially in view of the very favourable arrangement that has been made for the payment for such connections. It is evident that the property owners do not understand it, and I therefore, through the courtesy of yourself in order to bring the matter immediately before the property owners, ask you to kindly publish this letter.

In the past a sewer connection has cost eighteen or twenty dollars, and the money had to be deposited with the town clerk before the work commenced. The interest on that amount at 6 per cent. would be from $1.10 to $1.20 a year. Under the present arrangement the cost for connection is $13.50 and this amount is included in the thirty year debentures, 5 per cent. covering the interest and sinking fund, so that all that it will cost the property owner for the connection is 67½c a year, and at the end of thirteen years the principal is paid. Under the old arrangement it cost from $1.10 to $1.20 a year and the principal is never paid back. Another reason why the council is anxious to have the connections all made on Charlotte street is the fact that it will be amongst the first of our public thoroughfares that will be treated with macadam pavement, and before this work can be done it will be absolutely necessary to have all piping of every description finished underground.

Thanking you Mr. Editor, I am

Yours truly,

A. L. DAVIS,

Mayor.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS BEGIN THE CAMPAIGN.

THE OPENING SESSION HELD THIS AFTERNOON.

St. Paul's Church the Headquarters—About Three Hundred Delegates in Attendance at the Opening Session.

The thirty-third annual convention of the Sunday School Association of Ontario assembled here this afternoon, with about three hundred delegates present, and the Billeting Committee was inundated with a constant stream of incoming delegates.

Last night a very fair representation of the Executive Committee met, about thirty out of the sixty comprising the committee being present.

The reports of the several committees were presented and discussed and distributed to the several sub-committees for ultimate action. Organization statistics and the Normal Home and Primary Departments were received. The Executive met again this morning in the ladies' parlour.

The whole of the annex of St. Paul's was a busy hive of industry all the morning and up to the hour of two o'clock.

CONVENERS.

A well-equipped and officered bureau is provided at the left of the Water street entrance. Here are found the post office, telephone, city directory, etc.

Another very important convenience is provided by the enterprise of local firm, the Peterborough Bookstore. It consists of a literature table containing a splendid supply of Sunday school, church and devotional literature, stationery, etc., etc. A gentleman who has been a constant visitor at the several sessions of the convention says it is the most complete and well arranged assortment of such literary conveniences that he has ever seen at any previous meeting. It was constantly surrounded with interested delegates who appeared to show an extensive practical appreciation of the convenience.

The singing was especially vigorous and hearty, and was conducted by Mr. David Stouffer. The special hymns were printed on a sheet and distributed in the pews.

The session this evening will be at 7.30. The prayer and praise service will be conducted by Rev. J. C. Davidson, of St. John's, and the set address of the evening will be given by that cultivated Sunday school worker, Marion Lawrence, General Secretary of the Sunday School Association of Ohio.

This Explains the Milk in the Cocoanut!

Routleys Sensational Sale of Woollen Hosiery and Ladies' Undervests.

This unparalleled Sale has been the talk of the town for the past week, and the wonder has been how the goods are sold so cheap.

In answer to many enquiries, we may explain that this stock was hypothecated to protect a liability of the manufacturer, and placed in our hands to sell regardless of original cost. That accounts for the milk in the cocoanut. We have already sold hundreds of dollars' worth, but there is still hundreds of dollars' worth left. As we are not in the Hosiery business to stay, we will continue to offer the goods at about THE COST OF THE WOOL, until every vestige is cleared out. A few prices will serve to show how much we are in earnest:—

A STROKE OF GENIUS.

AN OLD WOMAN'S SOLUTION OF HOW TO MAKE A WILL.

The Young Lawyer's Story of the Unique Proceedings Which Produced an Avalanche of Feminine Fury Among the Bellicose Legatees.

"Legal practice in the country," said the young attorney who had taken a run down to the city to freshen up a bit, "is not cracked up to be anything which is right, but if I continue to have experiences similar to that which I had last week my life will not be devoid of interest.

"I was sent out by my father, whose junior partner I am, to Billerton a little while ago to draw up a will for an old woman who had about $90,000 worth of property to devise and about a dozen legatees. When I reached the devisor's house, I found that she was prepared for hereafters and emergencies of all kinds.

"She had heard of broken wills—had heard that no lawyer could draw up a will that some other lawyer couldn't break—but being a strong minded person she had her own ideas about things. She had put off making a will as long as she dared, but one day a happy thought struck her, and she concluded that she could beat the lawyers at their own game. She said to herself that wills were broken because some one didn't get something that he or she thought she ought to have or some one else had got something that he or she ought not to have. The old woman's solution of that difficulty was a stroke of genius.

"I found the devisor sitting prim and stiff in her prim and stiff little parlor, and ranged around the room were a lot of other women, all primmer and stiffer than the devisor. They were the legatees, and they were there to tell the devisor what they wanted without reserve and as freely as they would fight after the devisor's death for the same thing if it had not been bequeathed. There were two men there, but they didn't count. I didn't notice them when I went in, and every time they said a word they were promptly squelched.

"The women were of the spinster type, the kind that one likes to characterize as females, spare, acidulated and grim. I believe two of them were married, but that must have been so long before that they had forgotten it. Here were pretty materials for an argument, and if I hadn't been so young and fresh I would have collapsed at the unprecedented plan. As it was I enjoyed the situation until I was fairly in for it, and then, of course, I could not get out.

"Lest her presence should trammel a free discussion, the devisor, after introducing us all around and making the necessary explanations, left the room, and in less than five minutes the air was full of flying fur and feminine fury.

"'Well, if I can't have the white house with the cupalow I won't take anything,' said Hannah Maria, and she swished out of the room in tears, only to come back a few minutes later, having thought better of it.

"'Now, you can have the swamp lot, Susan. You know your husband allers said he'd drain it if it was his'n.' This from Jane.

"'Indeed! And have me nursin him for fever an ague all the rest of his life, caught workin down in that mire. I guess not. No, ma'am. I want the hill farm. It's little, but it's healthy, an you ain't so smart as you think, Jane Pearce.'

"'Ladies, ladies!' I interjected mildly. 'Really, I can't make anything out of this if you won't be a little more amicable. I am afraid that the testator's wise plan will be frustrated if you can't come to a better agreement.'

"A scornful sniff, punctuated by such remarks as 'Brute!' 'Wretch!' and the like, which ran around the room, was all I got for my pains. I had interfered in a family quarrel, and it was none of my affair if the family chose to decide things in a bellicose way.

"And then the row started again after a few minutes of sullen silence. It was, 'You take the medder lot and I'll take the wood lot,' or 'I think Elizabeth ought to have the cows; her husband bein so shiftless, she could sell the milk and do better.' Now they bandied about the 'phaeton' and the 'cherry bounce,' which no one seemed to care for and seemed likely to go to one of the unobtrusive males present.

"Then the fight settled thickly over the little apple orchard, and I was reduced to despair. Finally I threw myself into the breach once more with a new proposition. I would take the inventory of property and let them ballot on the proposition articled there, each piece of property going to the one having the plurality of votes, and I went to work at once to put my scheme in operation without waiting for the legatees' consent.

"The upshot of it was that the plan fell flat on the first round, when a very desirable bequest was put up, each legatee casting one emphatic ballot for himself or herself. Then there was a scene and tears and more tears, with suspicious glances at the two men whom no one thought would have dared to prefer themselves.

"I don't know how I ever came to a conclusion, but in the end I got a fair idea of what would be acceptable, and after consultation with the testator and getting her approval I drew up the will.

"But that isn't all of the story. When I came to present my bill, the devisor asked me how much I wanted. I drew a deep breath and boldly said, 'Five dollars.' She almost fainted away, and, mind you, the will bequeathed property to the amount of $90,000. When she came to, I asked her if she thought I demanded too much.

"'I'll never give it in the world—never, never, never!' was her determined reply.

"'Well, would $2.50 be too much?' She only frowned at this without fainting.

"'Well, what do you think is right?' I finally asked in despair.

"'I'll pay you $1.50 and not a cent more,' she answered, jumping at the chance to name her own figures, and I—well, you can call me a fool if you will—I took it. There'll be a dozen partition suits in that will, and I stand a good chance of getting into them.

"Yes, country practice is meager, but it is stimulating," concluded the young attorney thoughtfully as he ordered a 5 cent cigar and went out, leaving his bearer to pay for the drinks.—New York Sun.

Dr. Williams Pink Pills

HAVE CURED THOUSANDS---SOME OF THEM YOUR NEIGHBOURS.

CRIPPLED WITH RHEUMATISM.

Mr. Alpheus Mott, an esteemed resident of Morewood, Ont., says:—"For some years past I have suffered horribly with rheumatism. At times I was so bad that I was almost wholly deprived of the use of my legs, and could only get about with great difficulty. I had to give up farming entirely and removed to Brockville, where I had the best of medical advice, but with no good results. I also tried many remedies said to be cures for rheumatism, but with no better results. Some of my friends urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided to do so, and found they were doing me a great deal of good. I then moved to Morewood, where I still continued the use of the pills, steadily gaining in health and strength, until I could abandon the use of the cane, without the aid of which I could not before move about. Every ache and pain left me, and only those who have suffered the terrible pangs of rheumatism can understand the joy I feel at what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me."

A VICTIM OF SCIATICA.

Mrs. J. Palmer, now a resident of Forest, but for some thirty-five years a resident of the adjacent township of Warwick, says:—"I have for many years been a great sufferer from sciatic rheumatism, being at times so bad that I was not able to walk, I tried many remedies, and while I had temporary aid from some, I received nothing in the way of permanent relief. In fact, it seemed to be growing steadily worse and for nine months I was forced to use crutches. My sister urged me to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and they have done me a wonderful amount of good. The crutches have been discarded. I can go about as easily and feel better than I have felt for years before. I think these Pills a grand medicine."

COULD NOT SLEEP.

Mr. David R. McKay, the well-known baker, of Stellarton, N. S., writes—"I feel that I cannot say too much in praise of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I was very badly run down, could not work and could not sleep at night. My appetite was poor and I was rapidly losing flesh. I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and was surprised at the rapidity with which they built me up. In a few weeks my weight increased from 130 to 149 pounds. My appetite returned, I could sleep well, and could do my work without feeling tired. I always recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to those ailing."

Autumn Medicine.

Change of season often affects the health more or less perceptibly. Prudent people take "Spring" medicine—but Autumn medicine is just as needful. The effect of the hot summer weather on the blood makes itself felt, now that the weather is changing; you feel bilious, dyspeptic and tired; there may be pimples or an eruption on the skin; the damp weather brings little twinges of rheumatism or neuralgia, that give warning of the winter that is coming. If you want to be brisk and strong for the winter, it is NOW that you should build up the blood and give the nerves a little tonic.

will make you strong and stave off aches and pains for the winter if you take them now.

Prevention is better than cure. But it is only Dr Williams' Pink Pills that are of any use. If the full name isn't there it is a substitute—don't take it.

WEAK AND AMBITIONLESS.

Mrs. Geo. Annis, who resides near Orillia, Ont., says:—"I thought at one time we were going to lose our eldest daughter. She was run down, weak, and had no ambition. She did not suffer any pain, but just appeared to be slowly wasting away. She was under treatment from two doctors, but neither seemed to benefit her, and for nearly two years this condition of affairs went on. Having seen Dr. Williams' Pink Pills constantly and highly recommended, we decided to try them. Two months' treatment worked wonders; she gained so much strength that she is now able to do any work about the house, and her cheeks, once so pallid, now present a rosy glow of health. I gladly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to other mothers whose daughters may be feeble.'

IRRIGATION.

Eastern Farmers Not Sufficiently Wide Awake In the Matter.

"Here in the east, where we have excessive rainfall and drought, we are apt to think ourselves helpless in the matter and to depend on Providence to send us the proper quantity of moisture for our crops, and at the right time. We are helpless as far as rainfall is concerned, but many are independent, to a great extent, as to drought. Quite a share of the farmers living in mountainous or rolling sections of the country are asleep to the subject of irrigation and the opportunities they have for irrigating the whole or parts of their farm land." A farmer who expresses himself thus in Country Gentleman further says:

I know of but three irrigating ditches in use in the northern part of New Jersey, one of which I own. This has been in use for at least a century and covers four fields. As long as I can remember the water has been turned on the fields and run through the grass until near haying time, when it was turned off for the ground to dry out sufficiently for the haying to be done, after which it was again turned on and flooded the meadows as before and continued through the rest of the summer. By this method a large crop of timothy hay was each year secured regardless of rain.

We can give the water entire credit for the large crops, as they grow only within a couple of hundred feet of the ditches, after which the grasses gradually get poorer in quality and less in quantity toward the lower sides of the fields. The grass near the ditch grows up, falls down and grows up again, and we have trouble to get it properly cured when cut, unless everything favors. The hay now sells for $9.50 per ton in the mow, which shows the quality.

The ground irrigated is upland, made from gneiss rocks, containing a considerable quantity of felspar and consequently potash. The head of the ditch is by a small dam across a stream 10 to 15 feet wide, and poles are so placed in the fall of the year that most of the leaves and floating material are turned in the ditch and eventually enrich the meadow. In the spring I open the ditch at a point above ground I wish to enrich and turn out a large stream of water, and then with a garden rake stir up the muck and leaves, thus flooding that part of the field, my object being to carry the fertility down to the poorer portion of the field and past where in the preceding years it had been allowed to stop. The ditch is three-fifths of a mile long, and if it were not for the water power rights it might be enlarged and extended 15 miles along the northwest side of the valley, watering farms all the way.

Where the water is cold in summer, as, for instance, spring water or snow water from mountains, the irrigating ditch should be made wide and shallow and have a very slight grade, so that the water may become warm before going on the fields. I may be flooding the ground too much for the real good of the grass, but I am getting better crops all the time from the enrichment of the ground.

In New Jersey a farmer has a right to use water from a stream, but must turn it back into the stream before it passes a water power.

The above is my experience in irrigating grass land, but in ever so many instances ditches can be taken out by the individual or several farmers, the water being used but little during a wet season, but during a dry one extensively used, thereby getting large crops, or at any rate average ones, when, owing to the failure or partial failure of the crops of those who do not irrigate, prices are high.

Drying Wheat For Fall Seeding.

After every damp harvest, as the present has been in most localities, the grain goes into the barn with its straw not so thoroughly dried out as it should be. There is also considerable dampness in the grain itself, and this will probably cause heating of the grain in the mow. With spring grain this does not matter much, for the grain will be pretty sure to dry out when freezing cold weather comes. But whenever winter grain is grown, the seed for next harvest has to be selected from the present year's crop, and this often means the premature thrashing of the winter grain and using it while still damp as seed. To this fact is probably to be attributed the common belief among farmers that old wheat and rye are better for seed than new. In the old grain the freezing of winter and the subsequent thawing has made the seed nearly wholly free of moisture.

Entertaining this view of the matter, The American Cultivator expresses the belief that it is far better to thoroughly dry the seed even by artificial means. "We have over and over again dried seed grain in fruit evaporators such as are used for drying apples, and always with the best results in a large proportion grown of the seed that was sown. We believe that it is best to dry all grain used as seed by the heat of fire."

How to Make Good Bacon.

The secret of producing choice bacon lies in the feed trough. If any one doubts this, let him put two Poland-China, Berkshire, Chester-White, Duroc Jersey or any of our recognized breeds of hogs in two different pens, feed one all the corn he can eat until fat, and the other boiled potatoes, milk, barley or wheat ground fine and some peameal until fat (the old country way). Kill both, put in dry salt for six or seven weeks, then take out and wash and hang it up in the kitchen or drying house until thoroughly dried, then cut off a good big chunk and boil it, let it stand till cold, then cut off a few slices and you will see the corn fed meat is not so firm, is more oily and not so many streaks of lean as meat fed on barley, potatoes, milk, etc., and this is all the difference you or any one else can detect.—American Swineherd.

FLORAL ATTRACTIONS.

A Fine Bush From Japan—Showy Flowers For Decorative Uses.

Some novelties and specialties in flowers are reported upon by a writer in Vick's Magazine as follows:

The Flowering Pea Bush is a grand new plant from Japan and one that at once jumped into favor among gardeners everywhere. Our public parks now show some very fine specimens, and they attract a great deal of attention. The bush grows four or five feet tall, the branches being of drooping habit, which is especially beautiful at the blooming season, when each one is loaded with the delicate pea shaped flowers. They bloom during August and September, the flowers, a pale purple color, produced in long clusters. The plant is entirely hardy, but the top dies down each season.

The Rudbeckia Golden Glow is another hardy plant that was a favorite from its first introduction. It is entirely hardy, having originated in northern Illinois where the thermometer often reaches 25 degrees to 30 degrees below zero. The plants grow to great size, six to ten feet high, and in a short time forming large clumps, which increase in beauty every year. The blooming season is from August until frost, and the flowers are very numerous. They are of a brilliant golden yellow color, double and borne on long stiff stems. For decorations no flowers can be finer, and they are in great demand for that purpose.

Hibiscus Crimson Eye has been in our garden for two years and makes a grand display. Few plants will furnish flowers as large as a saucer, but this one produces many of that size. With us the branches die down to the ground every winter, coming up with increased vigor in the spring. Immense blossoms four to six inches are produced in abundance. They are pure white with a rich crimson center, which latter affords a fine contrast to the pure white petals. The plant is perfectly hardy, will succeed anywhere and blooms the first season.

Anemone Whirlwind is a great favorite wherever known and is especially adapted for cemetery planting. I have one in my garden, and it is a thing of beauty in the blooming season. The plant grows two to three feet high, with large, handsome foliage. The flowers are white, double, two to three inches in diameter and have good lasting qualities when cut.

Abutilon Souvenir de Bonn is one of my standbys as a winter house plant. It is a beautiful plant when not in bloom, as the silver edges contrast beautifully with the green of the leaves. The flowers are large and of a peculiar red color.

Leading Apples For Export.

American apple growers long ago learned that comparatively few varieties are suited to the requirements of the commercial orchard. Many of those which are of the highest quality for dessert use are prevented by delicate texture, unattractive color, inferior size, unsuitable season of ripening or insufficient productiveness from becoming profitable varieties even for domestic markets.

In the export trade the requirements are still more exacting, and but a few of the reputable varieties of our home markets have been found suitable for transatlantic shipment and sale. Of the thousand or more varieties now propagated and for sale by American nurserymen it is doubtful if more than 20 have been found adapted to the export trade as now conducted.

In view of these facts and for the guidance of prospective planters notes on ten of the leading export varieties have been published by the department of agriculture as part of bulletin No. 7 on "The Fruit Industry." These notes are such as to be of interest and value to apple growers all over the country, who will do well to consult them for details about the ten varieties named. These are Baldwin, Ben Davis, Jonathan, Northern Spy, Rhode Island, Roxbury, Tompkins King, Winesap, Yellow Newtown and York Imperial.

Handy In the Fruit Picking.

A correspondent has sent to the Ohio Farmer a sketch of a fruit picker that is easily made and which he has found not cumbersome in use. Take a piece of No. 7 or 8 wire and bend into the shape shown in the figure—oval, with a notch at top and bottom in which to slip the twig bearing the apple or whatever fruit it is. Extend the two ends of the wire long enough to insert into a handle. Then attach a strong cloth, sewing to the wire, as shown. It is better to solder the ends of the wire so they will not twist around in the handle. The wires at ends of the pocket should be about three-quarters of an inch apart. This lets the stem of the fruit in readily, when it is easily pulled off and drops into the pocket.

A FRUIT PICKER.

When any part of the body isn't doing the work that nature intended it to do, it puts the whole system out of tune—out of harmony. Sickness in one part of the body is likely to run into all parts of the body. When children stand a row of bricks on end, they knock the whole row down by upsetting one brick. That is exactly what happens to the health when the bowels fail to perform their proper function. Constipation makes trouble all along the line—puts the liver out of order, is bad for the kidneys—bad for the stomach. It holds in the body poisonous matter, and because it cannot go any place else, it gets into the blood. The blood carries it all over the system. That makes sluggishness, lassitude, bad breath and foul taste in the mouth, fills the stomach with gas and causes windy belching, stops digestion in the stomach, causes sour stomach, heartburn and headache. You can avoid all such trouble, for Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets CURE constipation and its attendant evils.

The carriage of a buzz-saw doesn't move very fast, but if a man stays on it long enough he will presently be sawn asunder. The process of gradual bodily decline and loss of energy which leads finally to consumption is not always very rapid, but if it isn't stopped it will presently begin to saw its way into the most vital part of the body, the lungs. There would be very little consumption if every family would keep Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in the house, and use it whenever feeling "out of sorts." It keeps the entire body in such a high condition of health and forcefulness that wasting diseases have no chance to get a foot-hold. A teaspoonful of two before meals, in a little water, gives the digestive organism power to assimilate the blood-making, nerve-toning, strength-building properties of the food.

It enables the liver and excretory system to clear the circulation of bilious poisons and remove all waste matter from the body. It replaces worn out tissue with hard muscular flesh, and changes weakness and debility into active power and nerve force.

The originator of this great "Discovery," R. V. Pierce, M. D., is chief consulting physician to the great Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute of Buffalo, N. Y., at the head of a staff of nearly a score of eminent associate physicians and surgeons. He has acquired, in his over thirty years of active practice, a reputation second to no living physician in the treatment of obstinate, chronic diseases. His prescriptions must not be confounded with the numerous "boom" remedies, "extracts," "compounds," and "sarsaparillas," which a profit-seeking druggist is often ready to urge as a substitute. Dr. Pierce's medicines are the product of wide experience and deep study. Any one may consult him by mail free of charge.

WORKING FOR RESULTS.

Definite Purpose In Poultry Culture and Effort Toward Perfection.

Every poultry breeder should have a definite purpose in view. It is not enough to breed for the best which may come from present matings. There should be an outlook toward the future. It is something to be able to keep one's stock up to the quality it possessed when it came into the hands of the breeder, but it is not what any good breeder should be satisfied to do. He should strive to improve. Each year he should expect his birds to be a little nearer perfection than they were the year before, and if his expectations are not realised he should not be discouraged and should not abate one jot or tittle from them. He should work for results.

To work successfully for results one should have in the first place a clearly defined ideal. If, his ideal is hasy, it will lead him a long journey before its attainment, because, not knowing just what he wishes to accomplish, he will be drawn sometimes in one direction and sometimes in another. If one starts for a given place, the best way to get there is to keep going in one direction. If one travels five miles one day and retraces his steps the next day, he will not progress very far in a year.

Not only should the ideal be well defined, but it should be a worthy one. A breeder of my acquaintance whose specialty is Barred Plymouth Rocks at one time determined to produce birds with good red eyes. Every bird with a pale eye, no matter how good it was otherwise, was to be rejected. Good eyes were the one consideration. He succeeded. But as the point was of trivial value the result was not worth the effort. The character of the ideal will determine the value of the result. It becomes, then, very necessary to secure a worthy ideal in order that the labor may be well rewarded.

If a breeder has a well defined and worthy ideal, he next asks himself the question, "How is this ideal to be made real?" And this is a very important query. We can only generalise upon the answer because each separate ideal requires separate treatment, but every ideal has this in common with other ideals, that its attainment requires a careful study of the material with which one has to deal. One needs to know the exact results already attained, and then he knows the distance between what is and what is desired. He needs to know the breeding tendency of his birds, for then he can prognosticate the direction in which variation will appear. Every breeder therefore should make a careful study of his birds, learn not only what they are, but how they were produced, and be keen to notice very small things. With such knowledge he will be able to mate them more successfully to produce favorable variations—that is, variations in the direction of the improvement sought.—H. S. Babcock in American Poultry Journal.

DYING BY INCHES!

But Dodd's Kidney Pills will Yet Renew Life.

Thousands of persons die in the prime of life because doctors think Bright's Disease and Diabetes incurable. But Dodd's Kidney Pills cure them both. They have cured thousands of cases.

These diseases and other Kidney complaints are as common as ordinary colds. But people don't realize that they are afflicted till the disease has eaten deep into the system. Even then, Dodd's Kidney Pills will positively cure.

Thousands of people are dying on their feet, but do not realize it. They notice one or more of these symptoms: shortness of breath, loss of memory, failing sight, ravenous appetite, pale or reddish urine, with brick-colored deposit, scalding when urinating, constipation, nervousness, pains in the loins. Their only hope is Dodd's Kidney Pills. They won't fail. They never do.

Early Molting Desirable.

It is a very important point at this time of the year to have stock molt early, says Country Gentleman. Of course it is well understood that the younger the bird the earlier she molts. This pertains to last year's pullets, and they will, if properly fed during the winter and spring, be inclined to molt during July. Still, valuable assistance can be given them to compel them to shed their feathers early. The new feathers cannot grow until the old ones are off, therefore a systematic feeding is necessary to compel an early molt. The soft morning mash becomes useful here, and it can be safely fed every other morning, and a portion of linseed meal introduced, making the component parts as follows: One-quarter bran, one-quarter ground corn and oats, one-quarter cornmeal and one-quarter linseed meal. About twice a week add a small portion of ground beef scrap to this mash, and it will be found to form a good balanced ration.

Flies For Poultry.

The Mark Lane Express tells of the Insectivora Food company of London, which is selling a new food product called preserved tropical flies. These flies are caught in the swamps and lakes of South American countries by spreading nets over the water during the night. The flies are then dried, pressed and shipped to England to be sold as poultry food. The eggs of these flies, which are about the size of poppy seeds, are also collected and sold as chicken food. It certainly is a remarkable state of affairs when English hens are fed upon flies taken from South America. —Rural New Yorker.

Clean Eggs.

Nice clean eggs always find ready sale. If they are dirty, they should be washed with warm water. A southern exchange says that if this does not take off all the stains cider vinegar will. It will pay to try this if you have a nice lot of fresh eggs that by accident or otherwise have become stained, for a dirty egg is distasteful, even if the egg is all right inside. The sight of it outside is obnoxious to the delicacy of one's taste.—Massachusetts Ploughman.

Schley's Long Legs.

A Kansas City man who was a classmate of Schley's at Annapolis says that the admiral was looked upon as the best Spanish and French scholar in the navy. His department at the academy was modern languages. "I remember one thing in particular about him, and that is his long legs. He is not noticeably tall, but his legs are of wondrous length and he can run like a deer. In the navy they never tire of telling about Schley in Korea. During the trouble there we sent a landing party ashore in charge of Schley. The boat had not more than reached the shore when out jumped the marines to make a dash for the parapets, possibly half a mile away. In the lead was Schley. In a jiffy he was far ahead of everybody, his legs working vigorously, and when the embankments were reached he had practically distanced all the others."

It is said that the soldiers who had taken Hood's Sarsaparilla stood the long marches in Cuba much better than the others.

Heads to the North.

The superstition that human beings should sleep with their heads to the north is believed by the French to have for its foundation a scientific fact. They affirm that each human system is in itself an electric battery, the head being one of the electrodes, the feet the other. Their proof was discovered from experiments which the Academy of Sciences was allowed to make on the body of a man who was guillotined. This was taken the instant it fell and placed upon a pivot free to move as it might. The head part after a little vacillation turned to the north, and the body then remained stationary. It was turned half way round by one of the professors, and again the head and of the trunk moved slowly to the cardinal point due north, the same results being repeated until the final arrestation of organic movement.—Boston Traveler

Buddhism in Burma.

Some sailors on board one of her majesty's ships at Rangun obtained leave of absence to go into the interior and lost their way. A short time afterward they were brought back by some Burmans, who had fed them and showed them the way home. The Burmans immediately returned to their village, and, though the then chief commissioner, the late Sir Charles Aitchison, endeavored to find them, in order to reward them, I believe he never succeeded. It caused a good deal of comment in Rangun at the time. I think it is interesting as showing the effect of the teaching of Buddha and how it saves the Burman from that "lust of gain" which, as you say, "has taken so strong a hold of our civilization," though I sometimes found it inconvenient living in a land where the people are so utterly indifferent to money.—Spectator.

A Howl.

An English duke, while being shown the collection of birds in a museum, asked the name of one of them.

"That's a howl," said the attendant.

"A what?" exclaimed the duke.

"A howl," repeated the man with even more distinctness, whereupon a bystander, seeing the cause of the duke's mystification, said, "Your royal 'ighness, 'e says 'it's a howl."—Sir M. Grant Duff's Diary.

WRITES A LETTER ON DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

Sufferers are at liberty to correspond with the above address and will obtain full particulars regarding the great cure.

He says: My wife was most terribly afflicted with protruding piles, and contemplated a surgical operation. A friend of ours recommended the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and less than one box effected a complete cure. We were so pleased with the ointment that I tried it myself, as I have been troubled with an unsightly skin affliction which covered the lower part of my face.

For 25 years I suffered untold agony, and was treated by the best medical skill in the United States. I consider Dr. Chase's Ointment worth its weight in gold for piles and skin disease.

Dr. Chase's large-size recipe book, cloth-bound, sent to any address on receipt of 50 cents, by addressing Dr. Chase's Company, Toronto or Buffalo, N.Y.

PUTTING HIM RIGHT.

The Small Boy Thought the Orator Wanted Information.

They were having a flag raising in a township not more than half an hour's run from Detroit, and an orator from this city went out to make the eagle scream for the assembled patriots. To the more youthful members it was the event of a lifetime, and their elders were scarcely less enthusiastic. There had been days of anxious waiting and preparation, the committee in charge were as busy as the whippers in at a political convention and the women, always the most fervent of patriotic citizens, had prepared a generous spread to be enjoyed after the more formal exercises.

When the orator mounted the rostrum, he confronted a motley assemblage, and his lips twitched with a desire to smile as he noted a little fellow on a front seat, his feet bare, his red hair bristling, his eyes sparkling and his one suspender, over which there was neither coat nor vest, fastened with a wooden pin. It was plain that to him the proceedings were no less important than those by which congress had decreed the liberation of Cuba.

"Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen," began the speaker, "what are we here for?"

The urchin on the front seat wriggled as though in pain, his face took on an angry look, indignation overcame bashfulness as he shouted in a high key, "To hoist the flag, you derned jay!"

The orator joined in the inevitable laugh, restrained a zealous citizen that was going to lead the small boy out by the ear, and from that time on confined himself so religiously to the text that the youngster liked to have unjointed himself in his enthusiastic applause.—Detroit Free Press.

The Trouble With the Rush Chair.

Every woman does not know what is the trouble with her big rush chair which looks so cool and pretty on the piazza, but which seems all of a sudden to have contracted spinal trouble and absolutely refuses to stand upright without having something to lean against. There are cross pieces of wood on the inside of the round, barrellike lower part, which prevent the chair from collapsing altogether, but the back is weak and flimsy. The New York Times explains the matter thus: These chairs are made from water rushes, and even in their utilitarian state they crave moisture. If the chair is put out on the lawn in a hard rain and allowed to stand until it is thoroughly soaked, it will dry quickly and regain its necessary backbone. If the rain does not come at a convenient time the garden hose will be equally effective and do the work more quickly. The chair dries in a surprisingly short time. It should be soaked as often as once a month.

THE BEST ON EARTH.

So Says Robert Meikle About Dodd's Kidney Pills.

London, Ont., Oct. 17.—Robert Meikle, a member of the staff of the Star Dining Hall, is kept busy answering the questions asked him by his many friends at present. They all want to know how he recovered from what, the doctors said, was a fatal attack of Diabetes.

And he invariably answers: Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me, when other earthly means had failed. They are the only medicine on earth that can cure Diabetes, and they do it every time."

If Dodd's Kidney Pills cured Mr. Meikle they will cure you. Try them.

Havers—No.

Jabbers—You have been in Hawaii, though?

Havers—No, I haven't.

Jabbers—Well, you certainly have visited the Madeira and Canary Islands?

Havers—Why, no; never.

Jabbers—But I suppose the Philippines are as familiar to you as this town?

Havers—Not much. I never was there.

Jabbers—Is that possible? Well, you certainly have visited the Ladrones and Carolines?

Havers—Nope.

Jabbers—And yet you are going to England?

Havers—Certainly. Why not?

Jabbers—Well, it seems to me I'd try to see a little of my own country before I went to foreign ones.—New York World.

MAY DUSK RAIN.

To the morn, when the gold of the taper
That mellowed the east for a space
Is lost in the fold of the vapor
That trails a torn banner of lace—
To the grain mingled musk of the daytime
Its lilt and its laughter belong,
But in the warm dusk of the Maytime
It comes like a sigh and a song.

Perfumed by the breath of the masses,
Of flower weeds, tangled and tossed,
And sweet with the death of the daisies,
The season has lavished and lost;
In the cloud woven dusk of the daytime
Its mild ministration is blest,
But in the pure musk of the Maytime
At twilight 'tis rapture and rest.

As soft as the lip of the billow
That touches the argentine sand,
And light as the dip of the willow
In waves that are buoyant and bland,
And sweet as the heart of the haytime,
And faint as the wind in the grain,
In the dusk and the musk of the Maytime
Are the redolent tears of the rain.
—Hattie Whitney in Woman's Home Companion.

Late Fall Pigs.

The only pig that will attain size enough to safely pass the winter is one that is born six or seven months before cold weather is expected. We have raised pigs in the fall, and that, too, when we had the advantage of a basement barn to provide warm quarters for them. Yet the growth during the winter, notwithstanding good feed, was never satisfactory. There is too little sunlight during the winter months, and if the pig is kept warm without sunlight it is usually at the expense of poor ventilation. Without good air no animal can maintain good digestion or remain healthy.

Breeding Off the Horns.

It is yet not a certain fact that horns can be bred off by coupling animals that have been dehorned either while very young or at a later age. It would seem after dehorning calves for a score of years, as many have done, that more or less of the young would have no ability to produce horns.—Boston Cultivator.

HEART PAINS

The Heart and Nerves are Often Affected and Cause Prostration of the Entire System.

A Kingston Lady Testifies to Her Experience in the Use of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

People who suffer from any disease or disorder of the heart nervous system, such as Palpitation, Skip Beats, Smothering or Sinking Sensations, Sleeplessness, Weakness, Pain in the Head, etc., cannot afford to waste time trying various remedies, which have nothing more to back up their claims than the bold assertions of their proprietors.

These diseases are too serious to permit of your experimenting with untried remedies. When you buy Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, you know you have behind them the testimony of thousands of Canadians who have been cured by their use. One of these is Mrs. A. W. Irish, 92 Queen Street, Kingston, Ont., who writes as follows:

"I have suffered for some years with a smothering sensation caused by heart disease. The severity of the pains in my heart caused me much suffering. I was also very nervous, and my whole system was run down and debilitated.

"Hearing of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills being a specific for these troubles, I thought I would try them, and therefore got a box at McLeod's Drug Store.

"They afforded me great relief, having toned up my system and removed the distressing symptoms from which I suffered. I can heartily recommend these wonderful pills to all sufferers from heart trouble."

BRITAIN AND FRANCE AT SEA.

"Britannia Rules the Waves."

Last May the Imperial Government issued a return exhibiting the naval strength of Great Britain and that of the leading foreign Maritime powers.

The figures for Britain and France were the following :—

	Great Britain.	France.
Battleships	53	27
Battleships Building	9	8
Battleships ordered	3	0
Cruisers, armoured	15	9
Cruisers, building	4	10
Cruisers, ordered	4	0
Cruisers, protected	95	30
Bruisers, building	24	10
Cruisers, unprotected	16	16
Coast defence vessels	15	14
Special vessels	3	1
Torpedo vessels	35	13
Torpedo vessels building	0	2
Torpedo boats	98	211
Torpedo boats building	0	35
Torpedo boat destroyers	50	8
Torpedo boat destroyers building	46	0
	473	397

It will be observed that the French navy runs to torpedo boats, which in the recent war failed to figure favourably.

Of battleships, cruisers and torpedo vessels, exclusive of those building or ordered, Great Britain has 216 and France 95.

Russia, according to the same return, has 12 battleships, 10 armoured cruisers, three protected cruisers, three unprotected cruisers, and 17 torpedo vessels—45 ships in all.

France and Russia together would have 140 ships against Britain's 216. But Britain has an enormous merchant reserve ready for conversion into cruisers that can be called out.

LIFE POLICIES AND SUCCESSION DUTIES.

The Proceeds of Life Insurance Policies not Subject to the Duty.

Insurance and Financial Chronicle,

The law of British Columbia provides that property within the province, passing by will or intestacy, shall be subject to certain succession duties. The registrar who collects this revenue demanded that duty should be paid on certain life policies, which a deceased husband had effected for the benefit of the wife. The Supreme Court of that Province decided that the proceeds of a policy, which the husband had, during his lifetime, declared to be in favour of his wife, could not be subject to duty because the money did not form part of his estate, and did not pass under his will, and also that the proceeds of another policy which was payable outside of the province, could not be subject to duty, because the Succession Duty Act was aimed at property having an actual situation within the province, and not to property which could only be deemed to be situated within by legal fiction.

IN MEMORY

OF THE LATE GEORGE FREEBURN, WHO DIED AUGUST 11TH, 1898, AGED 58 YEARS AND 6 MONTHS

Dearest father thou hath left us,
We thy loss most sadly feel ;
But 'tis God who hath bereft us,
And he can all our sorrows heal.

Oh silent grave to thee we trust
This precious part of earthly dust,
Guard it safe, oh sacred tomb,
Until we, his children, ask for room.

A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is still ;
A place is vacant at our home,
Which never can be filled.

God in his wisdom has recalled,
The bloom his love hath given ;
And though the body moulders here,
The soul is safe in heaven.

Precious father he has left us,
Left us, yes, forever more ;
But we hope to meet our loved one
On that bright and happy shore.

Lonely is the home and sad is the hour,
Since our dear one has gone ;
But oh ! a brighter home than ours
In heaven is now his own.

Peaceful be thy silent slumber,
Peaceful in thy grave so low ;
Though no more will join our number,
Thou no more our sorrows know.

Yet again we hope to meet thee,
When the day of life hath fled ;
And in heaven with joy to greet thee,
Where no farewell tears are shed.

—A FRIEND.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS.

Five Hundred Diligent Delegates in Harness.

THIRTY-THIRD ANNUAL CONVENTION

Of the Provincial Sunday School Association.

THE HERITAGE OF ROBERT RAIKES.

Live Sunday School Topics Tersely Talked Over—Important Reports Presented—Splendidly Comprehensive Addresses—Intelligent and Pertinent Discussion—A Prohibition Resolution—A Highly Successful Session—Hon. G. W. Ross Speaks To-Night on "The Sunday School as an Educator."

The opening session of the Convention began in St. Paul's church at two o'clock yesterday afternoon, with about 300 delegates in attendance. The opening devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. Torrance. The singing of the special hymns was inspiringly hearty and earnest, after which followed the brief address of the President.

Mr. J. A. Donly, president of the Association, addressed the convention briefly. He spoke of the encouraging experience he had in the Sunday school work, through the work of the convention, and briefly referred to the rules and regulations adopted for the government of the proceedings of the convention.

NOMINATING COMMITTEE.

The following were appointed a Nominating Committee: H C McMullen, Picton; R J M Glassford, Guelph; Rev Clark, Millbrook; Rev J J Redditt, Uxbridge; Dr Harrison, Keene; Rev T A Moore, Hamilton; Rev J G Potter, Peterborough; Alfred Day, Deer Park; T Watson, Colborne; Wm Hamilton, Toronto; Rev J McKillioch, Morewood; Alex McInnes, Vankleek Hill; Rev W S McTavish, Deseronto, and Israel Taylor, Clinton.

REPORTS.

Several reports from county districts were presented.

Mr. T. L. Moffatt, from West York, reported that their county association had held a most successful two-days convention at Woodbridge. Out of 67 schools 33 had reported. About 125 had joined the church during the year. Miss Jessie Abbott had done excellent work in the primary department. $210 had been contributed for missions.

Mr. J. A. Hopkins reported for North York. The 30th annual convention was held at Bradford. There were 92 schools and 831 teachers and officers, 6,784 scholars, an average attendance of 4,000. Only 43 schools had reported; 67 pupils had joined the church; fourteen schools had contributed $176 for missions.

Rev. J. Campbell Tibb verbally reported respecting the splendid work done in East York in all departments of Sunday school work.

The report for Waterloo was presented by Rev. R. Atkinson, of Berlin, and showed that they had had successful conventions. There was a large German element and fourteen religious denominations in the county. There were 134 schools and 1,470 pupils. There was one Home Department; $3,900 had been raised through the Sunday school.

Rev. H. N. Hocking reported that the work in Brantford and Brant County was at a standstill as regards the association.

For Dundas W. T. Smith reported unsatisfactory returns, but everything was otherwise in a satisfactory condition, with successful county conventions.

A report from Victoria showed that there were eleven Sunday schools, with 440 pupils, and all were in a healthy condition.

For Durham East Rev. P. Dayfoot reported that three townships were thoroughly organized. There were 50 schools meeting 52 Sundays in the year, and the Sunday school spirit was splendidly in evidence in faithful and practical work.

For Essex R. C. Weese reported 80 schools, of which 11 were colored and 9 union. Conventions were held but it was difficult to get returns. The general outlook was not encouraging in regard to Associational work.

For Halton, W. Hopkins reported all the townships organized and one or two live conventions held annually.

The report from Prescott showed sixteen schools, with 142 officers and teachers and 947 scholars.

Peterborough was reported for by Miss Laura Bennet. Peterborough county has county, town and three township organizations. The general association held a two days' convention in Lakefield, but bad weather caused an unusually small attendance. A good programme was presented with good results. The town association has not taken up any special work. The township associations had each held three conventions, which were very successful. Rev. Mr. Tibb was present at the county and two township conventions and contributed largely to their success. Besides the annual convention the Otonabee Association holds a rally of the schools, which they find very helpful. They also have a system of school visitation, reports being presented at the rally. There are two Primary Unions, Peterborough and Otonabee, both doing good work. The interest in the Home Class department is increasing. One of the township associations has a Home Class secretary who is pushing the work. There are no Normal classes reported.

North Hastings, through George Mack, reported that it was fully organized, with five local associations in active operation. There were 65 schools, 475 officers and teachers, 3,800 pupils, with an average attendance of 2,200.

An encouraging report was presented from Parry Sound district, and the zeal of the gentleman, whom the chair mentioned that he had come 200 miles to present his report, was rewarded with the hearty applause of the convention.

Mr. John Burns, from South Ontario, presented a most cheerful report. The Sunday school interests were in splendid condition, both as to spirituality, financial thrift and harmonious co-operation in extending the Sunday school work.

For Ontario North Mr. H. A. Crosby reported progress. They had 535 officers and teachers, 4,150 scholars, with an average attendance of 3,113.

The report from Northumberland recorded 60 schools, 665 officers and teachers, with an average attendance of 506. There

MR. A. J. DONLY,
President.

4,896 scholars enrolled, with an average attendance of 3,228.

The report from Norfolk showed a total of 7,000 pupils, of which 20 per cent. were members of the church.

Rev. Mr. Glassford, of Guelph, replied that they had 23 schools in the city, and that nearly every department of Sunday school work was represented.

Glengarry county represented 45 schools, 381 officers and teachers, and 3 019 scholars. Seventy-seven had been added to the church during the year.

South Hastings has had four conventions, and all of the three townships were organized.

There were reports from several other counties, but under the circumstances it was impossible to ascertain the names of those presenting them, as no announcement was made of those who presented them, and the programme time allotted to this subject had expired before the reports were all in.

THE NOMINATING COMMITTEE presented its first report, recommending the committees, which was adopted as follows:

Business Committee—R W Clarke, Rev J McVillock, Alex McInnes, Dr Harrison, Rev R J M Glassford, W R Bowman, Rev J G Potter, Alfred Day, W Hamilton, Rev J Redditt, H C McMullen, Israel Taylor, Wm Hawthorne, Rev C A Woolsey, Rev T A Moore, Rev W S McTavish, Rev T Watson, Rev R Atkinson, Dr Tilley, W S Griven, T L Moffatt, Rev T Dunlop, L Lehmann, Rev D A Thompson, Rev P K Dayfoot.

"THE BIBLE AND THE CHILD."

Prof. Hammill, field worker of the International S. S. Convention spoke on "The Bible and the Child." He began by saying that the true recognition of the importance of the relations by the subject lay at the very foundation of successful Sunday school work. He said in relation to the child spiritually he was not a believer in the usually accepted belief in the face of moral and intellectual heredity. God had distinctly declared again and again that he did not bind down the child by the doctrine of spiritual heredity. He also denied that the religion of the parent was the matrix of the religion of the child or that because the parent was religious the child should necessarily be religious also. There was no warrant for this in the Scriptures; on the other hand quotations were made to prove that the opposite was the case. Abraham's children were to be righteous because he commanded his household, not because he himself was religious. His descendants inherited not his personal religion, but were affected by his discharge of his duties in relation to his children. There was no such thing warranted in Scripture as what the speaker called "Child Confucianism," which was the doctrine that by a purely educational process applied to the will, the intellect and affections, we could build up religious life in the child. He inferentially condemned the systems of Froebel and Pestalozzi, which no matter what their educational value, were not lightened by a scintilla of Christianity, only cold intellectuality. The speaker also combatted the idea that the child did not need conversion, that the original sin could be educated out of him. He must be converted. The most essential condition necessary to build up a strong childish character was to subject them to the discipline of home—respect for parental authority. We could not over-estimate the value of this habitual insistence upon respect for and obedience of parent and the teacher in the school and Sunday school. In this connection the speaker pointed out the more respectful and obedient character of English children in relation to their parents and consequently the more law-abiding character of the English people, who, in this respect, were contrasted with the American people with their flagrant lack of reverence for law and authority, which required frequent crushing of mob law by force. The speaker believed strongly in the importance of teaching children to memorize the Word of God, which would dwell in the memory and bear abundant fruits in after life. He asserted that the prominent place taken by Presbyterians in the United States in the public, political and commercial life of the United States was due to the "shorter catechism." (Applause.)

Here a minister in the audience interjected the question: "Do they teach the "Shorter catechism" in the Presbyterian churches in the United States?

"Yes," replied the speaker. "They might do it more here with advantage."

The speaker said the undue cultivation of the childish imagination was deprecated as leading to undue familiarity with God and holy things and to consequent flippancy of speech and thought. The speaker concluded by expressing his firm belief in the conversion of the child, whose conversion was as definite in its type as that of the Philippian jailer.

Prof Hammill is an eloquent and forcible speaker, apparently saturated with his subject, whose points he presented in a most lucid and taking manner, varied with graceful word painting, which was listened to with the closest attention.

A PROHIBITION RESOLUTION.

Rev. Albert T. Moore asked permission to read the following resolution to be submitted to the Committee on Resolutions: whereas on the 29th of September, 1898, a plebiscite was taken of the Dominion of Canada upon the question of the prohibition of the liquor traffic; and whereas that vote resulted in the large majority of about 14,000 in favour of prohibition throughout the Dominion; and whereas seven of the provinces of the Dominion gave very large majorities for prohibition, while only one province gave a majority against prohibition; and whereas the vote in about two-thirds of the constituencies of the Dominion gave majorities in favour of prohibition: It is therefore resolved by this thirty-third Convention of the Sunday School Association of Ontario, composed of delegates from the Sabbath schools of all denominations throughout the Province of Ontario; that while our sister province of Quebec has given a very large majority against prohibition, and cries loudly that it must not be coerced into accepting prohibition, we would urge upon the Dominion Government, that the seven provinces which have give a much larger vote for it shall not be coerced into a continuance of the evils of legislative sanction of the traffic, and we hereby demand that the Government of this Dominion shall, as soon as practicable, place upon our statute books a law prohibiting the manufacture, importation and sale of intoxicating liquor for beverage purposes, and that a copy of this resolution be sent to Hon. R. W. Scott, Secretary of State.

The motion was seconded by Thos. W. Dyer.

Rev. R. Atkinson raised the point of order as to whether this resolution could be discussed on the floor of the convention.

The session closed in the usual form.

Tuesday Evening.

Last evening's session was well attended. Besides the delegates, hundreds of townspeople assembled in St. Paul's church, crowding that large edifice to the doors. The preliminary opening exercises were conducted by Rev. J. C. Davidson, rector of St. John's, Mr. David Stouffer leading the singing. Rev. S. J. Shorey, Rev. J. G. Potter and Mr. T. H. G. Denne occupied seats upon the platform.

Greetings were extended to the delegates on behalf of the town by Councillor Denne, who spoke as follows:—

In the absence of the mayor, who has been called to Toronto on important business in connection with the town's affairs, it has become my duty and privilege, on behalf of the mayor and of the town, to bid you welcome to Peterborough. In doing so with all heartiness I voice the feelings of the people of the town, for all who recognize the foundations necessary for good citizenship—the basal principles of morality and uprightness—must appreciate the grand work being done by the Sunday schools of the province. It may be a trite saying that the young mind easily receives impressions and retains them but it is a very true one, and in impressing upon the minds of the children of the land the great truths taught in the Scriptures, a grand work is being done for the future of the country as well as for the churches and religious institutions. As representatives of the self-sacrificing army of Sunday school workers of the province we bid you welcome and we invite you most cordially to make Peterborough your own while you are with us. It has been said that it is a weakness for us to feel proud of our town, but if so we hope it is not an unpardonable weakness, for we have a town of which we are somewhat proud. But we are not selfish, and want you to make use of and enjoy it thoroughly. We hope your sessions and that the discussions and addresses will result in benefit to the schools you represent beyond your expectations, and that the Association will be stronger and more vigorous as a result of this convention. We have had the pleasure of receiving a number of conventions this year and last, but I can tell you truly that none was received with more pleasure than this gathering, and recognizing its importance I again, on behalf of the town, bid you welcome.

WILL BE MOST SUCCESSFUL

Rev. Mr. Shorey, in the absence of the President of the Ministerial Association, extended greetings on behalf of that organization. Of all the welcomes extended to the delegates he was sure that none could be more hearty than that from the Ministerial Association, knowing, as the members did, the value of the Sunday school, which of all the auxiliaries engaged in the work of the church, none were so valued.

Rev. J. G. Potter of St. Andrew's church, extended a welcome on behalf of the local Suffered Agony With Pains in the Stomach—Hood's Cured.

The testimonials in favor of Hood's Sarsaparilla are as worthy of confidence as though they came from your most trusted neighbor. They are written by honest people who are grateful for the cures accomplished by this wonderful medicine. Read this statement:

"I was afflicted with severe pains in my stomach from which I suffered much agony at times. I was afraid to go any distance from home for fear of having an attack. I was treated for neuralgia of the heart without avail. At last my mother wrote and urged me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I have her letter before me at the present time and it reads as follows: 'My dear child, it grieves me to learn that you suffer so with your stomach. Do get a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla and let me know the result, for I am confident

It Saved My Life.'

I am glad to state that I abided by my mother's advice and I am now healthy and strong. I never think of being without Hood's Sarsaparilla in the house. It is a great help to mothers while nursing. I have given it to my baby with satisfactory results. I cannot state all I would like of the many benefits I have known Hood's Sarsaparilla to give to other sufferers. I gladly recommend it." MRS. DEFEAT OF THE FRENCH MINISTRY.

M. Brisson and His Colleagues Forced to Resign.

A VERY GRAVE SITUATION.

The Minister of War, Gen. Chanoine, Resigned Early in the Day Without Notifying His Leader or Colleagues—Serious Disorder in the Streets of Paris —Cable News.

Paris, Oct. 26.—There was considerable disorder about the approaches of the Palais Bourbon when MM. Deroulede, Millevoyo and other deputies arrived, accompanied by a crowd of supporters. Members of the League of Patriots, who were crossing the Peace de la Concorde, shouted "Vive l'Armee," and the Republican Guards were obliged to clear a passage. A conflict with the police soon occurred. A band of anti-Semites attacked and injured a commissary of police with loaded sticks. The ringleader, M. Gourin, President of the Anti-Semitic League, was arrested.

M. Drumont, the anti-Semite leader, then arrived, and there were further disturbances, cries of "Down with the Jews" and cheering for France. A detachment of cuirassiers charged and dispersed the mob. Several arrests were made. The session of the Chamber of Deputies had no sooner opened than M. Deroulede made a violent attack upon the Minister of War, General Chanoine, whereupon the latter arose and explained the conditions under which he accepted the portfolio. In so doing he declared that he was of the same opinion as his predecessors, evidently referring to the question of reopening the Dreyfus case, a remark which was greeted with cheers and protests, the uproar lasting five minutes.

When General Chanoine was able to resume speaking, he asserted that he was the guardian of the honor of the army, and concluded with saying, angrily: "I place in your hands the trust I received, and I tender my resignation in this tribune."

The announcement was received with loud cheering. General Chanoine then left the Chamber of Deputies, and the Premier, M. Brisson, ascended the tribune. There he was greeted with shouts of "Resign," while the Leftists cheered him lustily.

General Chanoine, the French Minister of War, who has just resigned, was only appointed on Sept. 17.

M. Brisson said General Chanoine's declaration was a complete surprise to him, as the General had been present at the Cabinet meeting, which decided to submit the documents in the Dreyfus case to the Court of Cassation. The General, M. Brisson continued, did not raise any objection.

Continuing, the Premier remarked that the Government was fully determined to uphold the civil power against the military, and he asked for a suspension of the business of the Chamber, which was granted. During this suspension, M. Brisson went to the Elysee Palace, in order to communicate to President Faure the resignation of General Chanoine.

About 10,000 people sang the "Marseillaise" around a bonfire, made of the Dreyfusite paper, entitled "Les Droits de l'Homme" ("The Rights of Man"). All the stores in the neighborhood were closed in anticipation of rioting, and finally the cuirassiers, assisted by the mounted Republican Guards, succeeded in driving back another crowd which was shouting "Spit upon Brisson."

By 4 o'clock in the afternoon about 150 arrests had been made. The crowds were continually augmented until the vicinity of the Chamber of Deputies was black with people cheering General Chanoine and the army.

BRISSON CABINET FALLS.

By a Vote of 286 to 254 He Was Defeated in the Chamber and Threw Up the Sponge.

Paris, Oct. 26.—During the suspension of the business of the House, the discussion in the lobbies was animated on General Chanoine's unprecedented course in resigning in the midst of a session, and without giving a previous hint of his intention to his colleagues.

When the session was resumed, the order of the day was proposed by M. Ribot, affirming the supremacy of the civil over the military power, and it was adopted by a vote of 559 to 2.

An amendment proposed by M. Berden, censuring the government for "not causing the honor of the army to be respected" was lost. The vote stood 274 noes and 261 ayes.

M. de Mahy proposed a resolution calling upon the government to "end the campaign of insult against he army."

M. Brisson refused to accept the motion and a vote on it was taken amid such confusion that scrutiny was demanded.

Scrutiny of the vote upon M. de Mahy's resolution showed that the Government was defeated.

After the Chamber of Deputies had resumed business at 5 o'clock, M. Brisson announced that the "irregular resignation" of General Chanoine had been accepted.

The Premier proposed that the Chamber adjourn until Thursday next, and he concluded his remarks with re-affirming the supremacy of civil power.

M. De Mahy proposed a resolution, calling upon the Government to "end the campaign of insult against the army," but M. Brisson refused to accept it.

M. Cavaignac, the former Minister of War, rushed to the tribune, and demanded an immediate discussion of the resolution. He was greeted with hostile shouts, including "Sabre!" "Forgery!" "Razor!" which caused a great uproar. The shouting of the word "razor" was probably an allusion to the suicide of the late Lieut.-Col. Henry.

M. Brisson accepted the order of the day, proposed by M. Ribot, affirming the supremacy of the civil over military power which was adopted by a vote of 259 yeas to 2 nays.

An amendment, proposed by M. Berger, censuring the Government "for not causing the honor of the army to be respected," was lost by 274 to 261 votes.

M. de Mahy again proposed his resolution calling upon the Government to "end the campaign of insult against the army."

The Premier refused to accept the motion, however, and a vote was taken on it amid such confusion that scrutiny was demanded. Later this showed that the Government had been defeated by a vote of

After the result of the scrutiny had been announced, M. Berteaux moved a vote of confidence in M. Brisson, which was rejected by 286 votes to 254.

When this vote was declared the Minister left the Chamber.

After the Ministers had withdraw the Cahmber adopted amid cries of "Down with the Jews!" the order of the day, combining the motions of M. Ribot and M. de Mady, by a vote of 400 to 28.

A fresh tumult was aroused by the declaration of M. de Baudry d'Asson, that all the Ministers except General Chanoine ought to be impeached.

The Chamber adjourned to Nov. 4.

It is the general impression among the deputies, that President Faure will invite M. Alexandre Ribot to form a Cabinet.

M. Brisson went to the Elysee at 7 o'clock.

President Faure has signed the appointment of M. Lockroy, Minister of Marine, in the retiring Cabinet, as Minister of War ad interim.

Whn accepting the resignation of the Ministry, M. Faure begged M. Brisson and his colleagues to continue to act until the formation of the new Cabinet.

Intense Excitement.

After the adjournment of the Chamber there was intense excitement, followed by street demonstrations, principally maintained by the anti-Semites, led by M. Drumont, in the vicinity of the offices of the Libre Parole and other anti-Dreyfus papers.

At many points the boulevards soon became almost impassable, and there were numerous collisions between the demonstrators and the police, who had been fasting since early morning. Only with the utmost difficulty was a semblance of order preserved, and in many cases it was necessary for the cuirassiers to clear the streets.

The Mob Rampant.

Paris, Oct. 26.—(1 a.m.)—About midnight a mob of members of the Patriotic League smashed the windows and glass staircase of a shop, whose owner is said to be a Jew, at the corner of the Rue Auber and the Rue Scribe.

The Vigilance Committee of the Socialistic party issued last night a manifesto condemning the action of General Chanoine and denouncing the "make-believe Republicans who have strangled debate in the Chamber and created a crisis."

The committee has decided to organize all the Socialists and revolutionary Republican forces in the country against "military and clerical re-action."

M. Faure received no statement last night, but he will consult this morning (Wednesday) with the presidents of the Senate and the Chamber of Deputies.

MUST QUIT FASHODA.

Resolute Tone of British Papers—Britain's Control of the Nile Must Be Undisputed—War Preparations.

London, Oct. 26.—All interest yesterday centered in the Marquis of Salisbury's addition to the Fashoda correspondence, contained in the publication of the British blue book on that subject. The Conservative newspapers express themselves as being highly pleased with his rejoinder to the French yellow book on the same subject. They declare that it dispels the idea spread by the despatch of the French Ambassador here, Baron de Courcel, that the British Premier was willing to negotiate on the whole question, that the Liberal and Radical organs still consider that the Marquis of Salisbury's attitude admits of negotiations promising friendly arrangement.

The entire press, however, scouts the idea of the possession of Fashoda causing within the sphere of the discussion.

The St. James' Gazette says: "We are prepared to negotiate the question of the Western frontier of the Bahr-el-Ghazal district, but we must control the Nile, both banks and watersheds, from its source to the sea.

The Globe thinks the Marquis of Salisbury has made it clear that Major Marchand must quit Fashoda without conditions, adding: "Until that is done there can be no discussion of the French claim in Africa."

The Westminster Gazette suggests a solution that the French be granted "way leave" and "enclave" for commercial purposes in the Bahr-el-Ghazal district.

The French papers yesterday were hopeful, and believe that a pacific solution of the dispute will be found.

Active War Preparations.

The English newspapers are full of naval particulars, but the only fresh development is an order received at Portsmouth to prepare all the ships of the fleet and the reserve for immediate mobilization. Eight additional warships there in consequence commenced coaling yesterday morning and working parties were immediately placed on board the other reserve vessels at Portsmouth.

An interesting feature of the Fashoda situation was the appearance yesterday evening on the stump of Lieut. Winston Churchill, the son of Lady Randolph Churchill. The Lieutenant, who has just returned from the Soudan, made an eloquent speech before a crowded audience, which included his mother. His resolute advice to the Government not to yield was received with ringing cheers.

French Yellow Book.

Paris, Oct. 26.—The French yellow book, dealing with the part France took in the Spanish-American war was published yesterday. It comprises seventeen of the documents, and consists of a dry record of the exchange of despatches with Madrid and Washington while arrangements were being made for the mediation of France.

The Peace Commission.

Paris, Oct. 26.—The American Peace Commission yesterday was in session during the whole afternoon. The deliberations had no relation to the question of the Cuban debt, upon which question the attitude of the United States has been determined strictly. The Philippine question was discussed.

English Officers Ordered Home.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—"All officers of the English army and navy on absent leave in this country have been ordered in readiness to return home." This statement was made yesterday in this city by Major James R. Graham of Her Majesty's Yeoman Cavalry. The order, which he had just received, he said could have but one significance. It meant that England did not intend to allow any nation to anticipate it in preparation for war. Major Graham thinks war with France is almost certain.

THE BEST ON EARTH.

So Says Robert Meikle About Dodd's Kidney Pills.

London, Ont., Oct. 17.—Robert Meikle, a member of the staff of the Star Dining Hall, is kept busy answering the questions asked him by his many friends at present. They all want to know how he recovered from what, the doctors said, was a fatal attack of Diabetes.

And he invariably answers: Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me, when other earthly means had failed. They are the only medicine on earth that can cure Diabetes, and they do it every time."

If Dodd's Kidney Pills cured Mr. Meikle they will cure you. Try them.

Tweed, Oct. 26.—The man arrested at Peterboro on suspicion of being one of the assailants of Mr. R. S. Perry, on Saturday evening last, was brought here and given a preliminary trial yesterday morning. Mr. Perry positively identified the prisoner as the man he grappled with, and other witnesses also testified to seeing him in the village on Saturday evening. He was sent to Belleville for trial. The other desperado is still at large.

Prohibitionists Going Into Politics.

Barrie, Oct. 26.—The prohibitionists of North Simcoe will meet in convention next Monday at Stayner for the purpose of deciding what course to take in the approaching bye-elections. The intention is to pledge one of the candidates, or failing that, to run a straight prohibitionist. With a majority of over 500 in the riding, temperance people think they have the controlling hand, and purpose working it for all they are worth.

Wm. McCabe, Esq., Managing Director, N. A. L.:

DEAR SIR,—In answer to your request for me to decide upon one of the following options offered me for settlement of my 15-payment Life Investment Policy for $5,000 which has matured this year, viz:

1st to take the value of the Policy in Cash..... $3,000.00
2nd, or fully paid-up insurance for..... 3,220.00
3rd or take the profits in cash 2,080 25
and continue my policy without further payments being required from me, same policy participating in future profits.

I find it somewhat difficult to make a decision either of the three options being so satisfactory. I am certainly very much pleased with the results offered me, and as I find many others are giving full testimony to the profit-earning power of this company, I do not hesitate to give my endorsement as well, that the North American Life is one of our strongest Canadian institutions to day giving first class results on Investment Policies, on a safe and conservative basis. I find that my policy, which was originally a Life by fifteen payments, has become an Endowment at the end of the Investment period.

ALL ALIVE AT HALIFAX.

H.M.S. Pallas and Talbot Ordered to Take Supplies When They Arrive—To Sail for French West Indies.

Halifax, Oct. 25.—Great activity prevails in naval circles on this station. Yesterday morning the cruisers Pallas and Talbot arrived from the eastward, and the officers on the ships expected that after their busy season in the south they would at least have a respite of a few days. They were, however, disappointed, and hardly had the vessels dropped anchor when they were ordered to the dockyards to take supplies. Admiral Fisher had issued orders that the ships should be in readiness to sail at daylight to-day.

At first it was impossible to obtain any definite information concerning the destination of the men-of-war, but it was finally learned that both had been ordered to the French West Indies.

In naval circles the action of the Admiral is regarded as surprising. The vessels were to have taken part in the naval and military manoeuvres Friday and Saturday, and the sudden change of orders caused a great sensation among the officers and men.

When any part of the body isn't doing the work that nature intended it to do, it puts the whole system out of tune—out of harmony. Sickness in one part of the body is likely to run into all parts of the body. When children stand a row of bricks on end, they knock the whole row down by upsetting one brick. That is exactly what happens to the health when the bowels fail to perform their proper function. Constipation makes trouble all along the line—puts the liver out of order, is bad for the kidneys—bad for the stomach. It holds in the body poisonous matter, and because it cannot go any place else, it gets into the blood. The blood carries it all over the system. That makes sluggishness, lassitude, bad breath and foul taste in the mouth, fills the stomach with gas and causes windy belching, stops digestion in the stomach, causes sour stomach, heartburn and headache. You can avoid all such trouble, for Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets CURE constipation and its attendant evils.

Send 31 cents in one cent stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N.Y., for his "Medical Adviser." It is a book of 1008 pages, profusely illustrated.

IN SOUTH ONTARIO.

Hon. John Dryden and Mr. Charles Calder Nominated.

THE MINISTER A SURE WINNER.

The Proceedings at the Nomination—A Public Meeting Held With Sheriff Paxton as Chairman—It Was Addressed by the Candidates and Several Other Prominent Speakers.

Whitby, Oct. 26.—For the next week the excitement over the bye-election in South Ontario, which is already great, will be at fever heat. The two contestants for the honor of representing the riding in the Legislature are now formally in the field, and the battle will rage fiercely for seven days longer. The Liberals are hugely pleased with the result of the canvass which the Minister of Agriculture and his friends have made, and are certain that the doubtful victory which the Conservatives achieved on March 1 last will have been turned into a signal defeat for Mr. Whitney's supporter when the ballots are counted up on the evening of November 1. Hon. John Dryden has a record as a Parliamentarian and administrator that any man might envy. His enemies, conscious last March that he could not be defeated by fair means, sought to do so by proceedings that resulted in Hon. Mr. Dryden being kept out of his seat for a session. Mr. Charles Calder, the Conservative candidate, is not by any means as confident as he was ten days ago. Yesterday, and for a week past, it has been plain to every man who knows the riding that Hon. John Dryden is the most popular man in the riding.

The Music Hall was fairly well filled in the afternoon, when, at 2 o'clock, Sheriff Paxton, the returning officer, rose and announced that he had received two nominations. They were:

The Same Two Candidates.

Hon. John Dryden, nominated by Mr. R. R. Mowbray of Pickering Township, seconded by Mr. James Bartlett of East Whitby.

Mr. Charles Calder, nominated by Mr. Arthur Johnson of Pickering Township, seconded by Mr. J. H. Long of Whitby.

The hall filled up, including in the number many ladies, who occupied the gallery, when the speaking began and the two parties were pretty evenly divided. Feeling is already running high over the election, and many interruptions of the speakers made the proceedings rather lively. Friends of Hon. Mr. Dryden are working with a will to return the Minister of Agriculture, and the Opposition are fighting as hard.

The candidates spoke and were followed by Messrs. J. O'Reilly of Prescott; A. Pattullo, M.P.P., Woodstock, and G. P. Graham, M.P.P., Brockville, for the Minister of Agriculture, and by Messrs. W. H. Bennett, M.P.P. for East Simcoe; W. H. Hoyle, M.P.P. for North Ontario, and A. F. Campbell, for Mr. Calder.

THE TROUBLE IN JAMAICA.

Thousands of Starving Unemployed Who Cannot Get Upon the Land.

Kingston, Jamaica, Oct. 26—For the last two or three weeks the attention of the outside world has been especially directed to this island by the incipient condition of rebellion, said to have been reached by alleged Maroon tribesmen, who inhabit the mountain fastnesses of the eastern and western ends of the island. The "formidable mountain tribesmen" of Jamaica are nothing but a mythical survival of a historic people that practically ceased to exist a generation ago.

The recent trouble is no more or less than the old land question, raised to an acute crisis by the deplorable industrial condition of the island. Owing to the success of European bounty-fed beet sugar in killing the West Indian cane sugar industry, nearly all the sugar estates have been abandoned. Fruit cultivation has been substituted to a large extent, but this cannot support a teeming population of 700,000, as the sugar industry did and could. The result is that the island is to-day overrun by thousands of unemployed, and, for the most part, starving laborers, negroes, of course.

It is quite true that no one need starve in this tropical paradise, where the land answers profusely to the mere tickling. But that presupposes possession of the land, and just here the trouble comes in. The land, the available land, at least, is held by landlords and cannot be got by the working people. The peasant proprietary form a comparatively small class of the population. Many landlords will neither sell nor rent their lands. Those who agree to do so, impose the condition that bananas are not to be cultivated, as their cultivation might glut the market, where the landlords now enjoy a monopoly. And, as nothing else that has a quick growth finds a market in these days, the people decline to take up land on such terms.

It is inevitable that such a condition of affairs should create widespread popular dissatisfaction.

This Explains the Milk in the Cocoanut!

Routleys Sensational Sale of Woollen Hosiery and Ladies' Undervests.

This unparalleled Sale has been the talk of the town for the past week, and the wonder has been how the goods are sold so cheap.

In answer to many enquiries, we may explain that this stock was hypothecated to protect a liability of the manufacturer, and placed in our hands to sell regardless of original cost. That accounts for the milk in the cocoanut. We have already sold hundreds of dollars' worth, but there is still hundreds of dollars' worth left. As we are not in the Hosiery business to stay, we will continue to offer the goods at about THE COST OF THE WOOL, until every vestige is cleared out. A few prices will serve to show how much we are in earnest:—

A MANITOBA MAN

Suffered Agony From Kidney Disease.

Doan's Kidney Pills have Completely Cured Him.

There is scarcely any place in this Dominion where Doan's Kidney Pills are not held in high esteem on account of their wonderful power in conquering kidney diseases and disorders after other remedies fail.

Mr. Alexander Fraser, a well-known and prosperous farmer of Miami, Man., went the rounds of other remedies—they failed to relieve his suffering and cure him—Doan's Kidney Pills did. His experience therefore is well worth reading:

"I got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills from the Miami Drug Store, determining to give them a chance to cure me of the kidney complaint, from which I have suffered for some time, and which has become so bad latterly that I could scarcely endure it. I may say that it resulted from a fall which I received a few months back. After using several kidney pills and cures of several kinds, but without receiving any benefit, I am pleased to testify to the great benefit I have derived from Doan's Kidney Pills. I have used only one box up to this date, and the change in my condition is so great that I cannot refrain from recommending them to any person afflicted as I have been, or troubled with any kidney disorder, for I believe that if they would cure me they would cure almost any case. I will be able to resume my farm work now, as usual, and it is not the lightest work either." ALEX FRASER.

Doan's Kidney Pills are a specific remedy for Backache, Lumbago, Bright's Disease, Dropsy, Diabetes, Rheumatism, and all Urinary Troubles. Price 50c. a box, or three boxes for $1.25, at all druggists. The Doan Kidney Pill Co., Toronto, Ont.

DEADLY CATARRH

has fastened its relentless grip upon some member of nearly every family in the land. Competent authorities estimate that from eighty to ninety per cent. of the entire population of this continent suffer from some form of this repulsive and dangerous malady. If you or any of your family suffer either from recognized catarrh or from the lingering colds which mark its early stages—don't trifle with it. It is the precursor of consumption and death.

Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder

never fails. It is the remedy of all remedies, endorsed by the most experienced and eminent nose and throat specialists of the day, and having a record of a multitude of radical, permanent cures of chronic cases which had been declared incurable. It also cures cold in the head, influenza, hay fever, loss of smell, deafness, sore throat, tonsilitis, asthma and all similar diseases. It is delightful to use.

"I have had chronic catarrh ever since the war," says J. C. Taylor, of 210 N. Clinton Ave., Trenton, N. J. "I had despaired of ever being cured. I used three bottles of Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder and my catarrh has entirely left me." Rev. C. E. Whitcombe, rector of St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, Hamilton, Ont., was a great sufferer. He used Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder, and now proclaims it a safe, simple and certain cure. The Lord Bishop of Toronto, Can., recommends the remedy over his own signature. Sold by druggists.

Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart relieves heart disease in 30 minutes. Dr. Agnew's Liver Pills—20c. for 40 doses—are the best. Dr. Agnew's Ointment relieves in a day eczema, tetter and all skin diseases. Cures piles in a to 5 nights. 35c. 3

Our Visitors.

To the strangers within our gates, who come here to enlist our interest in Sabbath school work, a hospital welcome will be accorded by all classes of Peterborough citizens. We extend the freedom of the Peterborough Bookstore to the delegates during their visit, and will allow them a special discount of 10 per cent. off our already low prices. They will be interested in finding in Peterborough such a bookstore as will favourably compare with the largest in any city in the Dominion. On investigation they will also find that the extent and variety of stock carried, as well as the low prices offered, are unequalled anywhere in Canada.—A. H. Stratton & Co.

About Coffee.

Few, very few, know how to buy coffee. A grocer who has little respect for his customers can deceive them any time. We've paid strict attention to coffee buying and ever since we began business have refused to handle any brands but the most wholesome and unadulterated. Our fresh groud coffee comes a little higher, but it always suits—it always will. We pay a big price for the best roaster bean, sometimes as big as to leave us but a very small margin of profit; but that does not matter if our trade is pleased. Our coffee mill is run by electricity, and we grind your coffee fresh on the spot every time—giving you the full benefit of the aromatic flavour of the fresh ground bean. Best results are obtained when blended with genuine Mocha (some blend with Rio, an inferior article,) at same price. Java is mild; Mocha is strong. We also keep in stock Chase & Sanborn's Old Government, Java and Mocha coffees. E. F. Mason & Co, Grocers and Tea Merchants, George street, Peterborough. dw town and county Sunday School Association. No force, the speaker said, was driving the different denominations so close together, as the heart and soul of the church—the Sunday school.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS

Rev. R. J. M. Glassford, of Guelph, was asked to respond for the Association. Good accounts of the town, he stated, had been received all through the west and through the east, he presumed, as well. The greetings just expressed were as cordially received as extended and thanks given to the various speakers for the kindly welcome. He stated that the presence of the members and their intercourse with the citizens would be one of the pleasant things that would remain with both until the end of their days.

MR. ALFRED DAY,

General Secretary, was then introduced, his subject being "Soul Power in Sabbath School Teaching." Just as a rower controlled his boat, just so, stated the speaker, did the soul control the movements of the body. The soul was the breath of God given for the purpose of directing the impulses of life. The inbreathing of God continued through life in this manner. Men empowered by the spirit of God had become the heroes of the Christian church and were filled with the Divine spirit strengthening them against the physical powers. If more of this spirit was imbued in Sunday school workers, all minor things would fall aside and give place to that for which He has specially commissioned His people. To rightly interpret the word of God we must be more in touch with His spirit. There must be more faith, not credulity, in His purposes. Great achievements were never attained by sceptics. Columbus expected to find America, and so the attitude of understanding God was not that of scepticism, but of faith. There was an utter impossibility of reaching a boy and girl unless the soul power was possessed. Mere moral influence would mean nothing. This soul power had a wonderful influence in giving tack and watching for the signs of spiritual influence in the boys and girls, which would tell for so much in future years. Tack was touch. This soul power was needed in order to leave definite impression on the boys and girls who were taught. If this inbreathing of the spirit was possessed an experience was given that was double proof and would defy the suggestions of men and devils. Men would take knowledge from it, not that we were with Jesus but that Jesus was with us. It would be an experience that could not be controverted. Our lives would have a marvellous influence, in the adaptability to our work. Sunday school teachers were fishers of boys and girls. Great care had to be taken in the SELECTION OF THE BAIT.

Common sense and discretion was needed in knowing when there was a bite. The inbreathing of Christ was what was wanted to tell when to pull in. It would not do to put the rod over a log and let the bait drift about as was sometimes done in angling for fish.

As arrows in the hand of a mighty man, so are the children in the hands of their parents, in the hands of public school teachers and in the hands of Sunday school workers. They were perfectly in control when in the hand, but once the string was loosed they were beyond control forever, and were gone to rankle in the heart of the King or in the heart of the King's enemy.

Mr. Marion Lawrence, of Ohio, then spoke on the subject, "The Sabbath School as a Power in the World." He opened by stating that so far as Sunday school workers were concerned annexation was not necessary. All were one. He felt as though he was annexed already. He was present freighted down with loving messages from his state. No worker in the United States was better known than the General Secretary in Canada, Mr. Alfred Day, the last speaker.

It was a true saying that where things were growing, one former was worth a thousand reformers. Under no condition was this more true than as applied to the Sunday school. A glimpse of the dawn in Sunday school work was just being obtained. Although tremendous gains had been made in the last century in this work still there were many who did not know what a Sunday school was. It was not an institution. It was not a children's church. Not at all. Nor was it the nursery of the church.

THE VERY IDEA

conveyed in that expression was the millstone around the necks of the workers today. A nursery was where the babies were kept. The prevalent idea at present was that the Sunday school was for children. This was a mistake. Nothing would do the Sunday school more good that if the grown up people would report in the Sunday school ready for service. It was a serious problem keeping the young men in the Sunday schools. It had to be done by building a wall of fathers between them and the door. The parents were responsible for the dearth of young people in the Sunday school. The superintendents were also responsible. They used the phrase "children" too much. These young people did not want to be called children. It was all right to make the Sunday schools child-like, but not childish. These childish hymns didn't do for the Sunday school proper. Young men saw the absurdity of this and resented it.

Nevertheless the Sunday school had made tremendous progress. No other movement had advanced so rapidly. It was the grandest success that the sun of the 19th century had shone upon.

The character of the work done by the Sunday school was a sufficient reason for stating that it was a power. In it there should be the Bible studying service of the church. The Bible was behind the times, yes, just as the wind was behind the ship. If it wasn't there, there

WOULD BE NO PROGRESS.

The Sunday school attendance aggregated twenty-four millions, more than half of these were in the United States and the British provinces. Last Sunday over a million teachers went out to work. About eighteen millions of the scholars studies the same lessons. The Sunday school was a great power because of the showing of its workers. They were the cream of the province. The cream of the world was found in the churches and the cream of the churches were in the Sunday school. Anyone feeling like skim milk, should go to work in the Sunday school and get enriched. Any pastor could tell that his best workers were in his Sunday school.

Another reason for the speaker believing the Sunday school was a power in the world, was that it developed Christian workers. The Sunday school opened the way for other Christian work. It developed churches, and many a church reared its steeple to heaven which would never have existed but for the little Sunday school from which it started.

The wealth of literature was another indication of the Sunday school's power. The brightest minds in the world were focussed on the Sunday school papers and on the commentaries.

Still another indication of its power was the manner in which it united different denominations. The Sunday school didn't stand for organic union. It stood for something better—in united action and

CORDIAL CO-OPERATION.

This Sunday school idea not only united denominations but it united nations. This was illustrated at the World's Convention at St. Louis.

The great point was that the Sunday school power was shown by its great evangelizing influence. Out of every hundred who join the church eighty-three come out of the Sunday school. The Sunday school was the field that yielded four times as much to the church as all others of its branches, and yet only one-fifth of the workers donated their time to it. The Sunday school was like the Gulf Stream, widening as it progressed and warming everything it touched.

The next number on the programme was an address by Prof. H. M. Hamill on "The World's Third Sabbath School Convention." To this the speaker went, as well as two hundred and fifty other delegates from the United States and Canada. The party embarked together on the Canadian "Caledonian," and remained eleven days in London. The professor was much impressed by the English courtesy extended to him, by the Sabbath keeping and the simple honesty encountered everywhere. No one took advantage of the stranger within their gates.

The convention was a great one. The Lord Mayor of London received the delegates at his mansion, of which he gave them the freedom. A little incident which was very touching took place at the opening session, when four wreaths were presented by the London Sunday School Union in loving remembrance of four of the delegates who were drowned in the ill-fated Burgoyne.

The convention was conducted with promptness. Everything was carried forward on time as far as practicable. The most noted speakers had to cease speaking when the president's bell rang. While Sunday schools were growing in Wales, Ireland and England, they were not prospering in Scotland. The International system was not in vogue in Scotland. Amongst the noted speakers were Bishop Fowler and Canon Fielding. Maxwell, the coloured man from the South, was a centre of interest. Another man who commended himself to all was Ikehara, the little Jap, who has already returned to Japan to take up his life work there. The singing of the London children was most delightful, being the sweetest the speaker ever heard. Five thousand of them charmed the visitors for over an hour. The speaker was greatly impressed by the English noblemen, whom he had imagined to be a class of personages whom he could not honour. Before leaving he found himself promising a royal welcome to the Marquis of Northampton should he visit Illinois, and was astonished to find that gentleman declining such a reception and preferring to be introduced as a simple Sunday school worker.

During the evening the choir gave a very beautiful rendering of the anthem, "Hark, Hark My Soul!" Mrs. Main and Miss Montgomery taking the solo parts most effectually.

The session closed with the singing of the Doxology.

MR. ALFRED DAY,
General Secretary.

SECOND DAY—WEDNESDAY.

The second day's proceedings were fairly well attended by the delegates at the opening, when the devotional exercises were led by Rev. O. C. Elliott, of the Park street Baptist church.

After routine, Mr. Alfred Day presented his annual report, which was adopted.

GENERAL SECRETARY'S REPORT.

The report of the energetic General Secretary, Mr. Alfred Day, referred to the evidences of divine favour which had been vouchsafed to the convention after a third of a century of work, thus refers to the plebiscite:

Our national pulse was tested a month ago and whilst evoking gratitude to God, it nevertheless revealed the presence, still, in the veins of the national life, of the fever of alcoholism; nor is it without significance to us, as Bible teachers, that the latitude and longitude which most antagonized the suppression of this national curse, was almost identical with the points at which the Word of God is a closed book to the masses of the people. But we have "youth on our side," and thanks to the attitude, to this iniquity, of our Ontario public school system, a new and forewarned electorate will cast the ballot at the next plebiscite, so far as this Province is concerned. Let the Bible teaching of our Sabbath schools be at least abreast of the scientific teaching of the secular schools.

In reviewing the work he has done, the General Secretary states that since the Hamilton convention:

I have travelled over 13,000 miles of territory, of which 5,000 have been east, 4,000 west, 2,500 north, and, by your favour, in the interest of international work, 1,500 miles beyond our own borders, i.e., in New Jersey, Michigan and the Province of Manitoba; in addition to which I have had contact with workers throughout the Province, through the medium of correspondence, addressed specially to the General Secretary, and involving the writing "with mine own hand," of 550 letters, an average of more than ten each week.

The visitation of the various points of our field have been in connection with 22 conventions, i.e., 20 of counties or cities, 60 of townships and 2 international; and 11 Sabbath school anniversary occasions, at as many places. I have also visited 19 Sabbath schools during their session, for the practical observation of methods. All the different departments and interests of our work have had a due share in the multiplied services rendered on the above occasions, in humble dependence upon the Holy Spirit's aid and blessing.

123 general addresses have been delivered on different phases of our work, 48 Sabbath services have afforded opportunity to bring publicly before the home and church their respective obligations in Christian culture. 46 public services, especially for children, have been addressed, whilst 100 normal exercises have been conducted on various plans of Bible teaching.

Mr. Day said the statistics continue to be the one point of our humiliation before the whole continent, and your committee should either devise some means of bringing kindly but incessant pressure to bear on the secretarial department of our schools and organizations which are non-respondent; or abolish, for our credit's sake, the waste of time and money in sending out, annually, thousands of blank forms which are never returned and the absence of which renders those which are returned valueless for purposes of diagnosis.

ORGANIZATION.

Touching the matter of organization. During the past year the organization of new territory in Eastern Ontario has engaged the special attention of the secretary. Five counties, viz: Lanark, Leeds, Renfrew, Stormont and Victoria were unorganized; whilst the organization in Prince Edward County, had become more nominal than real, special efforts were, therefore, directed to this particular part of our province, with the result that Leeds, Lanark and Victoria Counties have been organized, in addition to seven new Township Associations in Leeds and eight in Lanark, whilst two new township organizations have been instituted in Prince Edward, and the conventions of existing organizations visited, as well as that of the county. Besides the above the District organizations of Rainy River, which had lapsed through failure to visit them for five years, was revived. The cities of Kingston and Windsor were also respectively organized, making in all twenty-seven new organizations constituted during the year., viz, four of counties, two of cities, and twenty-one of townships. The county of Stormont is under the care of the Sabbath School Association of the Glengarry Presbytery and it is expected that it will be brought into the Ontario Association in January. The county of Renfrew alone failed entirely in the county organization. There now remain unorganized Lincoln, Bruce and Grey.

Mr. Day's conclusions in the matter of organization are:—

"The organization of the province will never, in my judgment, be effected until the County Executive is made to realize its responsibility for township organization, whereas, at present, it more often requires the Townships to keep the county alive. This result, moreover, can only be reached by the dates of county conventions being arranged in co-operation with the Provincial Executive and those of townships in co-operation with the County Executive, the independent autonomy of each separate organization being absolutely fatal to all organization from a provincial standpoint. This interdependence of the organizations of township, county and province being thus secured, convention dates should be registered on the provincial calendar."

THE HOME DEPARTMENT.

Mr. Day asserts, is the connecting link, hitherto missing, between the Bible school and the outside world. It is impossible in the absence of statistical returns to report in figures the numerical growth of this department. The counties reporting, with 700 schools report 700 Home Department students, and it is safe to estimate from observations made in the Province by your secretary that there are from 4,000 to 5,000 such students enrolled. This department bears the credentials of its own popularity to every gathering where it is presented by reason of its immediate, direct and apparent result which it promises. It needs no pressure to commend it in conventions, but it does need pressure to work it in the individual school.

In regard to the

NORMAL DEPARTMENT

Mr. Day urges more attention to this important work, although stating that there is a general longing for advancement along this line. He suggests appointing for each school a "teacher trainer" from the ranks of such Godly secular teachers as may be locally available, and whose professional training fits them for giving such help as Sunday school teachers need; let such a one be freed from responsibility on the Sabbath, except for purposes of observation, and be charged to observe the manifest causes of success or failure, which should be brought for discussion before the weekly teachers' meeting.

Speaking of the

PRIMARY DEPARTMENT,

Mr. Day says:

With a God-given intuition, quickened by the most privileged of all associations open to a Sabbath school teacher, viz., association with morning sunshine and spring flowers, it is little wonder that our primary teachers have left the rest of the Sabbath school far behind in their unsatisfied hunger for training in the study of child nature and the art of soul feeding. Mr. Day closes with reference to the world wide privilege and responsibilities of the Ontario Association, and also thanks especially Mr. R. W. Cook, of Millbrook, who more than once supplied his place at conventions and assisted him especially at the organization of Victoria County.

The report of Miss Jessie A. Munro, corresponding secretary, was also adopted.

The report of the Corresponding Secretary, largely of a statistical character, shows that a large amount of routine and generally dry and uninviting statistical work has been done.

The report of the treasurer, Mr. E. J. Ocelin, was presented and adopted.

The treasurers's report showed the total receipts to have been $3,408 24, and the outlay $3,401.53. The liabilities of the Association were given as $351.23, and the assets, unpaid pledges, $576.19.

Mr. Alfred Day presented the report of the Executive Committee, which was received and adopted.

THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

The report of the Executive Committee was presented, and summarized, showed that during the year the committee held twelve regular and one special meeting. The following sub-committees held meetings as indicated;—Finance, 11; Primary, 5; Normal, 3; Home Department, 3; Missionary Supply, 1; and organization 9 meetings.

The report referred with regret to the fact that the financial year closed with an adverse balance of $321.23, while there were $579.19 unpaid pledges. The adverse balance was reduced $31, paid in since the report was prepared.

The excellent work of G. M. Lee in the Normal Department was warmly recognised and considerable progress was reported. 124 candidates have tried the normal examinations and thirty-one have been granted diplomas. The receipts on the normal register were $105 21 and it cost $91.29.

In the matter of organization the report stated that the counties of Leeds, Lanark and Victoria and Kingston were organized and also twenty-one townships and in the west the city of Windsor; in the north, Rainy River District, in all twenty-seven organizations. Under Miss Munro two additional primary unions have been unions have been established—at Meaford and Kingston.

The report referred to the slow progress of the Home Department and urged closer attention to it upon the churches.

A missionary campaign had been carried on in the northern districts of Ontario. Great success attended the work of Rev. A. T. Moore, Rev. R. Burns, Rev. J. Campbell, T. Tibb, Rev. W. Gribbel and Mr. Alfred Day.

The report referred to the satisfactory work of the salaried officers, Miss Munro and Mr. Day. The former had been selected to edit the Primary Department of the Presbyterian Teachers' Monthly.

Rev. S. Judson is specially thanked for his excellent Association work in Muskoka.

The growth of the Association is referred to with thankfulness and the report closed with an appeal to place the finances on a better basis. The report was signed by John A. Patterson, chairman of Central Executive Committee.

SEPARATE CONFERENCES.

Separate conferences to facilitate business were held during the morning to consider the subjects indicated below.

Pastors, Superintendents and Bible Class Teachers.

In St. Pauls the Association adjourned to take up the discussion of the above subjects.

Mr. Frank Yeigh led the conference on "The elements of success and failure in Bible class teaching." He treated his subject by referring to the four elements that contributed most fruitfully to success—prayer, purpose, personality, perseverance. The first element touched upon was prayer, the dynamic force; prayer should be directed to the second element, purpose. Prayer should have a definite purpose, and the chief purpose should be the conversion of the pupil. Class organization insisted upon and in the success of the organization into which the social element should largely enter. Mr. Yeigh also spoke of the interest excited by debates upon some proper subject. Athletics under proper directions was another powerful means to excite interest. This object was also contributed to by permitting pupils to conduct the review of lessons and by asking them to prepare essays, visiting them in their homes and personal entertainments by the teacherr. Definite purpose should also be made to make the study of the Bible interesting, to which end the teacher's preparation should be of the most thorough character. Special emphasis was placed upon a third element, personality. The teacher should make himself thoroughly conversant with the personality, tastes, and aspirations of the pupils. The teacher must himself be a man with a strong, well defined character, that will stand the test to which observant young persons will subject it. The fourth necessary element touched upon was perseverance, which could only be practised as the teacher was imbued with the spirit of the Master—a passion for souls—for the conversion of the members of his class.

Rev. F. J. McLaren in comment, said that Bible class was an unfortunate name. Every class in the school was a Bible class, it had better be called the senior class. Speaking of conversion, the speaker asserted that children belonged to Christ until they, by their own act in maturer years, alienated themselves from Christ.

In answer to questions, Mr. Yeigh stated that his class was not more regular in their attendance at their sports than at the Bible class. Athletics did not interfere with the interest in the Bible class.

Mr. Bertram spoke of the benefit of organization in a Bible class; he had had great success by having extended organization in the shape of a secretary for himself separate from that of the school.

Mr. Day spoke of a very successful method employed by Mr. O'Flynn, of Belleville, which was effected by complete and thorough organization, giving a wide range of interest to the activities of the pupils.

Mr. Yeigh explained that baseball was merely incidental and not an essential element of his subject.

Rev. P. K. Dayfoot answered the question, "What can the Sabbath school do for the pastor." From his own experience the Sunday school had helped the pastor in four ways. Granted, that the pastor attends the Sunday school, it brings him in contact with the homes of his flock and their home life. Pastors should visit these homes when the father and elder children were at home, as they are not in the day time. The Sunday school also gave an immense power with the parents. The Sunday school meant the opening of doors to the pastor, every new face in a school represents a new home to visit. The school also gave a pastor an opportunity of moulding a character, facilitated by the hearts and homes of the children, opened to him through the Sunday school.

A spirited discussion followed Mr. Dayfoot's paper, which chiefly took the direct of insistence upon the pastor's duty of paying attention to the Sunday school.

Subsequently, however, Mr. Marion Lawrence arriving, was asked to speak and dealt with the attitude of the superintendent, who was the superintendent subject to the idea that the pastor was the head of the Sunday school, and there should be active co-operation; the pastor should be afforded an opportunity to exercise his influence and draw help for the school. In reference to the subject of the "Sabbath of the 20th century," Mr. Lawrence said we could somewhat see the future from the past, only it was inevitable that the future should be greater than the past. The speaker spoke of the ideal Sunday school as to building equipment and organization and classification. In his Sunday school there were infants in long dresses. The home department would reach something like a realization of its value in the coming Sunday school, which would also have now officers, a biographer who would keep a record of the names, comings and goings, destination, etc., of pupils. The school of the future would be hard to get into and human nature would result in efforts to become admitted.

The session closed in the usual manner.

Primary Work.

This morning a conference on primary work was conducted by Mrs. Meldrum, of Toronto, in the George street church.

The delegates took great interest in the practical illustrations of Biblical history, which were displayed. The Jewish Tabernacle was to be seen in miniature. The Tower of Babel and many other interesting problems. This conference was attended by a large division of the delegates, and every remark was eagerly digested by them.

The conference was called to order by Mrs. Meldrum, and was opened by Mr. Tilley in prayer, followed by the singing of the children's hymn.

Mrs. Meldrum in opening, said she was very proud to have the privilege of conducting the meeting. She was going to speak to them as a mother to her children. This conference had been decided on by the answer of many delegates by mail and in only one case was a negative answer put in. Each delegate would be entitled to three minutes. The reports were then presented.

Miss Jessie Munro, secretary for the Primary Division for Ontario, presented her report as follows:

In response to letters sent out a few weeks ago very full and interesting reports have been received from most of the Unions and Primary Superintendents.

Time will permit merely a summary of these reports. Out of the 16 unions which have been organized in Ontario, it is to be regretted that four have been obliged to discontinue their meetings, the chief reason being the removal of interested officers and lack of time for meetings. Even in these places the work is not dead, and these teachers will go on doing better work in having had their union meetings for even a short time. In many cases it is a case of suspended animation, and it is hoped that if delegates are present from any of these unions they will go home so enthusiastic and so convinced of the importance of the work that their warmth will restore life to the sleeping unions.

This was followed by the reports of the different town and county unions, which were either presented by the delegate or Miss Munro.

A very interesting discussion took place among the delegates on the beauty of child work, and the best methods of instructing the child.

After the question drawer had been disposed of the Conference closed.

Home Department.

Dr. Harrison, of Keene, presided over the conference on this subject, held in the Y.M.C.A. hall.

After the devotional services Dr. Harrison suggested that the discussion be confined to what the Home Department is, why it was organized and the methods used to promote it?

The purpose of the Home Department was to interest those who were unable to attend the regular sessions of the Sunday school in the study of the lessons. This was accomplished by a thorough canvass being made of a neighbourhood, and those who did not attend a school were induced, if possible, to pledge themselves to study the lesson, helps being furnished them by the school under whose auspices they were canvassed.

Mrs. Williams, of Mitchell, then gave a very interesting account of the commencement of the Home Department in that town and the surrounding country. In a few years 284 had been enrolled. Fourteen had inquired the way of life while many testified to the benefit they had derived from the work.

Mr. Hamilton, Provincial Secretary of the Home Department, then gave the facts gleaned by the sending out of a circular containing questions relative to the work. Twenty-eight per cent. of the additions to the schools having Home Departments during the past six years were owing to that work. The spiritual results were wonderfully encouraging and amply justified the existence of the Home Department. Visitors engaged in this work required enthusiasm, tact, patience and perseverance.

THE CHIEF DISCOURAGEMENTS

were the common dislike people had to signing pledges, ignorance of the aim of the work, and the plea of lack of time, also fear of innovations. These could be easily met and overcome.

Mr. Lee, of Toronto, then gave an account of how he started and sustained a branch of the Home Department in connection with his Bible class. He had been drawn to it by the realization of the lack of real Bible study done in the church he was connected with. The work had been beneficial in many ways and much help had been received and given by those engaged in the work. Care should be taken in the instruction and personality of the visitors and in the lecture of the helps supplied. He believed in sending the young to those of their own age, and the same in regard to social position. The "helps" should be bright and breezy. Rallies of the home class could be held at intervals. Constant work was the secret of abundant success.

The work cultivated self-denial among those who were engaged in it.

At the conclusion of the address discussion followed and many questions were asked eliciting the fact that the home class had a tendency to bring out adults to the Sunday school rather than prevent them. The meeting was one of great profit and brought to a close by prayers.

Miss Bennett was appointed to report the proceedings to the convention

MR. JOHN A. PATERSON, M. A.,
Chairman Executive Committee.

The session this evening in St, Paul's church will be of unusual interest. Reports from workers in sparsely settled districts will be given. Marion Lawrence will discuss the "Big Boy Problem," and Hon. G. W. Ross, Minister of Education, will deal with "The Sunday School as an Educator."

Notes.

Rev. W. S. McTavish, of Deseronto, Past High Chaplain of the Canadian Order of Foresters, is amongst the delegates and is receiving warm greetings from the many members of the Order in Peterborough with whom he comes in contact.

Hon. G. W. Ross, who is the guest of Mr. J. B. McWilliams, was taken through the Victoria Museum to-day under the guidance of Mr. T. A. Hay. Mr. Ross was much interested and volunteered his assistance in aiding the Historical Society in any way in his power.

Rev. John McCallum, of Toronto, is among the delegates. He is introducing that grand book "The Greatest Name in the World," of which he is the author. The book is designed to exalt that "Name which is above every name" to which every knee shall bow and every tongue confess. In the vigorous chapters it discusses the character and attributes of our Lord as the Divine Messiah, the Prophet Ideal, the Greatest of Teachers. It is designed as an antidote to current scepticism and the confirmation in the faith of believers. It is dedicated to "the Christian young people of America, who are to guide the destinies of our land, and whose impress upon the time in which they live shall mightily tell for righteousness and the salvation of the world."

There are over 500 delegates in attendance.

HUMAN SACRIFICES

On the Altar of Diabetes, Saved by Dodd's Kidney Pills, Only.

Hardly a family in the country is free from Diabetes. Great thirst, failing sight, numbness in the thighs, bleeding gums, swollen ankles, emaciation, nervousness, pale or turbid urine, loss of sexual power, decaying teeth, pains in the loins or small of the back, are all positive signs that Diabetes is in the system.

Do you know how it ends? In Death. A premature, horrible, agonized, pitiful death. The victim has no peace, no ease in life. His days are filled with tortures. His nights are waking dreams of agony. He longs to die, yet fears the terrors of his end. He dies, a bloated, fetid, repulsive mass of corruption. That is the only end of unchecked Diabetes. Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure it. They drive it out of the system thoroughly, create new, clean blood, rebuild the diseased kidneys, and restore robust health.

THE HORSE SHOW.

Bingen has the fastest trotting record of the year up to date, 2:06¾.

Charlie B, 2:07¾, is credited with being the fastest pacer ever bred in Ontario.

Clay S, 2:14, stands 17½ hands high and is claimed to be the tallest trotter of the year.

They say that the guideless pacer Marion Mills won nearly $17,000 in two years for her owner.

Praytall is credited with having shown a half in 1:08 and a quarter in 29½ seconds in his work.

Margaret, by Star Sultan, a successful pacer this season in California, is scant 14 hands high and weighs only 700 pounds.

At the New England fair, held recently at Portland, Me., a horse was exhibited that stood 20 hands high and weighed a ton.

Nancy Wilton, black mare, by Wilton, when she took a record of 2:19¾ at Lexington recently was carrying a foal by Patchen Wilkes.

Much Better, 2:07¼, pacing, by Charles Derby, wears only light quarter boots, a plain six ounce shoe forward and a four ounce shoe behind.

Senator Stanford some years ago sent to the czar of Russia the stallion named Electioneer's Good Gift, and now a son of his, Prince Gift, out of Belle, by Kentucky Prince, has trotted in 2:12.

At the recent meeting at Cambridge, N. Y., J. B. Simons of Sidney, N. Y., had a horse entered in each of the three classes, and each won his race, the fastest heat being the same for all three, 2:21¼.

During the recent races at Lititz, Pa., the trotter Prince B, 2:26¼, was overcome by heat and died. His owner was John Bitting of Reading, Pa. He will erect a monument to the horse's memory.

A peculiar champion record is that said to be held by Ed Geers in having driven the slowest winning heat in the grand circuit in many years when he won the third heat of the 2:15 pace at Glens Falls in 2:30¾ with Argetta.—Turf, Field and Farm.

AWNLESS BROME GRASS.

Valuable and Remarkable Characteristics Observed In Tests.

Two notable claims advanced for Bromus inermis, commonly known as smooth, awnless or Hungarian brome grass, are its excellent endurance of summer heat and drought and its ability to grow on comparatively poor and hard soil.

This is a perennial grass with creeping root stalks that send up erect, strong, smooth stems from 1½ to 4 feet high, with a free growth of leaves, and bears an abundance of seed. It has been well recommended for light soils in regions subject to extremes of temperature or long periods of drought, where the finer grasses do not thrive. Some years ago the South Dakota station said of smooth brome grass that it was the best grass yet tried at that station, catching well where properly sown, giving a good sod the first year and a fair yield of hay in favorable seasons. The forage, though coarse, was considered of excellent quality and under ordinary circumstances a large amount of early spring and fall feed could be obtained in addition to a good yield of hay.

Awnless brome grass is reported as remaining green in winter in the south, where it is esteemed for grazing. It grows well in cold climates, and Canadian reports speak very highly of it, both for nutritive qualities and luxuriant habit of growth.

In the report of tests with this grass under the direction of Dr. Saunders of the Canadian experiment stations it is mentioned as doing well on alkaline soil. The report further says: "Not only does awnless brome grass thrive in the rich, moist soil of the eastern provinces, but its growth and productiveness are so wonderful even in the dry plains of the west that its cultivation may be said without exaggeration to have solved the problem of fodder production on a large scale in the arid western sections. Under irrigation brome grass has given on 300 acres of land the enormous yield of 4½ tons per acre. One notable feature which distinguishes this grass is that, while most grasses, after the flowering period, deteriorate rapidly while the seeds ripen, awnless brome grass can be left standing until the seeds are fully ripe, yet the hay crop will be heavier without being poorer than if it had been cut while in flower, as should be done generally for all other hay grasses in order to get the best value. This remarkable characteristic of this grass is due to the fact that after the seed bearing stem has grown up a great number of leafy shoots spring up from its base."

What to Do With the Strawberry Bed.

Our usual method of treating a strawberry bed after the first picking season is to invert it and sow either cowpeas or clover, says a correspondent of Rural New Yorker. The only profitable crop we have ever gathered immediately succeeding turning under a strawberry bed is medium clover. Any strawberry bed which needs a plow to assist in cleaning it up should never be run a second season. We would remove the mulch and cultivate and hoe as we did the previous season if we wished to carry over the bed and begin at once after the first hoeing to spray with bordeaux and continue spraying at intervals until growth ceases, repeating twice the following spring.

Mrs. Fatpurse—No wonder. You've got your house filled up with old maids and old bachelors. I make lots of money keeping boarders, and so might you if you had any business in you.

"I don't see how you manage."

"Well, I don't do it by having old maids and old bachelors to eat me out of house and home. No, indeedy. I take only nice young men and pretty girls, and then they all fall in love with each other and don't eat more'n canary birds."—New York Weekly.

Barefaced Insult.

"When I think," exclaimed Mrs. Strongmind, "of the apathy—nay, the sneers and insults—of the unthinking mob that constitutes our voting population, of its utter disregard for abstract justice, its ignorance of the principles that lie at the foundation of all civilized and enlightened government, and its total unfitness to exercise the functions of suffrage, I am at a loss to give adequate expression to the indignation that burns within me!"

"Why don't youse make a vow not to shave until they's a woman president?" called out a disrespectful voter in the audience.—Chicago Tribune.

He Came Down.

There was a don up in a tree
And a Yankee down below.
"Come down!" said the Yankee to the don,
But the don was rather slow.
"What terms," he asked, "will you make with me
If I come down to you?
No terms? Oh, Mr. Yankee Man,
That'll never, never do!"

The Yankee took aim with his gun
At the don up in the tree.
"I'll shoot," he said, "if you don't come down Before I've counted three!"
Athwart the don's dark visage spread
A terrifying frown,
But the Yankee counted "One!" and "Two!"
And the little old don came down.

FREDDIE KEIRSTEAD'S CASE.

His Legs, from His Feet to His Body Entirely Raw, and Ran a Blood-Tinged Irritating Water.

THE CURE B. B. B. MADE IN HIS CASE WAS PERMANENT.

IN EIGHT YEARS THERE HAS BEEN NO RETURN OF THE DISEASE.

The triumphs of Burdock Blood Bitters over disease are eclipsing anything ever heard of in the annals of medicine. The cases being published from time to time showing how thorough and permanent are the cures made by this remedy, are making the sick and afflicted consider whether it is worth their while wasting money on medicines that can only offer them temporary relief—and perhaps not even that—when a few bottles of B. B. B. will do all that any medicine can do in giving temporary relief, and besides, will make a cure so permanent that there will be no return of the trouble.

FREDDIE KEIRSTEAD.

In the severest forms of skin diseases, Salt Rheum or Eczema, Tetter, Shingles, Ring Worm, B. B. B. applied externally and taken internally will take out the burning and itching, give prompt relief, and make a permanent cure.

It was so in the case of Freddie Keirstead of Snider Mt., N.B.

He had one of the most aggravated cases of Salt Rheum ever known.

B. B. B. cured him so thoroughly that after eight years the disease has shown no signs of returning.

Read the following letter just received from his mother:

"With gratitude I can testify to the wonderful curative powers of Burdock Blood Bitters. Eight years ago our little son, Freddy, was afflicted with salt rheum and was in a dreadful condition. His legs, from the soles of his feet to his body were entirely raw, and ran a bloody water, which appeared to burn and itch until he was often in great agony.

"After trying several remedies, we resolved to give B. B. B. a trial.

"You can imagine with what delight and gratitude we saw our boy entirely cured after using one bottle and part of the second. We gave him the remainder of the second bottle, and from that time till the present he has never had a sign of salt rheum or a sick day. You need not wonder that I think there is no other medicine can equal Burdock Blood Bitters to purify the blood and build up the health and strength."

Love that Alters.

"Love is not love that alters when it alteration finds."

That is one of the sublimest lines in all literature. It is the final definition of love by the world's greatest reader of the human mind,—Shakespeare. Nearly all women who truly love, love in this sublime way. Men seldom do.

Woman's most glorious endowment is the power to awaken and hold the pure and honest love of a worthy man. When she loses it and still loves on, no one in the wide world can know the heart agony she endures. The woman who suffers from weakness and derangement of her special womanly organism soon loses the power to sway the heart of a man. Her general health suffers and she loses her good looks, her attractiveness, her amiability and her power and prestige as a woman. Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N.Y., with the assistance of his staff of able physicians, has prescribed for many thousands of women. He has devised a perfect and scientific remedy for women's ailments. It is known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is a positive specific for all weaknesses, diseases, disorders, displacements, irregularities, and debilitating drains peculiar to women. It purifies, regulates, strengthens and heals. Medicine dealers sell it, and no honest dealer will advise you to accept a substitute that he may make a little larger profit.

"I was afflicted with kidney trouble and I have always had a torpid liver," writes Mrs. E. Crosswhite, of Duffau, Erath Co., Texas. "When I commenced your medicine I was not able to stand on my feet. I used one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and five vials of his 'Pleasant Pellets.' I am now well. I had not walked in four months when I commenced the treatment; but in ten days I was able to walk everywhere."

DRESS AND FASHION

NEW FEATURES OF THE TAILOR MADE GOWNS FOR FALL.

These Are of Lightweight Broadcloth Unlined, Clinging to the Hips and Ending In a Flarelike Flare—A Marked "Swallowtail" Effect.

Man and woman are different in their ways of looking at everything, even clothes. Man supplies himself with a hot weather wardrobe suitable to his position in society and then proceeds to enjoy it. Not so with woman. She supplies herself with no end of clothing that makes one fairly cool to look at but she does not enjoy it, for when the mercury is at sizzling point she is rack

AUTUMN TAILOR MADE GOWN.

ing her brain to know what will be worn next fall. Viewing the matter in this light, the New York Sun, with commendable thoughtfulness for the weaker sex, proceeds to furnish some of the desired information as follows:

Already the autumn tailor made gown has appeared. An authority who has just returned from London and Paris says that broadcloth of an exquisite quality is in great demand for early fall gowns and that it will play a prominent part in fashion's domain all winter. In point of color light gray holds its own for dressy gowns, and castor effects prevail for street wear and for general use as fashionable autumn resorts. Blue is a cold color and will not be used in all of its varying shades as it has been since early spring. The conventional blues, reds, greens and browns will, of course, be in vogue.

A feature of the new materials is the lightness of their weight, which manufacturers have succeeded in procuring without loss of body. It is impossible to give the proper cut to a tailor made costume unless the stuff of which it is made has considerable body.

The skirts of the introductory tailor made gowns are unlined. Authorities say that it is impossible to give them the proper set with even the thinnest of silk lining, as they must cling skin tight to the hips and end in a flarelike flare at the bottom. So far most of them are merely faced up a few inches with silk, and all are worn with a fluffy silk petticoat.

When the lace coat made its first appearance a short time ago, woman was disposed to regard it as a beautiful but rather useless possession. One form of this coat rounds down to the underarm seam like a bolero and is close in the back, extending to the hem of the skirt, giving a princess effect. The most popular design, however, is shown in the picture. It rounds away from the front to a very decided basque, which in outline is strikingly like a man's dress coat. This garment has proved a straw, showing the turn that fall fashions will take, for many of the tailor made bodices are a modified form of the lace coat. They fit closely and have tails which round out half way over the hips.

Crepe de chine, mousseline de soie and light silks are favorite materials for fresh dresses that must be provided for the demiseason.

What She Believes.

"I believe Hood's Sarsaparilla is a good medicine, because I have seen its good effects in the case of my mother. She has taken it when she was weak and her health was poor and she says she knows of nothing better to build her up and make her feel strong." Bessie M Knowles, Upper Wood Harbor, N. S.

Russians and Their Horses.

The land where animals are raised in large numbers is not always the land where they are best loved. Russia, however, which is the greatest horse breeding country in the world, is the country where the horse is both loved and appreciated. A writer in The Road says: "I never in all my wanderings saw a pony or steed of any sort that seemed to be in bad condition through ill usage. The drosky drivers of Moscow put our London cabmen to shame in this respect. They may abuse each other vociferously, they may cheat you roundly, but they never abuse their horses. The supply of fine horses makes it a constant luxury to travel in Russia. The population is chiefly dependent upon the tarantass, or rough, partly hooded van; the telga, or country cart; the little drosky and the capital troika, or three horse carriage. Nothing delights a driver so much as dashing along at headlong speed, with three spirited horses harnessed to a troika. With the whips cracking, the bells ringing, the driver singing at the top of his voice, the two outer horses flying off at an angle as wide as possible, the troika in full speed is a splendid sight. In Siberia the driving is so furious, the mountain roads being as rough as they are steep, that the traveler is constantly amazed at his immunity from accident."

Plain Horses.

Some of the best horses that have run on the turf have been of plain if not positively coarse appearance. They have, however, invariably had good strains of blood in them. The celebrated Blink Bonny, says Stonehenge, was a mean looking mare and would not have fetched $150 at Tattersall's from her appearance alone, and that wonderful animal Fisherman was never liked until he proved his powers. The most useful looking horse is not seldom wanting in beauty of contour. Utility and elegance of form are not invariable combined. High breeding is of more consequence than external shape. Most persons will agree with the authority mentioned that "of two horses, one perfect in shape, but of an inferior strain of blood and the other of the most winning blood, but not so well formed in shape, the latter will be the most likely to perform to the satisfaction of his owner. On this principle the proverb has been framed and handed down to us that 'an ounce of blood is worth a pound of bone,' and with the above exception such is really the case."

No other remedy can present such a record of permanent cures as B. B. B. It not only gives every sufferer prompt relief in such diseases as arise from disorders of the stomach, liver, blood and bowels, but makes cure so lasting that even after ten or twelve years there has been no return of the trouble.

APPALLING DEATH

From Kidney Disease Prevented by Dodd's Kidney Pills, Only.

"Kidney Disease." Do you know what it means? It means that the kidneys are either rotten, or rotting; the blood is full of poisonous, death-dealing corruption; that the Kidneys can't do their work; that the victim is a walking charnel-house; that his hours are numbered; that the victim must take Dodd's Kidney Pills if he does not want to die.

Have you Kidney Disease? Is your skin hot and dry; memory failing; breath short; urine, reddish, or pale colored; does it scald when passing; is your appetite changeable; do your ankles swell; have you bitter taste in the mouth on getting up mornings; is there a brick-dust deposit in your urine?

Any of these signs is proof positive of Kidney Disease. Will you be cured, or will you die? Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only means on earth that will cure you. They never fail.

Raw from Her Toes to Her Knees

DR. CHASE MAKES A WONDERFUL CURE

Mrs. Knight, 17 Hanover Place, Toronto, makes the following statement:—

My mother, Mrs. Wright, who lives at Norval, near Doncaster, suffered a summer and winter with Eczema in her feet. She could not walk, and very seldom got any sleep. It became so bad that she was perfectly raw from the toes to the knees. After trying every available remedy without receiving any benefit, and almost hopeless of relief, she was advised to try Dr. Chase's Ointment. She has altogether used 8 boxes since commencing, but with the happiest results, for she is now completely cured. There is but one scar on one of her feet, a memento of her fearful suffering condition. Any person desiring further testimony in this case is at liberty to communicate with Mrs. Wright at her address, Norval P.O.

Mrs. Knight says after such a grand success, is it any wonder we recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment?

DORSET SHEEP.

A Superior Breed For the Production of Mutton.

The size of Dorset sheep is medium to large, weights of mature rams reaching from 200 to 300 pounds and mature ewes from 135 to 175 pounds. It is not always the largest specimens that are the most valuable. Of the wool I would say first that the quality is of the very highest, and being of extremely light shrinkage and of very strong and even fiber and with a nice crimp it makes a soft, strong article of clothing. There is no better nor more valuable wool than Dorset wool, and from Woodland farm we have always sold Dorset wool at a premium of 2 cents per pound better than the highest priced medium wools.

When it comes to weight of fleece, it is different, as the Dorset sheep can make no claim to being an extremely heavy shearer, not that they are markedly deficient, but naturally where the wool is free from grease and gum it weighs lighter. Some Dorsets are not covered all over as sheep should be. Their deficiency is most apparent on the legs and belly. It would seem as though the English Dorset breeders had not paid much attention to the covering of their flocks. In spite of this I suppose that a good flock of Dorset sheep would shear as many pounds of scoured wool as a flock of any other mutton sheep in proportion—that is, to the weight of the sheep composing the flock.

When it comes to quality of mutton, you have reached the Dorset's strong point. There is hardly a superior to the Dorset sheep from the standpoint of the mutton producer, and especially of the producer of very young mutton, spring lambs or hothouse lambs. In fact the truth should be constantly borne in mind that the Dorset is at its greatest perfection and should go to the market at 100 days or even at an earlier age. I think without question Dorset mutton marketed at that time will return more clear profit to its producer than any other mutton of whatever breed or age in the United States today.

This faculty of producing tiptop lambs is naturally most noticeable in the use of the Dorset ewe, and it may be that she will produce a finer lamb when mated with a Hampshire, Southdown or Oxford sire than were she to be bred to a pure bred Dorset ram. This is a general practice in Dorsetshire I am told. The Dorset sire, however, is able to make a good showing when crossed on ewes of other breeds, and not infrequently he has been a surprise to me.—Joseph E. Wing in Breeder's Gazette.

KEEPING HOUSE.

The coal hod's on the chiffonier,
The teapot's on the floor,
And on the carpets, far and near,
Burnt matches by the score.
But do not call the servants "vile"
Nor blame the loving spouse;
They're absent for the summer, while
The husband's keeping house.

The water pitchers all are filled
With lemon rinds and spoons,
The salt's upset, the sugar's spilled,
The dishpan's full of prunes;
There's that to make a housewife stare
On table, board and shelf,
For this bright mortal can prepare
A luncheon for himself.

The sink's piled full of dishes that
Are painful to the eye,
The bird's quit singing, and the cat
Has gone away to die,
The papers that are coming, still,
At morning, noon and night,
Have all been blown about until
The front yard's out of sight.

All undisturbed the dust is spread,
And cobwebs, in a wreath,
Hang down from ceilings overhead
To littered floors beneath,
But ere the folks return he'll get
Some help to move the mess
And clean the house, and then, you bet,
Let on 'twas over thus.

—L. A. W. Bulletin.

Was a Nice Little Yacht.

A member of the crew of the Yankee tells of an incident that happened aboard that vessel during the recent cruise. Said he: "We were out at sea, and one of the boys—you know him—was doing his trick at the wheel. Commander Brownson came up alongside him and after watching him a few minutes said, 'You steer very well, my man.' Billy just saluted, being up on naval etiquette. 'Been practicing since you joined the ship?' asked Brownson. 'No, sir; I haven't been practicing much,' said Billy. 'Well, you handle this ship as if you'd steered before,' said Brownson. 'Yes, sir,' said Billy; 'I have.' 'Where?' said Brownson. 'All along the Atlantic coast,' says Billy. 'What did you steer?' says Brownson. 'My own steam yacht, sir,' says Billy. 'How big is she?' says Brownson after a pause. 'About 1,000 tons, sir,' says Billy. 'I—I see,' says Brownson. 'Thank'ee, sir,' says Billy, saluting. And the 'old man' went to his stateroom."—Electrical Review.

THE NIGHT CLERK'S STORY.

A FACE LIKE CHALK.

A very bad attack of the Grippe one year ago last winter left my system in a very weak state and my nervous system completely unstrung. After getting over the dangerous stage of the disease I naturally expected to gain strength, but, unfortunately, did not do so. On the contrary, my blood became weaker. I daily lost strength and vitality, and my nervous system became so weak that it was a constant source of suffering both day and night. I lost appetite, the sight of food nauseated me, the weak state of my system caused shortness of breath and unnatural action of the heart, such as fluttering and violent palpitation, and my face was like chalk. I was in this condition and constantly getting weaker when I began taking Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills. I had read the books they distributed and their advertisements in the papers, and thought, "Well, I have taken so much medicine without benefit it is useless to spend any more money. However, I finally made up my mind. It is a forlorn hope; I can but try. If I am not benefited I will not be hurt. So I bought one box and received great benefit therefrom, so continued their use, and to-day am a well man in consequence; my blood is strong, my face has the ruddy hue of health, my appetite has returned, I sleep well, I have not the slightest indications of nervousness or heart trouble, and from a sick, weak, nervous man Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills have transformed me in six weeks to full health and strength." I am yours very truly,

(Signed) WILLIAM WILLARD,
Night Clerk Grand Central Hotel,

DELEGATES and VISITORS

To the Sunday School Convention

Are cordially invited to drop in and see our Fur Stock this week. We Offer Something Extra.

It's well towards Fur time says the Calender-old Probs says so too—sane folk don't wait for the thermometer to tell them, they must get their Furs—they buy when "good opportunity" presents itself.

Delegates and Visitors will find this is their opportunity.

Peterborough has a very wide reputation as a specially good town to buy Furs in. We manufacture all Fur garments of every kind in our own workrooms, under our own supervision.

Having an extra large output in Fur Goods in our Toronto store (J. & J. Lugsdin) as well as in our store here we can buy our Fur skins direct in Liepzig, Germany, and in London, England, thereby saving at least 15 per cent.

Every article being home-made and well-made is guaranteed to be as we represent it and then you have the very material advantage of getting Furs at actual wholesale prices as we save all middlemen's profits.

☞ As an Extra to Visitors this Week we will give 10 Per Cent. Off all Fur Purchases.

All the Leading Fashionable Furs in Latest Designs and Patterns, well made and lined, will be found in our stock. Fur Garments of all kinds Made-to-order.

SCARLET FEVER OUTBREAK.

An Epidemic in Douro and Otonabee—Two Cases Discovered in Town.

A number of scarlet fever cases have broken out in Otonabee and Douro townships near the boundary, and a good deal of uneasiness has been manifested in regard to the matter, as the cases were not reported to the health officers as required by law.

Dr. Clarke, Medical Health Officer, has been out on an investigating trip, and actually found two cases inside the town limits, near Auburn. The patients were immediately isolated and the houses placarded.

Physicians in charge of scarlet fever patients in Otonabee and Douro should report respectively to Dr. Shaw, of Keene, or Dr. J. R. Fraser, Lakefield, at once.

Residents in Dummer also fear an outbreak in that township and a number of them were in town to-day to interview Dr. Clarke. The latter states that the placards furnished by the township health officers are not sufficiently bright in colouring to attract notice.

ST. ANDREW'S C. E.

This Society Held its Regular Meeting Monday Evening.

The regular meeting of St. Andrew's Y.P.S.C.E. was held Monday evening, and as it was the monthly missionary meeting Miss Forsyth convenor of the missionary committee presided. After the opening exercises, Miss Forsyth gave a short talk on missions and missionary work, showing the great need of workers and the urgency of the call, Miss Forsyth spoke of the vision and call of Isaiah and his commission from God, and also of the vision of Paul in which he saw the man of Macedona who prayed him, saying, "Come over and help us." These two Miss Forsyth took as the divine and human call for more workers to go and spread the gospel message, and the leader closed with an earnest appeal to the members, to bear the standard, remembering our personal responsibility.

Miss Wiggins then read an article on "How to Help those who go," bringing out three points, that of our prayers, as the apostle said, "Pray for us." Workers that of going ourselves or helping others to decide and thirdly by our money, which is a gift of God's and should be used for his glory. Truly ye have received, freely give.

Miss L. Curry also read a paper on promptness in our work. "Go work today in my Vineyard." Miss Curry also impressed us with the thought that life no matter how short, is long enough to do the work that God intended us to do.

After the reading of those papers and the singing of an hymn, there was a short open meeting on which a number took part.

The members were pleased to be visited by the Misses. Hattie and Annie White, of Toronto, formerly members of our society, who are in town for a few days attending the Sabbath School Teachers Convention, and renewing old acquaintances.

U. S. CONSUL IN CUBA CURED OF ECZEMA BY CUTICURA

UNITED STATES CONSULATE.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA, Dec. 12th, 1897.

POTTER DRUG AND CHEM. CORP., BOSTON, U. S. A.

Gentlemen: Whatever is the cash value of the difference between living on earth, and a place said to be much hotter than Cuba, I am indebted to the use of your CUTICURA SOAP and CUTICURA (ointment).

Eczema is a prevalent disease on this island. I had an attack of it, and ordered a box of oxide of zinc ointment. The first application changed the Eczema to hell-fire, which seemed unquenchable. The druggist had used a rancid comate and I was poisoned.

I have practised medicine over thirty years and taken a special course in cutaneous diseases under Prof. John V. Shumaker of Phil., but I lost faith in the purity of Cuban drugs, as everything either failed to help my trouble or made it worse. I called in a local physician, but he did not help matters, and I was becoming desperate, when I thought of CUTICURA REMEDIES, and dispatched my servant for a cake of CUTICURA SOAP and a box of CUTICURA (ointment). The first application relieved me, and in three days I was well.

PULASKI F. HYATT, United States Consul.

TORTURING DISFIGURING

Humors whether itching, burning, bleeding, scaly, crusted, pimply, or blotchy, whether simple, scrofulous, or hereditary, speedily, permanently, and economically cured by warm baths with CUTICURA SOAP, gentle anointings with CUTICURA (ointment), purest of emollient skin cures, and mild doses of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, greatest of blood purifiers and humor remedies.

Sold throughout the world. POTTER DRUG AND CHEM. CORP., Sole Props., Boston.

LOCAL ITEMS.

Keep Out of the Wet!

The weather at present is decidedly in favour of a good local supply of water. Unsettled, wet days may be expected for some time, and you don't want to take any risks going out without a good waterproof coat or umbrella. If you want to be prepared for the next rainy spell pay a visit to H. LeBrun & Co., who can supply you with good waterproof coats from $2.75, $3.50, $4.00, $5.00 to $6.00, with or without capes. You can also have your choice of a nice assortment of umbrellas in various styles of covers and handles, with prices starting as low as 50c. H. LEBRUN & Co.

Cold Weather Underwear and Hosiery

A new suit of good underwear just now is a good deal cheaper than a doctor's bill. This is the weather to look for colds and rheumatism. LeBrun & Co's stock of underwear will save you a lot of complaints. It consists of warm fleece-lined shirts and drawers with heavy soft fleecing; the celebrated "Arctic" underwear and fine Scotch-wool underwear, Merino underwear, as well as the best Canadian underwear made. All sizes, all qualities, all prices. Keep your feet warm and your head cool—that's what LeBrun's new fall hosiery will do. You need heavier and warmer socks now, and LeBrun can fit your feet and purse, too. Come and select from choice fine Scotch hose, black cashmere hose, natural wool hose and fancy heather mixtures of hosiery. All sizes, all qualities, all prices. H. LEBRUN & Co.

SPORTING PASTIMES.

Interesting Items of Local and General Interest.

RUGBY.

The Colts had a fine turnout and practice yesterday. Bob Collins and Morgan did some great work. Brundrette, who has done so well in the scrimmage, will likely be tried out on the wing in the next game. Hodgson taking his old position.

The Colts II team is rounding into form for the match with the Grove on Saturday.

THE WHEEL.

Bicycling racing has not proven a mint this year for its followers, says the Buffalo Courier. Here are the figures; Bald, $4,000; Gardiner, $3 500; Major Taylor, $2,200; Cooper, $3,000; McFarland, $2,800; Stevens, $2 500. The foregoing gives in round figures the aggregate winnings of the six most prominent men who competed in the short distance races this year. To an outsider these amounts appear to be a fair return for a season's work, but in former years these men were accustomed to average almost twice as much. In consequence they do not enthuse over the results of this year's work. Moreover the manufacturer of wheel and tire has not donated his share with his former liberality, and the remuneration from his source has not increased the pile of many of the riders.

BASEBALL.

Mr. Dan. McCabe has returned from Hespeler, where he has been spending the summer pitching for the baseball team of that place. Whilst away Dan reaped quite a record, pitching five games in seven days, and in two of these winning from a team using Pitcher Lee, who showed up so well with Toronto against Ottawa later in the season.

WEDDED IN ST. PETER'S.

Nuptials of Mrs. Margaret Hanrahan and Mr. Thos. Hogan Last Evening.

A very pretty wedding took place last evening at half-past eight in St. Peter's cathedral, when Ven. Archdeacon Casey performed the marriage ceremony between Mrs. Margaret Hanrahan, daughter of the late James Doris, and Mr. Thos. Hogan.

The bride was most becomingly attired in a tailor-made costume of bronze green broadcloth with picture hat to match and carried a bouquet of cream roses. She was assisted by cousin, Miss Fanny Holmes, who was prettily costumed in Cuban blue, the suit being completed with a large picture hat trimmed in the same shade. She carried cardinal roses.

The groomsman was Mr. John Doris.

At the conclusion of the ceremony the wedding party repaired to the residence of Mr. Homer Holmes, Stewart street, uncle of the bride, where an informal reception was held and the wedding dejeuner was served.

During the evening Mr. and Mrs. Hogan repaired to their future residence in Ashburnham.

A large number of most beautiful presents were received by the bride, amongst them being a gift from the employees in Mr. P. Simons tailoring establishment, where she has been engaged for the past twelve years. With his accustomed generosity, Mr. Simons also remembered the bride on the eve of her wedding.

A HOUND CUT.

Many Citizens Indignant Over the Usage Accorded the Animal.

Mr. J. P. Shevlin's fine hound ran home this morning with a gaping wound in its hind quarters, which it was necessary to have stitched.

Mr. Shevlin states that he traced the trail of blood to a local butcher shop and proposes to lay an information against the owner. The hound was a most valuable one and by the wound will be incapacitated for the work in the woods this fall.

Toronto Firemen Testify.

M. McCartney, Lombard Street Fire Hall, Toronto, dated March 4th, 1897, states:—"Am subject to very painful conditions of costiveness and other troubles resulting therefrom, but I am glad to say that I have found a perfect remedy in Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I trust this may be of benefit to others."

Marchand Is to Find Fashoda Climate Unhealthy.

THE SITUATION MORE PACIFIC.

M. Paul de Cassagnac's Sensible Words—Sir William Vernon Harcourt, the British Liberal Leader, Supports the Government—Lord Kitchener in Paris—The Latest News by Cable.

London, Oct. 27.—(Toronto Globe Special).—I am informed on the authority of a member of Parliament that the Fashoda question was settled on Friday last on the basis of the withdrawal of Marchand.

The report was current yesterday afternoon on the Stock Exchange that instructions have been sent to Marchand to ask for authority to withdraw on the pretext of mortality in his expedition from fever.

It is reported from Paris that Hanotaux will be the Foreign Minister in the new Cabinet. This is well received here.

The civil troubles of France still menace peace, but well-informed circles are now confident that a way will be found out of the difficulty.

OUTPOURING OF ORATORY.

A Great Number of Prominent British Statesmen Speak.

London, Oct. 27.—Last evening witnessed a great outpouring of oratory on the Fashoda question. Speeches were made at various places by the Hon. Charles T. Ritchie, president of the Board of Trade; Sir John Gorst, vice-president of the Committee of Council and Conservative member of Parliament for Cambridge University; Mr. George Wyndham, Under-Secretary of State for War; Lord Edmond Fitzmaurice and Mr. Afred Lyttleton, Liberal-Unionist member of Parliament for Leamington. All recognized the gravity of the situation, but declared that, even at the risk of war, it was impossible for Lord Salisbury to recede from his position.

HARCOURT BREAKS SILENCE.

The Liberal Leader Supports the Attitude of Lord Salisbury.

London, Oct. 27.—The Liberal leader in the House of Commons, Sir William Vernon Harcourt, in his speech on the Fashoda question at Aberyst, in eWales, said it was the urgent duty of everyone, without regard to political differences, to support the Government in maintaining the rights of the Empire in the present crisis, a crisis "specially dangerous owing to the unexampled situation in France."

Rhodes Endorses Rosebery.

London, Oct. 27.—The Cape Town correspondent of the Times says:

"Cecil Rhodes, addressing a meeting here yesterday, said that Great Britain owed to Lord Rosebery her retention of Egypt and the occupation of Uganda."

SENSIBLE WORDS.

M. Paul de Cassagnac's Opinion of the World-Wide Prowess of the Ancient Enemy of France—France's Cervera.

Paris, Oct. 27.—M. Paul de Cassagnac, in a remarkable article on the Fashoda question in the Autorite, writes: "How could we make a stand against England in case of war? She possesses means of gripping us everywhere, in our colonies and in our naval cities along our open coasts, whereas we cannot lay our hands on her anywhere. She would make short work of our fleet. War with England would put us in the position of Spain toward America. We should fight heroically, but we should be beaten. Our Admiral Cervera is already to the fore. It is Admiral Fournier, who enjoys the blind confidence of the Republican Governament. It is not, alas, Santiagos that we should lack. Later on we should have to pay the bill with Algeria or Indo-China.

"Therefore it is materially and morally forbidden to think of war. This would be madness, blindness. Nobody goes to certain disaster with his eyes open.

"There still remains the other alternative—to beat a retreat, and we shall not escape it. It is not the evacuation of Fashoda that constitutes our loss. The republic having already committed the irreparable blunder of coldly abandoning Egypt to England, it ill becomes her today to quibble about this or that portion of the Nile Valley, which in reality would be useless to us."

ON THEIR WAY TO PARIS.

Capt. Baratier and Gen. Kitchener on the Same Train.

Marseilles, Oct. 27.—General Lord Kitchener of Khartoum and Captain Baratier, the bearer of Major Marchand's Fashoda report, arrived here from Alexandria, Egypt, yesterday on board the Messageries steamer from that port. During the voyage the two officers dined together and cordially conversed on the customs of the tribes and peoples each had met.

The British Consul here met General Kitchener on landing, and Captain Baratier received an affectionate greeting from his mother and brother. General Kitchener and Captain Baratier left for Paris on the same train.

A crowd which assembled on the platform cheered Captain Baratier, and a delegation from the naval and commercial schools presented him with a bejewelled insignia of the rank of officer of the Legion of Honor, to which his appointment has just been announced.

A deputation from the Geographical Society of Marseilles, after congratulating Captain Baratier, proceeded to General Kitchener's salon car. There the spokesman of the French party expressed admiration of the General's remarkable campaign and work in behalf of civilization, and thanked him for the courtesy he had extended to Major Marchand and his colleagues. The General thanked his visitors warmly and eulogized Major Marchand, whose expedition, he said, had excited the admiration of the whole world. The train then departed, amid shouts of "Vive Baratier," "Vive Marchand."

The Report Has Arrived.

Paris, Oct. 27.—Gen. Lord Herbert Kitchener, commander of the Anglo-Egyptian forces in the Soudan, and Captain Baratier, the French officer who brings Major Marchand's despatches from Fashoda, arrived here at 10 o'clock last evening. Gen. Kitchener left the railway station unnoticed. Capt. Baratier received an ovation from hundreds of members of the Patriotic League and others. M. Marcel Hebert, a member of the Chamber of Deputies, on behalf of the Patriotic League, presented Captain Baratier with a gold medal. The friendly demonstrations continued until Captain Baratier reached his residence. There was no further incident.

THE FRENCH CRISIS.

Much Suppressed Excitement in Paris, But No Serious Disturbance—Cabinet Making.

Paris, Oct. 27.—Although there is evidence of suppressed excitement on all sides here, there has been no disturbance of public order. The police and municipal guards are out in strong force and they will not permit the crowds to assume dangerous strength. But the situation was eagerly discussed by excited groups in the streets.

President Faure yesterday received in audience Senator Loubet, President of the Chamber of Deputies. It is the intention of M. Faure to form a Cabinet as rapidly as possible, and the names of MM. Ribot and Freycinet are the most prominently mentioned in connection with the Premiership.

During the afternoon M. Faure consulted with M. Leygues, Vice-President of the Chamber of Deputies, who advised the President of the Republic to form a conpentration Cabinet, to include among its members MM. Ribot and Dupuys as the principal Ministers.

In the lobbies of the Chamber of Deputies yesterday, the deputies of all shades of opinion expressed the conviction that M. Delcasse should remain at the head of the Foreign Office, in order to assure the continuity of the Fashoda negotiations.

A Peaceful Feeling.

A feeling distinctly peaceful regarding the Fashoda affair prevailed in Paris last evening. President Faure is taking the crisis quietly and the belief is stronger than it was yesterday that M. Brisson fell because he wished to fall.

It is now rumored that General Chanoine resigned the War Office portfolio out of pique at the refusal of the General Staff Committee to give him command of an army corps.

Extraordinary police precautions have been ordered against possible disturbances at the Court of Cassation to-day, when the Dreyfus revision appeal will be heard.

MRS. BURRELL COMMITTED

To Stand Trial, Though Insane, for the Murder of Her Child, Ethel.

Toronto, Oct. 27.—Mrs. Isabella Burrell was committed for trial at yesterday's Police Court on a charge of murdering her child Ethel. The charges of murdering her other two children were not gone into. The proceedings were brief, the Colonel asking that as little evidence as possible be put in, owing to the report made by the gaol doctor that Mrs. Burrell is insane. While in court the woman sat in the dock with her handkerchief to her eyes, but she did not cry much, and occasionally looked around in a dazed kind of way. Her husband was in court, but at his own request was not called as a witness.

The gaol doctor's report is as follows:

Toronto gaol, October 25th, 1898.—I am of opinion that Mrs. Burrell was insane when she killed her children, and that she is still insane. James H. Richardson, Gaol Physician.

Norseman Lost 350 Sheep.

BANKERS OF CANADA

Convene in Annual Organized Session in Toronto.

ADDRESS BY THE PRESIDENT.

A Warm Welcome Given by the City—The Proceedings and the Topics Interesting to the Canadian Association and the Public—Some Live Topics Mooted by Speakers.

Toronto, Oct. 27.—The seventh meeting of the Bankers' Association of Canada opened yesterday morning in the members' reception room at the Parliament Buildings. Proceedings began shortly after noon yesterday. President D. R. Wilkie introduced Mayor Shaw, who in turn welcomed the visitors.

A council meeting followed, the subjects of consideration being the various financial questions of the year.

Bimetallism was one of the subjects touched on, a gold standard being strongly favored.

Regarding an Insolvency Act the council wants to disabuse the public mind of the impression that the association is opposed to such a measure. They will, however, oppose the introduction of clauses depriving creditors of the right to rank on the estates of insolvents.

The Quebec Conference was briefly referred to, and the hope was expressed that a satisfactory settlement of the points in dispute between Canada and the United States may be effected without in any way sacrificing the interests of this country.

The Ottawa Government was commended for reducing the interest on post office savings bank deposits from 3 per cent. to 2½ per cent.

On the question of bank charters, to which attention is naturally directed at this juncture as the time for their renewal is approaching, the council advised a movement on the part of the banks to secure charters for a longer term than ten years, as at present.

Pleasure was expressed at the prospect of cheap postage rates across the Atlantic, and an extension of cheaper rates to the domestic service was favored.

The council also reported that branches of the association had been established at Halifax and Victoria.

The feature of the afternoon was, of course, President D. R. Wilkie's annual address. Before stepping forward the well-known manager announced the names of the winners of the prize essays on banking offered by the association. In the senior series the rank is: 1. R. W. Crompson, Canadian Bank of Commerce. 2. F. Macdougall, Merchants' Bank, Halifax. Juniors: 1. C. M. Renshaw, Merchants' Bank, Montreal. 2. J. Gordon Tate, Merchants' Bank, Halifax. The address followed. Prolonged applause greeted its close. Banker George Hague was particularly enthusiastic in its praise. It will be printed and distributed abroad.

Mr. Wilkie, in his address, reviewed the financial condition of the country, the exploitation of the Klondike, advocated the establishment of a Canadian mint, and he touched briefly upon the increased commercial possibilities through the widening of the empire of the United States through the Spanish-American war, the food supply of England, the deepening of the canals and the abolition of tolls, and such internal bank management matters as cash reserves, insolvency, competition. He condemned as extravagant and useless in great degree our method of education, which trained tens of thousands for positions they could never hope to occupy. He wanted a more practical system. He closed with words of personal advice to minor associates and thanks to the association for its support of his actions while president.

Mr. W. G. Hodgets, St. Catharines, read an essay on how to train a bank clerk, and this was a signal for a discussion on education generally along the lines laid down by the president in his address. Mr. B. E. Walker of Toronto was the principal speaker.

Mr. O'Grady of Woodstock read a paper, in which he advocated the abolition of par exchange between banks.

Mr. J. C. Kemp proved a fun maker when he talked on "minor profits."

Hon. R. R. Dobell, who sat at the presidential table, called on to speak to the congress, said that Canadian banking laws stood first in the world and that the destinies of Canada lay in the hands of the bankers. If he could counsel banking men in any way it would be to keep a steady rein all the time.

At the evening session Secretary A. Weir gave the association the benefit of his studies on the state of Canadian trade when France ruled.

The sum of $300 in excess of associate fees was voted by the session to provide against all contingencies in the cost of running the Bankers' Journal.

Ex-Deputy Minister Lash, Q.C., read a learned paper on "Crossed Cheques." As a result of the paper, Managers Plummer and Coulson put through a resolution to work for the introduction into Canada of the crossed cheque.

A HERO OF SCIENCE.

Dr. Mueller, of Bubonic Plague Fame, to Get a Monument.

Vienna, Oct. 27. — The excitement caused by the prospect of an outbreak of bubonic or black plague here has subsided, and, thanks to energetic measures, the danger is greatly diminished. The condition of the nurse, Pesha, who was attacked with Dr. Mueller, who succumbed to the disease on Sunday, is somewhat worse, but there are no new cases, and it is thought there will be none, since the period for the incubation of the bacilli is past.

"Dear Sirs:—I think it my duty to let you know what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for me. I was suffering with severe headaches daily and also with catarrh. One day a paper was left at my house and in looking it over I read of your great medicine's value to my fellow sufferers. I reasoned that if it cured them, why would it not cure me, although I must own I had some doubts about it, as I

CAMPAIGN CLOSED.

Hon. Mr. Harcourt Scores at the Mount Forest Meeting—Mr. Gibson's Election Sure.

Mount Forest, Oct. 27.—The political campaign in East Wellington, so far as public speaking is concerned, was brought to a close last night by a gathering in the Opera House. Though a terrible storm of wind and snow was raging without, the townspeople and many from the country turned out and the hall was well filled. Hon. Richard Harcourt, Provincial Treasurer, was the speaker of the evening, and he was assisted by Mr. James McMullen, M.P., and Mr. Archibald Filshie, both of whom spoke briefly. Mr. Thomas Martin presided.

The interest of the audience was well sustained throughout the entire evening and the utmost enthusiasm over Hon. J. M. Gibson's chances prevailed amongst them. All that now remains for East Wellington is the ballot box. The return of the Commissioner of Crown Lands by a good majority is almost certain.

The Premier at Whitby.

Whitby, Oct. 27.—A splendid audience greeted Premier Hardy at the Music Hall last evening, although the atmosphere gave ominous indications of a wet, disagreeable night, and the probabilities were to a certain extent realized before the meeting concluded. Notwithstanding the strong party feeling now running in the riding, Mr. Hardy was given a perfect hearing, his address of considerably over an hour being entirely free from interruptions, other than of the repeated and long-continued bursts of applause. Mr. Hardy was preceded by Mr. Hugh Guthrie, a clever young Liberal from Guelph, who distinguished himself as a very witty speaker. Mr. George P. Graham, M.P.P., Brockville, followed the Premier, making his three addresses in a week to the electors of Whitby and by no means wearing his welcome out at that. Mr. G. Y. Smith, Chairman of the local Liberal Committee, presided, and on the platform were Reeve Pringle, Rev. M. Gold, Rev. Dr. Hare, Messrs. George Ross and David Ormistone. The gallery was entirely filled with ladies and a goodly number sat with their gentlemen friends in the body of the hall.

Costs for Willoughby.

Toronto, Oct. 27.—An order has been made by Mr. Justice Osler, directing that the particulars filed by Mr. J. H. Douglas, M.P.P. for East Northumberland, against his opponent, Dr. Willoughby, be struck off the file of the court. This is owing to the fact that Dr. Willoughby had abandoned his claim to the seat before their filing. The order also directs that the cost incidental thereto be paid by Mr. Douglas in any event, that is, whether his election is void or not.

PLANS FOR NEXT SESSION.

Making Ready Before the Commissioners Leave for Washington.

Ottawa, Oct 27.—The Ministers met in Council at 11 a.m. yesterday. It was found that probably the three Canadian Ministers on the Quebec Commission would be detained at Washington until Dec. 4, and that this would leave too little time to make due preparations for the session. They therefore discussed general matters of policy. The Ministers hope that a treaty will be ready for signature when the conference rises at Washington on the 4th of December, the date of the assembling of the American Congress.

It is thought that the last Thursday in January or the first in February may be the opening day of Parliament here.

The customs authorities are busy preparing standards for the guidance of tea experts. If approved by Council they will come into force Jan. 1.

It is stated that the office of Chief Post Office Inspector was abolished and Mr. Sweetnam of Toronto was superannuated. This, however, at present lacks official confirmation.

THE REMAINDER BURNED.

Mr. Tighe's Evaporating Factory Now in Ashes—Loss, $12,000.

Chatham, Ont., Oct. 27.—The remaining building at W. H. Tighe's evaporating factory, which was destroyed by fire last week, yesterday was burned to the ground, and what was an industry employing 385 hands, is a heap of ashes. Yesterday's fire was discovered at 3.45, and the brigade was soon on hand, but nothing was saved. The day's loss was $1,000, which makes the total loss in one week to Mr. Tighe of fully $12,000. This is partly covered by insurance.

OFFICE OF W. A. MURRAY & Co.,

Wm. McCabe, Esq., Managing Director, N. A. L.:

DEAR SIR,—In answer to your request for me to decide upon one of the following options offered me for settlement of my 15-payment Life Investment Policy for $5,000 which has matured this year, viz:

1st to take the value of the Policy in Cash	$5,000.00
2nd, or fully paid-up insurance for	8,280.00
3rd, or take the profits in cash and continue my policy without further payments being required from me, one policy participating in future profits.	2,080 25

I find it somewhat difficult to make a decision either of the three options being so satisfactory. I am certainly very much pleased with the results offered me, and as I find many others are giving full testimony to the profit-earning power of this company. I do not hesitate to give my endorsement as well, that the North American Life is one of our strongest Canadian institutions to day giving first class results on Investment Policies, on a safe and conservative basis. I find that my policy, which was originally a Life by fifteen payments, has become an Endowment at the end of the Investment period.

SHOT HIS SON-IN-LAW

Fatal Result of a Family Quarrel in Goderich—A Plea of Self-Defence—Other Ontario Crimes.

Goderich, Oct. 27.—Yesterday about 10 o'clock Mr. Cox left his home and proceeded to that of his son-in-law, Frederick Beatty. On his arrival he asked Mrs. Beatty for his daughter Lillie's clothing. She told him her husband might beat her if she delivered it up. Mr. Cox asked where Beatty was, and, on being told he was down in the orchard, he immediately went there.

The first thing Beatty said was: "What the d—— are you doing here?" and on being told, said: "Now I have you where I want you," and struck him (Cox) two or three times in the face. When Cox managed to get away he said: "If you strike me again, I'll shoot." Beatty said: "That's what I want," and pulled out his knife and made a jump at Cox. Cox shot him through the eye.

When Mrs. Beatty heard the report she ran out, and Cox told her to go for Mr. Thompson, a neighbor, while he went to Goderich for a doctor. Dr. Whitsley immediately accompanied Cox to Beatty's, but was too late. He died half an hour after being shot. Cox then came back to Goderich and gave himself up. He was remanded by Police Magistrate Seager till Saturday, when he will come up before the County Judge.

An inquest will be held at 1 o'clock to-day before Coroner Holmes. Crown-Attorney Lewis will prosecute, and Philip Holt has been retained to defend the prisoner. Mr. Cox is highly respected by everybody, and has the sympathy of all who know him.

A Warrant Out for Keena.

Newmarket, Oct. 27.—Last Friday morning a girl about 15 years of age, named Clara Gould, gave birth to a child. It was a shocking revelation to this town, but most of all to her parents, who are respectable people. The girl was attending school regularly up to Thursday afternoon, and such a thing as occurred was not at all suspected. It is now publicly stated that the seducer is one Pat. Keena of this town. He has a grown up family and an invalid wife. Since it became known that the girl had a child he skipped out, and the following warrant has been issued by the authorities for his arrest: "Wanted, for seduction—Arrest Patrick J. Keena, warrant out. (Then follows description). Send information to P. J. Anderson, Chief Constable, Newmarket, Ont."

Toronto, Oct. 27.—Patrick J. Keena, the man mentioned in the above despatch, joined the Toronto police force in 1885. During the session of the Ontario Legislature previous to the last election he acted as messenger at the Parliament Buildings, and then moved to Newmarket.

D. B. Johnston Sent Down.

Barrie, Oct. 27.—D. B. Johnston, a traveling spectacle vendor and eye doctor, from Toronto, was given three years in the Penitentiary by Chief Justice Meredith last night for criminal assault on a young girl about 15 years of age. The prisoner took the girl away from her home, near Thornton, on Aug. 31, telling her mother that he would take her to Toronto and get her a place. Instead of doing this he drove north towards Hillsdale, and it was on the road that he committed the offence. The prisoner denied the story point blank. The judge, in his charge, indicated that he did not think the assault had been committed, but the jury decided otherwise.

Dr. Lambert Acquitted.

Ottawa, Oct. 27.—In the Doctor Lambert indecent assault case the jury, after being out all afternoon yesterday, brought in a verdict of not guilty. Nellie Christopher of the American Bank Note Company was the plaintiff in the case.

Wednesday Evening, Oct. 26.

Liverpool futures eased off to-day on the better turn in Fashoda incident and consequent realization by speculators, the Danubian delivery closing 3½d and the March option 3¾d per cental below yesterday's final figures. Paris and Antwerp were both weak also.

MAN'S THOUGHTLESS INHUMANITY

To His Stomach, Causer Untold Suffering and Misery.

But Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Restore the Health and Strength the Creator Gave—they Cure all Stomach Diseases Except Cancer.

A tired, weak, worn-out stomach makes man a croak, a woman a scold and life a misery.

You should not know that you have a stomach. If it is healthy and strong you won't know it, for it will never trouble you.

There is no wonder that the stomach so often wears out. From our earliest childhood we persistently abuse it and overwork it.

We sicken it with "candies"; freeze it with ice cream; parboil it with scalding hot tea or coffee; choke it up with tough half-masticated meat; and abuse it in a hundred other ways.

No wonder it breaks down.

Why shouldn't it have a rest occasionally, as well as we do ourselves?

If it had, we would never be tortured by Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Heartburn, Sick Headache, nor any other of the many complaints that result from abuse of the stomach.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets give the stomach a rest by doing its work for it.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets digest any and all kinds of wholesome foods rapidly and thoroughly. They are the most perfect digestive agents known to medical men. They contain the very same substances that a perfectly healthy stomach secretes to digest the food taken into it.

By ensuring perfect digestion, Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets cure all stomach troubles except cancer.

By digesting the food they rest the stomach, allowing it to regain health, strength and vigor.

This Explains the Milk in the Cocoanut!

Routleys Sensational Sale of Woollen Hosiery and Ladies' Undervests.

This unparalleled Sale has been the talk of the town for the past week, and the wonder has been how the goods are sold so cheap.

In answer to many enquiries, we may explain that this stock was hypothecated to protect a liability of the manufacturer, and placed in our hands to sell regardless of original cost. That accounts for the milk in the cocoanut. We have already sold hundreds of dollars' worth, but there is still hundreds of dollars' worth left. As we are not in the Hosiery business to stay, we will continue to offer the goods at about THE COST OF THE WOOL, until every vestige is cleared out. A few prices will serve to show how much we are in earnest:—

CHAMPION CRICKETER.

Dr. Grace of England Has No Rivals In His Favorite Game.

Dr. William Gilbert Grace, the champion cricketer of the world, bears an undisputed title. A competent English authority recently said of him: "For accuracy of judgment, for skill in placing the ball, for endurance and everything else that goes to make a great batsman he has never been equaled. Add to this his brilliancy in fielding and his ability as a bowler, his claim to rank as the most remarkable all around cricketer of any age must be absolutely unquestioned."

Dr. Grace captained the Gentlemen against the Players at Lords', London, and scored 43 runs, not out, in the first inning of the game. A few days later he scored 168 runs in a county game. This was his one hundred and seventeenth century made in first class cricket during the past 24 seasons.

Dr. Grace has often been called the most popular man in England. Hundreds gather to see the great cricketer pass and thousands flock to the grounds where he is scheduled to play. Not long ago at a dinner where there were 21 diners a vote was taken. Four voted the grand old man Gladstone the most popular man in England and the other 17 were solid for Dr. Grace.

CONVENTION PROCEEDINGS.

Mr. Thomas McGillicuddy is Chosen as President.

RESULT OF ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

Addresses Delivered by Hon. G. W. Ross and Prof. Hamill.

THE CONVENTION CLOSES THIS EVENING.

The Peterborough Convention Proves to be the Banner Assemblage of the Association—A Large Amount of Money Pledged, and all the Branches Not Yet Heard From.

The thirty-third annual convention of the Sunday School Association of Ontario has been a most gratifying success from the beginning, and the interest promises to be maintained to the close to-night. There is an attendance of delegates of between 400 and 500 and though the speaking and deliberations are participated in by comparatively few, the whole body of delegates is alert with interest, and the flutter of note book leaves used to fix the pertinent points made by the speakers, accounts for a lack of applause that would have been certain to come were not the hands otherwise employed. No one, expect by direct and continuous contact with delegates, can get any idea of the benefit and inspiration they receive from the addresses and discussions. While there were many excellent speakers, it would perhaps be discourteous to omit special reference to Prof. Hamill and Mr. Marion Lawrance, stalwarts in their special lines, saturated with information special to their subjects, and with a facility and felicity of expression that is actually charming. Hon. G. W. Ross made a capital address, broad and comprehensive, which was somewhat brief, owing to his fatigued condition from recent work in the campaign. Both he and Professor Hamill deserve less credit for last night's success on their part from the fact that they were helped by the magnificent character of the immense audience that filled St. Paul's, which could not help being an inspiration to the most phlegmatic orator. The rapt attention was an evidence of the receptivity of the audience, which drank in with evident pleasure deep draughts of the copious current that was presented. What specially strikes the critical observer is the high tone of the convention's discussions, and the eager attitude of the delegates towards the large amount of useful information given. The enthusiasm of the convention is not all sentiment. Mr. Day, the general secretary, who has attended scores of conventions, says that the present one is the best yet in the matter of pledges made during its sessions.

At the afternoon session yesterday, the devotional services were conducted by Rev. W. Leslie Armitage, incumbent of All Saints.

The first item on the proceedings was "Reports of Visitors to the Sparsely Settled Districts of the Province."

Rev. T. A. Moore was the first speaker, who visited Manitowaning, Manitoulin Island, Little Current, Gore Bay, and spoke of the deep interest taken by the people of these places. An instance was given of a Sunday school conducted by the mother of a family of seven in her own home, and of a girl of twenty, who was the superintendent of another, and altogether compared with the town and city conditions, there was splendid work being done.

Rev. Robert Burns, Ph. B, spoke of his visit to Parry Sound, and there organized a convention of seven or eight Sunday schools. At St. Joseph's Island a fine convention was held, and in one Sunday school the work of the founder of the Sunday school (Robert Raikes) was repeated. Teaching the ignorant to read brought them within reach of the Bible. The Sunday schools in the districts were doing grandly effective work.

Rev. J. Campbell Tibb spoke of his visit to the northern district, whose centre is North Bay. He visited seven or eight places and delivered twenty-eight addresses. He and his co-workers were met everywhere with courtesy. No better work could be done than in extending the light we enjoyed in older Ontario to the newer portions. The largest Sunday school was at Copper Cliff, with an enrolled attendance of 175. There was one Home Class formed in North Bay. Mr. Tibb in closing urged the duty of the Association to assist the work in the north country.

Mr. Day, general secretary, gave an interesting resume of his visit to the Rainy River district, and his trip along the north shore of Lake Superior. One thing that marked the conventions held was the harmony that existed between the different denominations, the meetings being held alternately in the English Church, and Presbyterian and Methodist churches.

FINANCING THE ASSOCIATION.

Rev. J. J. Redditt, speaking of the finances, said there was a deficit of $200, of which $100 was due to unusual expenditure on Association missionary work. He appealed to the convention to come up to the help of the Association promptly. He was joined by Prof. Hamill in making a direct appeal and the result was a contribution of $1 950 25, of which $118 was cash and $1 832 pledges.

The following is a list of the county and city pledges:

THE BIG BOY PROBLEM.

Mr. Marion Lawrance spoke cleverly and clearly upon the "Big Boy Problem" in relation to Sunday school work. His consideration of the subject was the answer he gave to four questions. The first question he asked was, Are the boys in the Sunday school? The answer was, No; there were three girls to one boy in the Sunday schools of North America, and we wanted them there. The natural inquiry was, Why was he not there? Parents and superintendents were largely responsible by making conditions in the Sunday school that were repellant to the boys. How can we get the boys in Sunday school? The answer to this was illustrated by the practical and simple way of the Calvary Episcopal Sunday school, New York, which was expressed in these words —"We go and get them." How to hold the boys in the Sunday school was the point of the subject which was most fully illustrated. We should give the boys what they want; we should study the tastes of the boys and personally cater to and indulge them. The boy had natural wants—he had spiritual wants. We should breathe the air the boys breathe, that is place ourselves on a level with him and not hold ourselves above him, as though we were a superior being. We should treat the boys like men and not humiliate them by patronizing them like children. We should give the boys something to do, something that they are interested in. We should be interested in them, in their likings and pursuits. We should be friendly to boys and as prompt to recognize them by a friendly salutation on the street as we were in the Sunday school. We should interest ourselves in what boys are interested. We should be tactful, we should always be cheerful in the Sunday schools, we should not treat boys like machines, but try to live the lives of the pupils and sympathize with them. There was a way to reach the boy's heart if we only took the right way to get to it. Don't be stiff and unbending in our attitude to the boy. Mr. Lawrence's address was extremely effective. His illustrations of his points were very effectively told and entirely apropos. Through his graphic and almost dramatic way of putting them, many, even strong men were touched to tears.

MR. DAVID STOUFFER,
Director of Singing.

Wednesday Evening.

The evening session on Wednesday again saw St. Paul's church crowded to the doors many having to stand throughout. The opening devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. S. J. Storey, pastor of the George street Methodist church.

Professor H. M. Hamill was called upon by the chairman to deliver an address on some points on teaching. The first point dealt with by the speaker was "The dignity of the Sunday school teacher's calling." The church was beginning to realize more than ever the place of the Sunday school teacher and the world their depth whether secular or sacred. In days gone by the world has paid homage to military heroes or great statesmen who had moulded the country's laws, or to some sweet poet whose notes, in tune to heavenly harmony, had rejoined men. This was the case in the days of Cæsar when their ideal was a man of might. To-day that has all passed away, and thanks to inventors the world has been turned about. Men still come back from the war victorious, but he is no longer the ideal that he would have been in days of old. It is the same with teachers. The world looks back at the past but she pays more attention to the present. More men to-day enjoy reading Plato. This has been accomplished by our teachers, but the greatest teachers were the Sunday school teachers who taught of Jesus Christ, and who have moulded the thoughts of men and to-day we find that the man at the counter, desk or plough, are ruled by the teachings of Christ.

The second point dealt with was "The Preparation of the Teacher." In referring to this subject the professor spoke very tritely. There was no royal road to any book whether human or divine. The steep acclivities must be passed over. Occasionally God has given the world but these were only here and there to display His wisdom and power. No Sunday school teacher can attain efficiency without the consent of mind and heart. Some teachers do not appreciate the necessity of preparation. This was a foolish idea. Because the Bible is for the salvation of the world it will not remove from him or her the hard necessity of human study. The great leaders of the church who have left their impress on following generations have been the hardest workers and the most painstaking scholars of their day. The late John Spurgeon was an example of one who came to the front by hard study. Paul was picked on by the Lord to go into the world because he was a scholar and could take his place in the palace of Cæsar or among the statesmen of Rome. Take ecclesiastical history and you cannot find one example where a man has come to the front who has not done so by dint of hard life study. The Scriptures should be taught generally and not so much attention paid to lessons. It gave more room for thought and gives the scholar a broader idea of the Bible truths, while the lessons only give him a partial knowledge. The speaker urged upon the teachers that it was essential that the larger version of God's Book should be looked for. Every man and woman was capable under slight study to lift themselves up to this elevation and get the larger vision.

"Original Study, as well as Normal Study."—In dealing with this Prof. Hamill did not refer to the study of the Bible in Hebrew or Greek. He regretted to see anyone doing that. A little knowledge was a bad thing. What was meant by original study was the right of investigation as to the truths of the different biblical lessons. No man binds his conscience. He is always open to conviction, but no higher authority was needed at any time than the word of God. There were few men who could study the Bible in the original. The old King James edition was good enough for all, at least the people of Michigan and Ontario found it so and people would likely find it so for some time to come.

DON'T BE DISCOURAGED

If your learning does not match your neighbour's. Anyone can come under the wings of God's Holy Spirit, and can understand Gospel truths as well as the most learned from the seminaries. He could draw no distinction as to students. The pauper was as good as the prince. God was not a respecter of persons in that regard.

"The art of the teacher." This is a divine art. The divine patent has been set before us. Christ was the most artful teacher the world has ever had. He was inimitable in some things while in others it was possible to follow his example. It was impossible for us to work miracles and the speaker referred to the many teachings to be learned from them. The Gospels were sprinkled with the art of Jesus' teaching. Among the duties of a teacher it is necessary to have attention. This is a point upon which the teacher must fix his aim of the work. It is also necessary for the teacher to encourage study on the part of the pupil which must be stimulated by devices, and the teacher must learn his scholar to think for himself. It is a mistake to think for the pupil. Help him for a while but gradually leave him to think himself. The last, and one of the most important necessities of a teacher is to have made clear by the pupil that they thoroughly understand the moral of the lesson. It must be impressed on their minds.

The last point dealt with by Mr. Hamill was "The personality of the teacher." It was an important duty on the part of the teacher to set the aim of these scholars high. Set a good example for them, and if you succeed in doing this you will have no trouble in your efforts to become a successful Sunday school teacher.

HON. G. W. ROSS,

"The Sabbath School as an Educator" was the title of the address delivered by Hon. G. W. Ross, Minister of Education of the Province of Ontario, who was most favourably received by the audience. The speaker opened his remarks by congratulating the officers on the fact that the interest and attendance was fully equal to that of other years. This fact meant a good deal to the future citizens of the country. To be the trustees of the future of Canada was no small responsibility. The responsibility would soon be transferred to the Sunday school pupil or to those who were not pupils. Many do not rightly estimate the potentialities of the child. How the face of the world would have been altered but for the birth of such and such a child. What would Europe have been like to-day if there had been no little Napoleon Bonaparte; and what would have been the condition of affairs in England had there been no young Johnny Bright or Henry Cobden? In some little cradle there might be now some child, who would grow up to revolutionize the world like Isaac Newton. Sunday school children should be reared for their future effect upon the world as citizens. A Sunday school teacher must always have the thought of how to lift up their pupils out of the meannesses inherent to humanity—how to make him robust of soul and pure of character. The first thought must be of the child—for its intrinsic character and

FOR FUTURE CITIZENSHIP.

The moral element in citizenship is the enduring element. It is the moral element underlying the education of a people that makes a nation strong. That which will most effect the future of the nations is that this century has given more attention to the education of the children than in the previous ten or twenty centuries.

Free Sunday schools preceded free public schools. Robt. Raikes was not only a pioneer in the moral education of his people, but a pioneer in elementary education. It is well known that it is the moral element in a nation that preserves it from decay. The height which the old Romans reached in sculpture, architecture and painting might not be attained in the present day, but where was the old Roman Empire to-day? The new world was growing up under conditions which would render it impervious to time, and the great influence which was moulding it could be found in the Sunday schools. At the foundation of our present day civilisation lies the Sunday school.

Sunday school teachers should remember that their work is the most important that any citizen can be engaged in. There is no greater work for the Master or for your country.

It costs above $8 40 to give a child an elementary education. A dollar per child would pay for a child in the Sunday school, and if the moral fruits accrue it is to the country a good citizen and an enormous amount of expense in the administration of justice. It would cost fifty dollars a year to keep one prisoner in gaol. This can be saved to the country by the expenditure involved in sending the child to Sunday school where his moral principles will be well grounded.

England has found elementary education to be a most potent influence in the formation of her great system of political economy.

Public schools are taking the place of gaols and prisons. Elementary education has dried up half the crime in England, and been a great factor in reducing pauperism. One sinner destroyeth much good—a large amount of money was saved to the country and to the productiveness of its citizens.

The work of the Sunday school, and one of the directions in which it will be most useful to the nation will be, therefore, in the saving of a large amount of money to the country in the abolition of prisons.

The Sunday school instills its scholars with proper motives, and life is seen from a higher standpoint. The teacher raises the pupil's ideas to a proper conception of what the future can bring forth, and with this inspiration the boy starts out with the certainty of being able to raise himself above the meanness of life. Start a whole nation out in this manner and what would be its career?

The Sunday school then projects into the life of the child, and what goes into the life of the child, goes into the life of the nation. The Sunday school, therefore, gives the true key to national life. It gives higher ideas of life. It gives a purpose in life where no purpose existed. It gives to a man the idea that wealth and riches are a sacred trust, and whatever he has to give, he will give generously for the good of humanity. He who has will bestow his goods with the object of elevating humanity, and he will leave the world better than he found it.

A young man may start out with good intentions, but there will be some friction somewhere if he lacks in his ideal. The little child in the Sunday school will be imbued with this high ideal if properly instructed and will become a useful citizen, fit to carry on the Christian civilization in which we are engaged. In the public schools religious instruction could only be imparted incidentally, still the influence of the teachers on the scholars was appreciable. There were at present, in round numbers, ten thousand public school teachers in Ontario. The best was patent to all that a better class of citizens did not exist. Being brought into daily contact with the pupils their influence could not but be for good. Every day half a million pupils turned out [illegible] and the speaker insisted that the education which they received was complementary, as far as could be permitted, to the work of the Sabbath school. It is not enough that the intellectual life of a nation be strong. The moral life must be strong. The moral atmosphere must be cleared. Righteousness exalteth a nation. Whilst the speaker might aim at making a child intellectually clever, the work of the Sunday school teacher was far more important. In his hands lay the forming of the character of the men who would in a few years mould the nation's progress.

The session closed with the singing of the doxology.

THIRD DAY---THURSDAY.

There was still a large attendance of delegates at this morning's session. Devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. J. E. Moore, Ph.B.

The second report of the Business Committee was presented and adopted as follows:—

OFFICERS FOR 1898-99.

President—Thos. McGillicuddy, Toronto.

Vice-Presidents—All the ex-presidents who have within the past three years attended a meeting of the General Executive Committee or a Convention or subscribed to the funds of the Association, and the presidents of County and City Associations.

General Secretary—Alfred Day.

Corresponding Secretary—Miss Jessie Munro.

Minute Secretaries—Rev. J. Campbell Tibb, Ealinton, and W. E. Tilley, Ph.D., Bowmanville.

General Executive Committee—The officers of the association, the county and city representatives appointed by the Convention and one other representative to be appointed by each county or city.

The report was adopted.

REPORT ON RESOLUTIONS.

The report of the Committee on Resolutions, was presented.

It began by reciting the gratitude of the Association for the blessings of the past year, and that no officers had been removed by death. Regret was expressed for the enforced absence, through illness, of Rev. Dr. Potts. Pleasure was expressed at the presence of Prof. Hamill and Mr. Marion Lawrence, and a warm tribute was paid to the effectiveness of their inspiring addresses. Especially hearty thanks were tendered to the pastor and officials of St. Paul's church, to Mr. Stouffer, the leader of the singing, and to the organist and choir for their most efficient help in the service of song; to the local committees, who had done so much to make the stay of the delegates pleasant; to the citizens of Peterborough and Ashburnham, for their generous hospitality, to the press for their excellent reports, to the Executive Committee and officers and to the local examiners of the normal department. A vote of thanks was added to Mr. B. F. Jacobs, President of the International Sunday School Association for his kindness to the Ontario Association, especially in permitting the attendance during the whole convention, of Prof. Hamill.

PROHIBITION.

The prohibition resolution, moved by Rev. T. A. Moore, and published in the EXAMINER yesterday, was adopted unanimously, but not before Rev. J. Campbell Tibb said that he was a strong temperance advocate and was opposed to the principle of coercing Quebec in this matter of prohibition for himself, but he was anxious to have the convention unanimously assert the prohibitive principle. Another resolution deprecated the holding of society parades on Sunday as detrimental to the sacredness of the Sabbath day and it was resolved to urge upon pastors to discountenance them. Another resolution condemned Sunday parades by volunteers as a hindrance to Sunday school work:

"Therefore, we, the Sabbath School Association of Ontario, composed of representatives from all the evangelical churches of the Province, in our twenty-third annual provincial convention assembled, do respectfully ask the Hon. the Minister of Militia to take such action as shall be necessary to prevent Sunday parades."

SABBATH OBSERVANCE.

The resolution on Sabbath observance viewed with alarm the growing tendency to desecration of the Sabbath and would urge upon the pastor, superintendent and teachers present the necessity of united effort for the preservation of the day of rest and devotion to God by emphasizing the teaching of God's Word in the services of the school on the subject and that Christians be urged to abstain from social visiting, bicycling and pleasure seeking on the Lord's Day.

The resolution also expressed sympathy with the efforts of the Lord's Day Alliance.

A resolution was adopted urging that Home Departments be established wherever practicable.

Thomas McGillicuddy of Toronto, spoke on the subject, "Is the Crop worth Harvesting?" Material crops might sometimes not be worth harvesting, but the spiritual crop was never too scant to be worth gathering.

The success of the spiritual crop depended upon certain conditions, and the speaker used the processes of the material harvest to emphasize his spiritual points. In sowing the spiritual seed emphasis was placed upon the preparation of the seed, which should be steeped in prayer, tears and thankfulness. The careful preparation of the seed, which was the word of God, was to be carefully and prayerfully selected. The manner of carefully harvesting the crop was important. As hand-picked fruit was the best; so hand-picked spiritual fruit was the best. All the great characters of the New Testament were hand-picked. This called for more devoted personal action of Sunday school workers. The address was full of beautiful illustrations and was attentively listened to. The speaker closed by urging the convention to undertake a wider sowing of the good seed.

This address was followed b the singing of the appropriate hymn, "What shall the Harvest be?" Mr. D. Stouffer taking the solo and the convention joining heartily in the chorus.

THE HOME DEPARTMENT.

Dr. McLaren, of Toronto, introduced the Home Department Conference, stating that the importance of this youngest department of the association's work made a second conference upon the subject justifiable.

The first contribution to the discussion was the reading of a splendid paper sent by Dr. Withrow. The trend of modern energy was the effort to extend the privilege of the few to the many. The Sunday school since its founding in a thousand ways in many lands, was a practical development of the trend of the times, and the Sunday school was entering upon an important development of this spirit. The home department principle was originated in New York in 1881 by a woman. Dr. William Duncan was the first to put this idea in a concrete form. It has received the endorsation of the World and International Association. The aim of the department was to secure, through associated effort, the systematic study of the Word of God in the home. A short study was worth hours of desultory reading of the Bible. The home department ministered to those who could not attend Sunday schools. All these were united in a common study and a common interest was developed. It was a means of looking after those who were neglected, especially through the quarterly visitors. The department's mission was especially to those who needed the blessings of the Gospel most.

Rev. Mr. Hamilton conducted the conference and called upon Mr. Marion Lawrance, who made a most interesting speech, setting forth the objects, aims and results of the Home Department work. Its result was systematic study of the Word of God. A deeper knowledge was obtained and the church was benefitted directly in several quoted cases by the conversion of those visited in their homes. He spoke also of a Home Department that was conducted by electricity among the operators of a railway line. He dealt with the benefits in detail and gave practical directions in regard to literature.

STATISTICS.

Mr. Hamilton then instituted a sort of convention plebiscite, eliciting viva voce replies from delegates representing Sunday schools which had home departments to the following questions:

Where is it?
How long in operation?
How many members?
Condition?
Hindrances?
Helps?
Benefits?

The delegates present furnished statistics showing that the Sunday schools represented, having home departments, had from 1,000 to 1,200 connected with the home department.

The answers to the other questions gave unquestionable evidence of immense benefits, not only to the individuals operated upon, but to the entire activities of the Sunday school and the church. Prof. Hamill also gave brief but strong testimony to the benefits arising from the home department, and during the conference was often appealed to and responded with ready advice.

Notes.

Miss O'Brien of Stouffville, efficiently performed the duty of pianist to the musical services of the convention.

St. Paul's choir gave a very fine rendering of the anthem "By Babylon's Wave," last evening at the night session of the convention. The selection was given unaccompanied.

Rev. Joseph Fennell, Rector of Georgetown, who is a delegate to the convention, is staying with his cousin Mr. Robt. Fair.

Mr. J. J. McLaren, Q.C., of Toronto, the well-known Prohibition advocate, arrived in town yesterday, and is taking part in to-day's programme.

The collections received during the first two days of the convention, not taking into account last evening's session, amounted to $118 25. The pledges aggregated $1.832. Last year the cash subscriptions amounted to $77, and the pledges to $1,950.

The convention in selecting Mr. Thos. McGillicuddy, as the next President of the Association, showed its appreciation of the services of an old newspaper man.

Mr. J. Arthur Johnson, representative of the Sunday School Times, Philadelphia, was present pretty generally, and had little trouble in convincing the delegates of the merits of the really excellent and high-class journal he represents. The Sunday School Times has some of the most noted religious writers of the day enrolled among its regular contributors.

At this evening's session the devotional exercises will be conducted by Rev. J. G. Potter, B.A., pastor of St. Andrew's church. Rev. James Henderson, D.D., of Toronto, will speak on "Why should we seek to enlist the sympathy of Sabbath schools in the Cause of Missions." He will be followed by Rev. W. J. Clark, of London, a prominent Presbyterian divine, who speaks on "The Teacher's Faith."

Amongst the delegates is Mr. Wm. Johnston, of Belleville, Inspector of Weights and Measures for this district. He has been superintendent of the Bridge street Methodist church Sunday school since 1874. To his consecrated zeal is due in no small degree the present efficient condition of the school. Progressive in his methods and unfaltering in his devotion to the work to which he believes he has been divinely called, he approaches as nearly as possible the model superintendent. The wonderful hold which he has upon the hearts of his scholars is due to the kindly interest he always manifests in their welfare and the warm sympathy which he never fails to extend to them in times of sickness or trouble.

Mr. Thomas McGillicuddy, the first-decade—1888-98—president of the Association, has several claims to the position by virtue of fitness and service. His executive ability and knowledge of human nature are assured by the fact of his newspaper training. He has served many years upon the Executive of the Association, and is and has long been a prominent worker among the young in both Sunday school and Christian Endeavour work, and is teacher of the Bible class of the College street Baptist church. He is a good, practical speaker, and has won a fine reputation as a lecturer.

Mr. McGillicuddy is in the civil service of the Ontario Government, having a desk in the Department of the Minister of Agriculture. He is a brother of Mr. Dan McGillicuddy of the Huron Signal, Goderich, another well-known journalist, and succeeds a journalistic president, Mr. J. A. Donly. The association is to be congratulated upon its choice of President.

THOSE DISPUTED LOTS.

The Matter to be Finally Settled Early Next Week—Supt Leonard, of the C.P.R. Coming.

Mr. T. F. Matthews has returned from Toronto, where he and Mayor Davis conferred yesterday with Superintendent Leonard, of the C.P.R., in reference to the new siding which that line is desirous of putting into the Matthews Co.'s packing house.

As will be remembered the rights of certain property owners are at present infringed upon by the C.P.R. and it has always been a disputed point as to whether the company or the town was liable. This matter will be settled finally before the new siding is put in, and yesterday the mayor and Mr. Matthews obtained the promise of Mr. Leonard to come to Peterborough and confer with the council early next week, with the object of arriving at a settlement.

TWIN TORTURERS!

Lumbago and Rheumatism made Harmless by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Lumbago and Rheumatism cause endless pain and suffering. Every man and woman who runs chances of getting wet, or catching cold, is liable to suffer from one or both. Our hospitals are full of sufferers from these diseases; none are more painful. Every nerve is on fire; every joint is a centre of agony; every muscle an area of torture. To move hand or foot makes the victim shriek with agony.

Rheumatism makes more cripples than all the railroad accidents that ever happened. Twisted, mis-shapen caricatures of humanity, who cannot walk without misery, are to be seen every day. The kidneys are to blame. If they are healthy you needn't fear Rheumatism or Lumbago. Dodd's Kidney Pills keep the kidneys healthy and cure Rheumatism and Lumbago.

VIM IN BALL PLAYING.

Why Professionals Lack the Enthusiasm of Collegians.

ORIGIN OF THE "YALE FINISH."

No Game Is Certain Until Played to the End — Anson and His Many Troubles. Nucleus For a New National League Next Year.

"I wish that we could get that enthusiasm, loyalty, dash and vim into our professional players that seems to be the stock in trade of every player in a big college team," said a man prominently connected with the National league the other day. Those who have watched the big college baseball struggles year after year will readily understand the wail of the magnate. There has been more than one great college player who has taken a try at professional baseball and who has lasted for a few months and then faded from sight. Yale's greatest pitcher, "Dutch" Carter, was expected to become a professional, and when I asked him about it at the time he replied: "I might succeed in the National league and again I might not. If I could play in a professional team with the same spirit that I feel when I don a uniform in college, I am pretty sure that I should succeed. But I am just as positive that I could do nothing of the kind. Our college players go into a game to do or die, and they will stop at nothing to win. It is the same in college football. Why, the more bruises, scars and broken bones that one gets the greater hero one becomes. It is all well enough to talk about a professional earning his money and all that sort of thing, but I tell you that playing for your college and playing for so much a month are two entirely different things."

It has been noticed in many of the League games this year that the team which has a run or two ahead in the seventh inning seems to take things easy while the players of the nine with fewer runs seem too frequently to give up hope and to finish the game in a purely perfunctory manner, as if their only object in life was to get the game over as quickly as possible and to get into their street clothes. Here is at least one place where a good word can be said of "Scrappy" Joyce. The leader of the one time Giants at least tries to keep his men screwed up to the fighting point until the last man has been put out in the final inning. "Scrappy" was taught this by his old mentor, John Montgomery Ward, and he never forgot it. The last two years that Ward played professionally and at the same time managed the New York club his team became famous for turning apparent defeat into victory in the eighth or ninth inning. This accounts possibly for the manner in which the present New York team rips out a victory after they seem to be hopelessly beaten. This may be a tap to the other teams of the League. If you want to be sure of beating out the crew of "Scrappatious," you had better keep playing ball right up to the time that the umpire calls "Game!" If you don't think so, just ask Buck Ewing about the last series between New York and Cincinnati.

Many managers are lacking in this never say die policy, and it is not an unusual sight to see managers finding fault with their players in the last few innings because some one did not do this or do that at some particular point in the battle. Better for themselves and their players if they would do a little "jollying" with the hope of nerving the men up for a rally at the eleventh hour of the battle. A nice "jolly" judiciously placed will do more to nerve up the average professional player than anything we know of. Fault finding certainly won't do it.

If the managers of the League and a score or more of representative players could have seen a game played in Lincoln field, Providence, in 1891, they would be better able more fully to appreciate the above remarks. It was a game, the rubber between the Yale and Brown college teams, and the result was responsible for the birth of that terse expression which has been to college athletics ever since, "Yale finish." Sexton at that time was the pitcher and captain of the Brown team, and for eight innings he had held the Yale batsmen at his mercy. Brown went out in the ninth, leaving Yale one more turn at bat and with the score 7 to 2 in favor of Brown.

The first two Yale batsmen were easily retired and the third man came up to the plate and had two strikes called on him. Then the Yale men gave it up and began to pack their bats away in the bat bags and several of them had climbed into their bus. There was a momentary delay over some decision, and by that time all the Yale men were in the bus except the man at bat. The next ball pitched came sailing squarely over the plate and that Yale man hit it on the trade mark, and it landed against the left field fence. Then it was a sight to see that Yale crew scamper out of that bus and dig bats out of bat bags. Men were on the coach lines yelling like mad in an instant. That two base hit acted like magic on the entire team. The fact that six runs were needed to win and that two men were out was forgotten. Those Yale men went up in turn and cracked the curves of Sexton until that clever pitcher was knocked out of the box. Yale's enthusiasm was too much for the Brown team, and that third man was never put out. When Sexton retired, Woodcock was called to the rescue, but he could not stop that Yale rush, and six runs were sent over the plate, and Yale won 8 to 7.

There is a chunky little individual with a moon shaped face who has played quite an important part in baseball in his way, and who ought to be better known to the baseball world. Here goes to give him his deserts. The man referred to is Patrick T. Powers, the president of the Eastern league. Pat has served his time as manager in the big league, but he likes his present berth better. It gives him a certain amount of time which enables him to turn an honest penny. Pat is the manager of the American Cycle Racing association, which conducts bicycle races in several of the large cities. The company controls little Michael, who was such a world beater last year, but who may meet his Waterloo this season.

Powers is probably the best posted man on minor league talent in this country. He watches the youngsters with a fatherly interest, and he is appealed to by the club owners who are in search of desirable young blood with which to strengthen their teams. Pat has the records of the most promising youngsters at his fingers' ends before the close of the season, and if a club owner wants a real green diamond jewel he must go to Pat to get him. They have a way in some of the minor leagues of not showing the real ability of a player in the official averages and in consequence many a club owner who tries to do the picking himself gets his fingers badly burned.

Genuine sympathy has been expressed for A. C. Anson in this his year of real baseball troubles. The grand old man of baseball occupied a place in his humble sphere in life as great as did Gladstone and Bismarck in their respective spheres. How different, however, was the snuffing of his candle of usefulness! Even the enemies of the great men of England and Germany forgot their bitter hatred of years when Gladstone and Bismarck passed beyond the valley of trials and tribulations. Poor old Anson, however, must live to hear the mistakes of his life shown to the public for some time to come.

People will continue to point to the records of the Chicago and New York clubs since the veteran left those teams. Chicago under Burns has certainly played better ball this season than for several years. The improvement in the general work of the New York team since Anson left the metropolis of America is really astonishing. There are few, however, who are so nonsensical as to think that this means that Joyce and Burns are such great improvements as managers. There was a clique in Chicago against the old warhorse, and he had not been in New York a week before there was a certain number of players on the New York team who did not care whether the team won or not. They were wholly in sympathy with Joyce, and they realized that the best way to serve Joyce was to freeze Anson out.

Where is that yellow streak which is supposed to attack the Cincinnati players about this time every year? Some people are getting nervous about it. The admirers of the champions are of the opinion that the streak will develop about the time that the Cincinnatis start on their next eastern trip.

There is some talk about changing the Eastern league into a sort of international league for next year, with four clubs in this state and a like number in Canada. Don't do it, Mr. Minorleaguers. Those Canadians like baseball pretty well, but they have hardly reached that point where they will support four clubs in a league race.

GEORGE E. STACKHOUSE.

When any part of the body isn't doing the work that nature intended it to do, it puts the whole system out of tune—out of harmony. Sickness in one part of the body is likely to run into all parts of the body. When children stand a row of bricks on end, they knock the whole row down by upsetting one brick. That is exactly what happens to the health when the bowels fail to perform their proper function. Constipation makes trouble all along the line—puts the liver out of order, is bad for the kidneys—bad for the stomach. It holds in the body poisonous matter, and because it cannot go any place else, it gets into the blood. The blood carries it all over the system. That makes sluggishness, lassitude, bad breath and foul taste in the mouth, fills the stomach with gas and causes windy belching, stops digestion in the stomach, causes sour stomach, heartburn and headache. You can avoid all such trouble, for Dr. Pierces Pleasant Pellets CURE constipation and its attendant evils.

American Barge Sunk.

Montreal, Oct. 26.—The United States steam barge Lloyd S. Porter collided with the Turret Age Sunday night when opposite St. Croix village, about 30 miles above Quebec, and ten minutes afterwards she was on the bottom of the river, with half of her crew clinging for dear life to the top of the masts, which were just out of the water. When she sank a boat was launched, and all the crew but five managed to get into it. The reports brought by men on the Turret Age say that the boat, which contained all the officers, captain included, did not make any attempt to take off the other five men.

How Herd Plays Golf.

Fred Herd, the new golf champion, has a much longer swing than most golfers, although his style does not differ materially from such men as H. H. Hilton and Alex Herd. When he is at his best, his game is remarkable for its brilliancy. He goes for everything. If there is a bunker 199 yards away and he feels that he can carry 200 yards with his best ball, he will not hesitate to try and overcome the hazard, but if there is a bunker 210 yards away and he feels that he cannot quite carry it he will aloe or pull the ball so as to curve around the obstruction. He only weighs about 155 pounds and does not give one the impression of great muscular activity, and yet he will drive a ball which will make even men in his own class wonder how he does it.

THE PEGLEG'S TRIAL.

Brown's Lawyer Is Trying to Get the United States to Interfere.

London, Oct. 26.—Two important witnesses were examined yesterday in the Police Court proceedings against Marion Brown, the alleged murderer of Police Constable Toohey. J. Coleman, G.T.R. engineer, Port Huron, and William Young, yardmaster, G.T.R., positively identified prisoner as having been seen first on the Port Huron side of the tunnel and afterwards on the Sarnia side, where he boarded a freight train bound for London.

The court adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning. The Washington authorities have acknowledged the receipt of communications from the prisoner's lawyer regarding the alleged abduction from American territory. He expects to hear something more of a definite nature from the Washington authorities within a few days.

FOUND DEAD IN THE CAB.

Train Was Running at Full Speed Without an Engineer.

Susquehanna, Pa., Oct. 26.—When the night express train No. 12, eastbound, arrived at this station at midnight last night, the engineer, Henry Kingsley of Susquehanna, was found dead in the cab with his head badly crushed. After the train left Binghamton, 28 miles west of here, trainmen and others noticed that the engineer failed to give the usual signals at crossings and small stations and that the train was running at unusual speed. Fireman Cowgill noticed that the whistle was not blown for this station, and going forward into the cab found the dead engineer. The train had run at a terrific speed for twenty miles without an engineer. There were more than 200 passengers on board. It is supposed that the engineer had been hit by a water crane at a point just east of Binghampton. Engineer Kingsley was one of the most reliable engineers on the Erie road.

Dr. Ireland Discovered.

Father Point, Que., Oct. 26.—The impression is that Dr. Ireland, who disappeared so mysteriously between the St. Lawrence Hall and the steamship wharf in Montreal about a week ago, is on his way to Glasgow or Liverpool on board the steamship Tritonia or Scotsman. The reason for this belief is that among other letters sent ashore to be mailed here from both of the steamers named were two addressed to Trenton, Ont., and from a fac-simile now seen of the person's handwriting comes the conviction that the writing on the Trenton letters is the same.

PUT YOUR FINGER ON YOUR PULSE.

If it is Weak or Irregular don't Hesitate to Start the use of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills at once.

The way the heart beats is an index of how the whole machinery of the body is going. With a strong, steady, regular pulse we may expect vigorous health. With a weak, irregular, intermittent pulse we can tell at once the vitality is low—that Dizzy and Faint Spells, Smothering and Sinking Sensations, Nervousness and Sleeplessness and similar conditions are bound to ensue.

By their action in strengthening the heart and regulating the beat, toning the nerves and enriching the blood, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills relieve and cure all those distressing conditions just enumerated, and impart vigor and vitality to the system.

Mrs. E. Croft, residing on Waterloo Street, St. John, N.B., relates her experience with this remedy as follows:

"For some time past I have suffered from pallor, weakness and nervous prostration, I had palpitation and irregular beating of the heart so severe as to cause me great alarm. I was treated by physicians, but got no permanent relief.

"Finally I was recommended to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and I am glad to say that from them I derived the first real benefit that I ever got from any medicine. My appetite is improved, my entire system toned up, and I can do no less than cheerfully recommend Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills to all requiring a relinable heart and nerve tonic."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. a box, or 3 for $1.25, at all druggists. T. MILBURN & Co., Toronto, Ont.

Miss Mary B. Hicks, South Bay, Ont., says that Laxa-Liver Pills cured her of Sick Headache, from which she had suffered for more than a year.

Waking the Floor.

When a business man gets to the point where he cannot sleep at night, where he is so shattered of nerve that it is torture to even remain in his bed, and he has to get up and pace the floor—it is time for that man to bring himself up with a round turn. If he does not, it means nervous prostration and mental, if not physical, death.

For a man who gets into this condition there is a remedy that will brace him up, put him on his feet and make a man of him again. It is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It goes to the bottom of things. It searches out the first cause. When a man is in this condition you can put your finger on one of two spots and hit that first cause—the stomach or the liver or both. This great medicine acts directly on these spots. It promptly transforms a weak stomach into a healthy one. It facilitates the flow of digestive juices and makes digestion and assimilation perfect. It gives a man an appetite like a boy's. It invigorates the liver. It fills the blood with the life-giving elements of the food, and makes it pure, rich, red and plentiful. The blood is the life current, and when it is filled with the elements that build new and healthy tissues, it does not take long to make a man well and strong. It builds firm, muscular flesh tissues and strong and steady nerve fibers. It puts new life, vigor and vitality into every atom and organ of the body. It cures nervous exhaustion and prostration. Nothing "just as good" can be found at medicine stores.

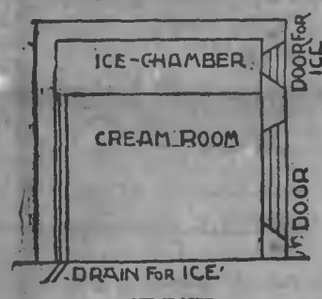
"I had suffered about eleven years with a pain in the back of my head and back," writes Mr. Robert Hubbard, of Varner, Lincoln Co., Ark. "I suffered for eleven years and spent a great deal of money for doctors and medicine, but did not get relief. Then I tried four bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and improved greatly. I sent for five more and now am glad to tell everyone that I am in good health."

CREAM IN A HOT CLIMATE.

Directions For Handling It With the Best Results.

How shall I secure a uniform temperature for milk and cream in a climate subject to extremes of temperature—from 10 degrees below zero to 105 degrees above? My dairy room is 26 by 30 feet in the clear. The floor has three elevations, with a difference of three feet between each, the lowest being a cement lined basement three feet below the level of the ground. The 600 gallon milk vat monopolizes the highest floor; the separator (Danish Weston) and 200 gallon cream vat take about two-thirds of the middle floor, and the 200 gallon receiving churn and power butter worker about absorb the lowest.

I get from 75 to 200 gallons of milk per day, according to the season, but expect to get more than double this quantity within a year or two. In the severe winter weather my cream either does not ripen at all, or, if heated by steam, ripens imperfectly or unevenly or cooks. In the heat of summer it ripens so fast that it becomes divided into whey and curd before sufficient has accumulated to churn. I should add that my dairy room has three doors and six windows and the machinery is immediately adjoining it. I am inclined as a remedy to incase both the milk and cream vats in small heat and coldproof apartments, amply ventilated if possible, the covering not to extend up to the ceiling of the dairy room.



ICE CLOSET.

I indulge the hope that either by making the walls of these apartments double and of good, thick lumber, leaving a space between, or by making them of rough hewed logs, chinked and plastered (and possibly another wall of plank with space between) I can accomplish my object. It is on this point of the compartments and also on the best methods of ventilating such little rooms that I desire information. My vats are connected directly with cold well pumps with a temperature of from 54 to 60 degrees, but this seems to make no appreciable difference during our hottest weather.—B. L., Fort Smith, Ark.

This seems to be a case in which there should be no difficulty, for the temperature of the water is precisely right for the management of the cream and for its ripening and the churning. Where the winter temperature is 10 degrees below zero there should be a sufficiency of ice for use in the summer in the cold storage of the butter, or if necessary in the keeping of the cream. That the cream does not ripen satisfactorily seems to indicate some error in its management, for if it were kept at a temperature of 60 degrees it should ripen sufficiently in 36 hours by the mere exposure to the air protected from the outside heat in the summer.

The uneven ripening may be due to the want of frequent stirring to preserve uniformity in the acidification, and an ice closet or refrigerator would prevent the trouble in the hot weather. This might be built in the lower part of the dairy and need not be more than 8 by 10 feet in size, with an ice chamber above and the creamroom under it. This closet may be made in this way:

The walls are double and filled between with dry sawdust, or the space of 6 inches between them may be made airtight by lining them with airproof paper. The ice chamber above should have a floor of sheet zinc, a little sloping to one corner, that the water from the melting ice may drain off. This metal floor will cool the chamber to any desired degree, and in the summer churning it will not be difficult to keep the right temperature by the addition of powdered ice to the cream. The butter when made may be stored in the ice closet until disposed of.

To avoid difficulty with the cream in cold weather the closet may be warmed by hot water to the right temperature. By regulating these points in the management in the ways suggested there should be no difficulty in keeping everything in the precise condition for the best dairy work. It might be desirable to use a stove in the dairy in the cold season and regulate the warmth by a thermometer. The ice closet may be built as shown in the picture. If no ice is provided, the cream may be kept cool by setting it in narrow, deep pails in a tank of cold water, the water being changed as necessary to keep the temperature at 60 degrees.—Professor H. Stewart in Rural New Yorker.

Crinoline Once More.

If we may accept the old axiom that straws show which way the wind blows, the crinoline is surely coming in fashion. The new style of skirt demands a well fitting petticoat, and not a cheap petticoat either.

Most of the skirts are extended by the use of featherbone, and some of the skirts have featherbone all the way from the hem to the waist, following in outline the flounces attached to the skirt. In a word, the new style of petticoat is exactly like the old style hoop skirt, except that it is covered with material instead of being a network of wires.

The fashion of wearing long skirts which trail on the ground and act as scavengers for our dusty streets may render the adoption of the crinoline a necessity and a protection against microbes; but, says the New York Herald while noting this revived fashion, the thing for the sensible woman to do is to wage earnest and effective war against long skirts and crinoline.

Raised . . . From a Bed of Sickness . . .

SIMCOE, Jan. 18th, 1897.

Messrs. Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Gentlemen—For over five months I was confined to my bed, not being able to move. The best medical skill was called in, all treating me for catarrh of the stomach, but to no avail. I could not eat the most simple food without being in dreadful misery, and found no relief until same was vomited up. After spending a large sum in medical advice, I was advised to try a box of Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure. I purchased a box from J. Austin and Company, Simcoe, and to my surprise found great relief. Not being able to eat I tried a box of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills; the pains left me the third day. My appetite has been fully restored. I consider myself perfectly cured, and feel as well as when a young woman, although I am 65 years old at present. I was almost a shadow, now I am as fleshy as before my sickness. Have used only three boxes of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and two boxes of Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure. I can do my house work as usual. I am positive that my marvellous cure (which I think it is) is due purely to Dr. Chase's remedies, which I have used. I can honestly recommend the same to any persons suffering from symptoms similar to mine. Wishing you every success,

Yours truly,
MRS. ANN CHURCHILL, Sr.

WEAKER AGAIN.

The Chicago and Liverpool Wheat Markets Felt the Effect of the Abatement of the War Scare Prices.

Tuesday Evening, Oct. 25.

It was no doubt partly owing to the abatement of the war scare that the world's wheat markets to-day failed to exhibit the strength that characterized them yesterday. Liverpool wheat futures opened very strong this morning at an advance of nearly a penny over night, but eased off on the better foreign outlook closing unchanged to ¼d per cental higher than yesterday's final figures. Spot wheat however, rose a net ½d to 2d for the day. Paris wheat advanced 3 centimes, and flour 20 to 25 centimes.

Chicago's wheat market opened heavy and continued so all day, closing at a decline of about 2c per bushel for all deliveries, as compared wwith the previous final figures. Speculators realized on their purchases of the past few days. About 80 loads were reported worked for export. A feature of the day has been the strength of cash wheat, as compared with futures.

Toronto Live Stock.

The receipts of live stock were light for a Tuesday's market—48 carloads, composed of 980 cattle, 1080 sheep, 1100 hogs and 40 calves.

Although the run was light, there were more than sufficient to supply all demands, in the different classes, unless it was in the best grade of butchers' cattle. In this class a few more would have found a good market.

Trade was slow and market very dull, especially for exporters, few buyers being on hand. Those that were there did not seem to be willing to buy, and, of course, prices went lower.

DELEGATES and VISITORS

To the Sunday School Convention

Are cordially invited to drop in and see our Fur Stock this week. We Offer Something Extra.

It's well towards Fur time says the Calender-old Probs says so too—sane folk don't wait for the thermometer to tell them, they must get their Furs—they buy when "good opportunity" presents itself.

Delegates and Visitors will find this is their opportunity.

Peterborough has a very wide reputation as a specially good town to buy Furs in. We manufacture all Fur garments of every kind in our own workrooms, under our own supervision.

Having an extra large output in Fur Goods in our Toronto store (J. & J. Lugsdin) as well as in our store here we can buy our Fur skins direct in Liepsig, Germany, and in London, England, thereby saving at least 15 per cent.

Every article being home-made and well-made is guaranteed to be as we represent it and then you have the very material advantage of getting Furs at actual wholesale prices as we save all middlemen's profits.

As an Extra to Visitors this Week we will give 10 Per Cent. Off all Fur Purchases.

All the Leading Fashionable Furs in Latest Designs and Patterns, well made and lined, will be found in our stock. Fur Garments of all kinds Made-to-order.

Mr. Joseph Succee has left with the EXAMINER a mammoth potato, grown by Mr. James Robertson, 12th concession of Smith. The weight of the tuber is only half an ounce less than three pounds. It would of itself provide a meal for a considerable family. It was grown on loam soil.

We extend the freedom of the Peterborough Business to the delegates during their visit, and will allow them a special discount of 10 per cent. off our already low prices. They will be interested in finding in Peterborough such a bookstore as will favourably compare with the largest in any city in the Dominion. STOLEN WATCH RECOVERED.

Mrs. Allen Appears to Answer For an Old Offence.

A year ago last May—to be accurate, May 19th, 1897, Miss. Nellie Weary had a gold watch stolen from her at the Salvation Army, and although the theft was reported to the police at the time, yet despite the greatest vigilance, they were unable to get any trace of it.

The thief was not cunning enough to get off scot free, and she has been found out. On circus day Henry Smith, who a few days ago was arrested on a charge of vagrancy, went to Lindsay, and while there left a watch with a jeweler of that place, and he managed to borrow $5 on it. This piece of carlessness lodged a suspicion against Mrs. Allen, with whom Smith had been living, and she was arrested this morning, charged with stealing the watch.

The prisoner appeared before R. S. Davidson, J.P., and was remanded till Nov. 2nd.

The children of the prisoner were taken in hand by the Children's Aid Society.

Mr. Frank F. Young, of "the Point," has been in town for the last day or two.

Mrs. R. Healey, of town, is on a week's visit to her uncle, Mr. B. Mahoney, Campbellford, and other relatives in the vicinity.

Mrs. Poussette and Miss Poussette have returned from a pleasant two weeks' visit in Toronto and are again occupying their apartments at the Oriental.

Mr. R. M. Ranson, of Kidderminster, the representative of one of the largest and most reliable dealers in Brussels, Milton and Axminster Carpets, in England, was in town yesterday taking Mr. Robt. Fair's spring order for carpets. The sidewalk in front of the Golden Lion was blocked nearly all day by eighteen big pieces of baggage.

Miss Addie Doris, Cedar street, has gone to Toronto for a short time to take special instructions in dance music from Prof. Harding, after which she will be prepared to take engagements for the coming season. On Monday evening Miss Doris was well received at the Toronto Catholic Young Ladies' Literary Society At Home, where she rendered an instrumental solo.

Capt. Lane, of the steamer City of Peterborough, has tied up the big boat for the season and left for his home in Lindsay. The boat was docked at the Ashburnham wharf in excellent condition. Although this was Capt. Lane's first experience on the river there was hardly a scratch on the boat at the close of the season's business and no accidents were reported through the summer. Commodore Calcutt hopes to persuade the captain to again take charge of the City next year and, needless to say, the captain's many friends in town are anxiously awaiting his answer to the Commodore's proposal.

About Coffee.

Few, very few, know how to buy coffee. A grocer who has little respect for his customers can deceive them any time. We've paid strict attention to coffee buying and ever since we began business have refused to handle any brands but the most wholesome and unadulterated. Our fresh ground coffee comes a little higher, but it always suits—it always will. We pay a big price for the best roaster bean, sometimes as big as to leave us but a very small margin of profit; but that does not matter if our trade is pleased. Our coffee mill is run by electricity, and we grind your coffee fresh on the spot every time—giving you the full benefit of the aromatic flavour of the fresh ground bean. Best results are obtained when blended with genuine Mocha (some blend with Rio, an inferior article,) at same price. Java is mild; Mocha is strong. We also keep in stock Chase & Sanborn's Old Government, Java and Mocha coffees. E. F. MASON & Co, Grocers and Tea Merchants, George street, Peterborough. dw

BRITAIN AND EGYPT.

A Rumor That the Former Will Proclaim a Protectorate.

SEEMS TO BE WORTHY CREDENCE

M. Dupuy Asked by President Faure to Form a New Cabinet—Lord Kitchener's Splendid Welcome in London—The Spaniards Give in on the Cuban Debt Question.

London, Oct. 28.—(Toronto Globe Special).—Nothing authentic has transpired since the meeting of the Cabinet, but there is reason to believe that a basis of settlement has been reached, subject to ratification by the new French Cabinet.

A persistent rumor on the Stock Exchange asserts that Britain is about to proclaim a protectorate over Egypt, with the consent of Germany, Austria and Italy. The statement is received with a good deal of credence in well-informed quarters.

It is suggested that France would agree to this solution of the question in return for a commercial outlet on the Nile for her central African possessions.

EGYPT TO BE BRITISH.

Paris Believes International Control Is to Be Abolished.

Paris, Oct. 28.—It was reported here last evening that the British Cabinet at yesterday's session decided to proclaim the protectorate of Great Britain over Egypt.

The position and condition of Egypt are unparalleled. Nominally it is a province of the Ottoman Empire, but it is also autonomous and under the rule of the Khedive by firmans of the Sultan. It is at the same time entirely dependent for its existence as a sovereign state upon the will of stronger powers, England at the present moment being dominant. England is now in occupation of Egypt, and for many years to come must continue to exercise an ever-increasing influence over the fortunes of the country.

Egypt being now on the high road to India, England is forced to take an active part in supporting the Khedive. Under her influence the demoralized condition of Egyptian finances has been rectified, until to-day Egyptian finance stands in a position of acknowledged security.

HOME IN LONDON.

The Hero of Khartoum and Avenger of Gordon Got a Wonderful Reception in London.

Dover, England, Oct. 28.—General Lord Kitchener of Khartoum arrived at Dover yesterday afternoon from Paris, and received a public welcome.

Arrived in London.

London, Oct. 25.—General Kitchener arrived here yesterday afternoon and was greeted by the Commander-in-Chief of the British forces, General Lord Wolseley, and other high military officers. The Grenadiers formed a guard of honor. The crowds at the Victoria Station were so dense that the police were unable to cope with them. The barriers and the police cordon were carried away together, and the multitude surged into the reserved portion of the station.

As the Sirdar issued from the royal waiting room, expecting to step into his carriage, he found himself confronted with an impenetrable mass, cheering, gesticulating and shouting "Bravo! Herbert. God Bless you, my boy," cheers for the "Avenger of Gordon," and kindred cries. His face beamed with pleasure at the popular greeting.

When he attempted to make his way through the crowd his hat was smashed in, and the police had to save him forcibly from the attentions of enthusiastic guardsmen who desired to carry him on their shoulders through the town.

All attempts to clear a passage were futile. The Sirdar was forced to retire, and was finally smuggled out of the station through a distant corner of the building.

France Will Leave Fashoda.

London, Oct. 28.—M. de Pressense, editor of the Paris Temps, writes to the Chronicle that it is the settled intention of the French Government, with the perfect assent of the French people, to evacuate Fashoda. Major Marchand will be recalled by way of the Nile, accepting the friendly offices of the British and Egyptian Governments. The Chronicle says it has reason to believe that M. de Pressense writes with direct authority.

DUPUY CALLED IN.

He Has Twice Before Succeeded in Making a Cabinet.

Paris, Oct. 28.—President Faure, at 9 o'clock last evening, asked M. Dupuy to form a Cabinet, in succession to the Brisson Ministry, which resigned on Tuesday. M. Dupuy, who has thrice been Premier, asked until to-day to decide. It is thought he will accept the task.

A Suspicious Loan.

London, Oct. 28.—The Rome correspondent of the Times says: "I learn that Prince Louis Napoleon, who was supposed to have rejoined his regiment in Russia, is really at Geneva, where he has raised on special security a loan of such dimensions as excludes the hypothesis of its being required for private purposes. Prince Louis has long been the candidate of the Bonapartists for the French throne in preference to his brother, Prince Victor.

Duke of Orleans Moves.

Vienna, Oct. 28.—The Duke of Orleans has started for Brussels.

Britain's Statesmen Not Worried.

London, Oct. 28.—The meeting of the Cabinet yesterday lasted two hours. When the Ministers left the Foreign Office they were smiling and did not give any indication of serious apprehension as to the future. The French Ambassador, Baron de Courcel, saw the Marquis of Salisbury immediately after the conclusion of the Cabinet meeting.

Kenmore Sinks at Suez.

Suez, Oct. 28.—The British steamer Kenmore, Captain Ellis, from New York September 30 for Aden, Singapore and Yokohama, has sunk at her moorings at this port. She partially obstructs the canal.

THE DREYFUS REVISION.

Reporter Bard Gave Important Testimony, Tending to Show the Captain's Innocence.

Paris, Oct. 28.—The Court of Cassation, to decide whether the Dreyfus case be re-opened, began at noon yesterday. The hall was full. Maitre Labori, Zola's counsel, and Madame Dreyfus were present.

Reporter Bard gave the first evidence. He traced its history. He said Madame Dreyfus' appeal was based on the assumption that Major Esterhazy, not her husband, wrote the bordereau. The late Colonel Henry's confession of forgery also was a reason for asking a revision. A forger's evidence was suspicious. He claimed that Dreyfus' condemnation should be revoked.

Special stress was laid on Col. Picquart's letter of July 14, 1898, giving reasons for thinking Dreyfus innocent. The letter said that Col. Picquart had declared he was convinced of Dreyfus' innocence, and was going to fight the matter out and tell all he knew, though it implicated members of the general staff.

The opinion is abroad that the court will not pronounce either for or against revision, because of the awkward results. To avoid these, it is expected the court will decide that, as the affair now presents itself, there has been no treason, and that therefore the condemnation pronounced upon Captain Dreyfus by the court-martial cannot be upheld. The hearing was adjourned till to-day.

According to the National Review Emperor Nicholas of Russia has become an advocate of Dreyfus' revision.

CUBAN DEBT CONCEDED.

The Government at Madrid Has Accepted the View of the United States Respecting the Cuban Debt.

Paris, Oct. 28.—The Spanish Government, through the Peace Commissioners of Spain, has accepted the view of the United States Peace Commissioners towards the proposed assumption by the United States of the Cuban debt.

The American Commissioners have firmly but courteously declined to assume for the United States the entire or joint responsibility for the Spanish financial condition. Senor Montero Rios, the President of the Spanish Commission, and his colleagues, with faithful insistence, sought another result. But they have failed to attain it, and have finally abandoned the effort, and have agreed that the Cuban article of the protocol shall, without conditions, have a place in the ultimate treaty of peace.

Shot at the Robbers.

Simcoe, Ont., Oct 25.—An unsuccessful attempt was made yesterday about 2 o'clock a.m. to burglarize the post office here. An entrance was gained by prying up a window at the rear of the building. One of the party climbed upon a shelf, lighted a match and looked around, at the same time saying "All right." Immediately the watchman commenced shooting at a very lively rate, and the midnight callers left very hurriedly without any spoil.

Lumber Mill at Bracebridge Destroyed.

Bracebridge, Ont., Oct. 28.—Last evening J. D. Shiers' lumber mill was discovered to be on fire, and before assistance could be obtained the mill was enveloped in flames. The building is a total loss, estimated at $5,000, fully insured. The lumber and shingles were all saved.

A LIBERAL VICTORY.

Mr. Gibson Returned in East Wellington by 514 Majority.

THE TORIES FOUGHT HARD.

The Perfect Organization of the Liberal Party, Coupled With Mr. Gibson's Popularity, Rendered Their Efforts of No Avail—An Indication of the Government's Strength—The Returns.

Fergus, Oct. 28.—The Liberals of East Wellington won a signal victory yesterday in the return of Hon. J. M. Gibson, Minister of Crown Lands, by 515 majority. Of course, the Liberals hosts were sure of victory, but there were many Conservatives who seemed to consider the return of Dr. Coughlin more than a possibility. Both sides worked as hard as if the riding had been of the closest order. At this place and Elora speeches were delivered by the successful candidate, who was at the head of a monster procession of carriages. The full returns are:

MR. BARBER UNSEATED.

The Court at Milton Finds There Was Bribery by Agents.

Milton, Oct. 28.—The trial of the Halton election petition was opened here yesterday morning before Mr. Justice Osler and Mr. Justice Maclennan.

The petitioner was John Adams, and the respondent is Mr. John R. Barber, the Reform member-elect. The majority was 130. The petition was supported by particulars of 170 charges made against the respondent and his agents. The trial began at 10.45. Mr. Wallace Nesbitt, K. Bristol and J. W. Elliott appeared for the petitioner, and Mr. Frank Denton and Mr. Frank Ford for the respondent.

About half the charges were gone into, and several witnesses swore they were offered and had accepted money to vote for Mr. Barber. The agency of the persons offering the money was admitted.

The court regarded the evidence as sufficient to void the election, even against the saving clause, and accordingly gave judgment for the petitioner with costs. There will be a new election, and all the persons who gave or took or offered bribes will be reported to the Speaker.

NORDENSKJOLD ON KLONDIKE.

The Swedish Professor Says the Yukon Country Is Very Rich.

Vancouver, Oct. 28.—Dr. Nordenskjold, Professor of Mineralogy of Upsala University, has returned from the Yukon gold fields, where he has been to report for the Swedish Government on the formation of that country, its richness and future outlook. He says the Yukon country is very rich and will be very productive for a long time to come. "I have a very large collection of minerals for my Government. I disagree with all those mineralogists before me. I claim that huge deposits of quartz have or will be found, that are responsible for vast areas of auriferous gravel. The gold at present comes undoubtedly from old river beds, but they are very different from the Arctic rivers on the other side of the world. The field must be limited. The quartz will be low grade, and found near by. Gold has not been carried by glaciers. There will be no other Klondike in the Yukon. The Stewart River district is slate, consequently disappointing for gold. Pine Creek is not rich. I have investigated the entire country. The rich auriferous gravel is in a comparatively small area."

Nervous Prostration

Sick Headache and Dizziness—All Cured.

Little Girl Has Grown Plump and Rosy Since Taking Hood's.

Nervous mothers and sickly children endure a vast proportion of the suffering which is caused by impure and impoverished blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla gives relief by purifying and enriching the blood. Read this statement:

"I was bothered with sick headaches and dizziness. I also had nervous prostration and weakness in my stomach, which made me feel very ill indeed. I decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, which was highly recommended by many, and by the time I had taken four bottles I was in perfect health. About a year ago my little girl, then six years old, had bronchitis and chicken pox. We were told that her was the careful treatment she might receive at the hospital. We took her there and for eight days they had no hope of her recovery, but later she had a change for the better. Her sickness, however, left her very delicate and weak, and she did not grow any for a year. It was then I thought I would try Hood's Sarsaparilla, inasmuch as I had used it far myself and found it such a good medicine for building up a constitution. She had not taken two bottles before she had improved wonderfully. She has grown rosy and plump and is quite herself again. I have great faith in Hood's." MRS. M. EDITORIAL NOTES.

SIR CHARLES RIVERS-WILSON, in his address at the annual meeting of the Grand Trunk Railway shareholders, said of the extension of the Intercolonial Railway to Montreal:—"I must say, after examining all the conditions of the Intercolonial line, I think the Dominion Government have acted most wisely in making that arrangement, which at the same time will be beneficial to ourselves." Sir Charles can perhaps "see as far into a mill stone" as the callow critics who seek to discredit the Government in connection with a movement that commends itself unreservedly to a hard headed and experienced railway magnate!

THE Outlook, which is the best informed of London newspapers on Canadian affairs, was not stampeded by the Times' letters. It says:—"The Canadian Government has done absolutely the right thing in appointing Mr. Ogilvie as special commissioner to probe to the bottom the charges of official wrong-doing in the Klondyke. Mr. Ogilvie is an official of whom any country might be proud. He was tried as by fire in the days of the first Klondyke rush, when he could have had a fortune for the asking, or even the winking; and he may be trusted to free Canadian administration in this far-away sub-Arctic district from the least taint of well-founded suspicion. To those who may say to Mr. Sifton, the responsible Canadian Minister, Why was not this decisive investigation entered upon earlier? there is this sufficient answer: No Crown Minister can act on idle rumour and newspaper report. As Major Walsh's report showed, appeal was again and again made for such details of alleged wrong-doing as were essential to identification and to adequate enquiry, but no details were forthcoming. Now that Mr. Sifton has a formal petition from the Klondyke Miners' Committee, he acts as becomes a British Minister."

IN MEMORIAM.

Of Christina Cameron, beloved wife of the Rev A. Mahaffy, Milton, who fell asleep in Jesus July 23rd, 1898:

Farewell loved one! thy fair young life is ended.
How like a tale the rolling years have fled
Since then a happy child did wander,
Where now then liest with the quiet dead.

Yes, with the quiet dead, she now is sleeping
The darling of her childhood's home—their pride!
While safe within her Saviour's wondrous keeping,
Her soul is anchored safe beyond death tide.

Ah! who could fathom her heart's bitter anguish
When first she knew from friends she had to part,
From husband dear, the winsome little baby,
That oft she pressed so fondly to her heart.

'Tis joy to know there was no lone valley
When Jesus came to call her to her rest,
And that her lamp was burning bright and steady
When called for aye to dwell among the blest.

Her darling little one, bereft so early
Of the fond love, the purest earth o'er gave:
But trust that they shall meet again up yonder
Beyond the gloomy portals of the grave.

THE BEST ON EARTH.

So Says Robert Meikle About Dodd's Kidney Pills.

London, Ont., Oct. 17.—Robert Meikle, a member of the staff of the Star Dining Hall, is kept busy answering the questions asked him by his many friends at present. They all want to know how he recovered from what, the doctors said, was a fatal attack of Diabetes.

And he invariably answers: Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me, when other earthly means had failed. They are the only medicine on earth that can cure Diabetes, and they do it every time.

If Dodd's Kidney Pills cured Mr. Meikle they will cure you. Try them.

MONKEYS OF INDIA.

THE HAVOC THEY CAUSE BY THEIR WARS FOR WIVES.

Laughable Tactics Employed by the Natives to Disperse the Belligerent Packs—Little Chance For Male Monkeys at Birth.

Monkeys in India are an unmitigated nuisance, especially in the country. I have often come across in the jungles adjoining the villages of northern Bengal whole troops of them, whose depredations in fields and orchards were the despair of the unfortunate villagers. These troops always consisted of one huge male and about 100 females. The fact is, when a little monkey is born in the pack, it is suffered to live if a female, but instantly killed by the father if it happens to be a male. The mother, however, sometimes manages to hide the little one until he is able to get about and then sends him away before the big male catches sight of him. In this way it often happens that individual males are to be found living by themselves in single blessedness. Now, getting tired of solitude after a time and perhaps believing in union as a source of strength, these bachelors often join together and form a pack of their own—as a sort of club.

Then the fun begins. They want wives—very naturally. But how are they to get them? All the female monkeys of the country belong to the harem of some big brute or other. Clearly, the only solution is to attack such a harem, kill the gotha (the aforesaid big brute), and then divide the spoils. So an ultimatum is sent—and rejected. War is declared. The battle is a fierce one and often lasts several days. The party attacked always tries to retreat and often traverses several jungles, fields and even villages. But the pursuit is hot and vigorous, and at last a stand has to be made—sometimes in a village green or even an orchard of some country mansion. In the actual fight the females generally remain faithful to their lord and master and help him fiercely against his numerous assailants. But the result is a foregone conclusion, and the several widows, after a very short period of mourning—usually manifested by a show of ill temper—are consoled by the victorious males.

Now, these battles cause sad havoc to the fields and orchards of the country and often prove a positive danger to the people, for, though monkeys seldom attack men, woe to the luckless one who ventures to come near them in their deadly struggle. Moreover, when pressed by hunger, these packs are not to be trifled with. You may not mind even the damage done to your orchard by hundreds of monkeys gobbling up everything they can lay their hands on, but it is quite a different matter when you have to shut your doors and windows and stay in for days at a time because of the army outside.

Consequently the object of the natives is to break up these packs by capturing their leaders. Killing is against the dictates of conscience, but capture is not, especially as the monkey is liberated in a short time, as will appear presently. So, when a pack is about, the natives employ the following method: Close to an orchard a bit of level space is selected and a hole dug in it, about 2 feet deep and 6 or 8 inches in diameter. A noose is made at one end of a long, stout cord and placed over the mouth of the hole. The cord is then passed through a pulley or ring attached to a tree close to the house and the other end held some distance away by a concealed person. The noose and about 10 or 15 feet of the cord are covered with sand. Then a nice, tempting banana is placed in the hole, and a number of rotten ones—covered, however, with fresh skins—are strewn all over the ground near the hole.

When the pack comes, the females are too shy to venture out into the open space near the house, but the big gotha is a brave fellow. He sees the bananas on the ground, leaps down, takes up one, throws it away in disgust, then another, with the same result. Suddenly he notices the nice, tempting one in the hole, and plunges his arm in. Immediately the cord is pulled, the noose fastened on the arm close to the shoulder and the monkey dragged willy nilly to the tree where the pulley or ring is attached. Then the hiding shikari comes forth, and, circling round and round the tree with the cord held tight in his hand, binds the unfortunate monkey safe and fast, all but the head. The pulley or ring is introduced not merely to bind the monkey to the tree, but also because it would be highly dangerous to drag the infuriated brute right up to a person.

The monkey, however, is not killed. Instead they lather his head and face, no special care being taken in selecting the finest soap or the purest water. The operation is an interesting one and a source of great amusement—to the bystanders. The monkey, however, dodges his head about, only to get a good dose of soap in his eyes and mouth. Then he has enough of it, especially as he feels dreadfully achy all over and the cords cutting into his body every inch—to say nothing of the personal remarks and the highly adjectival language of the bystanders. He submits to his fate with eastern stoicism. His head is shaved clean as a billiard ball, and then the face as well, nice and smooth, like a baby's. Then they let him go. But alas, such is the vanity of life, his wives will not have him now that his beauty is gone. They disown him completely, but him dead. Nay, they drive him away from the pack with contumely, with the ends of their tails—in the absence of domestic broomsticks. And thus, being without a leader, the pack is soon broken up.—Strand Magazine.

CUBAN WOMEN.

An Enterprising United States Girl Finds That They Do Not Readily Adapt Themselves.

The Cuban woman is not adaptable. She may not be to blame for it, but the fault—as we must call it—is there all the same. She is not going to try to adapt herself to our ways, writes Effie Wybrant Smith in the Chicago Times-Herald, because she thinks her ways are the best, and the only reason she thinks so is because they are sanctioned by antiquity. In fact, she is rather an uncompromising subject to convert.

The way an average Cuban family lives would give a States housewife the horrors. Improvident, of course, and with such little knowledge of cookery that it amounts to not more than a farce. The frying-pan and the coffee-pot are the only two indispensable articles in a Cuban kitchen. A roast is an unknown quantity; a stew is occasionally ventured upon, and the soup is rare and diaphanous. But the coffee-pot is always in evidence, and the frying-pan sizzles at every meal.

I have often been amused at seeing Cuban women frying meat. They will have nothing but the leanest kind, and the butcher must trim off every particle of fat. In the far south this is not a very difficult matter, as kine are not burdened with that article to any great extent, but the Cuban woman, to make sure, prefers a cut from the round to any other portion.

This lean—and generally tough—meat is taken home, and then the lady who abhors beef fat drops it into a pan containing about a half pound of hog fat and sizzles it to the consistency of a piece of wet sole leather. Of vegetables their range is confined to yams, okra, rice, bananas, and one or two others. I very much fear that our northern markets would not please the Cuban woman.

In other matters relating to housekeeping I very much regret to say that the Cuban woman is not in line with our ideas. The broom is occasionally in evidence, but here all attempts to "tidy up" stop. Soap and the scrubbing brush appear to be unknown quantities. Year in and year out the floors remain as they were, the window panes get but an occasional wipe with a bit of paper, and the yard, if there happens to be one, is a sight to behold. Those who have read about the streets of Santiago must not think the reports exaggerated. A street where Cubans live must be cleaned by the city if at all; the residents would be buried in filth before they would make a move to clean up. When the dirt gets too mountainous they move.

These household habits extend to the person. A bath tub is unknown to a Cuban woman of the ordinary sort, and a daily face wash is almost as rare. Perfumery and face powder are used as substitutes.

Now what is to be done with a woman who is a heathen in cookery, is not clean or tidy in the house or with her person, and is not in the least inclined to mend her ways? To our mind no amount of coquettish ways, soft voice, or gliding walk can compensate for these shortcomings. Such a woman needs civilizing. Perhaps we had better begin now organizing societies for teaching Cuban women American ways. We cannot ignore this new addition to our sisterhood, so we can but hope that our example will inspire the Cuban woman to liberate herself from the thraldom of old customs and try to keep step with our higher system of civilization.

ADVANTAGE OF SPECTACLES.

Wearer of Glasses Gains at the Expense of Other People.

Time was when the wearing of spectacles, except by the very old, was a rare sight, and the wearing of eyeglasses still rarer. In those days the story books were written in which there frequently appeared the "dignified gentleman, wearing gold eyeglasses." That was supposed to be a sufficient description and one that impressed you at once with his importance. Strange to say, the days of the paucity of specs were the very days when everybody ought to have been wearing them, because that was the time when people read by the light of tallow candles and pine knots. But if they were near-sighted they never knew what ailed them, and it was left for the days of gas and electric light to develop a bespectacled race. Now even the little children wear them and are not ashamed.

Perhaps some people wear glasses to improve their looks. The monocle was plainly intended for staring purposes, as no man is near-sighted in one eye. It has also been discovered that it is a great help in giving a fellow time to think. While he is fumbling for the glass he gains several valuable seconds to collect his thoughts, and the pause correspondingly exasperates the other fellow.

Eyeglasses are almost as good if handled judiciously, and there is one club man who acknowledges that he wears them to overcome his natural bashfulness.

"Although they are only glass," said he, "and any one can see through them, they undoubtedly act as a shield. You feel something like the man on the inside of the house who is conducting a controversy with a fellow on the sidewalk. They give one a judicial air and brace a man up. I don't mean that the man who always wears glasses feels that way; I suppose they get to feel a part of him; but the man who only puts them on to talk or read gains a moral advantage that is half the battle. I speak from personal experience when I advise every shy man to invest in a pair of eyelgasses, and let them be of gold."

Wm. McCabe, Esq., Managing Director, N. A. L.:

DEAR SIR,—In answer to your request for me to decide upon one of the following options offered me for settlement of my 15-payment Life Investment Policy for $5,000 which has matured this year, viz:

1st to take the value of the Policy in Cash	$3,000.00
2nd, or fully paid-up insurance for	3,280.00
3rd. or take the profits in cash	2,080 22

and continue my policy without further payments being required from me, one policy participating in future profits.

I find it somewhat difficult to make a decision either of the three options being so satisfactory. I am certainly very much pleased with the results offered me, and as I find many others are giving full testimony to the profit-earning power of this company, I do not hesitate to give my endorsement as well, that the North American Life is one of our strongest Canadian institutions to day giving first class results on Investment Policies, on a safe and conservative basis. I find that my policy, which was originally a Life by fifteen payments, has become an Endowment at the end of the Investment period.

JOHN BLOW'S TESTIMONY.

Says Dodd's Kidney Pills Saved His Life Recently.

Toronto, Oct. 24—The many Torontonians who know Mr. John Blow, 67 Princess Street, have been in a state of amazement for some time past, because Mr. Blow, who, for years was a great sufferer from Diabetes, has fully recovered, and is now as well as ever, though his case was said to be helpless.

"I was cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills," said Mr. Blow, "the only medicine on earth that can cure this terrible disease."

So it does. Dodd's Kidney Pills are keeping up their grand work for human health and happiness unceasingly.

The Late-Staying Caller.

Friend Staylate makes a call in the evening. Conversation blithe and joyous, and repeated requests for him to remain yet a little while, lead him, not at all unwillingly, to prolong a visit. He looks at his watch with a gasp of genuine dismay, and hurries away slowly at last with profuse apologies for keeping us up until such an unearthly hour. "Oh, indeed, no!" chorusses the entire family. "This is early for us! We never think of going to our rooms until an hour later than this." Friend Staylate loiters a moment after he gets outside the gate. Slam goes the door; bang! wang! slam! go the shutters, calling harshly to each other, "Thought that fellow would never go!" Bang! "Why didn't he stay all night?" Slam! And the rattle of the chain cries, "Gone at last!" The darkness of the dungeon settles down on the house; the family has gone to bed, having relieved its mind by doors and shutters that are ready to tell the truth any time they are given a chance.

To all who find themselves with health gradually slipping away, kidneys and liver so disorganized that they are incapable of keeping the system free from poisonous waste material, stomach disordered, bowels constipated, head aching, back paining, take Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. The quick way they help you back to health will surprise you.

POSITIVELY NO IMPORTED LABOR.

Governor Tanner Will Meet and Shoot Trains to Pieces.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—A special to the Times-Herald from Madison, Ill., says: "I reiterate that I will not tolerate this wholesale importation of foreigners into Illinois. And if I hear that a mob is to be brought into this State, such as was taken into Virden, I care not on what railroad it comes, or from whom, I will meet it at the State line, and shoot it to pieces with Gatling guns."

So declared Governor Tanner in a speech delivered before 1,200 auditors gathered at the Knights of Pythias Hall in this city. It was the concluding statement in an address largely devoted to defense of his course in the recent mine riots at Virden. The Governor reviewed at great length the causes leading up to the rioting. He held the operators at fault in their dealings with the strikers, and then reverting to his acts when the crisis came, said: "When the United States Government found it necessary and deemed it just to forbid the importation of foreign labor into this country, I felt that I was fully justified in the course I took at Virden."

GLOBE WHEELERS.

Mr. and Mrs. McIlrath Will Start on the Last Thousand Miles of Their Wheeling Journey.

New York, Oct. 28.—H. Darwin McIlrath and his wife of Chicago arrived here yesterday from Southampton, Eng., on the American line steamship Pennland. The McIlraths started on a wheeling tour on Oct. 10, 1895, from Chicago. They crossed the Rockies and on June 1 arrived in San Francisco. There they took the steamer for China. The couple rode through that country and then proceeded through Japan. Their route was afterwards through Burmah, India, Persia, Russia, Austro-Hungary, Germany, France and Great Britain. The McIlraths had ridden nearly 30,000 miles when they boarded the Pennland for New York. They had some exciting experiences in Asia and India. The McIlraths intend to ride from this city to Chicago, and the start will be made in a day or two. Under the auspices of the Century Road Club of America, of which the couple are members, relays of riders will accompany them on the last thousand miles of their long journey. The trip, it is expected, will take 20 days. Receptions will be given them at Albany, Rochester, Buffalo, Cleveland and other places.

The Wheat Markets at Chicago and Liverpool See-Sawed Unsteadily—Cattle Markets—The Prices.

Thursday Evening, Oct. 27.

Liverpool wheat futures were slightly easier this morning, but firmed up later closing ¼d per cental higher than yesterday's final figures. Paris wheat closed steady to 5 centimes lower for the day, with Antwerp firmer.

Chicago's speculative market was weak early, in sympathy with Liverpool, but later advanced on light Northwest and primary receipts, easing off still later in sympathy with outside markets. This month's delivery closed ¼c per bushel, the December option ½c and the May option ⅛c lower than yesterday.

Trade was slow and dull, drovers in many instances refusing offers, waiting for Friday's market.

Montreal Live Stock Market.

Montreal, Oct. 27.—There were about 700 head of butchers' cattle, 40 calves and 700 sheep and lambs offered for sale at the East End Abattoir to-day. The butchers were out in large numbers, but the cold rains and high winds, together with the very muddy condition of the lanes and yards, made things rather uncomfortable for man and beast. More especially was this the case with the cattle in the mud yards, many of them having to stand in mud and slush up to their knees. Trade was slow and prices have still a downward tendency. The best cattle sold at about 4c per pound, but some of them were fancy heavy. Pretty good animals sold at from 3c to 3½c, and the common dry cows and thrifty young stock at from 2½c to 2⅝c per pound, while some of the leaner beasts would scarcely bring 2c per pound. It is probable that a considerable number of the cattle will not be sold to-day. Calves sold at from $2 to $8 each, or from 3c to 5c per pound. Shippers were only paying 3c per pound for sheep to-day. Lambs sold at from 3¾c to 4¼c per lb. Fat hogs are plentiful and sell at about 4¼c per lb. for hogs just off the cars.

This Explains the Milk in the Cocoanut!

Routleys Sensational Sale of Woollen Hosiery and Ladies' Undervests.

This unparalleled Sale has been the talk of the town for the past week, and the wonder has been how the goods are sold so cheap.

In answer to many enquiries, we may explain that this stock was hypothecated to protect a liability of the manufacturer, and placed in our hands to sell regardless of original cost. That accounts for the milk in the cocoanut. We have already sold hundreds of dollars' worth, but there is still hundreds of dollars' worth left. As we are not in the Hosiery business to stay, we will continue to offer the goods at about THE COST OF THE WOOL, until every vestige is cleared out. A few prices will serve to show how much we are in earnest:—

Ladies' Black Hose, All wool, regular 30c., . . for .14	Gentlemen's Scotch Mix Hose, regular 50c., . . for .31

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

THE CONVENTION CLOSES.

Three Days of Diligent and Faithful Deliberation.

THE NEW PRESIDENT INSTALLED.

An Immense Audience at the Closing Session.

THE CONVENTION WAS AN ALL-ROUND SUCCESS.

Half-a-Dozen More Stirring Speeches—The Enthusiasm Maintained to the End—Delegates Strengthened for Another Year's Faithful Work—Happy to Meet, Sorry to Part, Welcome to Come Again.

The thirty-third annual convention of the Sunday School Association of Ontario was brought to a conclusion last night. It was in all respects a most successful gathering and though there have been conventions with a larger delegation represented than 500, there have been none characterized by a more zealous attitude towards the interests of the work than was manifested by every delegate. Environment, which exercises so powerful an influence in moulding character and exciting activity, made the most apathetic alert, for it was impossible for any to escape the infective enthusiasm which thrilled the atmosphere of the gathering. Every delegate when he or she returns home, will become a centre for which the enthusiastic spirit caught at the convention, will radiate in every direction, stimulating the workers who remained at home. The tense interest with which the convention began was unflaggingly maintained to the end, or rather progressively intensified for the spirit and enthusiasm at the closing session last night, were, if possible, more in evidence than at the preceeding sessions. For enthusiastic devotion to work, for rigid adherence to the scheme of work represented by the programme, the convention of the Association has been a model to any of the many that have ever convened in Peterborough.

Afternoon Session.

At the afternoon session devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. D. O. Crossley, Charlotte street Methodist church.

Mrs. McLeod of Vankleek Hill, spoke upon "The Primary Teacher in Relation to the Child." The instinctive curiosity of the child should be met and guided in safe directions, to stimulate an interest in gaining knowledge of his Creator. A primary teacher has generally to do with children from three to nine years old, with varieties of inclinations and instincts, each requiring special adaptations of her method. A teacher in love with her work must have a deep sympathetic insight into the mind of the child. She should be widely read and well informed so that she can meet the numberless questions that spring from the child's thirst for knowledge. Earthly and heavenly knowledge should be combined to lead the earthly to the heavenly. The teacher should possess a spirit of sacrifice, and be a faithful Bible student. She must learn every thing about the mental and home condition of the child, his instincts and his attitude towards religion, how the child feels and thinks. What the child knows should be a basis of constructive and reparative teaching. The teacher should every day study some phase of some child's mind, and she will suit her lesson to the child and not try to fit the child to the lesson. The natures of the children should be considered in relation to the selection of proper lessons. Parental love is a good lever in teaching the child God's love. Bible interpretation for the child should be and assimilate. To this end the Bible and the child should be studied together. Stories, properly used, are good media of child teaching. Primary lessons should have three qualities incident, abstract truth and negative qualities. Love must develop itself in deeds. Children should be trained in direct missionary work and also temperance, but as to the subject of loyalty to our country and institutions, children should be taught faith in the future of our country. Prayers should be graded to the understanding of the child. Pure and good music will enrich the child's life. In abstract and negative things the attention that does not actually exist, the child's attention, must be enlisted in something it does understand, a step that would have been impracticable without the first step having been taken. Inquiry on the part of the pupils should be encouraged—to talk in a simple child-like manner. Lessons should be direct and simple. The child's love of music may be used to implant great truths.

A SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Prof. Hamill gave an "object lesson" as to the way of studying the lesson for the next six months, the Gospel of St. John, which Prof. Hamill said was surpassed by none of the books of the Bible. He had prepared at no inconsiderable trouble a chart, on which he employed an hour in giving an object lesson which might be an inspiration to the delegates, but was hardly likely to be [illegible] by them with similar and citation of [illegible] proofs and parallels. Prof. [illegible] address was very heartily enjoyed, and at its conclusion, he having to leave [illegible] the audience arose and with [illegible] handkerchiefs, shouts of good-[illegible] him on his journey to New [illegible] to fill a convention engagement.

Rev. G. M. Lee presented the report of the normal examinations, which were held in sixteen different places, with 228 students enrolled, 42 passed in one or more subjects and two failed. Mr. Lee went on to point out that the Normal work was entered upon by the Association five years ago. In 1897-8 there were distributed about 100 of Prof. Hamill's little text book. The Normal work has been affiliated with Alma Ladies' College, which has placed it on their curriculum. The standard of efficiency of Sunday school teachers should be raised, as a necessity to the continued progress of our Sunday school. Trained teachers were a necessity to give prompt work, for the Sunday school teacher has only about twenty-four hours a year to work. Teachers should so equip themselves that they they may do the best possible work for God.

IF THE BIBLE HAD NOT REACHED US.

Rev. B. D. Thomas, B.D., of Toronto, addressed himself to the subject, "If the Bible had not reached us." The Bible was declared to be as necessary to the spiritual world as sunlight was to the material world. Without it the world would have no true conception of the God, of whom it was a revelation. Without right conceptions of God there could be no moral and spiritual progress. Without the Bible we should have no true social relations. The words home, wife, sister, mother, would not have their true significance if the Bible had not influenced our lives, we should have had no benevolent institutions. The peculiar quality of true civilization owed its origin to the principles found in the Bible. Even all that was good and pure and noble in the heart or life of Bob Ingersoll, he owed it to the Bible. The Bible was a living reality—the tree was known by its fruits, and by this standard the Bible was known. We might have culture, but not true popular education without the Bible—could not have the multitudes educated. Without the Bible we should not have either civil or religious liberty. The world knew nothing of civil rights before the Bible came came into men's lives. Without the Bible we should be without the most potent inspiration to the achievements of genius. Take out the suggestions and inspirations of the Bible, and the literature of the world would be inconceivably depleted. All the literary masterpieces of the world would never have been written but for the Bible. All that could be said of literature in relation to the Bible applied to all the ranges of science and art and human achievement. Without the Bible, we should never have had the Saviour's inestimable gift of the boon of salvation.

The convention then adjourned.

Evening Session.

At the closing session of the convention last night St. Paul's church was again crowded, and the delegates manifested the same unflagging attention that has marked them during the course of the gathering. An inspiring service of praise and song was conducted by Rev. J. G. Potter, of St. Andrew's. The magnificent hymns "Onward Christian Soldiers," and the "Sanctus," were sung with grandly inspiring effect by the great audience—with the heart voice.

At a meeting of the executive Committee yesterday afternoon, Mr. J. A. Paterson, of Toronto, was appointed chairman of the Executive Committee. The names of the other officers were printed in last night's EXAMINER.

Previous to entering upon the programme the chairman, Mr. J. A. Donly, said that we came to the closing session of a convention which to him had been a most pleasant one. He had the pleasant duty of introducing his successor, Mr. Thos. McGillicuddy.

THE PRESIDENT INSTALLED.

Mr. McGillicuddy, on taking the platform, was received with most cordial applause. He said that when a Paterson succeeded a McLaren it might be thought that the Scotch were getting everything in sight, but when a McGillicuddy succeeded a Donly "it was a great day for Ireland." (Laughter.) He was greatly surprised and honoured at being unexpectedly appointed to the position of president, which he would do his best to faithfully fill. He was glad to be placed over such a great non-denominational body. He gave a few but eloquent words of advice and encouragement.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOLS AND MISSIONS.

The first topic presented—by Rev. Jas. Henderson, D.D., Toronto—was "Why should we seek to enlist the sympathy of Sabbath schools in the cause of missions." We could do so by giving them the facts. There were two sides to the mission question, the spiritual and the secular. Every child ought to know that the most glorious thrift of the church was when she most thoroughly recognized her responsibility in respect of missions. That was the first and second centuries when the framework of paganism crumbled. If the same progress had followed the church to the present time the whole world would have been evangelized. There were two millions added to the church in the second century. Every child should be taught the relations between Christian missions and civilization. The speaker then went on in eloquent language to contrast the glittering hollowness of ancient pagan civilization with the grand realities of Christian civilization, with all its elevating, beneficent influences and this fact should be impressed deeply upon the childish mind. Again from the secular point of view, the influence of Christian civilization had made all the commercial and industrial, financial and other greatness of Great Britain the greatest in the world. was a direct result of Christianity. Britain's mission investments past. Lord Shaftsbury said that every pound spent by Britain on missions yielded a return of ten pounds in trade. It was impossible to work up trade with savage nations without they had felt the elevating influences of Christian civilization. Civilization was the source of the great bulk of refinements and conveniences we enjoyed. Let the children know that owe owe greater contributions to modern geographical knowledge to missions than to any other source. Children should be taught that Christianity had established a new standard of heroism that had superseded that of blood and iron. The speaker concluded an eloquent and stirring address by pointing out the necessity of activity in Christian missionary work, and urged the Christian church to rise to obedience to the spirit of the memorable order of Wellington at the moment of crisis at Waterloo—"The whole line will advance."

"A TEACHERS' FAITH."

Rev. W. J. Clark, of London, had the attention of the meeting for his address on "The Teachers' Faith." The speaker regretted that he was not able to be present at the other session. Let their watchword be—"Let the whole line advance." The different methods of teaching in Sabbath schools had no doubt been placed before them and it was "needful that each department should have up-to-date methods, but it was also necessary that something more than methods be put into the teaching. Many teachers felt that they were unfit to take upon themselves the teaching of boys and girls in the way they should go. There were fears within their souls, and it is not surprising, considering the spiritual problems they had to face. Boys and girls were not going to sit in the Sabbath school when they had so many artificial snares to contend with. The teacher must have faith, and unless they have this, together with the many up-to-date methods, their work would most certainly fail.

The faith of Moses was pointed to by the speaker. The Egyptians were repulsed just by reason of Israel's great faith in the Lord's promises, and the result is a matter of Biblical history. This story was not within the scope of modern history, and the attention of the meeting was drawn to the faith of Martin Luther, who had faced the greatest monarch of the world in his day. God delivered him, and the mighty power of Rome shivered to its base. The German monk was victorious, and GOD'S WORK UPLIFTED.

In British history, Englands victory over the Spanish Armada, when the Spaniards tried to oust our Protestant king, God came to the rescue, and the Spaniards were baffled most disastrously. It, therefore, required great faith and bravery on the part of the victors. Such was the work before the Sabbath school teachers. They must have faith to brave the enemy. God will help them and they will be victorious. Every one hopes for God's salvation and no one could do a task well unless he had it. It was the desire to do this which made him believe in God. The teacher who did not do this was an unworthy instructor and would fail. The object of the teacher must always be to bring the child nearer to God, and all other objects must be subservient to it. Sometimes we grow despondent when we look at the tasks before us.

LET US HAVE FAITH,

and quietly wait for the Lord's salvation. The greatest enemy of the Christian world to-day is the faithlessness of those who call themselves Christ's. Let us always go on, knowing that the Lord is with us in our good work. He will give us the "peace that passeth all understanding." Example after example were given of men who had died at their task. The speaker knew the difficulties that confronted them, and they had his sympathy, but they should not forget the promise of the Lord, "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." Christ is always better than His word. He forgets no toiler in His vineyard. Let us have faith in His promise, and when He speaks to us, let us go and work for Him. We must struggle, but He will give us the victory.

The convention closed with a prayer led by Mr. Alfred Day.

Notes.

Mr. David Stouffer and his neice, Miss Stouffer, sang a charming duet at last night's session.

The convention was one big object lesson of the value of organized enthusiasm and intelligently directed zeal.

The delegates held in high esteem the voluntary services of St. Paul's choir, which did such excellent service in brightening and and animating the evening sessions.

All of the out-going trains to-day bore away scores of delegates to their homes. During their stay in town many friendships have been forme between the visitors and the citizens, which will doubtless be life-long. This is one of the pleasant characteristics of conventions of this nature.

The delegates were especially pleased with the conveniences afforded them in St. Paul's church and especially with the courteous attention of the caretaker, Mr. Laing.

"I am he that Liveth" was the title of an anthem which was excellently readered by St. Paul's choir at the convention last evening. Mr. Jas. Dawson took the solo most pleasingly.

The delegates were delighted with their visit and we were delighted with the delegates. We shall make them welcome if they come again.

The sales at the book and stationery tables were larger than at the Hamilton convention, which fact is attributable to the excellent selection of suitable reading matter provided by the Peterborough Bookstore.

HON. MR. GIBSON'S ELECTION.

The return of Hon. J. M Gibson, Commissioner of Crown Lands, in East Wellington bye-election yesterday, was a notable victory for the Government and personally for the Minister. A majority of over 500 is evidence that the Government has lost none of the hold on the public it has so long enjoyed. The contest was a straight out fight between the Government and the Opposition, and the Government has handsomely won. This majority is almost equal to that taken by Col. Clarke, a man of unusual popularity. That was in '90, the most prosperous decade for the Mowat Government, and that the riding has come back to its old political frame of mind is shown by the majority it gave Mr. Gibson. The present Government enjoys a place in the public confidence, which perfectly discredits Mr. Whitney's claim that the Government is on the verge of destruction. We have had that for over a year now dinned into the public ear on a hundred platforms, and paraded in the Opposition press ad nauseam. The Opposition will have to wait a little longer. East Wellington has set the pace for the other bye elections, and we shall see the Government meet the House next session with a following greatly increased over that it had as the result of the general election. The "hurrah policy" of Mr. Whitney might have had some effect last March, but it is no longer a thing to conjure with, and we shall see the Government constantly gaining in strength. The people may be misled sometimes with industriously reiterated cock-and-bull stories, but when the atmosphere is cleared and time for sober reflection comes the people will pronounce their preference for good government.

WEDDING IN ST. LUKE'S.

Celebration of the Nuptials of Miss Anabel Armstrong and Mr. Joseph Kidd Last Evening

An exceedingly pretty church wedding took place last evening, at eight o'clock, in St. Luke's, Ashburnham, in the marriage of Miss Anabel Armstrong, daughter of Mr. Geo. W. Armstrong, to Mr. Joseph Kidd.

The ceremony was performed by the rector, Rev. H. Symonds, and the church was most beautifully decorated for the occasion, the bride being a member of the Sunday school, the Girl's Guild and the choir, which organizations prepared the church for the wedding. The altar was banked with ferns and the air was heavy with the perfume of cut roses, which carpeted the chancel floor. The bride was most tastefully costumed in sage green broadcloth trimmed with white satin and ribbons and wore a most becoming large black picture hat with plumes. She was assisted by her sister, Miss Minnie Armstrong, whose dress was of robins' egg blue poplin trimmed with white satin and ribbons. She also wore a large black picture hat.

The groomsman was Mr. Bert Wallis, the ushers being Messrs. Will Armstrong and Reginald Turner.

In compliment to the bride the full choir was present during the ceremony, at the conclusion of which the wedding party repaired to the residence of the bride's parents on Sheridan street, where a most recherche dejeuner was served. In proposing the health of the bride, Rev. Mr. Symonds referred in commendatory terms to the assistance which Miss Armstrong had so generously accorded the different church organizations of which she was a member.

Amongst the large number of beautiful gifts which were received, was a handsome oak secretary from the officers and teachers of the Sunday school, the Girls' Guild and the members of the choir. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a very pretty gold guard chain.

Mr. and Mrs. Kidd have taken up their residence on Stewart street.

CORONER'S INQUEST RESUMED ITS SESSION.

ENQUIRY INTO THE DEATH OF THE LATE CON. MAHONEY.

It is Ascertained That he Came to Town With a Large Sum of Money on his Person—An Effort Will be Made to Trace his Movements.

The Coroner's Jury summoned in the Con. Mahoney case assembled last evening in the council chamber, to hear the remainder of the evidence as affecting the death of the deceased.

James Eastcott, of Bewdley, was the first witness called. He had known Cornelius Mahoney for the last twelve years. Deceased was a farm labourer and had worked during the summer season in Hope or Hamilton townships generally, going in the winter to the lumber shanties. He saw him last Saturday morning at Bewdley. Deceased was there on his way to Peterborough, intending to walk to Garden Hill and take the train from there. He had settled up with the witness the night before for work done and had been paid $32.00. Afterwards the deceased had paid several bills which he owed in the neighbourhood. One of $2 75 and another of $4.95. He had heard of a man at Campbelltown who had been paid $17. Parties at Garden Hill estimated that deceased, who was known as George Seeney, had about $55 on his person when he boarded the train. Witness had heard that he was drinking before he LEFT GARDEN HILL.

Deceased was not in the habit of drinking. He had not taken anything during the summer, but previously at times had indulged a little. Witness had seen him drink on occasions. Deceased told witness he was going to Peterborough to see Mr. Meharry about getting work for the winter. He was to be back at Bewdley by Tuesday. The bills were on the Bank of Toronto. They were ten dollar bills. Deceased had stated to him that he had a brother living in the United States, and witness had heard that that there was a sister living in Peterborough.

Mrs. Robt. Meharry stated that she knew the deceased. He had worked for her son, John, for three or four winters. She last seen him on Saturday evening at about eight o'clock when he inquired for her son. He only remained about fifteen minutes. She saw no money with him nor did he mention any. He left to go down town and look for John. Deceased did not appear to be sober but was not very drunk. He had mentioned being with somebody he called "George," and spoke as though he thought he was with witnesses' son by that name, but this could not have been the case as the latter was out of town. Deceased hardly ever came to town that he did not "get the worse of liquor."

Dr. Eastwood, recalled, read the report on his post-mortem examination of the deceased, which stated that the wound found on the back of the head was not sufficiently deep to affect the skull, and from the condition of the venous system, he was of the opinion that death resulted from asphyxia due to compression

OF THE AIR PASSAGES.

The position in which he understood the body was found would be in accord with his opinion as to the cause of death. Nothing apart from asphyxiation was found which would cause death.

Thomas Lytle, living on the north side of Charlotte street, within a few rods of the spot where Mahoney was found, stated that shortly after eight o'clock Sunday morning Mr. Comstock had called him out to see the body. It lay in the trench, which was ten or eleven feet deep. The head was doubled under the body and between the legs. Witness found some hair on one of the braces, and judged that the deceased fell from the south side of the sewer, as the hair was about eight inches from the north end of the brace. The north side of street was bad travelling, as the earth and stones from the sewer covered the sidewalk. Nearly everyone crossed to the south side of the street in this block. There was no protection along the south side of the sewer. There was a plank across the end of the trench on Saturday night. Witness had seen red lights at times at each end of the open trench.

Mr. Dennistoun, on behalf of the sewer contractor, and Mr. Edwards, on behalf of the town, objected to the witness giving his opinion as to whether the two lights furnished sufficient protection, holding that this would not be evidence.

Coroner Bell ruled that the witness could give his opinion on this point.

MR. LYTLE, RESUMING, stated that there was about four feet between the street railway track and the trench. He considered that there was no protection. The lanterns could not light the trench from end to end. They were not there for that purpose but as danger signals. Witness understood that when the sewer was being put in on George street the trench was protected by pipe lengths being stood on end with planks placed along the tops of them. This could have been done on Charlotte street. There would be danger in driving by the trench at night or in the daytime if a team shied.

To Mr. Edwards the witness stated that the light of the night was sufficient to make the trench visible on Saturday evening. A man exercising ordinary care could walk along the trench on such a night without falling in. Witness had seen deceased on sprees at different times.

John M. Donovan knew the deceased by sight but did not see him Saturday night or Sunday. Witness keeps a shop on corner of Downie and Charlotte streets. He thought the electric lights were burning Saturday night, but wasn't sure. He had no opinion as to whether the sewer or not. There were trees on both sides of the street between Downie and Reid streets.

James Waldie of Garden Hill, knew the deceased. He saw the body on Tuesday, and identified it. Saw deceased on Saturday in Garden Hill, when he borrowed witness' watch. There was no talk of any money transaction, or any show of money. Witness had loaned deceased his watch as the latter was a "kind of a dude of a fellow," and wanted to make a show when going to town. Witness came to Peterborough to try and recover the watch. He had know the deceased for about 18 years. He had see him the worse of liquor at times. The watch produced belonged to witness.

Mr. J. W. Bilsbin stated that there was a continuous row of trees on both sides of the street, between Downie and Reid streets. The sewer was amply protected as regarding himself, but for one who did not know of its existence there was no protection at all. At eleven o'clock on Saturday night there was sufficient light to see the sidewalk as he went home. There could be no danger to a pedestrian who stuck to the sidewalk.

Jas. L. Hughes gave evidence as to the trees on the street and the shadows thrown by them. The sewer was nine or ten feet deep where Mahoney fell in. Any man in his rational senses could pass along the street without danger. The electric light on the corner of Charlotte and Park streets would light this portion of the street. A man would not be justified in trying to cross the street at this point. He would have no business wandering up the middle of the road.

Juryman Chas. Cameron thought that as deceased was shown to have had some fifty dollars in his possession when he came to town, an effort should be made to ascertain what had become of it in so short a time. He understood that only ten cents had been found on his person.

The jury accordingly adjourned until Thursday next at 7 30 p.m., in order to afford the County Crown Attorney an opportunity to present evidence on this point.

LEG CUT OFF BY A CAR.

Horrible Accident at Toronto Junction to Thomas McGovern of Mono Mills.

Toronto Junction, Oct. 26.—A horrible accident happened at the corner of Keele street and Vine avenue here last night, when Thomas McGovern, whose wife and family reside at Mono Mills, was pitched by a runaway horse from a light wagon under the wheels of a suburban electric car, and had his right leg cut off. McGovern, who is a man over 50 years of age, fully realized his horrible plight, and when carried into the Subway House gave expression to such agonizing ravings as "My God, what will they do with me?" "What will my wife and children say?" "How did I get there?" and "Don't cut my leg off!"

After the arrival of Drs. Clendenan, Parfect, Mavety and McNamara, he was soon put to sleep by the aid of morphine, and subsequently taken to St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto. The loss of blood and shock to the system were both very great, and his recovery is doubtful. His wife was immediately telegraphed for.

Mr. McGovern died in St. Michael's Hospital last midnight. An inquest will be held.

When any part of the body isn't doing the work that nature intended it to do, it puts the whole system out of tune—out of harmony. Sickness in one part of the body is likely to run into all parts of the body. When children stand a row of bricks on end, they knock the whole row down by upsetting one brick. That is exactly what happens to the health when the bowels fail to perform their proper function. Constipation makes trouble all along the line—puts the liver out of order, is bad for the kidneys—bad for the stomach. It holds in the body poisonous matter, and because it cannot go any place else, it gets into the blood. The blood carries it all over the system. That makes sluggishness, lassitude, bad breath and foul taste in the mouth, fills the stomach with gas and causes windy belching, stops digestion in the stomach, causes sour stomach, heartburn and headache. You can avoid all such trouble, for Dr. Pierces Pleasant Pellets CURE constipation and its attendant evils.

Dr. Elliott telephoned Dr. Bryce of Toronto, who came to Cobourg last night and found it to be a genuine case of smallpox. Every precaution has been given the case. The steamer was thoroughly fumigated yesterday.

The Trill In Piano Playing.

One way of teaching the trill is to let the pupil feel it—i. e., let him rest his fingers on the extreme end of the keys without using any pressure whatever. Then let the teacher play the trill on the same keys. Although the rhythmical beat only, and not the dynamic, is conceivable by this method, it would be well indeed if all technical difficulties could be so well illustrated.—Etude.

No other remedy can present such a record of permanent cures as B. B. B. THE HUSBAND'S VIEW OF HIS CONDUCT IN NEGLECTING TO TAKE HIS WIFE ABOUT.

The Man Wins the Wife Once for All—She Must Win Him Daily if She Would Keep Him, According to the Old Code—When Men Should Be Indulged by Their Weaker Half.

Many a wife complains that her husband does not take her about, that she only sees him at meals, or that he makes friendships in which she has no part. She blames him for neglecting her, and thinks herself ill-used. Yet he is only following the natural instinct of humanity in seeking for sympathetic companionship; the fault really is hers, says a man who has buried three wives and who is looking for a fourth. If her conversation does not interest him sufficiently to hold him, she should study him and the subjects he cares for, and try to live to his standard. She has once had his love and sympathy; if she has not kept it, it is she who is to blame for not striving to care for the things which occupy and interest him.

A man, to be won and kept, must first be attracted, and then made to feel that he has found a sympathy which draws him out and makes him talk about what interests him most. It is not enough to make him listen whilst he is being talked to. For a time that may keep him, but he will tire of always being a listener, of always giving his sympathy and receiving none. To hold a man a woman must understand and study him; she must not be exacting, for to expect too much only makes him feel that he wants to give less. She must realize that men are almost always selfish, ineradicably so, not from any innate depravity of their sex, but merely from the modern conditions of life which have moulded them.

A man usually goes out into the world young, he leads a separate existence at an age when his sister is still surrounded by her home circle. When his work is done, if he has any, he has only to think "What shall I do to-day that will give me the most pleasure?" That men act more and more on this principle is shown by the way they now treat their ordinary social engagements; the way they will break one when another more attractive offers itself, and will not decide until the last moment whether or no they will go to such and such a party. Can anyone wonder that many years of indulgence in this, coupled with a larger command of money than their sisters, should make them more selfish, should end by fixing the habit of thinking of their own pleasure so firmly in their minds that it is practically ineradicable? It may be overpowered for a time by a strong affection and all the counter influences of courtship and early matrimony. But later, when these have ceased to be novelties, and a man settles down to a regular married life, the old selfish habit of years reasserts itself, and his wife is inclined to blame him for changing towards her.

This is unjust, for he is no more to be blamed for the habits which have been acquired from his circumstances and environments than he is to be held responsible for those qualities which he inherits from his progenitors. It is better for the woman who lives with him and whose happiness is bound up with his own, to recognize this fact, and in studying his tendencies to take her measure accordingly.

A woman, on the contrary, is trained in a different school. When her brother is out in the world earning his living, or, at any rate, leading a separate existence, she is usually at home with other members of the household, whom she has always to consider when any plans or engagements, however trivial, have to be made. She, though she rarely realizes it, can only think: "What can we do to-day which will interest or amuse us most?" She cannot go about alone, and often her means are too limited to allow of much independent action. Having thus to defer to the wishes of her relations, she is daily trained in habits of yielding to others and of unselfishly giving up her will and pleasure to them. Thus he in his bachelor days is daily trained to selfishness; she, in her spinsterhood, is equally brought up to unselfishness. The sooner a woman recognizes this fundamental difference between the acquired natures of herself and men, the more likely is she to be attractive to them, and the better chance she will have of lasting happiness.

The Family Timepiece Untruthful.

Many a man who would not for any money go into the kitchen at seven o'clock in the morning and say to the cook, "Do you know it is half-past seven o'clock? Well, it is, and more; it's just thirty-five minutes past seven, and my train goes in twenty-five minutes!" will quietly and in cold blood put the clock up to telling this lie for him. This isn't fair to the clock. It is bad enough when a man, or even a woman, in a sudden gust of anger swears at a tramp, or peddler, or irritating caller, with a slamming door or a banging window. That is done in a quick frenzy of temper, and has sometimes the excuse of great provocation. But lying by the clock is always done with calm deliberation and malice aforethought, and it is persevered in day by day. It's too mean on the clock. Vocal as the big clock at Doctor Dombey's, speaking to poor little Paul, these martyred clocks should sit heavy on the conscience of the teacher, saying all day long, in staccato tones, "My, mas, ter, makes, me, lie. My, mas, ter, makes, me, lie."

Unimpressed.

"This castle is haunted," said the English guide to an American visitor as he threw open a massive shutter, "and the ghost is never seen except out of this window."

"Then your ghost might be called a mere window shade," replied the tourist. —Detroit Free Press.

"In what way?"

"The disappointment of finding at the end of one's little outing that the cheap place he so carefully selected has cost him just about as much as it would have cost to go to the swellest place on the coast invariably counteracts all the ordinary benefits of the trip. "How Do I Look?"

How frequently a woman asks this question! How much thought and study she devotes to it! It is natural. A woman hates to think that she is growing day by day less charming and attractive and youthful to her husband's eyes than in the days of courtship.

A woman may always retain her charms and the vivacity and freshness of youth if she will take the proper care of her health. A tremendous percentage of ill-health in women is due to weakness and disease of the distinctly feminine organism. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is an unfailing remedy for all disorders of this nature. It allays inflammation, heals ulceration, stops debilitating drains and soothes and tones the nerves. It preserves in a woman all the charm of healthy youth. Thousands of women have testified to its marvelous merits.

"Favorite Prescription" is sold by all respectable dealers in medicines. Deal only where you are honestly treated. Any storekeeper who tries to give you a substitute for what you demand is not treating you honestly and you should take your trade elsewhere.

"For nine years I have suffered with falling of internal organs," writes Mrs. Mary Williams, of Raleigh, Wake Co., N. C. (Box 196). "I was troubled with bearing down pains. I had indigestion and female weakness and nervousness. I could not sleep at night. I was constipated and had urinal trouble. The doctor here said that no medicine would reach my disease. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant 'Pellets' have cured me."

An every-day necessity in the home. A good home medical work. Send 31 one-cent stamps, to cover customs and mailing only, to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., for a paper-covered copy of Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser. Cloth binding 50 stamps.

EARTH BOUND.

Though from the body I am past,
To the earth I am bound fast.
Immortal voices call me low.
I may not go,
But, like a bird out of the night,
Beat ever in on this warm light.
I heard an angel say,
"Come away!"
I answered, "Let me bide
Where I have died,
Near to the blowing grass and sun,
Where I have run."
And then I said:
"'Tis dreary to be dead
And watch the budding lane
And hear the rain,
To pine about the green
And haunt the sheen!
Oh, rare, rare,
Are human faces, human hair!"
Spirit am I, but cannot yet
Go from these ancient pastures wet.
Though from the body I am past,
To the earth I am bound fast.

—Stephen Phillips in Literature.

THE PROMPTER.

He was only a prompter in one of the little German theaters which one finds in up stairs halls and rickety places of amusement along Third avenue in New York.

If any one had told him five years before he began his career by prompting a company of German comedians in "Die Fledermaus" that he should have to earn his bread and butter in such a lowly way he would have thrown bricks at him.

A prompter! He started out in life as a first lieutenant in a regiment of Prussian cheveaux-legers. With influence which his family had at its command he might have become a general, when the unfortunate outcome of a duel drove him from home to foreign shores. A woman had been the cause of it—a cold, heartless coquette, who threw him aside as she would cast off an old glove when he had no longer position and the expectation of wealth.

In New York he had tried to obtain a position commensurate with his social standing and his education. Like thousands of others, he failed. From a waiter in a Bowery chophouse he became a comedian in a shack of a playhouse, where the price of admission was 20 cents on Saturdays and Sundays and 5 cents during the rest of the week. Fate had been unkind to him by throwing him into the clutches of a rascally manager, who was always in arrears with the salaries, that at best were small and insufficient for anything beyond the merest necessities. A few weeks sufficed to cure him of the footlight fever, and the erstwhile lieutenant gladly accepted the offer of a steady job as prompter in a little theater a few shades better than the one he had just left.

The proprietor ran an eating house in conjunction with his temple of the muses and was always prompt in the payment of his dues. Hans Karl Lemkin became a prompter, and because he did not have to hunger and thirst any longer, eating his meals at his employer's table, he remained a prompter all his life. It isn't very strange that the terrible shock to his brilliant expectations should have crushed all the spirit out of him. The meager comforts of his existence satisfied him. If he had any ambitions to soar beyond the narrow confines of his box nobody ever heard of them—yes, one.

She was a woman of course. Like himself, she had come from the fatherland. She was a child prodigy in the old country, and when she grew older some manager picked her up and brought her to America. The company, of which she was the leading woman, became stranded on a barn storming tour in Canada, and naturally the girl drifted to New York. Her first metropolitan engagement was obtained in the little house in which Lemkin did the prompting. The girl was young and pretty and might have been a sister to the woman who had forsaken the poor prompter in his trouble, so strong was her resemblance to that highborn lady who was his first love. At first Karl was interested; then he abhorred her for that uncanny likeness, and then, poor fellow, he fell head over heels in love with her. She returned his love in a way—her way—which was shallow and insincere. Karl was poor; others who paid homage at her shrine were well provided with this world's goods. She needed their money for her advancement, and she also needed Karl's good will while she played in the little German company in the Third avenue playhouse.

The prompter watched over her with the fidelity of a dog. He carried her basket with the togs back and forth between her home and the theater, he took her home at night and he discreetly got out of the way when others more favored sought to entertain her.

It was a sorry lovemaking on his part—a sort of comfortable exchange of affections as far as the woman was concerned. She had promised to marry him at the end of the season, and that satisfied the poor fellow and filled him with happiness, which he never expected to feel again. He had been frugal and economical and saved a little out of his scanty earnings. As soon as they were married he would go into some business and earn a fortune for her. Yes, there was the new incentive that would bind him to life with stronger links than heretofore.

The season neared its end, and Karl's happiness grew in proportion. Magda became more loving and thoughtful of her betrothed's feelings, and he had not a moment's doubt that she was faithful to him. One day he was called away from his usual haunts by a letter from his home, wherein he received the welcome information that a distant relative had died and left him a comfortable bequest. He had no time to communicate this stroke of good luck, which came at such an opportune time, to his sweetheart, but hastened off to be identified with some lawyer and obtain a power of attorney to send abroad that the money might be collected for him.

Being unacquainted with the people and methods of so large a city at New York, it took young Lemkin many hours before he accomplished his purpose. When everything was arranged satisfactorily he set out for home. On the way he would call at Magda's home and communicate to her the happy news. He pictured to himself their wedding, their happy life in some pretty cottage in Harlem or across the river on Hoboken heights. Way into the future the young man sent his dreams, and all seemed fair and bright once more.

When he arrived at Magda's lodgings, there was no response to his repeated knocks. She may be out, he said to himself, and proceeded to make himself comfortable on the stairs to await her coming. He might have been sitting in the shadow of the stairway for an hour or more, lost in idle thoughts, when the front door was thrown open and Magda's landlady entered.

"You, Mr. Lemkin!" she said. "I did not expect you till tomorrow. Miss Magda thought you might come then, and in that case she told me to give you this note."

The woman took from the pocket of her apron a crumpled letter, which she handed to Lemkin. "She left early this morning," she added; "quite early."

Lemkin paid no heed to the woman's remark, which he did not understand. A letter from Magda to him, whose handwriting he had never seen, was such an unusual thing that it stunned him. With trembling fingers the poor fellow tore open the envelope. He did not have far to read before he understood that Magda had left him on the eve of their wedding. "I am ambitious," she wrote, "and I think I can get along better without you. You are nothing but a poor prompter, and that is probably all you ever will be. I love you dearly, but I love my future better. Forgive me."

The courage of the soldier, the calling for which he had been bred, came to his rescue. "I am sorry I missed seeing her," he said to the landlady, "before she left. But I can write to her. She left me her address in this letter."

It was a falsehood which he spoke with stern lips, because he did not want to betray to the old woman that he had been jilted. Then he went away, resumed his duties at the theater that night, and answered cheerily all questions about Magda, who had secured a release for the last few days of her term.

Years have passed since then. The poor prompter is a prompter still, but no longer in a little obscure theater on Third avenue. He has moved along with the playhouses to better quarters and receives a comfortable salary from a first class manager, whose assistant he is, while he still follows his calling as prompter.

Karl Lemkin has not aged much, and if there is any change in him it is for the better. He wears better clothes than he used to, and his face always has a happy smile. Every night he is accompanied to the theater by a little old lady. When he has accompanied her to a seat in the auditorium, he goes back to his prompt box, and when the play is over the old lady waits for him until he comes to fetch her. Then the two trudge home together, and on the way they always talk. They seem to have so much to say to each other. Maybe because they have to make up for lost time.

The little old woman is Karl's wife, and she is the same Magda who once so basely jilted him. One day five years ago, when Lemkin came to the theater, the manager said to him:

"I have engaged a new dresser, Karl. She is an old woman, and I want you to assist her all you can if she should need your help. I think she'll suit us better than that frivolous young thing we last had, who was always late and never around when she was wanted."

So Karl on his way to the prompt box stopped to inquire for the new dressing woman. The leading lady took him to her room, where the prompter came face to face with Magda, old and wrinkled now, for 30 years had passed since he had seen her last.

What use to speak of their joy? What use to relate Karl's tender condoning of all that lay between that day and now? A few weeks later they were married, and if love can make the old young and wipe out from their memories the bitter past, Karl has found at last what seemed to have forever slipped from his grasp.—St. Louis Republic.

HUMAN SACRIFICES

On the Altar of Diabetes, Saved by Dodd's Kidney Pills, Only.

Hardly a family in the country is free from Diabetes. Great thirst, failing sight, numbness in the thighs, bleeding gums, swollen ankles, emaciation, nervousness, pale or turbid urine, loss of sexual power, decaying teeth, pains in the loins or small of the back, are all positive signs that Diabetes is in the system.

Do you know how it ends? IN DEATH. A premature, horrible, agonized, pitiful death. The victim has no peace, no ease in life. His days are filled with tortures. His nights are waking dreams of agony. He longs to die, yet fears the terrors of his end. He dies, a bloated, fetid, repulsive mass of corruption. That is the only end of unchecked Diabetes. Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure it. They drive it out of the system thoroughly, create new, clean blood, rebuild the diseased kidneys, and restore robust health.

A Substantial Gain.

"I was very weak and hardly able to walk. My blood was thin and I was as pale as death.

Being told about Hood's Sarsaparilla I began taking it and in a few months I had gained twenty pounds in weight. I kept on with it until I was as well as ever." Arthur Mills, Dresden, Ontario.

Hood's Pills cure nausea, headache.

Test the KIDNEYS

They are the Great Feeders of our Bodies

The Purity of the Blood is Dependent on their Cleansing Powers

There's a time to all, old and young, man or woman, when poor health brings trouble, anxiety, and burdens hard to stand up under, and one's efforts to rid himself or herself seem only to be baffled at every turn, and we are prone to grow discouraged.

That is not the time to give up—but the time for action, the time to seek out the seat of the trouble, and act as your best judgment and the experience of others will help you, guarding against mistake, in the treatment adopted for your particular ailment.

MR. GEORGE BENNER,
WIARTON, ONTARIO, says:—

As a life saver to mankind, I hereby state what Dr. A. W. Chase's K.-L. Pills did for me. For nearly four years I was greatly troubled with Constipation and general weakness in the Kidneys, and in my perilous position was strongly advised to use Chase's Pills, and to-day I can safely and truthfully state that they have saved my life.

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS are the only Combined Kidney and Liver Pill—What they have Accomplished is but a guarantee of what they will do . . . .

CARE OF THE SKIN.

Exercise an Essential Element—Walking In Soft Summer Rain Is a Beautifier.

Bathing and diet are points usually emphasized in advice on the care of the skin, but there is another thing to be taken into account which is as essential as either bathing or diet. This is proper exercise. Very many people seem to consider that if they go out now and then for irregular periods of time on a nice day their duty to themselves and society begins and ends there, or they have numerous carriages and so much pleasure and business to cram into their day that they drive to keep all their engagements and almost look on walking as a kind of lost art, instead of which they should make a rigid rule that nothing except illness or some important business that cannot be put off or a hopelessly wet day should prevent this daily constitutional from being taken.

And if you have the courage to wear a cloth hat that not even a hurricane could injure and leave your umbrella at home and let the rain wet your face thoroughly the soft tepid water will act as a most successful skin beautifier if the face is dried with a soft towel when you get indoors. But you must never do this in winter time, when the rain is cold and often snow laden, nor when there is the least suspicion of east in the wind, or you will harm the skin more than do good to it. You should never walk to overtire yourself and never sit down when you come in cold and wet or too hot and covered with perspiration before changing your underlinen. Nothing hurts the skin so much as this. A chill is the natural consequence of such imprudence, as it drives the blood from the surface and by preventing its performing its proper functions injures the skin very severely, and it takes some time to recover itself. If, however, woolen underclothing is worn next the skin, much of this chilly feeling will be prevented.

A skin that is of a uniform dead white shows that the person who owns it is not in proper health. In this case the cause itself should be eagerly sought for and cured or at least alleviated. At the same time hot baths judiciously taken, massage and rubbing with a loofah may be practiced frequently. If a skin is very red and very rough, it very often shows robust health, but also shows neglect of proper care and dieting and baths. Any skin, however bad, cannot but be improved if proper and judicious care is bestowed on it.

Certain kinds of baths are very useful in the case of the skin getting out of order. Oatmeal put into a muslin bag and soaked for half an hour in your bath before you take it will not only soften the water, but will have a most delightful effect in cleansing the skin and making it soft and smooth. To preserve the skin and keep that look of youth that generally disappears with early girlhood beautiful women all the world over have tried with great success many strange kinds of baths.

When the skin is very exhausted and feels flabby and dead to the touch, a bath in which has been put a cupful of benzoin will have a wonderfully reviving effect on it. Strawberries crushed into the bath water so as to color the water and make it cloudy is an excellent tonic for a greasy skin. Needless to add that after remaining in it some time a sponge bath of warm rainwater must be taken. When strawberries cannot be obtained, a sponge bath of very weak vinegar and water will serve in some degree the same purpose.

TEN EYCK AND HARVARD.

What if the Henley Champion Should Succeed Coach Lehmann?

"I certainly hope that there is some truth," says a Bostonian in the New York Sun, "in the report that Jim Ten Eyck of Worcester will have an offer to coach Harvard. For the sake of the sport such an engagement would be desirable. Harvard, though, appears to be afraid of professionalism. What indeed is there to fear from a professional? Can any of us discover where the example of Courtney has brought either grief or sorrow to the Cornell crew? Has Ellis Ward of Pennsylvania ever been found wanting in courtesy and good breeding? I think not. Ten Eyck might not be as polished as Rudolph Lehmann, but he is just as well bred and as well born. Ten Eyck can trace his ancestry back to the old Dutch settlers, and that is good enough for most of us. We would like him no better and no less if they came over on the Cephalonia two weeks ago. What Harvard wants is a skillful coach who knows rowing. Ten Eyck fills the bill. There is not a better posted man on rowing in the world. Ten Eyck was never a world beater as an oarsman, but he generally gave a good account of himself in races where he was stacked up against champions. In races where there were first and second prizes he generally managed to pull off one of them and always gave those who backed him a race for their money. He has always been honest in his long racing career. Never has he been concerned in a scandal. That ought to be good enough for Harvard. If Ten Eyck is engaged—and for the sake of Harvard I hope he will be—there will be a radical change in rowing affairs at Cambridge."

INHERITED SPEED.

What an English Biologist Says About American Trotting Horses.

From the recorded race records of trotting horses in the United States, running through a period of 25 years, Professor Francis Galton, a noted English biologist, estimates the force and value of inherited speed and also measures the velocity of inherited speed upon the offspring. For instance, suppose that one ancestor of a certain horse had a record of 2:2?, and that another ancestor of the same degree had one of 2:10, then how should we estimate their respective influences? Should their combined influence be the same on the average as that of two horses having each a record of 2:20 or should it be quite different? Professor Galton's conclusion is that it is a safe rule to take the average. Before writing his essay Professor Galton took up the records and speed inheritance of over 5,700 horses with fast records, all made from 1892 to 1896. He finds that thore records prove that speed is a true inheritance, that in a great majority of cases it can be depended upon with reasonable certainty to reproduce itself and make speed breeding a thoroughly scientific achievement.

Energy Easily Earned.

D'WARD'S BLOOD & NERVE PILLS

Wasted energy must be made up or the body will weaken and perhaps perish.

For a long time prior to taking Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills my nerve system was greatly deranged and I was terribly nervous, so much so that in my business (Linesman of the Kingston Electric Light Co.,) my extreme nervousness naturally made the following of my business extremely hazardous. Before taking Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills my kidneys had been affected for some time. I had constant soreness and stiffnese across my loins and the small of my back. My appetite was variable and very poor. I also suffered greatly with constant headaches. I am glad to be able to inform you that Dr. Ward's Pills completely cured me of all the above ailments and made me a well man. I have found no medicine like Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills, although I have tried many different kinds. They acted quickly and effectually on my nerve system, making my nerves strong and removing all indications of nervousness. These valuable pills also removed all kidney and back trouble and restored to me a healthy vigorous appetite. I have had no headache since five months ago and feel justified in saying that they are a wonderful remedy. They not only removed nervousness, but gave me healthy kidneys, removed all soreness and stiffness from my back and loins, cured me of headache and gave me a good appetite, consequently I am highly pleased. I know of no medicine that equals Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills for nervousness, chronic headache, sore kidneys and back and loss of appetite. Yours truly, John McCutcheon, 322 Princess St., Kingston, Ont.

LACROSSE.

Yesterday afternoon, on the Rosedale Lacrosse Grounds, the Dufferins of Orangeville were outscored, outpointed, and outdone for the senior lacrosse championship of the C. L. A. by the Orillia twelve, which scored eleven goals against the Orangeville team's one.

After their defeat of Seaforth the Orangeville contingent came down confident that victory would perch on their banners in the final struggle, but a moment after going on the field there was another tale to tell, for the Orillia players simply toyed with the Dufferins and beat them as they pleased. Taking heart at the first of the contest, the men from the suburbs of Muskoka went into the struggle with a will, and before the teams had been fairly started a strong tip was out on the Orillians. Both towns sent down a thorough representation of the match, and when Referee Wm. S. A. Hartley ordered the players to take their places, the inhabitants of both the rural places had taken possession of the Toronto Lacrosse Clubhouse. Since Wednesday morning the followers of both teams have been arriving, and by the time the game was ready to start at the Rosedale grounds yesterday there were hosts sympathising and supporting both the visiting clubs. The conflict (if such it may be called) was one that made the Orillia supporters feel good, for the team wearing the purple and gold started out at the first, and took command of the game. There was a Dufferin lacrosse team on the field, but if spectators did not previously know it, they could never detect it from the play of the Orangeville boys, for in a few short minutes the Orillians had them beaten by 5 goals to 0. Johnston, for Orillia, at inside home, came with a rush and tallied the first game in 2¼ minutes actual play. Conners took the next in three minutes; "Bunty" Armstrong contributed the third in five minutes, and fourth in 14½ minutes; while Wilkinson put the fifth past Foucar in 60 seconds. The five games were tallied so fast that the Dufferin's did not know where they were. They were on the field in full force in a way, but for a few single exceptions they might as well have been in the Klondyke. Nothing which can be said would be too hard on account of their play. They were like a lot of wooden men in a cemetery, and if they had for a moment put up the same game which they did against Seaforth in Brampton, there would have been a run for the spectators' money and a different score. Not so much on the defence, but on the home, were the Dufferins deficient. Try as they would they could not get the ball even within gun-shot of Hanley, the Orillia goal keeper, "Billy" Irvine would get possession of the rubber at times, and a bad pass would spoil the Orangeville chances; again, Jack Henry would have an easy opportunity to score, and he would throw it away; so on it went. Orangeville people who were at the grounds left in disgust before the match was concluded.

Never this year, if ever, did Orillia play with such spirit, and never, if ever, did the Orangeville team play in such woodan form.

A few of the Dufferins seemed to be trying, the rest acted as if they were trying all they could to help the Orillians; but there is nothing so uncertain as a horse race—or a lacrosse match.

At the seventh game, Orangeville, for mere shame, if for nothing else, scored a goal to relieve the monotony, but it was the first, last and only one, so that the backers of the team would almost as lief have seen it go the way all the others did.

A simple description of the match would be to say that it was a procession, pure and simple, in Orillia's favour. The result must have come as an overwhelming surprise to the far northeners, for before the game they wanted 10 to 7 and 5 to 3 before they would wager a cent.

The Orangeville people came to Toronto with all kinds of money but in view of the demands of the other team's supporters not much was ventured on the result.

A melancholy ending for the men from Dufferin county was the six goals which were scored against them in a remarkably clean way.

For Orillia all the players seemed to be in A1 fettle, and showed science such as is seldom seen on a lacrosse field. They were good all through without exception.

On the defeated team Ernie Menary was the star of the day. Of the two teams he was the great player on the field, and it is only fair to state that with eleven more like this wonderful defence man, Orangeville could beat the best team that ever played Canada's national game. Clarridge, the Dowlings, Kearns and Jimmy Irvine did all in their power to avert defeat, but the game played by the other members of the twelve made their efforts useless. Stage fright, or something kindred, took hold of last year's intermediate champions, and they were at sea, that is the story, while Orillia took courage and spirit at the first of the game and won in a canter.

The teams were:—

Orillia—Goal, Hanley; point, Quinn; cover point, Went; defence field, D. Connors, Churchill, Dunn; centre, Curran; home field, Wilkinson, Armstrong, Watson; outside, M. Connors; inside, Johnson; captain, B. Yates.

Orangeville—Goal, Foucar; point, E. Menary; cover point, J. Dowling; defence field, W. Island, J. Kearns, J. A. Irvine; centre, A. Clarridge; home field, T. Dowling, Larry Hay, Art Snell; outside, W. W. Irvine; inside, J. Henry; captain, Dr. T. H. Henry.

Summary:—

1—Orillia, Johnson, 2½ minutes.
2—Orillia, M. Connors, 3 minutes.
3—Orillia, Armstrong, 5 minutes.
4—Orillia, Armstrong, 14½ minutes.
5—Orillia, Wilkinson, 1 minute.
6—Orangeville, W. Irvine, 13 minutes.
7—Orillia, M. Connor, 4 minutes.
8—Orillia, Dunn, 13 minutes.
9—Orillia, Armstrong, 7 seconds.
10—Orillia, Armstrong, 45 seconds.
11—Orillia, Armstrong, 2½ minutes.
12—Orillia, Armstrong, 4½ minutes.

HOCKEY

Although the O. H. A. has had Forrester's case in hand practically for a year, nothing was done at the meeting of the Executive held to consider the matter. Forrester played hockey with Waterloo last winter and was thrown out on the charge of having skated for a purse in 1896 at Lucknow. The Listowel Club made the accusation and filed a number of affidavits to substantiate their allegation. Forrester was suspended, although he claimed that it was a case of mistaken identity. He has since filed affidavits secured from persons in Lucknow and other places to the effect that it was James Forrester and not Joseph who skated for the money. Lawyer J. A. Macdonald was present at the meeting to look after Forrester's interests. It was decided to hold the matter over for a week, in order to give the Listowel parties a chance to see the affidavits. The members of the Executive present were Messrs. King, Beaton, Creelman, Macdonald, Tiffin and Robertson.

Mr. John Ross Robertson, M. P., presented the Association with a beautiful silver cup of handsome design, valued at $500, for competition in the senior series.

RUGBY.

The match between the Colts and the Grove team will not take place till a week from to-morrow. Two matches will likely take place that day, for in all probability either the Young Toronto II. or the Harboard street Collegiate team of Toronto will play the Colts' senior team.

A special practice will take place on the P. A. A. A. Grounds to-morrow at 3.30.

Coupon Scheme Fails.

The Merchants' and Buyers' Benefit Association, of Hamilton, have suspended business owing to want of patronage. According to the scheme adopted, the purchasers in stores on the Association's list received a coupon for every 10c worth of goods purchased. These coupons were redeemable in cash at the rate of $3 for 1,000 coupons. The concern at one time did considerable business and a large number of coupon holders will be losers. Many of the merchants were behind in their payments and a number who formerly gave their adherence to the scheme have of late dropped out.

About Coffee.

Few, very few, know how to buy coffee. A grocer who has little respect for his customers can deceive them any time. We've paid strict attention to coffee buying and ever since we began business have refused to handle any brands but the most wholesome and unadulterated. Our fresh groud coffee comes a little higher, but it always suits—it always will. We pay a big price for the best roaster bean, sometimes as big as to leave us but a very small margin of profit; but that does not matter if our trade is pleased. Our coffee mill is run by electricity, and we grind your coffee fresh on the spot every time—giving you the full benefit of the aromatic flavour of the fresh ground bean. Best results are obtained when blended with genuine Mocha (some blend with Rio, an inferior article,) at same price. Java is mild; Mocha is strong. We also keep in stock Chase & Sanborn's Old Government, Java and Mocha coffees. E. F. MASON & Co, Grocers and Tea Merchants, George street, Peterborough. dw

THE "GOOSEBONE" NONSENSE.

The old Maine weather prophet who has published the statement that the coming winter will be long and severe, ought to know by this time that the colour of the goosebone, the muskrats' houses, and the squirrels' storage of nuts are of no more value in determining the nature of the weather than they are in regulating the movements of the planets.

The bone of a goose may determine the condition of the bird, and it is a well-known fact to hunters and trappers that muskrats have done the greatest amount of work in providing comfortable quarters for one of the mildest winters ever known. Squirrels stow away nuts when there is a large crop of nuts, and when these cannot be found they lay by other food. They do not study astrology or meteorology, and neither they nor the muskrats know any more about the coming of a hard or soft winter than a cart wheel.

British Papers on the Egyptian Protectorate Report.

AS USUAL PARIS WAS EXCITED.

Major Marchand Quits Fashoda—On a Steamer to Cairo With His Unfinished Report—Great Naval Activity at Portsmouth—Lord Kitchener's Title—News by Cable.

London, Oct. 29.—A rumor started on the Stock Exchange yesterday, and later became persistent, that the Cabinet had resolved to declare a British protectorate in Egypt. Egyptian unifieds advanced ¼, and French 3 per cent. rentes the same. The story reached the clubs, where it was much discussed, but it was treated with incredulity, the Conservative political clubs regarding it as too good to be true. Some of the morning newspapers record the statement as "a startling rumor."

The Radical Chronicle, commenting on the subject, says it tends to show that events are moving swiftly to a dramatic conclusion. It adds: "We do not see any sound objection to Great Britain immediately declaring a protectorate. Opinions may differ as to whether Egypt is likely to be of much material profit to the empire, but the time for that discussion has gone by. There we are and there we must stay for many years to come, to the great profit at least of Egypt and the civilized world in general. If so, we had better regularize our position and put it beyond the power of the Khedive's folly or the chance policy of any Foreign Minister to hamper our work."

The Daily Mail says: "We can only hope that the rumor is true. The time is certainly coming when Great Britain must speak out boldly on the subject, for her promise to evacuate Egypt has gradually become impossible of fulfilment."

Consternation in Paris.

Paris, Oct. 29.—The circumstantial statement that Lord Salisbury and the members of his Cabinet had voted to proclaim a protectorate over Egypt created an immense impression when it reached here. It was too late for it to become generally known, except on the grand boulevards, but there the effect was electrical. The news spread consternation in the clubs and cafes. For the first time in the present crisis Paris stopped discussing the Dreyfus case and talked of war as at its very doors.

Would Mean War.

It is terribly significant of how such a step on the part of Great Britain would be met here that no other interpretation was put upon the story except that it was a declaration of war. It would, nevertheless, be unsafe to credit therefrom what would be the effect on France as a whole when the first excitement of resentment passed. Be that as it may, the alleged action of Great Britain produced here an angry belief that war would be declared on the morrow. The rumor that M. Constans would be a member of the new Ministry was regarded as confirming this. Nothing but a great emergency, it was felt, would induce M. Constans, who is regarded as France's strong man in reserve, to take office.

The Protectorate Report.

London, Oct. 29.—There does not seem to be the slightest ground for the report of yesterday, that the British Cabinet has decided to declare the protectorate of Great Britain over Egypt. It was based solely on a London despatch to the Paris Soir.

The Times' Denial.

The Times says: "The desire ascribed to France to raise a general discussion ought to be in itself sufficient answer to the ridiculous rumor circulated in ill-informed quarters yesterday (Friday) that we intend to play into her hands by declaring a protectorate over Egypt.

Nothing would be more unlikely at the present moment."

ACTIVITY AT PORTSMOUTH.

Undoubted Truth in Britain's Reported Naval Preparations.

London, Oct. 29.—The Daily News sent a special correspondent to ascertain the truth of the reported naval preparations at Portsmouth. He writes that the dockyard is full of unwonted activity and echoes from end to end with the noise of preparations. Fifty torpedo boats and torpedo boat destroyers are being rapidly overhauled and can be made ready for service in a few hours. Thousands of tons of coal are being poured at topmost speed into the bunkers of several vessels, and food and ammunition are going aboard as rapidly as the men and derricks can work.

Outside the dockyard there is similar activity. Throughout the day there was a continuous boom on the coast, where the artillerymen were testing their guns. The forts at Spithead are taking in quantities of ammunition. The Southsea common, close to Portsmouth, is dotted with tents, which are occupied by engineers and miners who are erecting searchlight stations at breakneck speed. The earthworks all along the sea front are being strengthened, and there is evidence everywhere that preparations are being made for the worst contingency.

GREAT BRITAIN'S DICTUM.

Marchand May Remain at Fashoda as a Visitor, But Cannot Get Any Reinforcements.

London, Oct. 29.—The Pall Mall Gazette yesterday afternoon summarizes the result of the meeting of the British Cabinet on Thursday as follows:

One—Marchand must be withdrawn unconditionally, and no undertaking or promise can be given to discuss the questions raised by France in regard to access to the Nile, and such like.

Two—When Marchand is withdrawn it will be determined whether the questions raised admit of discussion, and under what conditions the discussion can be proceeded with.

Three—Every possible facility will be afforded to assist in Marchand's withdrawal by whichever route selected.

Four—If Marchand is not withdrawn there will be no interference with his remaining at Fashoda, nor date fixed for his withdrawal. Necessarily, reinforcements will not be permitted to reach him. He will be treated courteously as a foreign visitor, and will be regarded in no other light.

Five—Therefore, it is left to France to adapt any active measures to precipitate a conflict.

No Settlement Authorized.

New York, Oct. 29.—Advices received from Paris yesterday afternoon say that President Faure has authorized the statement that no settlement has been reached between England and France regarding Fashoda.

What France Will Do.

London, Oct. 29.—The Paris correspondent of the Times says: If France directs Major Marchand to retire from Fashoda she will refuse to enter any ulterior negotiations, preferring to leave the question quite open and awaiting a more favorable opportunity to re-open it."

The Pall Mall Gazette says that it has good reason to believe that while Russia has counseled France to tide over the difficulty and avoid war, she has promised to throw her weight in the scale at no distant date, for the purpose of bringing the whole Egyptian question and the British occupation of Egypt to the front for settlement.

MARCHAND MARCHES.

It Is Said That He Has Reached Khartoum on His Way Home.

Cairo, Oct. 29.—A boat recently despatched to Fashoda has reached Khartoum on its return journey, and it is asserted that Major Marchand is on board of her.

It is added that the Major deemed it necessary to personally bring to Cairo the unfinished portion of his report of his explorations. Captain Germain was left in command of the French mission at Fashoda.

Major Marchand left Fashoda on Sunday and arrived at Khartoum yesterday morning. He will start for Cairo to-day. All the other Frenchmen remain at Fashoda. Major Marchand's departure from there is not regarded as a settlement of the question as to the possession of that place, which is in dispute between Great Britain and France.

The Report Confirmed.

Paris, Oct. 29.—The French Foreign Office has received a despatch from its diplomatic agency at Cairo confirming the reported arrival of Major Marchand at Khartoum.

Position the Same Officially.

London, Oct. 29.—The morning newspaper editorials regard Major Marchand's movement from Fashoda to Khartoum as indicative of a yielding on the specific question in controversy, although the position is officially unaltered.

The Daily News takes it for granted that Major Marchand will come to Paris.

DUPUY WILL TRY.

Paris, Oct. 29.—M. Dupuy has formally informed President Faure that he will accept the task of forming a new Cabinet. He has secured the support of MM. Ribot, Delcasse and Leygues.

Young Amaranth Farmer Becomes Desperate—He's Now in Jail.

Orangeville, Oct. 29.—Robert Parkins, a young Amaranth farmer, was in love with Jennie Patterson of the same locality, but was unsuccessful in his wooing, as the girl had another and accepted lover—a street car conductor in Toronto, to whom she was to be married last Wednesday. On Sunday last Parkins went over to the Patterson farm with a loaded Winchester and a revolver, and kept guard opposite the house all day, threatening to kill the girl and commit suicide. The police were sent for and he is now in the county jail.

There are a number of other charges of alleged bribery, also of treating.

COX FIRED IN SELF-DEFENCE.

Finding of the Jury in the Goderich Shooting Fatality.

Goderich, Ont., Oct. 29.—The inquest in the Cox-Beattie shooting case was resumed yesterday afternoon in the Court House here. The witnesses examined were: Dr. Whitely, Robert Thompson, George Parmenter, Robert Lusk, Richard Chambers and Thomas Gundry, constable. Mrs. Beattie was too ill to appear.

The witnesses corroborated the evidence previously given and added further points which favored the prisoner strongly. The coroner reviewed the evidence impartially and gave the case to the jury, who returned the following verdict, after an absence of about 25 minutes:

"That on the morning of Oct. 25, Frederick Beattie came to his death in his own orchard by a pistol shot, the pistol being in the hands of William Cox, and we further find, according to the evidence, that the said Frederick Beattie was shot in self-defence by the said William Cox."

Schooner Lost, Crew Saved.

Wiarton, Ont., Oct. 29.—The schooner C. P. Minch, lumber laden, for Chicago, owned by O. W. Elphicke & Co. of Chicago, dragged her anchors and went ashore on Cove Island Wednesday morning, during a heavy northeast gale, and is a total wreck. The crew were saved, and are now at Tobermory. The news has just arrived by the Government fishery cruiser Dolphin.

He Writes About His Condition—Wife and Children Helped.

WALLACEBURG, ONT.—The following letter will prove of interest to working men and others who may be in a condition similar to that of the writer:

"For three years I was subject to poor spells. I always felt tired, could not sleep at night and the little I could eat did not do me any good. I have been working at the barber trade for about 20 years and for the last four years I have been very closely confined and have had my meals very irregularly. I was taken with a

Very Severe Cough

and the doctors said it was caused by my stomach troubles. I lost flesh and became so weak I was hardly able to stand up to the chair to work. One day I happened to be looking over some testimonial letters and I thought I would try Hood's Sarsaparilla. Before I had taken two bottles I began to feel better and in a short time I felt finely and had gained 21 pounds in weight. I have taken nearly five bottles and now I feel like a man again. I am than I have ever been in my life. My wife and children have also taken Hood's Sarsaparilla for a blood medicine and realized much benefit from it. As for myself I cannot say too much for it. DEPARTMENTAL STORES.

The Toronto World says:

"That the (much condemned by the World) departmental stores are a decided advantage to Toronto is more evident now than ever. When first organized they catered to the retail trade of the city alone. Later on their business extended, until now their goods are distributed from one end of Canada to the other .... It must be admitted, even by those who have fought the departmental stores the most that that their presence here has benefitted and is benefitting the city, in a very large degree. Not a little improvement in the situation in Toronto must be credited to them."

It is an unfortunate fact that some of the citizens of Peterborough have too largely contributed to the benefitting of Toronto, through the departmental stores, to the detriment of local merchants. This is not right. Stand by the town. Spend your money with those who help you make it.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

MEXICO has had 55 presidents since 1821. Of these, 16 have died violent deaths. So says an exchange. In the same course of time Mexico has had an emperor who also came to a violent end.

A London traveller recently returned from the Klondyke doesn't know anything about the Yukon officials scandal. He hadn't seen the Conservative newspapers.

THE Philadelphia American says: "France claims that nothing but sour grapes can be raised at Fashoda, anyway," and the Chicago Times-Herald by way of reply patly asks, "How about the British flag?"

YESTERDAY'S Globe stated that Hon. Mr. Gibson's majority in East Wellington was 438. The Mail and Empire with the recklessness of despair put the figures at 514. When so stunning a blow is administered a hundred or two added to the majority doesn't matter.

ABOUT a hundred years ago the disgruntled colonists of North America pulled down a statute of George III. in New York to make bullets to pot his solders with. Now they propose erecting a statue to his grand-daughter, Queen Victoria. But if Queen Victoria had reigned a hundred years ago there would have been no need of bullets.

THE Mail and Empire, remarked on Thursday:—"The election of Dr. Coughlin for East Wellington to-day will be a stunning blow to the Government." The Government has been getting a series of such stunning blows ever since Mr. Whitney and the Opposition began their windpower campaign in the summer of '97. The organ had better take in its sign as a soothsayer.

IT is 6,250 miles from Cairo to the Cape, and the British propose making the whole journey possible by rail and steamboat. The River Nile and the lakes afford a navigable stretch of 4,050 miles. The remaining 2,200 miles must be covered by rail. Of this, 1,200 miles has already been built, from the Cape to Buluwayo. Cecil Rhodes is determined to continue it at once to Lake Tanganyika, which will require 750 miles more. The only remaining gaps are from Lake Tanganyika to Victoria Nyanza, 350 miles, and from Victoria Nyanza to Khartoum, 1,000 miles.

The reduction in the freight rates on grain from Chicago to Buffalo, the Crow's Nest agreement entitled on a car of grain to be carried from Chicago to Liverpool. Last year the freight would have amounted to $20; this year it is $13; or $7 in favor of the Manitoba farmer. The payment of freight charges upon imports will amount to $7 per car. This will amount to a considerable sum of fruit, [illegible] will amount to [illegible] Item for Brandon, [illegible] have proportionately [illegible] would have us believe that Manitoba gained nothing by the Crow's Nest agreement, and that no credit is due Mr. Sifton for reduced rates.

A "Commercial Traveller" forwards to the Globe, the following clipping from the Detroit Free Press: "Charles Mould of the firm of W. & A. McArthur, of Cheboygan, says that as a result of the Ontario restrictions, Michigan lumbering concerns will take out only one third of their last season's cut on the Georgian Bay, and only about one-fifth of that will be brought to Michigan. He says that most of the mills on this side of Lake Huron will be idle next season, and will have to go out of business altogether unless the two countries come to some reciprocal arrangement." This is testimony from a hostile source as to the efficiency of the regulations imposed by the Hardy Government, says the Globe.

SINGLE TAX COLUMN.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR:—Find the following for Single Tax column:

The idea that public improvements add to the value of land is very difficult to grasp when used as an argument for requiring the beneficiaries to pay the expenses of the improvements; but when advanced as an inducement to invest in land it is easily understood. For example, a real estate expert was recently quoted in a Chicago paper as urging the city to make a certain street improvement because it would increase land values in the vicinity from $200 a foot to $1,000 a foot. He understood the point and so did the owners. It is plain enough for anyone to see that public improvements increase land values and no other values, and it ought to be as plain to an unhardened conscience that the beneficiaries of this increase of value, and not the public generally, should pay for it. Whoever rents his house, if he pays taxes for public improvements, is taxed twice for them. First in the tax he pays the municipality and second by his landlord in higher rent for the use of the very improvements he has already paid for to the authorities.

About a year ago a petition was circulated in the town and county asking the Local Legislature of Ontario to pass an act permitting municipalities desiring to do so, to relieve all improvements of taxation and raise local revenue on assessment of land values alone. Although a large number of persons signed the petitions, nothing was done about it, and the matter was left to be repeatedly asked for.

Within the past few weeks citizens of our neighbouring corporation of Ashburnham, looking about them and beholding the facilities for manufacturing possessed by their village, see that they cannot afford, like larger corporations, to bonus business concerns to secure their location with them, and all at once seem to have caught the idea that possibly they might exempt from taxation any enterprising business men who would be willing to spend money on building factories, residences, etc., which would amount to advantages equal to a bonus.

In an editorial a few days ago the EXAMINER called attention to the fact that that the town of Peterborough had just about held its own in reference to population during the past year. Let us just think what would likely be the result if the town adopted (with consent of the Legislature) the plan of exempting all improvements—assessing only land values for local revenues. Of course at first the weight of taxation would fall on landowners, who would seek to distribute in shape of higher rentals this increase of taxation among their tenants. Many tenants would buy land at reduced rates from owners who will not build. They would build; builders would be employed; this would prevent higher rentals from becoming too high. Industries would be started free from taxation except on the land they occupy; workmen being busy would buy goods, hence demand for manufacturing of goods would increase and soon Peterborough would become a real hive of industry, sought for by workingmen and business men generally and the population question as well as the prosperity and progress question, would be settled at once.

WOMEN OFTEN OBJECT

When the husband or son joins a Court in a Society because it takes up one or two nights a month, but when they are bereaved of their helpmeet and receive the Insurance so long worked and planned for by the loved one who has been called hence, opinion changes quickly. There are no stronger friends of the Canadian Order of Foresters than the 3,500 widows and orphans who have been kept from possible want and poverty by the Insurance and Sick Benefit moneys paid by the Society. This is not a charity, the money is fairly earned, and not the least part of the consideration is the self-sacrificing work of the Brethren who attend lodge and conduct the business of the society without fee or price for their services. It is for the benefit of wives, sons and daughters, fathers and mothers, that the C.O.F. carries on its great work, and its noble principles have been amply sustained by Canadian womanhood.

Benefits. Each Court may provide for Sick and Funeral Benefits and the attendance of a skilled physician during illness.

The High Court gives a weekly allowance of from $3 to $9 during illness or disability as provided in the Sick and Funeral Benefit Law, and on the death of a member contributes $50 towards his funeral expenses.

After satisfactory proof of the death of a member in good standing, the wife, children or designated payees of deceased, receive from the Order the amount of insurance provided for, as named in their Insurance Certificate or Certificates, which may be from $500 to $2,000 or more.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND GIVES THEM NEW LIFE, VIGOR AND NEEDED STRENGTH.

It Purifies the Blood and Braces the Nerves.

It Gives Bright Eyes and a Clear and Healthy Complexion.

Miss Mabel Jennese, whose wonderful system for the correct physical training of women and girls is so well known all over the North American continent, is a firm believer in the virtues of Paine's Celery Compound. When overworked by her multitudinous duties, she always recuperates and strengthens her system by using Paine's Celery Compound. In a letter to Wells & Richardson Co., proprietors of Paine's Celery Compound, she says:

"I was induced to try Paine's Celery Compound at a time when I was suffering from overwork and the effects of an accident. I began immediately to realise tonic and blood-nourishing effects. I take pleasure in saying that, although opposed to medicine in general, I really consider this an excellent preparation.

"I have not been able to take one day's rest since I returned from my long, hard, western trip. I am sure were it not for Paine's Celery Compound, which has a tonic effect, I should not be able to keep up and work hard.

"I recommended Paine's Celery Compound to a friend who dined with us yesterday, and on leaving here she went and bought a bottle. I shall do all I can for it, for I believe in it."

A POSTPONEMENT.

The International Commission Will Not Meet at Washington on Nov. 1—The Plebiscite Vote.

Ottawa, Oct. 29.—The International Commissioners will not meet on Nov. 1, as arranged. Owing to the many important Ministerial engagements in Ottawa next week, it has been decided to ask for a postponement of the meeting of the Anglo-American Joint High Commission until November 10th. The Ministers will leave Ottawa on either the 8th or 9th, but it is likely that Sir Wilfrid Laurier will not go south until the following week, as etiquette demands that the Prime Minister should bid good-bye to his Excellency at Quebec, and to formally welcome his successor on landing.

Plebiscite Returns Still Incomplete.

Plebiscite returns are still most incomplete. In British Columbia, Burrard and Yale and Cariboo are still outstanding. Only two returns are in from the Northwest Territories, and Gaspe is still outstanding in Quebec. In several places the official opening of the boxes took place yesterday.

The New Brunswick majority for prohibition will have to be reduced by 1,485, the people in St. John city having voted both there and also in the constituency, St. John city and county. As the question on which they were voting was one of principle, and not one of electing a member, it has been decided that the above vote will not be allowed. Had the same people been voting for member of Parliament, it would have been allowed.

The vote in British Columbia looks as though it would be very uncertain and small either way. Instead of 2,000 in favor of prohibition, as has been reckoned, the vote at present stands: New Westminster, for prohibition, 315; Victoria and Vancouver, against, 882. Majority against 67. It is therefore very unlikely that anything like 2,000 majority for will be finally scored.

In the Territories the majority may prove a little larger in favor of prohibition than was anticipated. The returns from several Quebec constituencies are very incomplete.

The Alliance Goes to Ottawa.

The Government will receive the Temperance Alliance deputation respecting the plebiscite vote on Thursday next at 8 o'clock.

STREET CARS TIED UP.

An Attempt to Run the Cars at London on Friday Had to Be Abandoned—Position of Affairs.

London, Oct. 29.—Up till noon yesterday not a car had left the barns of the Street Railway Company.

All trains are being watched for men coming to take the places of strikers.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon the Street Railway Company started four cars from the barns, the first to run since the strike began Thursday afternoon. At the corner of Dundas and Richmond streets a large crowd had gathered, and the men on board the cars were jeered and hooted at. The demonstration soon took on a more serious form, and eggs were very freely used, Manager Carr being one of the principal sufferers. Not a whole pane of glass was left in the cars and they were headed for the barn again. No further attempt has since been made to take them out.

A mass meeting of those in sympathy with the strikers was held last night. Exciting things are expected to happen to-day, as the Mayor has notified the company that they must keep their cars running. This action will precipitate matters, especially if the company try to run their cars with non-residents in charge, which is especially prohibited by bylaws. The strikers believe this will do much to win the day for them if the authorities enforce the bylaw.

Much of the egg throwing and damage done to cars was the work of sympathizers. The Street Railway Company's officials say they are determined to fight the matter out and have secured enough men to operate their cars.

A COLEMAN CITIZEN

Discovers the Marvellous Power of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mr. Joseph Taylor, Car Inspector, Tells his Story—Kidney Diseases Tortured him for Twelve Months—Then Dodd's Kidney Pills were Tried and Cured Him.

Coleman, Ont., Oct. 28.—Few residents of this place are as widely-known, or more highly respected, than is Mr. Joseph Taylor, resident at No. 16 Luttrell ave. Mr. Taylor is a car inspector, in the service of the G. T. R., and his duties oblige him to be out in all kinds of weather.

The nature of his work, and the exposure consequent upon it, resulted in a very severe attack of Kidney Disease.

This distressing and painful complaint was not easily got rid of. For twelve months Mr. Taylor suffered intensely from it. He was forced to quit work, and the medical treatment he received did him not the slightest good.

He was in a very serious condition. Health and life were at stake, and both depended on his being able to find a medicine that would restore his Kidneys to strength and vigour.

Let Mr. Taylor take up the story at this stage. He says: "A friend told me of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and said they would cure me. I gave them a trial and found his words to be true. One box gave me great relief—two boxes cured me completely. I am now strong and well, and never have a trace of Kidney trouble."

This is one more striking proof of the marvellous power of Dodd's Kidney Pills, in all cases of Kidney Disease.

No uncertainty troubles the patient after he begins to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. The first few doses convince him that they will cure him, and his recovery is rapid, thorough and permanent.

Dodd's Kidney Pills cost fifty cents a box, six boxes $2.50. All druggists sell them.

In the Early Morning.

In the early morning, as soon as you awake to consciousness, remember that you are in the very presence chamber of God, who has been watching beside you through the long, dark hours; look up into His face and thank Him. Consecrate to Him those first few moments before you leave your couch. Look on toward the coming day, through the golden haze of the light that streams from the angel of His presence. You can forecast very largely what your difficulties are likely to be, the quarters from which you may be attacked, the burdens that may need carrying. Take care not to view any of these apart from God. Be sure that He will be between you and them, as the ship is between the traveler and the ocean, be it fair or stormy.—Rev. F. B. Meyer.

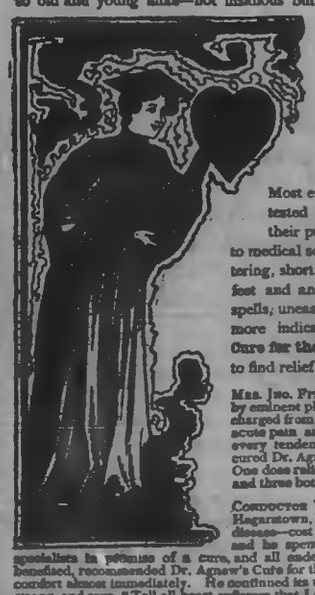
"She Carries Her Heart on Her Sleeve"

What a boon to many a man or woman if this were literally so—How many spirits are broken because this particular organ is shackled by disease—and yet how many times has Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart brushed against the grim reaper and robbed him of his victim.

Diseases of the heart are by far the most treacherous of ailments which afflict humanity—ruthless to old and young alike—not insidious but violent, for when the heart fails the whole system suffers violence. Discussing causes here will not console the suffering one. The one great yearn of the heart-sickened patient is how to get relief and a cure. Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart stands pre-eminently to-day as the star of hope to sufferers from heart trouble, and so far past the experimental period that thousands to-day proclaim, in no uncertain sound, the belief that were it not for this great remedy they world have long ago passed into the great beyond.



Most eminent doctors, whom heart cases have baffled, have tested Dr. Agnew's claims, and to-day they prescribe it in their practice as the quickest and safest heart remedy known to medical science. What are the symptoms? Palpitation, fluttering, shortness of breath, weak and irregular pulse, swelling of feet and ankles, pain in the left side, chilly sensations, fainting spells, uneasiness in sleeping, dropsical tendency and as many more indications that the heart is deranged. Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart is a heart specific; and no case too acute to find relief from it inside of thirty minutes—a powerful cure.

MRS. JNO. FITZPATRICK, of Gananoque, Ont., after having been treated by eminent physicians for heart disease of five years' standing, was discharged from the hospital as a hopeless incurable. She suffered from acute pain and palpitation, her feet and ankles swollen, and there was every tendency to the dropsical form of heart disease, but the lady procured Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart as she declared, as a last hope. One dose relieved her of a very acute spasm in less than thirty minutes, and three bottles cured her—not a symptom of the trouble remaining CONDUCTOR WILLIAM G. LUCAS, of the N. & W.R.R., and living at Hagerstown, Md., suffered for years with acute valvular form of heart disease—cost him many a "lay off" from his daily duties on the road, and he spent a small fortune in remedies and treating with heart specialists in pursuit of a cure, and all ended in disappointment, until a good friend, who had been benefited, recommended Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart. He tried it, and found it gave him relief and comfort almost immediately. He continued its use until a few bottles were taken, and to-day he's well and strong, and says, "Tell all heart sufferers that I can highly recommend this great remedy."

DR. AGNEW'S OINTMENT cures eczema, salt rheum, tetter, scald head and all itching skin diseases cures piles in three to five nights. 35 cents.
DR. AGNEW'S CATARRHAL POWDER relieves cold in the head or hay fever in ten minutes—will cure most stubborn and long standing catarrh cases quickly and permanently.
DR. AGNEW'S LIVER PILLS cure constipation, biliousness, sick headache, torpid liver—clear the skin. 40 doses, 25 cents.

A Slave to Chronic Catarrh For Years—Remedies Failed—Specialists Failed—Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder (Simplest of all) Cured Him.

D. T. Sample, President of Sample's Instalment Company, Washington, Pa., writes: "For years I was afflicted with chronic catarrh. Remedies and treatment by specialists only gave me temporary relief until I was induced to use Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder. It has proved the one good thing in my case. In almost an instant after I had made the first application I had relief, and a little perseverance in its use entirely rid me of this offensive malady. I would be glad to personally recommend it to any and everybody." Sold by H. S. Macdonald.

THE DREYFUS TRIAL.

M. Bard Concluded His Report and Mme. Dreyfus' Counsel Followed.

Paris, Oct. 29.—At yesterday's session of the Court of Cassation in the Palace of Justice, M. Bard, the reporter, concluded his report of the Dreyfus case, the first part of which was presented on Thursday. He said that the court should make every investigation necessary to enlighten them and place the whole truth in evidence. It was for the court, M. Bard added, to decide what remained to be done. The task was a delicate one, but that was no motive to avoid it. He concluded with remarking: "You have a great duty to fulfill. Do what your consciences dictate."

M. Menard, counsel for Mme. Dreyfus, followed. He urged that an investigation be ordered concerning the divergency of the testimony of the expert who examined the bordereau in 1894 and 1897, and also to ascertain whether secret documents were communicated to the members of the court-martial.

The court was less crowded than the first day, but the same stringent precautions were taken. There was no excitement outside the Palace of Justice. Only a few people assembled about the building, and the streets in the neighborhood presented their every-day appearance.

Manau Lays Down the Law.

The public prosecutor, M. Manan, followed M. Bard. Addressing the judges, he said: "Nobody can now take the Dreyfus affair out of your hands. Nor can you relinquish it without dereliction of duty. Your decision must constitute for everybody the very expression of truth and justice. Revise the trial then, gentlemen, or at least prepare the road for its revision."

M. Manan then declared the court could not annul the sentence imposed upon Dreyfus without a re-trial of the prisoner. He added:

"You must fix the responsibility if Dreyfus is innocent, the culprit must not go unpunished."

The public prosecutor, continuing, proceeded to argue on the same lines as M. Bard, the reporter of the case, urging a revision of the trial and dwelling upon the fallibility of the writing experts. He also suggested that Major Esterhazy should testify on the subject of the bordereau, saying: "He can admit its authorship with impunity, since a court-martial has acquitted him of being the author of it. But what a service he has rendered to the country in confessing that he is its author, and what a service he will render to unhappy Dreyfus!"

A Denial From Gen. Gonzo.

At the close of the proceedings, M. Bard read a letter from General Gonzo to the President of the Court of Cassation, in which the General said: "I have just heard of a memorandum introduced in court yesterday, in which Picquart accused me of a dishonorable action. I have never previously heard of this memorandum and I wish to deny most formally Picquart's allegations. I think my word is of greater value than that of a man imprisoned on the suspicion of forgery."

The reading of the last statement called forth loud protests in court.

The reporter added that, as Colonel Picquart's memorandum was publicly read, it was only justice to read General Gonzo's denial.

The president of the court ordered that the General's letter be added to the documents in the case, and the court adjourned.

M. Manan concluded with denouncing "the villainous attacks on the partisans of revision," and made a strong plea that the court be not influenced by outside pressure, but that it decide in favor of a revision of the case and the immediate provisional liberation of Dreyfus.

UPPER CANADA COLLEGE

In Its Commercial Aspect Burned in Toronto Early Friday Morning—Loss to Company and Government.

Toronto, Oct. 29.—Between 4 and 5 o'clock yesterday morning fire broke out in the premises occupied by the Macdonald Manufacturing Company, at the northwest corner of King and Simcoe streets, the old Upper Canada College buildings. The company are manufacturers of all kinds of tinware, and the machinery they use is costly. To this machinery great damage was done. The fire started in the varnishing room on the northeast corner of the ground floor, and, quickly spreading, reached the roof. In less than an hour the roof was utterly destroyed and fell in. The floors of the two upper flats were burned through in places, and through the apertures thus caused, heavy machinery crashed into the rooms below, adding to the ruin already being caused by fire, smoke and water. Through the fire 114 employes are thrown out of work, but the company will rebuild as soon as possible.

The building occupied by the company belonged to the Ontario Government, and was formerly the Upper Canada College. The part of the building which suffered through the fire was the central portion, which was formerly the college building property, the wings to east and west having been used as masters' residences, etc. The building was insured for $10,000, and the Macdonald Company's total loss will be $25,000, covered by insurance.

All day yesterday a steady stream of citizens looked on the ruins of the old Upper Canada College building, in which so many of Canada's prominent men received their preliminary education.

Origin of the Building.

Upper Canada College and Royal Grammar School, as it was originally called, was erected in 1829, to meet a provincial want in higher education, and owes its establishment largely to Sir John Colborne, Governor of Upper Canada. A grant of land from the Crown, consisting of 66,000 acres, was set apart for its support, and the management, from its foundation until March, 1833, was under the control of its own board of directors and trustees, when it was transferred to the council of King's College, and so remained till 1850, and then was declared an appendage of the university. By the Act of 1853, a board of management, of five members, was entrusted with the administration of its financial affairs. In 1876 improvements and additions were made, at a cost of $50,000. The original building was of plain red brick, without any pretensions to architectural effect, in front of which was afterwards erected an imposing addition, with a large French roof. In 1896, it having been found that the college had outgrown its site, it was removed to its present location in Deer Prak. The ten acres about the old college buildings had grown to be very valuable property, and the change was estimated to give the university upwards of $800,000, after equipping and endowing the new college.

This Explains the Milk in the Cocoanut!

Routleys Sensational Sale of Woollen Hosiery and Ladies' Undervests.

This unparalleled Sale has been the talk of the town for the past week, and the wonder has been how the goods are sold so cheap.

In answer to many enquiries, we may explain that this stock was hypothecated to protect a liability of the manufacturer, and placed in our hands to sell regardless of original cost. That accounts for the milk in the cocoanut. We have already sold hundreds of dollars' worth, but there is still hundreds of dollars' worth left. As we are not in the Hosiery business to stay, we will continue to offer the goods at about THE COST OF THE WOOL, until every vestige is cleared out. A few prices will serve to show how much we are in earnest:—

ASTHMA

Clarke's Kola Compound Cures the Incipient and Gives Quick Relief to the Most Distressing and Long-standing Cases—It Cures Permanently.

James Gordon Bennett of The New York Herald, sent Henry M. Stanley to Africa in search of Dr. Livingstone, and little he thought that in searching for the lost explorer he would find so valuable a medical herb as the Kola plant and prove himself a benefactor to asthma sufferers because that in this flower of the jungle were the incredients that would heal a disease that had baffled medical science for ages. True, the savages knew of its healing power, but indirectly this great journalist was the means of the civilized world having the benefit of it. Here's a sentence from the testimony of R. D. Pitt, Esq., of Kamloops, B.C.:—I suffered thirty-five years from asthma. Physicians treated and helped me temporarily, but said that I would always be afflicted. I tried Clarke's Kola Compound and got great relief, almost instantly. Three bottles have completely cured me. Sold by Ormond & Walsh at two dollars per bottle; three bottles with cure guaranteed, for five dollars. Griffiths & Macpherson Co., 121 Church street, Toronto, or Vancouver, B.C.

Mr. E. B. Loucks, hardware merchant, Kingston, formerly of Peterborough, met with a painful exerience yesterday afternoon. One of his employees filled the shop stove, a Fire King, with wood, and added a quantity of coal oil. Mr. Loucks, not not knowing this, put his hand in to apply a lighted match. Flames immediately flared up, burning his hand and arm and blistering the skin. The burns were dressed by a physican, and Mr. Loucks now carries his arm in a sling.

VICTORIA MUSEUM OPEN TO THE PUBLIC.

FROM TWO UNTIL FIVE O'CLOCK EVERY AFTERNOON NEXT WEEK.

It Will Then be Closed for the Winter, to Re-open Permanently in the Following April—Mention of Some of the Curios.

On Monday afternoon next the Victoria Museum will be thrown open to the public for the week from ten until five o'clock p. m. The curios which have been contributed during the last few months are of a character which will prove most interesting and it is expected that the apartments at Inverlea will be crowded every afternoon. The Town and County Historical Society have been working during the summer quietly, but evidently most most effectively and the result of their efforts will be apparent next week to the many visitors who will take advantage of the opportunity to inspect the museum during the week before it is closed up for the winter months.

The work of classifying the contributions has fallen altogether on the shoulders of the indefatigable secretary, Mr. T. A. S. Hay, and that he is the right man in the right place is amply proven by an inspection of the exhibits.

The museum occupies the two front rooms and the large hall on the ground floor of Inverlea House, as well as the hall and two similar rooms upstairs.

In the hall, on entering, are found a number of cases of birds and also several valuable cabinets and curios. The room to the left is devoted to Indian curios, old documents and a collection of antique firearms. To the right is the lecture room, and in it there are also to be found collections of minerals and cases of stuffed birds and animals. The rooms upstairs are devoted almost exclusively to the birds and animals purchased from Mr. E. Eicome.

All the articles which have been contributed have been neatly arranged in cabinets or cases. Rev. Mr. Clement's gift of nine cases of handsomely mounted birds are distributed through the halls and in the two upper rooms, as is the collection of Canadian animals and birds purchased by the society from Mr. Eicome.

Last evening a valuable addition to the Museum was received from Mr. Harry Rush in the shape of a massive book printed sometime in the sixteenth century, and entitled "The First Historie of Plants." The volume is an heirloom, and is well worth studying. Unfortunately the title page has been lost.

One of the very first things which strike the view on entering is the old canoe presented by Mr. George Dunsford, which is supposed to be the first constructed in Peterborough. It is in a remarkably good state of preservation. Across the hall from it is another old relic—the headlight of the first locomotive running in Canada, which was fully described some months ago.

Mr. J. M. Irwin's contribution to the museum has been amongst the most valuable received. The magnificent Golden Eagle, which adorns one corner of the hall, came from him, as well as an enormous buffalo's skull and horns, a cabinet of minerals and curios, a painting of what is considered the best preserved specimen of Indian pottery, now in the Canadian Institute, a ship's barometer mounted on gambles, a deer's head, a specimen of beaver cutting and a stake from a fish weir made in Lake Simcoe in 1615, at the time Champlain camped there. The stake is in a remarkably fine state of preservation, although not taken from the water till 1891.

A fine specimen of Canada's emblem—the beaver, has been contributed by Mr. R. C. Brown, now of Dauphin, Man. Mr. J. L. Aunger's large collection of minerals from Blairton has been awarded a prominent position. Other fine collections have been presented by Mr. J. B. McWilliams, and by Mr. Geo. A. Stewart, of Calgary. The Board of Trade collection of iron ores of the district is interesting, as are the limestone fossils from the Trenton formation, obtained along the line of the Trent Valley Canal. The latter occupy two cases, the contents of which will be classified by Mr. Ami, of the Geological Department, who is coming up from Ottawa in the course of a few weeks.

A case of odds and ends in the hall will hold the attention for some time. Amongst its contents are a sword worn at the battle of Waterloo by the grandfather of Mr. E. Courtney. A five shilling tender dated 1760, and issued in the reign of George II, for the Province of Pennsylvania, is also presented by Mr. Courtney. Mr. D. Spence sends in a pair of pocket scales of 1830, and Mr. W. Salisbury has contributed a South Sea Islander's knife, set with shark's teeth. Mr. Warren Trickey has a set of war utensils including a bone charger, used in the war of 1812, a powder horn and a pouch for buck shot, as well as a buckskin purse and a set of old trawling hooks; an Abeyinnian dagger and sheath by Victor Ferguson; two side bolts and a set screw from the "Rocket," Stevenson's first locomotive, which was used on the Stockton & Darlington road in England in 1829, by W. L. Innes; a piece of oak from Shakspeare's old home at Stratford on Avon, by K. Courtney; Chinese opium smoking apparatus, by Mr. J. M. Irwin; old revolver by W. Butler; cricket ball used in a match in 1863 between Upper Canada College and the Province of Upper Canada, also the score, by Kivas Tully; drill used in the early operations on the Blairton mines and a lumberman's marking hammer of 1863 by Warren Trickey; sword of a sword fish, by T. A. S. Hay; piece of the car in which Col. Bliss was killed in the Ashtabula disaster, also Waterloo bayonet, by J. B. McWilliams; a rivet from the Great Eastern, the largest steamer which ever crossed the Atlantic, by J. H. Roper. This collection of odds and ends occupies two cases which are located on the right hand side of the hall.

In the room to the left is a life-size bust of the late Sir John A. Macdonald, presented by Mr. James Stevenson. A long table is occupied by a collection of thirty-two maps from the Geological Survey Department. On the wall hangs Mr. E. Courtney's famous picture of Shakspere's birthplace made in inlaid wook, and composed of over 2,000 pieces. Amongst other things in the room are a tickes of admission to the Queen's Coronation in 1837, by H. L. Stewart; a sketch of the original Auburn House built in 1822, by Mrs. Dunlop, also a sketch of St. John's church in 1835; a rattlesnake, 33 inches long, killed in Muskoka by T. A. Hay, and birds' nests in the interior of hollow trees, by E. Eloome.

A large cabinet contains a fine collection of Esquimax clothing gorgeously trimmed with quills and beads, a cup used at the feast in connection with the Czar's coronation, which was followed by a panic and stampede, resulting in the death of thousands; and Indian axe of superfine rock and a piece of lava with a French coin embedded from Vesuvius. This latter collection was the gift of Mrs. (Hon.) Hamilton.

The room to the left is devoted largely to cabinets of minerals, Indian relics, etc. There is a large collection of Indian stone axes, arrowheads and chisels presented by Mr. J. H. Barnham, two copper spearheads by Mr. McManus, of Douro, and one by Mr. Sullivan, of the same township; stone axes and implements by Chief Paudash's son, Hiawatha; a very perfect spearhead in stone by Miss Jane Brown; a collection of 14 arrowheads and flints by Mrs. Catharine Parr Traill; collection of Indian stone axes, chisels, pottery and pipes by George A. Stewart; stone implements, by Warren Trickey; pottery and implements, by A. F. Choate, Warsaw; iron tomahawks, by Warren Trickey, T. A. S. Hay and John Humphries; collection of pottery, flints, axes and other relics, by Victor Ferguson; Sioux chief's pipe, collection of pipes, pottery, stone implements and iron tomahawks by Alex. Brown, of Burleigh.

In a case of coins, medals, etc., Mr. T. A. S. Hay's contribution occupies a prominent place. Amongst the collection are some fine shilling debentures of the Peterborough Court House.

Mrs. R. S. Davidson has presented a number of curios, amongst them being a model of a Cheyune Indian's tepee, a photo of the laying of the corner-stone of the market building, also of the County Council excursion in 1892; a lodge of the G. A. R. Encampment in Oklahoma in 1892; an "annual summary" book and a collection of mineral specimens from Oklahoma, California and Lake Superior.

Mrs. Dunlop presents a photo of the old wooden bridge, which was replaced by the present iron structure spanning the Otonabee at Hunter street; photo of the Court House in 1860, by R. M. Roy; photo of the presentation of a sword to Col. Fitzgibbon for bravery in the War of 1812, by Mary Agnes Fitzgibbon; bonnet worn by woman of Wurtemberg in 1848, by Miss Heuback; model of bell in Milford church, Northumberland, England, of great antiquity and wonderful proportions, by David Spence; horse pistol from Waterloo, by E. Green, also tower musket and bayonet; a revolver of 1863, by J. D. Collins; collection of old arms, including firearms, swords, daggers, helmets, trumpets, ghoorkas, talwars, horse pistols, boomerangs, bolsters, horse bowings, etc., by Lieut.-Col. H. Rogers.

The contributions in the line of old documents, etc., are vast and of most interesting character, and a full list of the same will appear in the new catalogue.

WEDDING BELLS.

Marriage of Miss Margaret Dawson and Mr. W. S. Rutherford on Wednesday Evening.

Over a hundred guests assembled on Wednesday evening last at the beautiful residence of Mr. Nicoll Dawson in South Monaghan, the occasion being the marriage of his daughter Margaret to Mr. W. S. Rutherford of the same township.

Rev. Mr. McIntosh of the Centreville Presbyterian church, performed the ceremony in the drawing room, which was elaborately decorated with flowers for the occasion. As the knot was being tied the young couple stood beneath a great wreath and floral bell.

The bride looked most charming in a gown of cream cashmere, and wore the conventional veil caught up by a spray of orange blossoms. She carried a handsome shower bouquet of Mareebal Neil roses. She was assisted by Miss Lottie Larmour of Cavan, who was similarly gowned, and also carried a beautiful bouquet.

The groomsman was Mr. Hilliard Dawson.

After partaking of an sumptuous dejeuner an informal reception was held, after which Mr. and Mrs. Rutherford repaired to their future residence, being a farm in the immediate vicinity given the groom by his father recently.

A CAVAN WEDDING.

Celebration of the Nuptials of Miss Emma McBain and Mr. William Thompson on Tuesday.

On Tuesday, Oct. 25th, the residence of Mr. George McBain, Cavan, was the scene of a very happy wedding, when his daughter, Emma Gertrude, was married to Mr. Wm. Thompson of Toronto.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. H. Coon of Cavanville, assisted by Rev. Jos. Kilgour of Peterborough.

The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Ida Lowes, and the groom by Mr. Geo. C. McBain, brother of the bride.

The bridal party stood during the ceremony under a large floral bell, on each side of which hung a golden ring of yellow chrysanthemums.

Miss McBain was married in a travelling suit of Cuban blue costume cloth. She carried an exquisite shower bouquet of white bridal roses, the bridesmaid carrying a cluster of pink ones.

After the ceremony and ensuing congratulations a sumptuous dejeuner was served. The happy couple left by the 5.30 train for their home in Toronto.

FOR THE MEN.

Mr. Sheriff Hall will give an address to men on Sunday at 4.15 p.m. at the Y.M.C.A. Subject, "The young man's thoughts." Young men should not fail to hear this.

Mr. James McLeod will lead the young men's meeting to-night from 8 to 9 o'clock. The subject is an interesting and important one.

A CIRCULAR

To all Churchmen in the Diocese of Toronto.

The appended circular has just been issued by a committee composed of Messrs. F. E. Hodgins, N. Ferrar Davidson, W. D. Gwynne, Rev. T. C. S. Macklem and Rev. Herbert Symonds. It speaks for itself:

MOTTO.

"Speak unto the Children of Israel that they go forward."—Exodus xiv. 15.

The interests of the Church of England in the Diocese of Toronto, in the opinion of many of the Clergy and Laity, call for an active and energetic forward movement. An organization of churchmen of the Diocese, growing out of a conviction shared by a little members that they can render the church good service at the present time by initiating and promoting such a movement, has lately been formed. The considerations leading to this conviction may be briefly formulated as follows:

1. Through lack of frequent study and discussion, apart from the sessions of the Synod, of the affairs of the Diocese and the special circumstances from time to time arising, favourable opportunities of initiating and promoting beneficial movements are often lost. A natural result, not frequently experienced, of such inaction as the opportune moment, is hasty and ill-advised action later on when a crisis has developed.

2. The Diocese is not alive to its Missionary responsibilities. Extension in the work is either ignored or regarded as impracticable; and faithful Missionaries now in the field are often left to labour under circumstances of great discouragement without that sympathetic co-operation in their behalf, on the part of their fellow churchmen in more settled districts, to which they are entitled.

3. At the sessions of the Synod many measures are accepted or rejected without due consideration, and important Committees are elected without regard, seemingly, in many instances, to special fitness in the men elected for the particular work of the Committees on which they are to serve. It would even seem that men are sometimes elected mainly on the qualification that their theological views accord with those of their electors. The only remedy appears to be a fuller consideration of all the business of the Synod, including the personnel of the Committees, previous to the sessions of the Synod, together with some organized co-operation for giving effect as far as possible, to the conclusions arrived at.

4. The effective power of the Laity might be enlarged and their attendance at the Synod increased, if a greater number of capable laymen in the country, town and city parishes, were led to feel that their real participation in the affairs of the Diocese is urgently needed and earnestly desired. The result might well be a strengthening of Church life in every parish co-operating to this end, and the beneficial effect would be felt throughout the Diocese in the wider dissemination of intelligent interest in its affairs.

In organizing for the promotion of objects calculated to remedy these evils, we are actuated by the belief that the Holy Spirit rules and guides the Church to-day as in the past, and it is in humble and heartfelt trust that He will direct our path that we venture to set forth the following as the main objects of the organization:

OBJECTS.

1. To initiate and develop movements tending to advance Church life in the Diocese, whenever the circumstances of the times seem specially to call for progressive action.

2. To stimulate and maintain increased interest in the Missionary Work of the Diocese, and to afford encouragement and support to the Missionaries, especially those labouring in the more remote parts of the Diocese.

3. To give careful consideration, previous to each session of the Synod, to all measures of importance coming before the Synod, with a view to effective co-operation in regard to such measures generally, and specifically in endeavouring to elect upon the Standing and other Committees, men specially qualified for the work of the committees to which they are elected, without having regard to their theological views.

4. To take steps for securing the best possible representation of the Laity in the Synod, and also the fullest possible attendance of the elected representatives throughout the sessions of the Synod.

Matters of doctrine shall not be deemed to be within the purview of this organization.

NOTE.

Rev. T. C. S. Macklem will conduct the services in St. John's church to-morrow.

Lieut. Cockburn, of Lakefield, has Asked to be Sent.

Lieut. Ronald Cockburn, of the 3rd Dragoons, Peterborough, says the Kingston Whig, a very capable officer, has been here for several days. He holds fine certificates, and had hoped to secure a place on the permanent forces of Canada, but has so far failed. He applied to the British Government; his application was favourably regarded by the war office, and it is almost settled that the lieutenant will leave for the east coast of Africa and will be stationed at Uganada.

TWIN TORTURERS!

Lumbago and Rheumatism made Harmless by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Lumbago and Rheumatism cause endless pain and suffering. Every man and woman who runs chances of getting wet, or catching cold, is liable to suffer from one or both. Our hospitals are full of sufferers from these diseases; none are more painful. Every nerve is on fire; every joint is a centre of agony; every muscle an area of torture. To move hand or foot makes the victim shriek with agony.

Rheumatism makes more cripples than all the railroad accidents that ever happened. Twisted, mis-shapen caricatures of humanity, who cannot walk without misery, are to be seen every day. The kidneys are to blame. If they are healthy you needn't fear Rheumatism or Lumbago. Dodd's Kidney Pills keep the kidneys healthy and cure Rheumatism and Lumbago.

Dodd's Kidney Pills ALWAYS CURE.

GODERICH SHOOTING TRAGEDY.

Inquest Opened and Some Important Testimony Given.

Goderich, Ont., Oct. 28.—In the Cox-Beatty shooting case in Goderich Township an inquest was opened yesterday afternoon by Coroner Holmes. The prisoner was present.

Michael Kennedy, who worked for Mr. Thompson, Beatty's nearest neighbor, was the first witness called. He told of Cox coming and telling him that he had shot Beatty and asked him to go and call another man. This he did and then went to Beatty's house, where he saw the dead body in the orchard; he also gave evidence respecting the character of the prisoner.

The deceased's wife, Mrs. Euphemia Beatty, the next witness sworn, said that there had been trouble between her father's family and her husband since last Sentember. Her husband had said to her: "I have Lily coaxed to come and live with us." (Lily is her youngest sister.) She told him it was a wrong thing for him to take a girl away from her home, but he laughed. He was to take Lily away at night, as her people did not know.

He went that Saturday night and came back with Lily. Thomas had come for her to go home, but she would not go.

Her father had come yesterday morning at 10 o'clock or a little after, and she warned him that Fred. said he would have his heart's blood. He wanted Lily's clothes, but she was afraid to give them, and he went to see Fred. about it. Fred. was picking apples, and when her father was near him he made a spring, and said to him with an oath that he would have his heart's blood before he got out of the orchard. She saw Fred. raise his hand to strike her father, who backed away, but Fred. followed him and struck at him again. She then heard father speak to him. Fred.'s hands were near her father when the shot was fired, and then Fred. fell. Her father stood there, and she said: "It is too bad, Fred.; you brought this on yourself." Her father then went away, and came back with Thompson.

Miss Lily Cox said, when sworn, that she was forbidden to go with Fred., and told him so. He said he would stop drinking if she would go and live with him. He had been with her a good deal. He said if Euphemia was gone he would marry her. He threatened to thrash her father if he came near her place. She was always treated kindly at home.

As it was nearly 6 o'clock the inquest was adjourned until to-day at Goderich.

"JUST TO SEE THE REELS COME,"

Was the Reason Given by Three Boys For Firing Houses in Toronto.

Toronto, Oct. 28.—During the past month several fires have taken place in the west end and their origin has been a mystery. Late on Wednesday night Detective Verney arrested a 15-year-old lad named Gregory Higgins of Lisgar street. P. C. Twigg arrested a 17 year-old lad, William Freeman of Gladstone avenue, and P. C. Duncan arrested Daniel Daniels of Northcote avenue. The charge laid against each of the boys was arson, and they made a confession to Crown Attorney Curry yesterday morning.

Questioned by the Magistrate yesterday in the Police Court as to why they had set fire to the buildings, one of the prisoners replied, "We just wanted to see the reels come." Higgins, the youngest lad, was sent to the Penetanguishene Reformatory for three years, and Freeman and Daniels were committed to the Kingston Penitentiary for five years.

And he invariably answers: Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me, when other earthly means had failed. They are the only medicine on earth that can cure Diabetes, and they do it every time."

If Dodd's Kidney Pills cured Mr. Meikle they will cure you. Try them.

THE MISSING LINK.

An Amusing Scene in a Monkey Cage Calculated to Make One Think Things.

There was an exciting time among the monkeys out at the Zoological Garden yesterday, says the Philadelphia Enquirer. Since the birth of the cunning little one several days ago great consternation has prevailed in the family. It seems to be not only the idol of its fond parent, but also the joy and pride of the entire group. Different ones share in fondling and coddling it, and the quarrels and knock-downs which have occurred in the efforts of the other monkeys to get possession of it have produced some remarkably ludicrous scenes.

One of these funny incidents took place early yesterday. Just as he was about rounding the garden on the last patrol of his beat Watchman Shuman had his attention directed to the monkey-house by a terrific commotion. So great and unusual was the uproar that the man was startled. Hastening in as fast as his feet would carry him he found the army of monkeys formed in a circle around one of their number, chattering and shrieking, while they clambered over one another, rolled about the floor, and indulged in other strange and unaccountable antics. If Bedlam had been turned loose in the big cage the confusion could not have been more, the uproar greater or the scene more ludicrous.

For several moments the watchman stood an amused spectator, astonished and bewildered at the strange performance, when suddenly one of the larger of the cunning creatures advanced to the monkey in the center. Seizing the infant, which, up to this time was not observed by the man, the large monkey gave a big leap and made off with it. Up the side of the cage he ran like a squirrel, holding the baby in one arm and climbing with the other, while fifty more monkeys, with lungs like brass tea kettles, followed in hot pursuit with the frenzied mother, all screaming, chattering or shrieking to the full extent of their vocal capacity. Around and around the kidnapper, who seemed to be the most agile and fleetest on foot of the lot, ran, holding his infant charge secure and protecting it from harm. Meanwhile the excitement and confusion appeared, if possible, to increase. Instead of turning and heading him off, the foolish animals continued to chase him from the rear, frequently falling over one another in their precitate rush to recover the baby.

In this manner they ran around for several moments. The watchman, bewildered as well as amused at their capers, stood by, enjoying the funny scene, at a loss to know what to do. Finally the big, old monkey which had stolen the precious infant, suddenly turned into the center of the cage to where the mother sat when he grabbed it from her arms. Stopping abruptly, he seemed to bid defiance to the pursuers, and while they, evidently seized with a fear to approach, collected about him in a circle and chattered as they had done about the mother, he held it tenderly to his besom in one arm and stroked its little body affectionately with the other. Thus caressing it for a moment he handed it back to its glad mother, and there was joy through the whole family.

As a result of this incident, Lady Jane and her baby, Rosina, were transfered later in the day by Headkeeper Byrne to a special cage, where there are only three or four other monkeys. The baby was christened Rosina by an admirer of Rosina Vokes, the dramatic star.

"Ever since this young one was born, a few days ago, there has been the greatest time among the monkeys," said Keeper Byrne. "They all seem to be just as thoroughly in love with the little creature as ever a family of girls were with an infant brother. The mother appears to realize that they regard it with affection and she has undertaken to cultivate this excellent feeling by loaning it out to others to nurse. When she loans it there is trouble getting it back because they pass it from one to another. It is a very hardy little creature and seems to stand an amazing amount of handling."

I can recommend it as a valuable remedy and believe it to be the best nerve and stomach tonic in the world." Sold by H. S. Macdonald.

The beautiful pendent flowers of enormous size are produced in wonderful profusion.

WRITTEN BY A CANADIAN.

Joseph Scriven of Port Hope Author of "What a Friend We Have in Jesus."

It may not be generally known that the author of that beautiful and popular hymn, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," was a fellow-citizen, who lived about ten miles north of Port Hope. His name was Joseph Scriven. In an old issue of the Port Hope Guide, containing some correspondence and editorial statements in reference to the matter, we learn that Joseph Scriven was an Irishman, a graduate of Trinity College, Dublin; that he came of an excellent family and that he was a man of deep piety. Further, we learn that "he came to Canada when a young man, as the private tutor in a gentleman's family, in the vicinity of Rice Lake. He afterwards made his home at Mr. Sackville's, township of Hamilton. Old Mrs Sackville, who is now living, has the original copy of the hymn, in the author's own handwriting, a copy of which he sent at the same time to his mother, then living in the city of Dublin, where it first got into print." He afterwards published a collection of hymns, but his extreme modesty caused him not to include in it "What a Friend We Have in Jesus." Before his death, in 1868, there were some who said that Dr. Horatius Bonar was the author, but on being questioned, Mr. Scriven admitted that the hymn was his own composition. It is said of him that he preached without salary, and that on the departure of the Midland Battalion of troops to aid in suppressing the Riel Rebellion, he preached a farewell sermon to them from the depot platform. He used to pay frequent visits to the sick, and whenever asked for advice would say, "Take it to the Lord in prayer."—Christian Guardian.

Theodore Roosevelt.

There can be no doubt that Theodore Roosevelt with his ranch history—his warning to Yale students to beware of philanthropists—his praise of college football fights—and his regiment of cow punchers and shooters with fighting qualities and reputations very similar to his own, has become a prominent figure in his political party.

But to our mind, when compared with Washington, Lincoln, Grant and Sherman, who said (what will go down through all history), "War is Hell," he seems only an honest bulldog—with very confused ideas of civilization, humanity and true patriotism, and very different from those noble Saint Bernards whose object is to save life, not to destroy it.—George T. Angell, in Our Dumb Animals.

More Indians With Guns.

Baker City, Oregon, Oct. 28.—Word has been received here from Canon City of a shooting affray in which Indians shot and seriously wounded Dave Cuttings. The reiskins then went to the home of John High and shot him, but not fatally. The scene of the trouble is on the south fork of John Day river, about 20 miles southwest of Canon City. A well-armed posse from Canon City has taken up the trail, and hard fighting is expected, as the Indians are well armed.

Farmer Dragged to Death.

Napanee, Ont., Oct. 28.—Wilson Burt, a well-to-do farmer, about 40 years old, living nine miles east of here, was accidentally killed yesterday. Mr. Burt was riding one of a span of horses going to work. The horses becoming scared, threw him off. One of his feet became entangled in the harness and the frightened team dragged his body around the fields for over an hour, killing him. The body was bruised very little.

Dr. Ireland Not on the Nobthman.

Montreal, Oct. 28.—A special cable received here states that Dr. Ireland, who disappeared some time ago from Montreal, is not on the passenger list of the steamship Scotsman, as supposed, and that nobody answering his description was on board that vessel when it arrived at the other side.

The Brigade Exonerated.

Chatham, Ont., Oct. 28.—The investigation into the conduct of the fire department at the fire at Tighe's Apple Evaporating Works, on Oct. 21, resulted in the complete exoneration of the fire brigade. The inquiry was held consequent upon a number of ugly rumors which had been in circulation.

A Coal Schooner Lost.

Oswego, N.Y., Oct. 28.—The schooner St. Peter of Toledo, Captain John Griffin, bound from Oswego to Toledo, with 700 tons of coal, foundered off Sodus Point at 11 o'clock this morning. One man saved found lashed to oars is delirious and keeps talking of his wife. It is feared that all the others on board perished.

North American Life ASSURANCE CO.

OFFICE OF W. A. MURRAY & Co., 17 to 27 King St., East, Toronto.

Wm. McCabe, Esq., Managing Director, N. A. L.:

DEAR SIR,—In answer to your request for me to decide upon one of the following options offered me for settlement of my 15-payment Life Investment Policy for $5,000 which has matured this year, viz:

1st to take the value of the Policy in Cash	$5,000.00
2nd, or fully paid-up insurance for	3,280.00
3rd, or take the profits in cash	2,050 25

and continue my policy without further payments being required from me, such policy participating in future profits.

I find it somewhat difficult to make a decision either of the three options being so satisfactory. I am certainly very much pleased with the results offered me, and as I find many others are giving full testimony to the profit-earning power of this company, I do not hesitate to give my endorsement as well, that the North American Life is one of our strongest Canadian institutions to day giving first class results on Investment Policies, on a safe and conservative basis. I find that my policy, which was originally a Life by fifteen payments, has become an Endowment at the end of the Investment period.

When you have a sick horse you do not hitch him up to a sulky and take him to the race track for a little healthful spin. You doctor him. You cannot work or recreate a man into good health any more than you can a horse. Bicycling will make healthy men more healthy; it will make unhealthy men more unhealthy. When a man has been living in too big a hurry, when he has worked himself out, when he has got so that he does not sleep or eat, or rest, and the whole world looks gloomy to him, it is time for him to take medicine. Then, when he is braced up a bit, it is time enough for him to take to the bicycle.

When a man's nerves have an edge on them, so that the least little disappointment rasps on his temper like a file, when his stomach and liver and nerves are deranged, and he is continually gloomy and melancholy, he should take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It makes a man as hungry as a fisherman and sees to it that all the vital elements of the food are absorbed into the blood. It braces up the liver and puts it to work in the right way. It drives all bilious impurities from the system. It fills flesh, nerves, brain cells, sinews and bones with the life-giving elements of rich, red, pure blood. It makes a man healthy and then a bicycle will make him strong. Medicine dealers sell it, and have nothing "just as good."

"Through your skillful treatment I am once more a well man," writes J. N. Arnold, Esq., of Gandy, Logan Co., Neb. "I suffered for years with constipation and torpidity of the liver, irritation of the prostate and inflammation of the bladder. I took six bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Pellets' and am permanently cured. You have been the means of saving my life."

A man or woman who neglects constipation suffers from slow poisoning. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. All medicine dealers sell them. No other pills are "just as good."

SELF-CONQUEST.

The barkeeper's wife has a sealskin coat,
But mine has an old plaid shawl;
She has jewels for finger and ear and throat,
But mine has none at all.
Her only ring I stole one night
And pawned for a poisoned drink!
Oh, mother of mine! Bring back the light
Of youth and the strength to think!

The barkeeper's child has books and toys,—
My children have want and woe;
They never have dwelt in the world of joys
The barkeeper's child may know.
At a tiny doll my baby's eye
Would dance, and her heart would swell,
But I've always taken the price to buy
A cup of the liquid hell!

Oh, the girl I wooed in the good, glad years,—
Whose pure lips touched with mine,—
I swear to banish her bitter tears
In the strength of a love divine;
And hearts so broken and sad to-day,
With new-found bliss shall thrill,
For the devil of rum I'll cast away,—
God helping me, I will!

Pump or Siphon.

A correspondent of The Rural New Yorker illustrates a cheap and ingenious way of getting water into a dwelling house by siphon pressure as follows:

A few weeks ago an inquiry was made as to the advisability of using a ram to convey water to a dwelling house, etc., from a creek, the water in which was at a higher level than the house. In such a case I think a siphon the cheapest device for carrying the water. The pipe can be laid either on the top of the ground or in a ditch dug for it.

All that will be needed is to get the pipe tight and plenty of water at the strainer at the inlet and use a cistern pump at the outlet to prime the siphon. The pipe needn't be over an inch in diameter, though of course its size will depend on the quantity of water needed and supplied. An elbow or T piece can be used on which to screw the pump till the priming has been done.

DYING BY INCHES!

But Dodd's Kidney Pills will Yet Renew Life.

Thousands of persons die in the prime of life because doctors think Bright's Disease and Diabetes incurable. But Dodd's Kidney Pills cure them both. They have cured thousands of cases.

These diseases and other Kidney complaints are as common as ordinary colds. But people don't realize that they are afflicted till the disease has eaten deep into the system. Even then, Dodd's Kidney Pills will positively cure.

Thousands of people are dying on their feet, but do not realize it. They notice one or more of these symptoms: shortness of breath, loss of memory, failing sight, ravenous appetite, pale or reddish urine, with brick-colored deposit, scalding when urinating, constipation, nervousness, pains in the loins. Their only hope is Dodd's Kidney Pills. They won't fail. They never do.

REFRESHING DISHES.

Two Good Sherbets—Peach Mousse—A Dainty Way to Serve a Melon.

Watermelon Sherbet.—Boil a quart of water and a pint of sugar ten minutes, add a teaspoonful of granulated gelatin that has been soaked in one-fourth a cup of cold water and strain through a cheesecloth into the freezer. When cold, add the juice of six fresh lemons, strained, and freeze as usual. When nearly frozen, add a cup of watermelon rind (preserved) cut in very thin, small slices. Preserved citron or the citron of commerce may be used in the same way.

Peach Mousse.—Pare a dozen of mellow peaches, remove the stones and press the pulp through a sieve or ricer. Soak a teaspoonful of granulated gelatin in three tablespoonfuls of cold water, dissolve over hot water and strain into the peach pulp with the juice of half a lemon. Whip a pint of thin cream with a whip churn, drain carefully and set into the refrigerator to become thoroughly chilled and stiffened. Stir the peach mixture in a pan of ice water until it begins to thicken, then fold into it gradually the cream whip, discarding the liquid cream. When evenly mixed, pour into a mold, press the cover tightly over paper and pack in equal parts of ice and salt. Let stand three or four hours before serving.

PEACH MOUSSE.

Melon Half Frozen.—Cut the melon (water, nutmeg or cantaloupe) as for serving at table. Remove the ripe portion and cut into small pieces. Sprinkle with sugar or a few grains of salt at pleasure. Turn into the can of a freezer and pack in equal parts of ice and salt, and without the use of the dasher set aside for an hour or two. Serve in a glass dish, or in the half shell of the melon, chilled, and with the upper edge cut in vandykes. A mat of grape leaves beneath the shell will give the finishing touch to a very pretty and appetizing dish.

Peach Sherbet.—Make a sirup with one quart of water and a pint of sugar. Add one teaspoonful of granulated gelatin, soaked in cold water. Strain and add one quart of mellow peaches, pared and pressed through a potato sieve; one cup of orange juice and the juice of one lemon. Finish as usual.

The foregoing recipes and illustration are selected from some tempting menus presented in the Boston Cooking School Magazine.

Scoring In Athletics.

George Orton, in a letter from England, says that the University of Pennsylvania would have no trouble in defeating Oxford and Cambridge combined in a series of athletic contests. "Very little enthusiasm," writes Orton, "was shown in the match between Cambridge and Oxford, although the attendance was large. I have witnessed much more enthusiasm at Travers island at club races than was displayed here in championships. It may be undignified to show any emotion in a frock coat and silk hat, but I think that the real cause of the subdued applause is traceable to the manner of scoring. Firsts alone count. Oxford won the first five, and then, as far as results were concerned, the match was over; also, as firsts alone scored, as soon as a man saw that he was beaten he either gave it up or eased down. There was none of that keen racing for second, third and fourth places which is to be found at the intercollegiate meeting in America. I think that the American system of scoring could be adopted in England to good purpose."

Has an Interesting Chat about

..Dr. Chase's Ointment..

His suffering from Ulcerating Piles Cured.

He says:—I was troubled with itching piles for five years, and was badly ulcerated. They were very painful, so much so that I could not sleep. I tried almost every remedy heard of, and was recommended to use Dr. Chase's Ointment. I purchased a box, and from the first application got such relief that I was satisfied a cure would be made. I used in all two boxes, and am now completely cured.

Every remedy given by Dr. Chase cost years of study and research, and with an eye single to its adaptation for the ailments for which it was intended. Dr. Chase detested cure-alls, and it has been proven ten thousand times that not one of his formulas leave a bad after-effect. Dr. Chase's Ointment is based on lanoline, and the best physicians prescribe it.

MATRIMONIAL SCHEME.

The Old Beau and the New Woman Have a Little Chat.

They were discussing woman's advancement, matrimony and the favors of fortune.

"Just think of the inequality of things in this world!" said the new woman. "There is that little snip of barely 18 years who is to be married next week who is worth fully $1,000,000. It is unjust."

"I quite agree with you," retorted the old beau courteously. "I have given the matter some thought, and it is apparent to me that things are very unevenly and unsatisfactorily arranged in the matrimonial market. If this young woman of whom you speak is only 18, her dowry should be not to exceed $100,000. It is all wrong giving pretty girls of 18 dowries in excess of that. If one can't get married at 18 with $100,000 safely put away in the bank, why, then there must be something wrong with her."

"And in that case?" suggested the new woman.

"In that case it might be proper to give an additional inducement of $50,000 when she is 19."

"And if she still remains single?"

"Add to it again at 20."

"At 20, then, her dowry would be $700,000?"

"Precisely. And if that were not sufficient to tempt any one, I would begin adding $100,000 a year. In that way we would sort of equalize the chances and make up for deficiencies in beauty and temper."

The new woman laughed.

"But can't you see," she said, "that you would be offering inducements to women to remain single?"

"Certainly," he replied.

"And in that way you would be defeating your own purpose?"

"Not at all," he asserted.

"I don't quite follow your course of reasoning," she said.

"Madam," he answered, "I am surprised that you, who are supposed to have made a study of your own sex, should speak in this way. Such a system would increase woman's opportunities, and I supposed it was a well known fact that all woman wants is an opportunity."

It is not known yet what the grudge was that the old beau had against the new woman, but as she was 85 and single it was evident that his aim was to do more than advance an excellent theory.—Chicago Post.

Severe Discipline.

Editor In Chief (angrily)—What does this mean, sir? The paper will be the laughing stock of the town. Here we print an elaborate criticism of a new play which we stated was presented last night, but which everybody knows was not produced at all. The star met with an accident, and the theater was closed.

Managing Editor—Our dramatic critic had attended the rehearsals, and his criticism was prepared in advance. Instead of coming to the office to notify us not to publish it, he sent a messenger, but the message was not delivered. Our critic is much to blame for trusting such an important matter to a chance messenger, and I intend to make an example of him.

Editor In Chief—Good! Order him to attend all the amateur performances.—New York Weekly.

A Dunnville Jeweller's Wife

CURED OF PALPITATION OF THE HEART AND SMOTHERING SPELLS BY MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS.

Mrs. D. E. Lasalle, Canal Street, Dunnville, Ont., whose husband keeps a jewellery store, and is one of the best known and most progressive citizens of Dunnville, Ont., gives the following description of her recent experience in the use of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills:

"I took Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills for weak nerves, dizziness, palpitation of the heart, smothering spells at night and sleeplessness. Before I used them I could not get restful sleep, and my nerves were often so unstrung that I would start in alarm at the least noise, and easily worried.

"Last February I commenced taking this valuable medicine, and it proved the right remedy for my weak and shattered nervous system. Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills restored my nerves to a strong and healthy condition, gave regular and normal action of the heart.

BE SURE BEFORE YOU SHOOT.

A MUCH-NEEDED WARNING TO CARELESS MARKSMEN.

How Reckless Hunters May Avoid Potting their Friends Instead of a Deer.

The Commissioner of Fisheries and Game for the State of Maine considered the following of so much importance that he asked its insertion in the Forest and Stream. It contains warnings that should be heeded by many local sportsmen:

STATE OF MAINE.—Office of Commissioners of Inland Fisheries and Game.—Augusta, Sept. 15.—Editor Forest and Stream: Nathan B. Moore, of Bingam, Maine, the oldest and most experienced registered guide in Maine, writes a timely letter of advice to his brother hunters, warning them against hasty shooting, and telling them how they may avoid all accidents. I think it worthy of printing in Forest and Stream.

L. T. CARLETON,
Chairman Commissioners Inland Fisheries and Game.

BINGHAM, Sept. 10.—Dear Brother Hunter: As I am a man that has had a long experience hunting in the Maine woods and on the St. John's River, I wish to give you all a few words of caution, as there have been so many accidents happening every year. It has come to be a serious thing, and I cannot help giving my brother hunters a few words of caution, hoping it may teach all that take a rifle and start out on a hunting trip to try their luck on big game. I have hunted the Maine woods for seventy-four years; I have killed 276 moose that I have kept a true account of, and one-half as many caribou, and many deer, bears and small game, almost without number, so you must know that I understand well the rules of hunting, and hope that I am able to give all of my brother hunters a few words of advice. Not any good experienced hunter is going to shoot any one.

When I first started out, in the morning of life, as a young hunter, I made this solemn promise, that I never would fire my rifle at any kind of game until I could see enough of the object to tell whether it was a man or a beast that I was taking sight at, and if I had not made that promise, and stood up to it, I should have shot a man dead. I was out hunting moose in January; the snow was very shoal and light, and no one but myself would have thought of running a moose down in such hard going, and after I had run him eight miles, as he came out of a thicket, I saw him go up a little rising ground, about twenty rods from me; I tried to pull the case off my rifle, but it was frozen on, and when I got the case off, he was just going over the knoll, and it was descending ground for about thirty rods, and there was a spruce thicket about four rods through it, and I knew the moose was not one minute ahead of me; I did not think there was a man within ten miles of me, and there was a moose standing in a thicket just ahead of me. I came running very fiercely knowing I must be in sight of the moose. As I came, there stood the moose, head to me, in the thicket. He was as black as a bear, not over three rods from me. I took my rifle to my face and took good aim. I would hit a quarter every time at that distance, but there was the vow I had made. I pulled on the trigger two-thirds hard enough to fire, and thinking of the promise that I would never shoot until I knew what I was shooting at, I stepped three steps to one side, and I saw a man in the place of the moose. Please tell me if there is one man in ten thousand but what would have shot on my chance?

He did not see me until I said: "How came you here?' He said he was "looking at some moose tracks," and there was a tote road within fifteen feet of him. He just stepped out to look at the tracks. I kept right on upon the run and shot the moose within 100 yards. Now I never was scared in my life, but I trembled for three hours to see how near I came to killing a human being.

And now, dear brother I will tell you how to keep clear of such terrible accidents. Always bear in mind when you are in the woods, hunting game, never to shoot at the glimpse of any creature. Be sure you see the nose or ear or side foot of the animal, so that you are certain that it is not a man. How many times I have been in the woods, miles, as I thought, from anybody, and I heard something coming, tearing through the bushes, and would listen to the sound. Well, I would think to myself, it is a moose or a bear or a caribou coming, and I stand with the hammer of my rifle drawn back, ready for a shot, and soon see the bushes move, as though they were all alive, and soon get a glimpse of something moving, then my heart would beat high for a shot; and now remember, my good fellow, this is the time where the danger comes in, and then all at once out comes a man, rushing through the forest, and I would halloo to him and say: "Friend, where are you bound for?' For a moment he would almost forget himself, he was so astonished, thinking he was at least ten miles from any human being. A man I knew had been following two deer all day until just at night. When the deer went into a hollow he knew he was close up with them, and he thought he would run around onto the other side of the basin, so as to get in ahead of them and take them when they came out. He had not been waiting long when he heard the bushes crack, and standing with his rifle to his face, with a deadly aim, he soon saw a deer's head coming toward him, and just as his rifle was going to crack he saw it was a man's head he was aiming at. He gave a shout, dropped his rifle, and had all he could do to keep from fainting.

Many a time I have been hunting and have heard the stir of the bushes, and looking sharp could see the glimpse of something moving, but could not tell what it was, when all of a sudden away would go a deer, which had got the scent of me, and I would be glad he was gone, for I had better a thousand times lose him than to risk a shot and not know what I was shooting at.

Now is a very short time the Maine forests are going to be full of hunting parties, and the warning I give to you all is, when you take your rifle to your face be absolutely sure what it is you are aiming at, and I hope this warning may save some poor fellow's life, and you a life of bitterness and regret.

NATHAN B. MOORE,
Registered Guide.

[This advice will apply to the numerous hunting parties that will start out beginning next week, Nov. 1st. It should be impressed on the minds of inexperienced hunters, especially, who are apt during the momentary delirium accompanying an attack of buck fever, to not be able without studying self-control, to distinguish a deer from their best friend. Not that they would be likely to hit him under the circumstances, but accidents may happen, and even green hunters have been known to hit a deer.

Itching Scalp Humors

Cuticura Works Wonders In Cleansing the Scalp and Restoring the Hair.

I was suffering tortures from a diseased scalp. I was scratching my head from morning till night. Little pimples broke out all over my head. I had no rest. I got a cake of CUTICURA SOAP and a box of CUTICURA (ointment). I washed my head about once a week with hot water and CUTICURA SOAP, and then applied the CUTICURA (ointment) as a dressing. I only used one box of ointment and one cake of soap, to be cured. Now, my head hasn't a pimple on it, and my hair is growing splendidly. ADA C. HARRELL,
Feb. 21, 1898. 320 Grand St., Jersey City, N. J.

I was troubled with dandruff so that it made my hair fall out so bad, I got discouraged. I purchased a box of CUTICURA (ointment) and a cake of CUTICURA SOAP. The former I rubbed well into the scalp twice a week, and then shampooed with warm water and a good lather of CUTICURA SOAP once a week. My hair is growing out thick once more, and free from terrible dandruff. Miss ADA JAYNE,
Feb. 26, '98. 28 Webster Ave., Chelsea, Mass.

I had a bad scalp humor, and thought I would go frantic with itching. I lost considerable of my hair (of which I had an abundance, and was very proud). I tried several remedies but they failed. I tried CUTICURA SOAP, relief immediate, and itching is completely gone. Mrs. M. JUDAN,

LIVE STOCK NOTES.

Mr. H. P. Kennedy took over six cars of live stock to the Buffalo markets on Monday. Prices on that day ruled from a quarter to half a cent lower than during the previous week.

During the past two weeks the deliveries have been so large that prices will have to be fully half a cent a pound lower in the country in order to leave a margin for the shipper.

In Toronto yesterday Mr. Kennedy found that he could buy light stockers at from two to three cents per pound. These prices, taking into consideration the facilities there for handling, make it much more beneficial to the shipper than the present prices in the country.

Next week a heavy shipment of calves will be made to the Western markets by Mr. Kennedy.

Mr. Kennedy is prepared to buy all the live turkeys which come into the market, and will doubtless secure a large number, as the work of plucking and drawing them is thus saved to the farmers.

Seems as if all the things we like disagree with us, and all the things we don't like agree with us. Dyspepsia lurks in most of the good things we eat, and indigestion follows the gratification of appetite. Of course, it isn't nature's fault. Nature does the best she can, and if a man will only help her a little at the right time he may eat what he likes and as much as he likes. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are for people who are troubled with indigestion. Particularly for those in whom it manifests itself in the form of constipation. The "Pellets" are quick and easy in their action. They are in perfect harmony with nature. They effect a permanent cure. You need take them regularly only a little while. After that, use them occasionally when you need them—when you have eaten anything that disagrees with you. They may be taken just as freely as you would take water or any other necessity of life. Once used they are always in favour.

NEW TRIAL ORDERED.

Court of Cassation Grants Revision for Dreyfus.

PARIS WAS QUIET ON SUNDAY.

What the New Governor-General Hopes to Do in Canada—The New French Cabinet—M. Dupuy Trusts He Will Announce It Shortly —Germany Sides With Britain.

Paris, Oct. 31.—The decision of the court in the Dreyfus case on Saturday textually was as follows:

"In view of the letter of the Minister of Justice, dated Sept. 20, 1898; in view of the arguments of the public prosecutor denouncing to the court the condemnation pronounced by the first court-martial of the military government of Paris on Dec. 22, 1894, against Alfred Dreyfus, then a captain of artillery attached to the general staff; in view of all the documents in the case and also of article 443 to 446 of the code of criminal procedure, amended by the law of June 10, 1895, relative to the admissibility of an application in proper form, for revision;

"Whereas, the matter has been brought before the court by the public prosecutor in virtue of the express order of the Minister of Justice;

"Whereas, the application comes within the category of the cases contemplated in article 443 and has been introduced within the period fixed by article 444;

"Whereas, the judgment, a revision of which is demanded, has the force of a Chose Jugee;

Whereas, the documents produced do not place the court in a position to decide all the merits of the case and there is ground for making a supplementary inquiry;

"For these reasons the court declares the application to be in proper form and legally admissible, and states that it will institute a supplementary inquiry, and declares there is no ground at the present moment for deciding on the public prosecutor's application for a suspension of the penalty."

The judges of the court were occupied for three hours and a half in considering the judgment.

The public, whose admission to the court was regulated with the greatest care, awaited the decision with marked calmness.

During the suspension of business the public crowded into the lobbies and there was evident an anxiety to hear the result.

There was no demonstration when the court rose.

Dreyfus May Be Liberated.

Although the liberation of Dreyfus has not been ordered, the court can order him brought to France at any moment, and will probably do so at an early stage of the inquiry. The court refrained from ordering his release on Saturday, because it would have been a presumption of his innocence.

Quiet Sunday in Paris.

Paris, Oct. 31.—Nowhere was there any sign of agitation on Sunday. The city is quiet. Most of the Paris papers approve the the decision of the Court of Cassation, although the Gaulois and the Eclair declare that even now revision is by no means certain.

The Liberte bows to the decision, but does not think it will end the agitation. The Figaro announces that Comte Esterhazy has been deprived of his membership in the Legion of Honor.

The Dreyfus decision seems to have delayed a solution of the Cabinet crisis. M. De Freycinet is again hesitating to accept the portfolio of Minister of War on the ground that, in view of the role the Protestants have played in the Dreyfus case, it would be inadvisable for two Protestants, himself and M. Ribot, to hold the portfolios for War and Justice.

The Czar With Dreyfus.

London, Oct. 31.—An article in the National Reivew, written by L. J. Maxse, who has previously shown himself to be well-informed in the Dreyfus affair, has caused some stir. He affirms that the Czar has now become a convinced Dreyfusard, and is taking a sympathetic interest in the prisoner of Devil's Island.

PORTUGAL'S AFRICAN POSSESSIONS.

France Has Found Something New to Stir Up a Fuss About.

London, Oct. 30.—The Financial News declares that it has high authority for the statement that in the last few days France has made strong representations to Portugal regarding the Anglo-German agreement affecting Portuguese possessions in East Africa, informing Portugal plainly that France would consider the lease of the territory on the mainland opposite Madagascar to any power an unfriendly act.

France recognizes Portugal's condition of financial embarrassment, and the French Bank, instigated by the Government, has offered to finance the next Portuguese coupon. The Portuguese Government has just published a note declaring that it will not alienate its rights of sovereignty in any portion of Portuguese territory.

The foregoing is in furious contrast to the emphatic but unofficial statements in the English press that Great Britain has acquired a lease of all the Portuguese territories in East Africa.

CABINET NOT COMPLETE.

M Dupuy Expects to Announce It at Any Moment Now.

Paris, Oct. 31.—M. Dupuy hopes to complete the Cabinet to-day. It is announced that M. De Freycinet has accepted the War Office portfolio, subject to the proviso that the selection for the remaining Cabinet officers meet with approval.

M. Paul Peytrals, Minister of Finance in the late Cabinet of M. Brisson, has declined to accept the Colonial portfolio, on the ground of ill-health.

Activity at Devonport.

London, Oct. 31.—There was the greatest activity at Devonport yesterday, the site of the largest arsenal in Great Britain and of two of the finest dockyards in the world. The Government is assembling an emergency squadron, which it is understood will go to Gibraltar. The Government has ordered 200,000 tons of coal.

Millions to Be Spent in Gibraltar.

London, Oct. 31.—The Government has awarded a contract for the construction of new admiralty docks and harbor works at Gibraltar to cost £2,500,000.

COST IF EUROPE WENT TO WAR.

Would Be the Enormous Sum of £4,195,600 Per Day, or a Billion and Three-Quarters a Year.

London, Oct. 31.—The Contemporary Review confirms the report that the Czar was influenced to issue his peace manifesto by the remarkable figures of the Polish Publicist, M. Bliokh, showing that Europe pays yearly for the maintenance of its fleets and armies £235,000,000, and nearly as much again as interest on war debts. The cost of a future European war in which the five great continental powers should be engaged would be £4,195,600 daily. In other words, the annual cost of this European war, exclusive of indirect losses, would be £1,747,190,000.

ANNOUNCED AGAIN.

Another French Paper Says England Will Protect Egypt.

Paris, Oct. 31.—The Patrie makes the announcement that immediately on the reassembling of the Chamber of Deputies, a proclamation will be issued declaring that England has annexed Egypt.

Captain Baratier, the bearer of Major Marchand's Fashoda report, started for Egypt yesterday with the Government's instructions to Major Marchand.

The French press is beginning to manifest a much more conciliatory spirit regarding Fashoda, apparently with a view to preparing the public mind for the recall of the Marchand expedition.

THE PROPOSED DISARMAMENT.

Each Power Will Be Represented by Three Delegates.

London, Oct. 31.—It is announced from St. Petersburg that all the powers have now accepted the Czar's invitation to send delegates to the proposed disarmament conference. Each power will be represented by three delegates, and it will be a record diplomatic assembly in point of numbers.

Count Muravieff, the Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs, is going to Livadia, where he will confer with the Czar on outlines of the programme which will be submitted to the delegates of the powers. The Russian Minister is very optimistic as to the result of the conference.

Vienna, Oct. 31.—Saturday the remains of the late Empress Elizabeth of Austria were transferred to their final resting place in the vaults of the Capuchin Church, where they now lie beside the remains of the late Crown Prince Rudolph.

LONDON CAR STRIKE.

President Everett Will Make a Hard Fight.

$50,000 TO BEAT THE MEN.

The Company's Windows Smashed—Imported Men Refused Hotel Accommodation—No More Cars Until Police Protection Is Provided—City and Company Both Appealing to the Courts.

London, Oct. 31.—The strike of the Street Railway employes is the overshadowing topic of interest in all circles here. Even in the churches in several cases the relations of employers and employes formed the topic of discourse, and prayers were offered that right and justice may prevail and violence be avoided. Manager Carr had an interview with President Everett over the long distance telephone, and the latter, who is in Cleveland, and says he has not time to come to London, instructed Mr. Carr to continue the fight against the men, spending $50,000, if that sum be necessary. Mr. Carr said he was prepared to carry on the fight until the crack of doom. If cars did not run in the city for the next ten days, the public would be glad to have them again, he thought. He could, if he chose, keep the cars in the barns for ten days, and in that time, he said, public sentiment would be turned in their favor. "We will not run a car until we are assured of police protection. We have asked for it, and have not yet had a reply." The manager said they expected to run cars to-day, but only in the event of police protection being assured.

The Company's Windows Smashed.

Four cabloads of men came in from Montreal Saturday morning and were taken to the car barns on Lyle street. Between 1 and 2 in the afternoon a mob of about 1,000 men and boys gathered around the barns, shouting "scab," and throwing stones and stale eggs through the windows. It is positively asserted that there was no attack until one of the "new importations" appeared at a window flourishing a pistol. As a result every window in the barns and the company's office on Lyle street was smashed. Writs were issued by the city for a mandamus and injunction to compel specific performance against the Street Railway Company, requiring them to comply with the provisions of the bylaw to operate their lines. A reply was received from the company's solicitor that it was impossible to do so. Other legal steps have been taken against the company, to enforce the bylaw or otherwise have the charter cancelled. The company's solicitor states that the city will be held responsible for all damages caused by the mob.

Refused Hotel Accommodation.

Sunday night about eighteen men were brought here from Lima, O., and were cared for by the company. As the car barns were cold, Manager Carr telephoned to several hotels to secure quarters for these men, but met with refusals. One hotel was reported to have taken twelve, whereupon the regular boarders all left. At 4.45 p.m. yesterday twenty-one Montreal men, who had been lodged in the car barns, and had become alarmed at the situation, started back east, being escorted to the railway station by a cheering crowd of fully one thousand people.

HOW MUCH DID THEY BUY?

Mr. Heinze Is After the Canadian Railway Company.

Montreal, Oct. 31.—It is stated that Messrs. McMaster and Maclennan, advocates, will take out an action to-day against the Canadian Pacific Railway Company for $100,000. The action is taken by Mr. Heinze, who, it will be remembered, sold the Trail, B. C., smelter, with his railway property as well, to the C.P.R. Heinze received about $500,000, but it is said he claims personal property at the smelter to the value of about $100,000, which, he contends, was not intended to be included in the transfer to the Canadian Pacific. The company, on the contrary, claim that they bought everything in sight.

Mr. Dan Mann, the well-known railway contractor, has returned from British Columbia, where the head of the big contracting firm of Mann, Foley Bros. & Larsen, is constructing the Boundary extension of the Crow's Nest Pass road. Mr. Mann states that the entire work will be finished by next May.

Hon. A. G. Blair, who was here yesterday en route for New York, states that the Department of Railways and Canals has invited tenders for six sleeping, six first-class and three dining cars, the whole to be delivered next spring. It is also stated that a large order for new locomotives will be given to an American company ere long, if it has not already been awarded.

Mr. James Ross, vice-president of the Montreal Street Railway, left Liverpool on Sunday for Montreal.

Lord Minto's Canadian Ambition.

London, Oct. 31.—It would appear that Lord Minto's chief ambition as Governor-General of Canada is to be instrumental in the furtherance of an Anglo-American alliance. At the Old Etonians' dinner given on Friday to himself, Lord Curzon and Bishop Welldon, he dwelt upon the possibilities lying in closer relations between the two countries. He said: "It will be my earnest endeavor to bear my share in the guidance and furtherance of these great possibilities and interests."

workman Instantly Killed.

Cornwall, Ont., Oct. 28. — Cosmo Uchand was instantly killed and J. Laper seriously injured in an accident on the Canada Construction Company's works. They, with other men, were engaged in unloading lumber when a large stick slipped and knocked the two men overboard. Coroner Ault held an inquest and the jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

Dreadful Suffering by a Newmarket Woman.

The Bones in the Nose Affected—Face Would Swell Until Her Eyes Were Closed—How Relieved.

NEWMARKET, ONT.—"I have had a good opportunity of noting the great medicinal powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla. My wife has been a sufferer from catarrh for the past four years, and the disease had gone so far that the bones of the nose had become affected and particles had come away through an opening in the left side. Her eyesight was also affected to the extent that for nearly a year she was unable to read for more than five minutes at a time. She suffered and at times was almost distracted. She was treated by four different doctors, one of whom was a specialist. They all said they could not do anything for her, as the disease had gone too far. Her nose would swell about every three days until her eyes would almost be closed. Then it would break through and the swelling would subside for a day or two. About Christmas she commenced taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and since that time has steadily improved. She has not been troubled with any swelling since, and the sore on the side of the nose has all healed. She is on the road to a complete cure. I cannot speak too highly of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and I cheerfully recommend it to any person who is suffering with catarrh." W. H. FURSIER.

Severe Pains in the Head

THE WAY TO DEVELOP CANADA.

SOME of Mr. Tarte's critics may affect to think that he has water on the brain; that is, in relation to the importance he attaches to the solution of the transportation problem by improvement of the existing canals and the completion of the Trent Valley Canal. The facts go to show that more steamers clear from Montreal for British ports than from New York, and when the canal enlargements and extensions now in progress are completed and available for shipping purposes, the shipping of the port of Montreal will increase in proportion. Money spent to increase our transportation facilities is money well spent. Facility of transportation is the key to commercial prosperity, and one of the most potent elements in developing the inexhaustible resources of our great North West. The reduction of transportation rates by rail in the Northwest procured by the present Government in connection with the Crows Nest Railway bargain, has been an inestimable boon to the farmers in the Northwest. And that is only a beginning. With cheap and ready transportation the value of every acre of land in the Northwest will be greatly increased, and the inducements to settlers will be so enhanced that the problem of filling up these illimitable acres with millions of producers and customers for the manufactured products of older Canada, will be on the highway to solution. Public money should be used to advance the public interest, and so long as practical results of a beneficial nature follow its employment, it can hardly be too liberally expended.

OLD AGE PENSIONS.

Insurance and Finance Chronicle.

New Zealand is now grappling with the question of providing for aged citizens of that colony. The Colonial Legislative Council has been discussing an Old Age Pension Bill, the main object of measure being a Government grant, sufficient to ensure for every old and more or less worthy citizen a revenue for his declining years, amounting to $260 per annum. As there are said to be 6,500 citizens already qualified to enjoy the benefits proposed to be conferred upon them, the Upper House, at Auckland, is reported by latest New Zealand advices to contemplate throwing out the bill. The "qualifications" of an old age pensioner are very simple and easy. Residence in the colony for a quarter of a century, an inhabitant of this world for 65 years, no-desertion of wife and children, and an income below five dollars a week—such are the points upon which a pensioner must satisfy a magistrate. It would appear that New Zealanders look lightly upon all minor offences, even if the punishment for same be imprisonment, as, if an applicant for the proposed pension, you are required to prove that since the age of 55 you have "done less than four months in gaol." Now, we do not know whether the most atrocious of crimes if committed before the age mentioned would be condoned as a mere weakness of youth. It is, however, certain that the Old Age Pension Bill of this kindly colony is of an all-embracing character in regard to the class it aims at providing for, and it is not surprising that out of a population of 700,000 no less than 6,500 are supposed to be eligible for an old age pension. Altogether, unless we have formed a wrong impression of the "prison" clause in this bill, age and and insufficient income will constitute a stronger claim upon the charity of the colony than a strictly virtuous and irreproachable career. However, the New Zealanders appear to be wrestling successfully with a subject which has hitherto bothered the best minds in Britain. According to Reuter, after eleven days' discussion in committee this Bill has passed the third reading in the House of Representatives by a majority of ten.

[The Chronicle, in cavilling at the clause of the bill, which bestows the pension without undue regard to merit, seems to fall into the oleomoaynary heresy represented by the pharisaically patronizing expression, "deserving poor." The true spirit of charity is not given to operate a royal commission to enquire into the deserts or demerits of the object that appeals to its beneficence. If the gifts of Divine Providence were bestowed only upon those who were deserving in the sense of lack of offence in the discharge of their duty towards their Creator, none of us would be vouchsafed enough bread to nourish a sparrow. Then how can we, as the stewards of the goods God has entrusted to us, consistently sit in judgment upon our fellow man, and apportion our charity according to our jaundiced view, of the sinfulness of our fellow man in suffering. If one of our children is disobedient and undutiful, do we, therefore, withhold food and raiment? A father might do it, but never a mother, whose unquenchable love will follow her child through the vilest and most crooked paths of sin, with as yearning a love as she felt for the innocent babe in her arms. Her love is a type of the divine Love that knows no sin, no virtue in its universal exercise towards the beings His redemption has bought. If our brother is suffering for food, no matter how he came to this pass, it is our Christian duty to supply his wants if it is in our power—no matter whether drink, debauchery or improvidence made him hungry. The father of the prodigal son, whom our blessed Lord employed as a type of his indiscriminating love, did not stop to ask if his son was worthy; he saw him naked and suffering—he was clothed and the fatted calf was killed. When we pause to judge and condemn as a plea of withholding charity, we make ourselves as those without sin, by casting the first stone.

THE Grand Trunk shareholders had a happy time of it at their last half-yearly meeting, and rejoiced over the announcement that the six months ended June 20th last was the best in many years. What is more, all present were filled with bright expectations regarding the future. Even the railroads, the Brantford Expositor thinks, are feeling the benefit of having a Liberal administration in power at Ottawa.

WE don't believe, says the Hamilton Herald, there is any good reason to suppose that many of our French fellow-subjects would sympathise with France in the event of war. Why should we suspect them? Their ancestors did not swerve in their loyalty to the empire in two great wars which Britain waged against France. Why should the French-Canadian of to-day, when a French-Canadian occupies the chief place of political power in this country, be less loyal than was the French-Canadian of a century ago?

THE COST OF A LOAF OF BREAD

The Canadian Baker and Confectioner recently instituted a competition among bakers, for the purpose of arriving at the cost of a loaf of bread. The questions which the competitors were required to answer were as follows:

1. What can you produce one thousand two pound single loaves of bread for, ready to deliver? Give the items that go to make up the actual cost in detail, under the heads of material, labour and general expenses. Flour, $5 per barrel.

2. What will the distribution of the thousand loaves cost at retail, in labour, plant, collecting, etc., on the average of a loaf to a house.

The examiners found that the rate of seven and a half barrels of flour to the thousand two-pound loaves was borne out by the majority of estimates, so that this establishes a rate of 66⅔ loaves of four-pound bread to the barrel; and it may be taken that the average cost of producing 1,000 two-pound loaves, in ordinary baking establishments, when flour is $5 a barrel, is $61, or about five cents per loaf.

A Baggageman's Back

A G. T. R. Employee Tells How Doan's Kidney Pills Took Out the Pains and Aches.

A baggageman's lot is none too easy. The heavy lifts strain the back and cramp the kidneys. They cry out in protest.

Make the back pain and ache! Allow the poisonous uric acid which it is the kidney's duty to filter out of the blood to be carried back into the system, producing Headaches, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, and in the end Bright's Disease, Dropsy, and death!

Help the kidneys to health with the right remedy—the remedy that Mr. Andrew Maxwell, of Galt, Ont., used—Doan's Kidney Pills. This is what he has to say about them:—

"I have been a great sufferer from kidney disease. The pain in my back and side was very bad; the urine very high-coloured and carrying a heavy sediment.

"I was so bad that it seemed like misery for me to work. I used a great many different medicines, but could get no benefit, when providentially I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills, and concluded to try them.

"A marvellous change took place after the first few doses, and now I am as well as ever I was. No more pain; the urine is clear, and I am now in the enjoyment of vigorous health.

"I have recommended them to many of my friends, and can say that they are the best remedy for kidney troubles ever put before the public. I say this knowing it to be true from my own experience."

If you are troubled with Backache, Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Dropsy, Gravel, Rheumatism, Urinary Troubles or Bladder Weakness, take Doan's Kidney Pills—they'll cure you—never fail in the worst cases. Sold by all druggists, or sent by mail on receipt of price, 50c a box, or three boxes for $1.25. The Doan Kidney Pill Co., Toronto, Ont. Ask for DOAN'S and refuse all others.

HEART DISEASE.

SOME FACTS REGARDING THE RAPID INCREASE OF HEART TROUBLES.

Do Not be Alarmed, but Look for the Cause.

Heart troubles, at least among Americans, are certainly increasing and while this may be largely due to the excitement and worry of American business life, it is more often the result of weak stomachs, of poor digestion.

Real, organic heart disease is incurable; but not one case in a hundred of heart trouble is organic.

The close relation between heart trouble and poor digestion is because both organs are controlled by branches of the same great nerves, the Sympathetic and Pneumogastric.

In another way, also the heart is affected by that form of poor indigestion, which causes gas and fermentation from half digested food; there is a feeling of oppression and heaviness in the chest caused by pressure of the distended stomach on the heart and lungs, interfering with their action; hence arises palpitation and short breath.

Poor digestion also poisons the blood, makes it thin and watery, and irritates and weakens the heart.

The most sensible treatment for heart trouble is to improve the digestion and to insure the prompt assimilation of food.

This can best be done by the regular use after meals of some safe, pleasant and effective digestive preparation, like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which may be found at most drug stores and which contain valuable, harmless digestive elements in a pleasant, convenient form.

It is safe to say that the regular, persistent use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at meal time will cure any form of stomach trouble except cancer of the stomach.

Full sized package of the tablets sold by druggists at 50 cents.

NEWS FROM OTTAWA.

Sudden Taking Off of Dr. H. P. Wright on Saturday Morning.

Ottawa, Oct. 31.—Dr. H. P. Wright died suddenly of heart failure at 8.15 Saturday morning. Deceased was at a dinner at Rideau Hall on Friday evening. On his return he went to a medical dinner, reaching home about 2 a.m. He complained to Mrs. Wright of having a chill, and she made a warm drink for him. He then went to bed, feeling better. A little later Mrs. Wright heard him breathe heavily, and before she was able to get medical aid he was dead. He was one of the two or three leading medical men here, and one of the most popular and influential men in the city, and also one of the most overworked ones.

Mr. George R. Webster, formerly chief law clerk in the Customs Department, died yesterday from rheumatism and complication of heart trouble. Mr. Webster was formerly a partner with Hon. John F. Wood, in Brockville, and was appointed to the Customs Department a short time previous to the general elections in 1896. After the change of Government he opened a law office on Sparks street, and was doing well when illness came and death ensued. Mr. Webster leaves a wife and three children.

Madame Mathieu, the clairvoyante, has left town, and a warrant has been issued for her arrest.

Mr. Aylesworth Again.

Napanee, Oct. 31.—On Saturday afternoon the Liberals of Lennox enthusiastically nominated Mr. Bowen E. Aylsworth to contest the riding. They were in good fighting trim, and the heartiness of the nomination could not fail to strengthen even the man in whose family there were no cowards.

The Conservatives met at the same hour and nominated Dr. Meacham, so that the fight will be between the two former opponents.

North Waterloo Again.

Toronto, Oct. 31.—Complications have arisen in the North Waterloo election case. Dr. Lackner has appealed against the decision of J. J. Rose and McMahon unseating him, and the Liberals have counter-petitioned for his entire disqualification. On Saturday morning Justice Osler listened to a motion to have the Liberal counter-petition struck out. The matter was adjourned until to-morrow.

THE BEST ON EARTH.

So Says Robert Meikle About Dodd's Kidney Pills.

London, Ont., Oct. 17.—Robert Meikle, a member of the staff of the Star Dining Hall, is kept busy answering the questions asked him by his many friends at present. They all want to know how he recovered from what the doctors said, was a fatal attack of Diabetes.

And he invariably answers: Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me, when other earthly means had failed. They are the only medicine on earth that can cure Diabetes, and they do it every time."

If Dodd's Kidney Pills cured Mr. Meikle they will cure you. Try them.

Watering Dahlias.

Dahlias coming into flower will repay you a hundredfold for every good drenching you may give them, according to Vick. The water saved from the weekly wash and applied at evening, or even water from the well (the latter should be drawn several hours before using and left in the sun if possible), will prove very acceptable. A little soot, bonemeal or phosphate or some kind of plant food dug into the soil about the roots will increase the size of the blossoms. If extra large blooms are desired, allow but one stalk to each tuber set and pinch out part of the buds that form, but this part of the work should have been attended to earlier in the season.

Toronto Firemen Testify.

M. McCartney, Lombard Street Fire Hall, Toronto, dated March 4th, 1897, states:—"Am subject to very painful conditions of costiveness and other troubles resulting therefrom, but I am glad to say that I have found a perfect remedy in Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I trust this may be of benefit to others."

THE FASHODA AFFAIR.

Major Marchand Is Now at Khartoum—It is Probable That He Get a Hint From Home to Leave.

London, Oct. 30.—The arrival of Major Marchand at Khartoum on his way to Cairo with the portion of his report which was not finished when Capt. Baratier left Fashoda, is regarded as a rift in the clouds overhanging Anglo-French relations, for, in spite of the semi-official denial issued in Paris that orders were sent to the Major to go to Cairo, it is fully believed here that the French officer would not be on his way to Cairo unless he had received a hint to that effect from the French Government, who consider that his leaving Fashoda will take the sting out of the situation and at the same time prepare France for the eventual withdrawal of the whole expedition, which now consists of seven officers and 120 men.

The British view of this latest move is that the Marquis of Salisbury and his Ministers are delighted to afford Major Marchand the facilities of reaching Cairo. But they would hardly care to send him back, except in the capacity of a guest or scientific explorer. That is to say, France would first have to renounce her political claims based on his mission.

The French newspapers seem to have little faith in Russia helping her ally in the present crisis, while Russian despatches to the British papers affirm positively that the Czar is decidedly opposed to war, and has counselled the French Government to abandon its untenable attitude. It is even said the Czar has characterized the French attitude as reckless.

In the meantime military and naval preparations continue on both side of the Channel.

THE QUEEN OPPOSES DIVORCE.

Her Majesty Clear That Marriage Tie Should Be Indissoluable.

London, Oct. 31.—The Queen has again taken a stand against divorce and divorced persons. T. P. O'Connor in his new paper, "Mainly About People," says: "The Queen intimates that the pronouncement on the part of the prelates might have been written in stronger terms, as she is totally averse to divorce under any circumstances whatsoever.

"Her Majesty is willing to admit that in no institution are there more people wronged than in marriage; nevertheless, her belief is that an infinitely more satisfactory state would arise were marriage made indissoluable, both by church and state.

"The Queen adds that she has no objection to judicial separation, her strong disapproval of the divorce being due to the liberty which it imparts to divorced people to marry again, and to the remarriage of divorced people, no matter what the grounds of divorce. She is unalterably and most strongly opposed.

"This is the first official expression Her Majesty has given to her views on the subject."

Mainly About People also says there has been excitement among certain of the Queen's subjects over the fact that lawn tennis has been played by Her Majesty's grandchildren on the grounds at Osborne on Sunday. There is nothing new in this fact but the report never got into the newspapers before. Busybodies, I hear, save Mainly About People, even went so far as to memorialize the Queen upon the subject, and received a snub for their pains. The memorialists obviously acted in gross ignorance of the fact that the Queen is free from prejudice.

Catarrh

What is Japanese Catarrh Cure? The newest, safest, surest, most pleasant, harmless and only guaranteed cure to-day. It is a pomade or ointment to be inserted in the nostrils; the natural heat of the body warms and melts it, and by the very action of breathing it is drawn up into the nasal passages, in an instant makes its potency felt by the opening up of the disease-stopped channels and the soothing, comforting sensation that follows its application. The dull pains leave the head; the inflammation is allayed, the foul breath becomes sweet and fresh, and the sense of smell returns; that distressing dropping in the throat ceases, the discharges gradually grow less, and in a very short while, by the use of the treatment, the whole taint is eradicated from the system; contains no cocaine or other dangerous narcotic, and there's a guarantee to cure in every package.

"I was troubled with Chronic Catarrh in the head for twenty-five years; spent hundreds of dollars with specialists without any permanent benefit; eight years ago I was cured with Japanese Catarrh Cure and there's never been a symptom of a return." J. E. LITTLE, Port Essington, B.C. 50 cents. Sold by Ormond & Walsh, or by mail.

The Paris Peace Commission.

Washington, Oct. 31.—Advices from Paris are to the effect that there is no change in the peace negotiation situation. The Administration has the same hopeful feeling of success that was entertained at the Cabinet meeting, and the statement is reiterated that negotiations are in a fair way to be brought to a speedy termination. The question of the Philippines has not been formally considered by the Peace Commissioners, but there has been some informal discussion between the American and Spanish Commissioners, with the result that the American Commissioners have indicated to the Administration that the settlement will not be as difficult as anticipated some time ago.

This Explains the Milk in the Cocoanut!

Routleys Sensational Sale of Woollen Hosiery and Ladies' Undervests.

This unparalleled Sale has been the talk of the town for the past week, and the wonder has been how the goods are sold so cheap.

In answer to many enquiries, we may explain that this stock was hypothecated to protect a liability of the manufacturer, and placed in our hands to sell regardless of original cost. That accounts for the milk in the cocoanut. We have already sold hundreds of dollars' worth, but there is still hundreds of dollars' worth left. As we are not in the Hosiery business to stay, we will continue to offer the goods at about THE COST OF THE WOOL, until every vestige is cleared out. A few prices will serve to show how much we are in earnest:—

Ladies' Black Hose, All wool, regular 30c., . . for .14	Gentlemen's Scotch Mix Hose, regular 50c., . . for .31

Othello Wants to "Punch" Somebody.

Seymour was locally known as "Chouse," because on one occasion when playing Othello at the Limerick theater he in the well known passage: "Excellent wretch, perdition catch my soul, but I do love thee, and when I love thee not chaos is come again," pronounced the word "chaos" as if written "chouse."

Ever after whenever he was announced to play the saying among playgoers was, "Chouse is come again." Seymour hated the nickname, and it is recorded of him that one night when he was playing Othello in the "dying scene" a voice from the house roared out. "That's d——d good, Chouse!"

Then the audience witnessed a singular spectacle. Othello sat bolt upright, shook his fist in the direction of the disturber and in a voice of rage invited him, if he were a man, to come down and have his head "punched." There being no answer to this challenge, the hapless "Moor" solemnly turned over and proceeded to "die," to an obligato of titters from the entire house.—Pall Mall Gazette.

The Guillotine.

Recent improvements have made the guillotine a much smaller and more delicate instrument than it used to be. The two parallel uprights down which the knife slides are a third shorter than they were formerly and are no longer painted bright scarlet, but a dirty vandyck brown. The knife, which is usually represented in the illustrated papers as a great, triangular piece of steel, has now almost a razorlike shape and is weighted with mercury let into a reservoir at the top of the blade (the ax of the German executioner is similar weighted) and no longer with lead.—Paris Correspondent.

No Lightning on Ships.

The reason why ships are not struck by lightning is attributed by German authorities to the general use which is now made of wire rope for rigging purposes as well as to the fact that the hulls of ships are usually constructed of iron or steel. Thus the whole ship forms an excellent and continuous conductor, by means of which the electricity is led away into the ocean before it has time to do any serious damage.

A Lay Figure.

"Hiram," said Mrs. Corntossel, who had been reading a Latin quarter novel, "what's a lay figger?"

"Well," replied her husband after long and serious thought, "I couldn't do no more'n make a guess at it. But eggs is only bringing us 13½ cents a dozen now."

DEER HUNTERS.

Another Party Left for the North This Afternoon—Will go to Stony Lake.

The local members of the LeBrun Strickland party left at noon to-day for the north on the Lakefield train. The "Baby" will take the hunters back to Mr. R. G. Strickland's cottage in Stony Lake, which will be made the headquarters for the hunt. The ground in the vicinity of Lovesick Lake and Deer Bay Creek will be watched for deer, and if game is scarce the party will move to "Ballechasse," Mr. Harry LeBrun's cottage, at the other end of the lake.

Two years ago the same party got eleven deer in the vicinity of Stony Lake, and it is confidently expected that luck equally as good will be enjoyed this season. Those leaving to-day were Messrs. Harry LeBrun, Harry Strickland, Harry Allen, R. B. McKee, Ed. Brown and Geo. W. Hatton. Later on in the week they will be joined by Messrs. W. L. Allen, R. S. Davidson, Harold Morrow and W. D. Parker.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. R. A. Morrow is visiting friends in Colborne.

Miss Fowlde, of Hastings, is the guest of Miss Bessie Connal.

Mr. J. M. Chadwick, who has been connected with the Canadian General Electric Works, has severed his local connection, and returned to his former home in Boston.

Mr. Andrew Finnie, formerly of Peterborough, now of Wrights, Santa Clara County, California, writes that in the district in which he resides a great deal of damage has been done to the prunes and grapes by the heavy rains. Prunes in the process of drying have moulded in the trays. Otherwise the crop was the largest during the past ten years. Grapes in that locality, of the table variety, were a short crop.

Mr. Brooks puts another lense into his telescope, fishes him out, and in a brace of shakes has him tagged, with his name, age, weight, and colour, to be gawked at by every Tom, Dick and Harry who visits the Observatory. Some of these days Mr. Brooks will run across a comet too big for him. It will hit him a smack in the bread-basket, with its tail, that will simply spifficate him.—Bob, Ind.

"IN HIS STEPS."

Comes C. M. Sheldon's New Book, "His Brother's Keeper."

The EXAMINER has to thank the Poole Printing Company, Toronto, for a copy of a newly issued contribution to the series of religious novels by Mr. Charles M. Sheldon, author of "In His Steps," and other works. The above company has already published seven of Sheldon's books, and every one is having a very large sale. The titles of the others are: "Overcoming the World," "The Crucifixion of Philip Strong," "Robert Hardy's Seven Days," "Richard Bruce," and "The Twentieth Door. For sale by all dealers. "His Brother's Keeper" is a delightful story, full of the interesting moral and religious lessons peculiar to Mr. Sheldon's other works. One of the greatest problems of the day is ably dealt with. The scenes in the mining region are based upon events which occurred during the great strike among the iron miners in the summer of 1895, and which were witnessed by the author. Paper, 250 pages, 25c or 6 for $1, of the publishers or at the Peterborough Bookstore.

FATE OF TWO PURSES

Which Were Lost on the Market Last Saturday Morning.

On Saturday last Mrs. Kane brought a purse into the town clerk's office containing $14.00, which she had found on the market. As the contents were being examined Mrs. Butler came in to report her loss of the same.

During the morning Mrs. Francis Hamilton left her purse on one of the tables and some woman took it with the object, she stated, of giving it to the police. The purse has not reached the police yet and unless it is in their hands by this evening they will proceed to look it up. This will be a comparatively easy matter, as they have received an accurate description of the party in whose possession it was last seen.

CHURCH CHIMES.

The George street church choir sang "Praise ye the Lord," as an anthem, last evening in excellent voice.

The well-rendered anthem in the George street church yesterday morning was entitled "The Lord is my Shepherd."

In St. Andrew's church last evening Mr. Adam Gillespie's voice was heard to advantage in the solos of the anthem "If You Love Me."

"I was Glad when They said unto Me," was the title of a most harmoniously rendered anthem in the Murray street church yesterday morning.

Miss Florence Hall sang the solo parts in exceptionally clear voice in the anthem "Lo my Shepherd is Divine," at the Charlotte street church yesterday morning.

Mr. John Pease took the solos in good voice in the anthem "I will Extol Thee," in St. Andrew's church yesterday morning. Miss Faulkner joined him in the duet.

Mr. F. Skitch sang the solos in the anthem "O, be Joyful in the Lord" in the Charlotte street church last night, Miss Hall, Miss Elliott and Mr. Squires taking the trio parts.

The duet, "In the Cross of Christ I Glory," was sung with splendid effect in the Charlotte street church yesterday morning by Miss Florence Hall and Mr. A. L. Davis. The voices were beautifully blended.

Miss Trebilcock, of Bowmanville, who was one of the delegates to the Sunday school convention, and is still a guest at the residence of Mr. J. I. Davidson, sang "Flee as a Bird," in St. Paul's church yesterday morning with a great deal of taste.

Mr. Walden's solo, "Dream of Paradise," which was given by special request in the George street church last evening, was fully appreciated by the congregation, the members of which were greatly pleased by the fine rendition.

Rev. Mr. Walker, a returned missionary, occupied the pulpit of the Murray street Baptist church yesterday and also spoke in the afternoon to the children, illustrating his address through the medium of a fine collection of idols and other curios from India.

Beethoven's beautiful quartette "Lo, 'tis Night," was well handled by Misses Hall and Elliott and Messrs. Squires and Skitch last evening in the Charlotte street Methodist church, Mr. Squires taking the solo in a most pleasing manner, it being particularly suited to his voice.

THE MEAT WEIGHING BYLAW.

Another critical stage has arrived in the administration of the bylaw requiring the weighing of meat on the market, offered for sale by farmers. In the interests of the town the mayor and council should deal with the matter in a prompt, business kind of way, for the present condition of affairs has a tendency to discredit our market and repel, rather than encourage, farmers in their attendance. The letter of Police Magistrate Dumble at the time he dismissed the charge against Mr. Thos. Brown, brought by Mr. Baptie, lessee of the market, should have aroused the council to immediate action. Mr. Brown had, as he felt he was justified in doing, refused to comply with the terms of the bylaw and hence the prosecution. The police magistrate stated in his letter that he felt it would be "wrong to make a conviction as it is impossible under present conditions to comply with the requirements of the bylaw." This letter was brought up in Committee of the Whole Council on Oct. 24th and the matter was discussed. It was decided to instruct the Mayor and the Market Committee to visit the market the following Saturday and investigate the conditions, with a view of taking such measures to remove the difficulties as would not interfere with the conditions of the contract with Mr. Baptie Strange to say last Saturday there was not a single member of the committee present. This is unfortunate. There was an unusually large market, including large offerings of meat, that came under the provisions of the unworkable bylaw. Instead of the mayor and committee being present to see the actual trouble caused by the bylaw and to pour oil on the troubled waters, the hand of the law was again invoked, and over a dozen farmers are summoned to appear before the police court. This negligence of the committee revives all the first trouble, and everything will have to be done over again. In face of Mr. Dumble's letter, there is no hope of securing convictions, and the farmers summoned will have the feeling that in addition to what they regard as the vexatious exactions of the bylaw, they are being unnecessarily harried. This will tend to create a bad feeling towards the market with results, which all who have the interests of the town at heart, will deeply deplore. The present condition of the bylaw is a source of annoyance to the market lessee as well as the patrons of the market. The former wants to keep on good terms with the farmers, but he cannot do so if he is compelled to fight for the enforcement of a bylaw which the police magistrate says cannot be enforced under present conditions. The Mayor and council should not lose an hour in locating the trouble and finding a remedy. The difficulty can, one would think, be settled in an amicable manner. It is not to the interest of the town, or the farmers either, that an unyielding and unreasonable attitude should be taken. It is the part of wisdom if a mistake has been made, to frankly acknowledge it, and to do the next best thing—supply a remedy.

Peterborough's Modern Store

Great November Sale!

November will be a month of unprecedented slaughter in Dry Goods at this store. We have been more than pleased with the result of this season's selling in every department of our Mammoth Establishment. The citizens of Peterborough have accorded our Modern Store and modern methods of doing business an unanimous welcome. A welcome so decided that notwithstanding our exceedingly large importations of Dry Goods for this season's trade the selling has been exceedingly satisfactory, and we find ourselves in a position to sell the balance of our importations at sacrifice prices at this unusual time of the year for sacrifice sales. We are not going to rest satisfied with our success already achieved, with the encouragement already received, and with Eternal Vigilance and keeping everlastingly at it, we hope to realize our highest ambition—to give the people of Peterborough a Store equal to any in the province, and to make this e more than ever the great shopping centre for Peterborough and surrounding district. Rompish Lads

Should have Clothes neatly designed, yet STRONG.

There is even more economy in getting GOOD QUALITIES in Boys' Clothing than in the Men's lines.

Adults give a certain degree of EASE to their garments which may compensate somewhat for shoddy material and cheap workmanship.

But who expects a boy to do it?

It's worth while reminding parents again that we are going out of Boy's Clothing and selling off our stock at CLEARING PRICES.

You know what we've been selling in Boy's Clothing—strong goods to stand the wear and tear. Besides being full of wear they are neat and shapely.

Not the cheapest in figures but undeniably THE CHEAPEST IN THE END.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH DEDICATION FESTIVAL.

CELEBRATED SUCCESSFULLY ON SUNDAY.

Large Congregations — Earnest and Spirited Services—Excellent Sermons by T. C. Street Macklem—The Children's Service.

The cross-blended Union Jack, the triple type of the religion of the cross, floating in the brisk autumnal air of Sunday morning from the ivy-fretted towar of St. John's was an outward and visible sign of inward and spiritual celebration of the parochial birthday—the fifteenth annual commemoration of the re-opening dedicatory services which took place on All Saint's Day, Nov. 1st, 1883. The weather on that occasion was as warm and genial as an August day.

Yesterday the dedication festival was celebrated by three services. At the early celebration of the central service of the Church, Holy Communion—at eight o'clock there was a large attendance. At the eleven o'clock service there was a large congregation present. The service was conducted by Rev. J. C. Davidson, Rev. E. V. Stevenson, assisted by Rev. J. Fennell and Rev. T. C. S. Macklem, of St. Simons, Toronto, who preached the sermon. He founded his excellent, plain and practical sermon on the well known passage in St. Matthew's Gospel:—"Ye are the salt of the earth, etc.," St. Matthew v—13. The preacher remarked upon the happy appropriateness of celebrating the dedication festival, falling upon All Saint's—in close communion of spirit and sympathy with the departed saints, who had in former days carried on the work of the Church in this parish. The past and the present were brought very close together. There was this difference that the work of the departed saint was over and he was at rest in the paradise of God. Our work was still to be done, and we should feel honoured that we were called upon to do a work that would endure. The speaker then went on to apply the lesson of the special function of salt, which was extracted from its various sources—to preserve and bring out the best quality of the food. We were selected from the world by the elective love of God to be the salt of the earth, and to draw out the best that is in our fellowmen. Selfishness in religion—seeking to get all the benefit ourselves—was not a high ideal. We could not expect to receive all and not pass it on to others. It was our duty in the service of God to work for others, and it was pointed out that this life was the only chance we had to do the work which Christ, who had chosen us, required at our hands. It was asked, in conclusion, if it were nor a high ideal for the congregation of St. John's to make the town of Peterborough better for their being in it, to prove that they are the salt of the earth by preserving the truth, and by bringing out the best qualities of the world, by which they were surrounded.

CHILDREN'S MEETING.

There was a largely attended children's service in the afternoon, when the young people present joined heartily in the worship. Some fifty girls from the Barnardo Home were present and were given an especial welcome by the rector during the service. Rev. Mr. Macklem gave the address, which was couched in bright and simple language adapted for youthful minds. At half past four there was a gathering of some forty men for the Sunday afternoon lecture, which has become quite a feature at St. John's.

In the evening, rain unfortunately interfered with the attendance, but the service was bright and hearty, especially in the anthem, "The Heavens are Telling," in which Miss Lizzie Jephcott took the solo. Rev. Mr. Macklem's sermon was on the subject of Paradise. He stated that in former times men had imagined the soul ascending directly from earth to heaven, but reason and increased knowledge of the Bible had shown this to be an entire mistake. There was an intermediate state in which the soul awaited the judgment day and the place of this waiting was called Paradise—meaning the park around the King's Palace, whose inmates enjoyed close association with the king, and where, accordingly, there was possibility of the continued development of the spiritual powers only just begun on earth. We could not imagine for instance the penitent thief as being stationery all these centuries, and being finally admitted to heaven with only a cry of repentance upon his lips.

At the conclusion of his sermon, Mr. Macklam spoke of the responsibilities and future outlook of the parish of Peterborough. He had noticed that they had a busy, enterprising town, a noble church, half a century old It was useless to ask what use was being made of these opportunities. Much was certainly being done. The stipends of two assistant clergy were being provided and a new centre of church life had been established in the south part of the town. This was a gain to the church in the whole diocese, and the speaker trusted that St. John's and All Saints would keep up a strong, united front and work together for the advancement of their holy religion. Then, contributions were being made to the mission fund and continued interest had been shown in a particular mission—South Burleigh. But he urged them to go forward to greater and better things. On this day let them dedicate themselves afresh to the great work which was given them. Let them see to it that they were a progressive branch of the church in one of Canada's most progressive centres of population.

CHRISTIAN ALLIANCE CONVENTION.

It Will be Held on Friday, Saturday and Sunday Next.

A Christian Alliance convention will be held in Peterborough on Friday, Saturday and Sunday next.

Amongst the prominent speakers who are expected to be present are Rev. A. B. Simpson, President of the Alliance, of New York; Rev. Mr. Leishur, President of the mission in China, who recently spoke in Carnegie Hall, the largest edifice of the kind in New York, and Rev. Mr. Kingman, President of the mission in the Soudan, who has just returned from a seven years' residence in that deadly climate.

The programme of the convention will be published later.

APPLES AND NUTS AND HALLOWE'EN.

How They Come Into Play on This Festival Dear to the Prankish Boy and Fun-Loving Girl.

Apples and nuts have always played an important part at the festival of All Hallows, ever since—far back in the dim ages—the first of November was dedicated to the angel supposed to preside over fruits and seeds, and was called "the day of apple fruit." An old fashioned apple paring bee would then be a most appropriate entertainment for the closing night in October, and very useful if the farmer has many apples to cut up and dry. This should occupy the first part of the evening, and to give interest small prizes be awarded to those who peel the most fruit, cut the longest unbroken paring and quarter the apples fastest.

The work completed, Hallowe'en tricks and sports should follow, as burning nuts before the fire, going alone to eat an apple before a looking glass and see who will peer over your shoulder, and sending snails (caught for the purpose) to crawl through scattered ashes on the hearth, thereby forming the initials of a lover's name. Finally, bring forth a great bowl of apple sauce, in which has been stirred an almond, a chestnut, a peanut and an English walnut from which the kernel has been extracted and a ring carefully enclosed within. Supply the guests with spoons, and all sitting around, dip in and eat until the nuts are found. He who gets the almond will obtain wealth and all heart desires. The one to whom the chestnut falls will pack his chest and travel far and wide, the peanut a spinster or bachelor doth foretell, while the walnut containing the ring predicts a happy marriage within a year.

By this time refreshments will be in order and apples and nuts must also figure on the menu of the Hallowe'en supper. Among the other good things let there be apple jelly with whipped cream, apple tarts and nuts and apple salad; cider, of course, cream walnuts and dainty nut wafers, as well as the little seed cakes which our ancestors always make at Hallowmas and dubbed "soul cakes." For the salad, boil a quart of walnut or hickory nut meats with a teaspoonful of salt for 10 minutes, cool, drain and dry. Chop six tarts apples quite fine and mix with the nuts and pour a rich mayonnaise dressing over all. For the nut wafers cream together one-quarter cup of butter and the same amount of powdered sugar, add one well-beaten egg, one-quarter of a cup of finely chopped nut meats. Drop small spoonfuls on buttered pans and bake in a moderate oven.

This will conclude a jolly evening, but later, if two girls are to sleep together, they might like to try an ancient Hallowe'en charm which is so old as to be new to this generation. Each one on retiring must take a pill composed of a walnut, a hazelnut and nutmeg grated and mixed together, with butter and sugar. Then, according to the antique myth, if she is to wed a gentleman of fortune, her sleep will be filled with golden dreams. If her husband is to be tradesman, odd noises and tumults will disturb her slumber, while if a rambler is to be her fate, rolls of thunder will she hear and flashing lightning see. So portentous are the visions of maidens upon "nutcrack night."

A TRIP THROUGH CANADA,

WHICH WAS TAKEN BY MR. AND MRS. E. HARD.

They Were Former Residents of Mount Pleasant, and Were Visiting Old Friends in the Neighbourhood During the Summer.

On August 15th, 1898, we left home to visit the home of our youth in Canada. We went by way of Cleveland, where we took the steamer Melborn, which runs between Toledo and Montreal. We were cordially received by all on board and were soon enjoying our trip on old Erie.

At Port Colborne we entered the Welland Canal, passing down which entrance is made at Port Dalhousie to Lake Ontario. The Welland Canal is a gigantic work and wonderful piece of engineering, by which the natural obstacles to navigation created by Niagara Fall are overcome.

ENTERING LAKE ONTARIO

we arrived at Toronto. Here we took a a carriage and enjoyed a three hours drive through the city. We visited many places of interest, among which were the Parliament buildings, where we passed through all the rooms. Leaving Toronto we again boarded the Melborn, and were steaming down Lake Ontario to Kingston, a run of seventeen hours. After passing Kingston we entered the American channel where scattered in prodigal profusion along the noble St. Lawrence river from Kingston, Alexandria Bay and beyond lie the Thousand Islands, more than eighteen hundred in number. They vary in size from a small mass of rocks seemingly burdened to to lift its rocky crest above the clear, deep water, to picturesque islands miles in extent, over-spread with a rich and luxuriant vegetation. Nearly every island, large or small, is the pleasant summer home of its fortunate owner.

The refined taste, which has transformed these island wilds into pleasant haunts is nowhere more noticeable than in the many provisions for comfort and enjoyment which surround the many beautiful summer homes and make them pictures of delight and real contentment.

THE WHOLE REGION

is one of incomparable beauty and just the place to seek rest and refreshment during the warm days of summer.

Leaving the steamer at Brockville we took the Canadian Pacific Railway for Smith's Falls. Staying here over night we started the next day for Peterborough, the most beautiful city in Canada for its size. Nearly every house has a pretty lawn with flowers and shrubs in front of it. Having lived there fifty-three years ago we could hardly find a familiar spot, the place was so changed. Where in 1845 stood log shanties and small frame houses now stand three and four story brick and stone stores, hotels and factories, some of immense size. We visited several of these and was greatly interested, the most noted being the Edison Electrical Works. By the courtesy of the mayor of the city we obtained a permit to visit these great works, comprising three vast buildings, two hundred and seventy-five feet long. Here are made electrical commodities of all description from the most cumbersome to the most delicate.

WHILE IN PETERBOROUGH

we were the guests of kind friends, who drove us through their six beautiful parks.

We also visited their fine hospitals and Young Men's Christian Association building, all of which are a credit to the city.

After spending two very pleasant weeks here we took the train to Millbrook where we spent a few pleasant days with friends.

From here we went to Mount Pleasant where we celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of our marriage with the friends of our youth, who entertained us royally.

We spent many pleasant days with our friends in Mount Pleasant and vicinity.

On Labour Day we joined Mr. Green's family in a pleasant trip down the Otonabee river on the steamer North Star, going over a part of the old canoe route which Mr. Hard travelled years ago in going to his home in Springville.

From here we returned to Peterborough and after spending a few more days with those who brought back the remembrance of our early days, we left Peterborough for home.

The remainder of our trip we will narrate in our next letter as we do not wish to weary our readers.

THE SECOND LETTER.

In last letter we forgot to mention our visit to the part of the Trent Canal which is to connect the Georgian Bay with the Bay of Quinte. As there are a number of small lakes between the two bays, they have to build locks and short canals. The part we visited they are making a lift lock, which, when completed, will be the only one of the kind on the continent. The stupendous nature of the undertaking can be realized in a measure, when it is stated that the hydraulic pressure will be sufficient to raise a steamer in an iron pontoon—the pontoon being filled with enough water to float it—from the lower to the higher level, or vice versa, a distance of seventy-five feet; so you see they save in the making of five or six locks, also on the time, as it takes about twenty minutes to each lock. This part of the canal to Lakefield, a distance of about nine miles. If any of our readers want to have a pleasant time next summer, they could not do better than visit these pretty lakes and rivers, with plenty of fishing and boating. We will have to leave kind friends and start on our journey home. We left Peterborough on the 23rd of September on the Grand Trunk for Goodwood, where we stayed two days with friends. We then took the train for Thorold, by way of Toronto and Hamilton, arriving the same evening. Here we stayed with old neighbours for some days, having a pleasant time talking of old times spent together thirty-five years ago. We also had a sight which we did not enjoy—a cyclone. We took the street cars to St. Catharines, and while there a storm passed over the east end of the city, doing a great amount of damage, tearing off roofs and destroying a great many trees. We were only two squares from the town, but it was not here that the most damage was done. Merriton, a town of mills and factories between St. Catharines and Thorold, was in the path of this cyclone, and it was here that the most damage was done. Quite a number of houses were completely destroyed, among them one church and a hall. Several buildings had their roofs taken off, but this was not the worst. Four or five were killed a good many hurt, some very seriously.

RUNS FROM PETERBOROUGH

WHERE THE CYCLONE STRUCK

We had to pass through the worst part of the wreck, but not on the cars. We had to get a wagon to take us up to Thorold, as the wires were down and, of course, the street cars quit running.

We were very thankful for our escape from the storm. After spending a few days longer there we took our departure for home via the Suspension Bridge and Niagara Falls. Leaving there we passed through Buffalo, on our way to Cleveland. Here we spent some days with our friends very pleasantly, and leaving there went to Canal Dover, returning to East Liverpool September 29 After all, "there is no place like home," so here we are after spending nearly two months on our pleasant trip. We were again pleasantly surprised upon our return home, when a few of our lady friends serenaded us with grand music. Of course they had practiced much lately, so it was not as soul inspiring as it might have been. In our next we will speak about the chains of lakes and rivers of Canada.

A BOON TO HOUSEKEEPERS.

A Great Store for Cleanliness, Where it Doesn't Cost you any More to Have it That Way

"Costs you the same as the other kind, uncleaned."

That was Mr. E. F. Mason's reply when asked: "How do you sell your raisins and currants after they are washed and cleaned by your patent cleaner?"

"But," asked the interviewer, doubtful whether Mr. Mason had made himself sufficiently clear, "how does that pay you? There must be a large loss of weight to you after the fruit is cleaned so beautifully?"

"Quite right; there is a loss of weight to us, as you can see by this," showing a bowlful of black muddy mixture that had been taken from the cleaner. "That's only a small sample of the loss to us, but of the gain to you. We give you cleaned raisins and put them up in neat 1 lb and 3 lb pkgs. for the same price as before the cleaner was introduced. We have faith enough in the appreciative housekeepers of Peterborough that our extra sales will largely make up for losses and extra labour.

Such a boon to housekeepers ought to "take like hot cakes." The principle of cleanliness being next to godliness pervades the whole of Mr. Mason's store, and is religiously carried out in every detail. His new store fittings are a model safeguard against dirt—the drawers, bins and other receptacles for holding the groceries, teas, sugars and other table supplies, being dust-proof, vermin-proof and mildew-proof. If you want some special groceries for Hallowe'en season, pay a visit to Mr. Mason's store. The end of October calls for some extras in fresh and seasonable goods, such as layer raisins, currants, almonds, walnuts, filberts, figs, etc., as well as staple groceries. But don't forget to sample Mason's tea and coffee. 3d1w

Prize Money In 1762.

To the English victors of Havana belonged the spoils, and very rich and important these were.

Besides the nine Spanish men-of-war found intact in the harbor, which, added to the three sunk at the entrance and to one or two others captured outside in the course of the operations, formed about one-fifth of the naval power of Spain and seriously crippled her for the rest of the war, no less an amount than £3,000,000 was realized in prize money by the capture of this wealthy city.

Of this great sum we are told that Albemarle and Pocock, as commanding respectively the land and sea forces, received no less than £122,697 each, while Commodore Keppel's share amounted to as much as £24,589, and doubtless his brother, Major General Keppel, received an almost equal sum. Thus the Keppel family benefited by this expedition to the tune of considerably over £150,000, and it is recorded that General Elliott, with his share of the prize money, purchased the estate of Heathfield in Sussex, from which he afterward took his title. Such were the solid rewards obtainable in war in the last century, when the profession of arms was for the successful soldier considerably more lucrative than it is at the close of the nineteenth century.—Nineteenth Century.

The Canal Man.

A canal man, unless there happens to be a member of his family who can help him, hires a man called "the hand." The men who run the boats come from various positions in life to become canal men. Some have been farmers who own farms along or near the canal and not a few have been born and lived all their lives on a canal-boat. Perhaps one of the most unusual cases is that of a well educated man, who was formerly a Methodist minister, but is now and has been for several years living with his family on one of these boats and driving mules for a living.

The majority, however, are rough and ignorant, and the proverbial swearing is to be heard in its most repulsive forms. One notices frequently a lame or crippled man in charge of a boat, since this is one of the few positions in which a maimed person is able to earn a livelihood. A canal man's family, if he has one, lives with him on the boat during the open season, and the rest of the year some live on little plots of ground, often too small to be called farms, or perhaps they may live in one of the larger towns near by.—Ethel Belle Appel in Godey's Magazine.

HUMAN SACRIFICES

On the Altar of Diabetes, Saved by Dodd's Kidney Pills, Only.

Hardly a family in the country is free from Diabetes. Great thirst, failing sight, numbness in the thighs, bleeding gums, swollen ankles, emaciation, nervousness, pale or turbid urine, loss of sexual power, decaying teeth, pains in the loins or small of the back, are all positive signs that Diabetes is in the system.

Do you know how it ends? In Death. A premature, horrible, agonised, pitiful death. The victim has no peace, no ease in life. His days are filled with tortures. His nights are waking dreams of agony. He longs to die, yet fears the terrors of his end. He dies, a bloated, fetid, repulsive mass of corruption. That is the only end of unchecked Diabetes. Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure it. They drive it out of the system thoroughly, create new, clean blood, rebuild the diseased kidneys, and restore robust health.

Friday Evening, Oct. 28.

The wheat markets continue to grow easier on the subsidence of the war scare. At Liverpool to-day spot wheat declined 1d to 2½d per cental, and futures 1¼d to 1⅝d.

Chicago wheat declined ½c per bushel for all deliveries to-day, the bear factors being the weak cables, the large receipts and the falling off in the export demand. The close was at about bottom prices. Duluth figures receded a cent to-day.

OLD TIME SURGERY.

The Barbarous Methods That Were Employed in the Sixteenth Century.

Ambroise Pare, a barber surgeon of the sixteenth century, tells in his notes how in 1537 he went to the long wars to get practice in surgery. He invented some new processes, particularly in the treatment of amputated limbs.

Up to Pare's time the most barbarous means had been used to stop the bleeding. In his own words: "So soon as the limb was removed the surgeons would use many cauteries to stop the flow of blood, a thing very horrible and cruel in the mere telling. And truly of six thus cruelly treated scarce two ever escaped, and even these were long ill and the wounds thus burned were slow to heal, because the burning caused such vehement pains that they fell into fever, convulsions and other mortal accidents. In most of them, moreover, when the hoar fell off there came fresh bleeding, which must again be stanched with the cauteries. So that for many healing was impossible, and they had an ulcer to the end of their lives, which prevented them from having an artificial limb."

The idea of abolishing such cruelty by using the ligature occurred to Pare in one of his war journeys, and his success went beyond his own expectations. His other discovery was made within a few hours of his joining the army. It was believed by the surgeons of the day that there was poison in a gunshot wound, and one of the accepted authorities insisted that they must be cauterized "with oil of elders scalding hot, mixed with a little treacle." The pain was intolerable. It happened that at his first treatment of gunshot wounds Pare's oil ran short, and he used instead "a digestive made of the yolks of eggs, oil of roses and turpentine." To his surprise, he found next morning that the patients he had thus treated were in better condition than the others. "Then I resolved never more to burn thus cruelly poor men with gunshot wounds."

Seems as if all the things we like disagree with us, and all the things we don't like agree with us. Dyspepsia lurks in most of the good things we eat, and indigestion follows the gratification of appetite. Of course, it isn't nature's fault. Nature does the best she can, and if a man will only help her a little at the right time he may eat what he likes and as much as he likes. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are for people who are troubled with indigestion. Particularly for those in whom it manifests itself in the form of constipation. The "Pellets" are quick and easy in their action. They are in perfect harmony with nature. They effect a permanent cure. You need take them regularly only a little while. After that, use them occasionally when you need them—when you have eaten anything that disagrees with you. They may be taken just as freely as you would take water or any other necessity of life. Once used they are always in favour.

Afghan Exclusiveness.

In the matter of trade and passage through his country the ameer is irreconcilably obdurate. Here again his inordinately suspicious character comes in, for no trade king or syndicate has yet been able to move him in this matter, though he must see quite plainly that the opening up of Afghanistan to the benefits of external trade would eventually enrich the country and improve his own revenues. With similar jealousy and want of trustfulness in the motives of others, he closes his country to foreign travelers almost as selfishly as the Tibetans have closed theirs. It is only to special individuals of rank and importance that he will concede the privilege of a protected passage, albeit there is, comparatively speaking, little danger involved in traveling in Afghanistan. The writer was very recently in what was years ago one of the most uncivilized bazaars in the country, and the Afghans were most civil and obliging.—Review of Reviews.

Only Marked It Out.

A lovelorn youth had quarreled with his ladylove, and with bitter, angry words they parted, and he decided that life was no longer worth living. Abruptly turning into a barber's, he sat in a vacant chair and calmly requested the barber to cut his throat.

The barber acquiesced, and, tucking the cloth round his neck, fixed the head rest so that the customer's chin was well elevated. Then drawing a stout pin from the corner of his waistcoat and holding it firmly between his finger and thumb, he drew the pin quickly across the neck of the man.

Immediately, with a scream worthy of a red Indian, the despairing one leaped from the chair, shouting:

"Surely, surely you have not done it?"

"Oh, no, sir!" said the barber. "Sit down again, sir. I've only marked it out!"—Pearson's Weekly.

A Cordial Invitation.

"I trust, Mr. Borum," said Miss Cutting as the young man was about to depart, "that you will spend one more evening with us before we move into our new house."

"Delighted, I assure you, Miss Cutting," replied Borum. "By the way, when do you expect to move?"

"I'm not positive as to the exact date," she answered, "but the workmen began excavating for the cellar yesterday, and papa expects the house to be finished in about 18 months."—Chicago News.

Punctuated Properly.

"There is now an opportunity," remarked the casual caller to the snake editor, "to work off for the last time that venerable joke about one of Cervera's warships."

"Well?" replied the snake editor interrogatively.

"You might say that the Cristobal Colon has at last come to a full stop."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

DYSPEPSIA CURE

FRUIT CULTURE.

Notes About Strawberries, Raspberries, Early Pears and Apples.

New plantations of the garden strawberry should have close attention to keep the runners picked off as soon as they are seen, and also to keep the surface stirred up about them either with a wheel hoe once a week or with a garden hoe if the weeds are too large to kill with the former. We find the wheel hoe invaluable for all garden crops if kept going so as to keep the surface stirred up. Even purslane cannot stand this treatment if given often, and if they are caught when in the seedling stage they will then dry up in a hot sun.

Now is the time to thin out the old raspberry canes so as to give light and air to the young ones that are to remain. Even the latter may be thinned if too thick. It is also a good time to tear out old beds where so desired, for if taken at this time it is possible to kill every piece of the old stools before winter. One can kill most anything at this time of year, specially witch grass, and if this prevails in the plantation there is no better time to get it under subjection. Our old plantation will be plowed up and harrowed over so as to bring the rough stubble to the surface where it can dry and be burned, and a late sowing of winter spinach will be put in so as not to have the ground idle.

Early summer pears will begin to ripen at this time, and a little loose straw spread under the trees will save many fine fruit in falling from being bruised badly. But it is best to examine pears as soon as the first signs of maturity are seen, and if the stem parts readily from the branch fruit is ready to pick even though quite hard to the touch. Many of our best and indeed all late pears have to be gathered when hard to mature in their season, and it is best to anticipate the heavy gales of wind that prevail soon after this time of year by housing such as are ready to gather.

There is said to be no better county for apples than ours, and if this is any criterion for the crop in other sections it will pay well to take care of the apples this year. While there is no great scarcity, there will probably be no glut in our markets, and as the fruit is of very good quality owing to the abundance of moisture this season there will be very few seconds as compared with the season of 1896, and it is time to be looking after barrels, says a writer in American Gardening in concluding the foregoing notes for the benefit of fruit growers.

The journal mentioned says this currant is a cross between the cherry and white grape, having the size and color of the one and the mild acid flavor of the other, and was produced by Jacob Moore of Attica, N. Y.

LINCOLN'S JOKE.

How He Fixed the Responsibility For the Loss of Harper's Ferry.

President Lincoln's jokes, especially when perpetrated in connection with grave matters, usually had a purpose in them. After Lee had taken Harper's Ferry the president, realizing how great a calamity it was to the northern arms, determined if possible to fix the responsibility for the loss of the important position.

Halleck was summoned, but did not know where the blame lay. "Very well," said Lincoln, "I'll ask General Sobenck." The latter could throw no light upon the question, further than to say that he was not to blame. Milroy was the next to be called to the presence of the commander in chief and to enter a plea of "not guilty." Hooker was next given a hearing, and Fighting Joe made a very emphatic disclaimer of all responsibility.

Then the president assembled the four generals in his room and said to them: "Gentlemen, Harper's Ferry was surrendered and none of you, it seems, is responsible. I am very anxious to discover the man who is." After striding across the room several times the president suddenly threw up his bowed head and exclaimed: "I have it! I know who is responsible."

"Who, Mr. President; who is it?" asked the distinguished quartet as they looked anxious, if not troubled.

"Gentlemen," said the president, with a meaning twinkle in his eye, "General Lee is the man."

There was a lack of mirth in the laugh created, and the four generals took their departure with a determination that they would not again be placed under suspicion.—Detroit Free Press.

OFFICE OF W. A. MURRAY & CO., 17 to 27 King St., East, Toronto.

Wm. McCabe, Esq., Managing Director, N. A. L.:

DEAR SIR,—In answer to your request for me to decide upon one of the following options offered me for settlement of my 15-payment Life Investment Policy for $5,000 which has matured this year, viz:

1st to take the value of the Policy in Cash..... $3,000.00

2nd, or fully paid-up insurance for..... 3,250.00

3rd, or take the profits in cash and continue my policy without further payments being required from me, one policy participating in future profits. 2,050 28

I find it somewhat difficult to make a decision either of the three options being so satisfactory. I am certainly very much pleased with the results offered me, as I find many others are giving full testimony to the profit-earning power of this company. I do not hesitate to give my endorsement as well, that the North American Life is one of our strongest Canadian institutions to day giving first class results on Investment Policies, on a safe and conservative basis. I find that my policy, which was originally a Life by fifteen payments, has become an Endowment at the end of the investment period.

Permanent Cure of Chronic Headache.

It's hard to struggle along with a head that aches and pains all the time.

In nine cases out of ten persistent headaches are due to poisoned blood.

And the blood has been rendered impure in most instances through derangement of the liver, stomach and bowels.

The reason Burdock Blood Bitters makes permanent cures in all cases of headache is because it starts the organs of elimination acting freely. The poisons and impurities are carried off from the system.

Purified blood circulates in the brain cells and instead of pains and aches there is renewed mental and bodily vigor.

And the cure is permanent, such a cure as every chronic headache sufferer desires.

For proof we give you the statement of Mrs. F. D. Duffy of Lime Bank, Ont.

"For six months I suffered from severe headache, and not finding anything to cure me, resolved to try B.B.B., which I had heard highly recommended. I found it a perfect cure, and really believe it to be the best remedy for headache in existence. I only used two bottles and the cure has been perfect and permanent. I feel now like a new woman."

"There is so much trouble coming into the world," said Lord Bolingbroke, "and so much more in going out of it, that it is hardly worth while to be here at all." If a man and a philosopher comes to this conclusion, what must be the natural conclusion of the thousands of suffering women who undergo untold torture in bringing their babes into the world?

Philosophy of this kind is based upon gross ignorance. The fact is, that there is no necessity for the severe pangs undergone by the average woman. If a woman is strong and healthy in a womanly way, motherhood means to her but little suffering. The trouble lies in the fact that the majority of women suffer from weakness and disease of the distinctly feminine organism and are unfitted for motherhood. This can always be remedied. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a sure, speedy and permanent cure for all disorders of this description. It acts directly on the delicate and important organs concerned, making them healthy, strong, vigorous, virile and elastic. It banishes the indispositions of the period of expectancy and makes baby's advent easy and almost painless. It quickens and vitalizes the feminine organs, and insures a healthy and robust baby. Thousands of women have testified to its marvelous merits. Honest druggists do not offer substitutes, and urge them upon you as "just as good."

"I suffered fourteen years," writes Mrs. Mary J. Stewart, of Box 46, Saratoga, Santa Clara Co., Cal., with female weakness, nervousness and general debility. I tried everything to no avail. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery' cured me."

The names, addresses and photographs of hundreds of women cured by Dr. Pierce's medicines are printed by permission in the "People's Common Sense Medical Adviser." It's free. For a paper-covered copy send 21 one-cent stamps to cover customs and mailing only. Cloth binding 50 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

PARIS POLICE SPIES.

THEY KEEP TAB ON EVERY STRANGER IN THE FRENCH CAPITAL.

Where and How You Go, Who You Meet and Even What You Say Are All Recorded at Police Headquarters—How the "Mouchard" Works.

More curious than all its strange callings and its strange customs is the police system in Paris. Every hotel must keep a register of all foreigners and hand it over daily to the special officers who are sent around to collect them. In the case of the English or American citizen little interest is taken unless their expenditure is noticeably extravagant, and then a friendly interest is taken in them and their description sent to Scotland Yard.

It is almost impossible to conceive the thoroughness of the French police spy system. You never know who is a mouchard in France. The waiter who serves you, the man who shaves you, the cocher who drives you, are as likely as not to be in the police pay. They know everything, and they know everybody. Here is an instance that occurred to a friend of mine only the other day. He received from the prefecture an order to appear on the following day. So far as he knew, he had done nothing particularly out of the way, and even if he had he had done it unintentionally. The magistrate invited him into his private room and put him at his ease at once by explaining that the affair did not concern him personally, but he wanted some information on two or three of the English colony with whom he was associated. The answers were perfectly satisfactory, and in leaving he turned to the magistrate and said laughingly, "Now, why don't you ask me something about myself?" "But I know all about you," he replied. "Would you like to know what you did on any particular day within the last three months?"

My friend replied at random: "Take last Friday week. I haven't the remotest knowledge as to what happened."

The magistrate turned over his dossier and replied: "You got home at half past 2 in a cab that you had taken at the Madeline. You rode out on your bicycle at half past 9. You lunched at the Cafe de l'Esperance." And so on throughout the day he recounted everything that had passed. There was no reason to have made the inquiry, as there was not the slightest mark on his dossier, but it suited the police to know just how he passed his time.

A casserole—that is to say, a mouchard—who has by some indiscretion let his connection with the police become known and is accordingly valueless once told me a lot about the working of the system. I had pointed out to him that it seemed to me thoroughly impossible that I could have my footsteps dogged during a whole day without becoming aware of the fact. He answered: "Naturally. This, for instance, is how I should have acted if I had wanted to find out all about your movements. When you left this cafe, I should have followed you until such time as I knew you had noticed that I was at your heels. Then I should have passed the signal." "To whom?" I suggested. "Have you ever noticed," he said, "that around all the big cafes there are men offering novels out of date, but who are always scanning closely the faces of those on the terrasses? Well, I should have passed the signal on to one of those men... He would have followed you in a cab, if necessary, and on seeing you enter a cafe would have followed on the pretense of selling wares and handed you on to another of the band. And so it would have gone on.

"After all, are the French police wrong? The foreigner comes here and inscribes his name at the prefecture of police. We are not like you in England. We have only just enough money for our own poor, and we do not encourage the out of works of the world to come here. Neither do we want to harbor criminals. Accordingly the police trace the man, and if they find that he is honorably earning his existence he is left in peace, but if there is a shadow of suspicion against him his dossier gets heavier every day, and one morning he finds that he has 48 hours in which to quit the country. It is owing to this system that the police find it comparatively easy to arrest criminals. The vilest class of ruffian and the painted women you meet in the night cafes are all useful, the women especially. Your own servant may be spying on you. Your concierge certainly is."

He hesitated for a minute and then said to me in a semiwhisper, "Watch that gentleman in front with the ribbon of the Legion of Honor in his buttonhole." I looked at him, but noticed nothing particular, except that he seemed very intent in his newspaper. "That's a mouchard," he continued. "I'm prepared to bet he has heard every word that has passed. If you had eyed him as closely as I have, you would have noticed that he has been looking at the same paragraph for over an hour." The man paid for his drink and went out. Next morning I suppose his report was sent in.

The ruses of these men in finding out persons who are "wanted" have no limit. Only the other day the English police had sent over the description of a man they would like to put in the dock. As he spoke French without the slightest accent, and as it was certain that he would be disguised out of all recognition, the task was a difficult one. One afternoon two of these detectives noticed a well dressed man and suspected him. One of them took off his overcoat and hung it up side by side with his. A few minutes later they got up to leave, and the wrong coat was put on. In the most fluent and polite French the suspected man pointed out the error. The mouchard took it off and looked at the name of the maker and saw that it was a London firm. They had found their man.—Today.

APPALLING DEATH

From Kidney Disease Prevented by Dodd's Kidney Pills, Only.

"Kidney Disease." Do you know what it means? It means that the kidneys are either rotten, or rotting; the blood is full of poisonous, death-dealing corruption; that the Kidneys can't do their work; that the victim is a walking charnel-house; that his hours are numbered; that the victim MUST take Dodd's Kidney Pills if he does not want to die.

Have you Kidney Disease? Is your skin hot and dry; memory failing; breath short; urine, reddish, or pale colored; does it scald when passing; is your appetite changeable; do your ankles swell; have you bitter taste in the mouth on getting up mornings; is there a brick-dust deposit in your urine?

Any of these signs is proof positive of Kidney Disease. Will you be cured, or will you die? Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only means on earth that will cure you. They never fail.

JOHN BLOW'S TESTIMONY.

Says Dodd's Kidney Pills Saved His Life Recently.

Toronto, Oct. 24—The many Torontonians who know Mr. John Blow, 67 Princess Street, have been in a state of amazement for some time past, because Mr. Blow, who, for years was a great sufferer from Diabetes, has fully recovered, and is now as well as ever, though his case was said to be helpless.

"I was cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills," said Mr. Blow, "the only medicine on earth that can cure this terrible disease."

So it does. Dodd's Kidney Pills are keeping up their grand work for human health and happiness unceasingly.

Boston Wants the Next L. A. W. Meet.

Boston men are working hard to secure the L. A. W. '99 meet. They have received many promises of support from prominent L. A. W. members throughout the country. "Buffalo's chances for the meet," says Walter Barnes, "have slipped away, and now it is an assured thing for Boston. Boston possesses many attractions that cannot be found in any other city. The park system is one of the finest, and the country adjoining has many beautiful drives. The citizens are hospitable, and they will open the gates to the wheelmen for a week or longer if necessary. The many cycle clubs in and about Boston cannot be surpassed by any city in the country, and they will keep open house for visitors during the meet. The committeemen in charge of Boston's interests say that their supporters will include several prominent New Yorkers."

All forms of scrofula, sores, boils, pimples and eruptions, are quickly and permanently cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Cow Feed.

I assume that every one knows that there is no food better than good pasture grass for cows in summer, supplemented perhaps with a light grain ration or some soiling crop when pasture grasses fail, and what I say about foods and rations applies more especially to winter feeding. I have never found anything better than wheat bran, ground oats, oil-cake meal and cornmeal out of which to compound a grain ration for dairy cows. Rye, barley, peas and perhaps other grains may be used in the grain mixture. Cows like a mixed ration of grain and do better on it than on any one kind. If cows are inclined to take on flesh, leave out the cornmeal.

For fodder I know of nothing better or cheaper or better relished by cows than corn silage put up at the proper time and manner. Of course corn silage is not recommended as an exclusive fodder ration, but once a day, say in the morning, 30 to 40 pounds to each cow. At evening feed well made, early cut clover hay if possible. At noon feed whatever rough fodder you have at hand. If you are obliged to feed timothy hay, cut it early. Do not expect to get much milk from cows fed on ripe timothy hay. A cow should never be fed more than she will eat up clean.

Where silage does not form part of the fodder ration I strongly recommend the feeding of roots of some kind at least once a day if possible—say mangels, sugar beets, carrots, parsnips or potatoes. These are not recommended so much for their nutritive value as for their corrective qualities. I believe cows are less liable to have garget when fed once a day on succulent foods. Feed liberally; profits lie in the direction of liberal feeding. Dairy cows should have free access to salt. If not, they should be salted at least every other day.—R. S. Clingman.

That "Old Smell."

The correspondent whose butter when fresh made has an "old smell" evidently has a mechanical trouble to deal with, because he has heretofore made good butter. I once had a similar case and found the oil in the coloring matter used was rank. Again, the same fault came from a barrel churn that was not sufficiently aired and not having a large enough manhole. If the fault lies with the cows, you can smell it in the milk when first drawn and warm. A good dairyman should have a good nose.

Women's Worst Enemy

Some hesitate before giving an answer, but those who know best will immediately say HEADACHE.

Thousands of women live in misery day after day, and week after week, suffering untold agony from these dreadful headaches. Husbands are disheartened, children neglected, and happy homes ruined. Most women strive to bear in patience the suffering which they consider part of life without looking into the cause or searching for relief. Food cannot digest without the bile which the liver supplies and hence the necessity of keeping the liver in good working order. To cure the headaches you must cure the liver and thus remove the cause of disease.

Dr. Chase spent years of his life in perfecting a medicine which acts directly on the kidneys and liver. Thousands of grateful women have testified during the past ten years to the effectiveness of this remedy for sick headaches. Many a home has been restored to happiness as a result.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, the greatest discovery of this great scientist, are put up to sell 25 doses for 25c. All dealers.

LESSONS IN SLANG.

The Teacher Began Well, but Soon Came to Grief.

In spite of the fact that she wanted to learn a little something about the subject, it seems probable that she was better versed in some features of it than he thought. In truth, the demure appearance of a girl or a woman does not necessarily make it safe to draw any conclusions as to her knowledge of those features of our language not usually recognized in polite society.

"John," she said, "I want you to give me the meaning of some slang words."

"Why, of course," he replied. "Fire ahead."

There is nothing that pleases a man more, you know, than any sort of an intimation from a woman that he knows more than she does about any subject. Things of that sort occur so seldom.

"What is a 'cinch?'"

"That's easy," he replied. You know, in the west the knot a cowboy ties in his saddle girth is called a cinch, the feature of it being that it positively will not slip or come loose. From that we sort of reason that—er"—

"Yes."

"Well, it conveys the idea of something that holds tight."

"Like matrimony?"

"Well, not exactly. Matrimony is sometimes a cinch, but not always—not by a good deal."

There was just a suggestion of some sinister meaning underlying this, but before she had time to go very deeply into it he hastened to explain that cinch meant something that was easy—a certainty.

"For instance," he went on, "when I made up my mind to ask you to marry me, it was a cinch that I would get you."

"Oh, it was, was it?" she demanded, suddenly showing unmistakable signs of aggressiveness. "And what is a bluff? Can you tell me that?"

"Why—er—er—a bluff is—er"—

"When you told me you could support me in the style to which I had been accustomed," she interrupted, "I suppose that was a bluff."

Sometimes a man whose bump of humor is abnormally developed is unable to see the point of a joke when he is the butt of it. Possibly that may explain the strained relations that existed in that household for as much as half a day.—Chicago Post.

Pouring Oil on Troubled Waters.

The Indiana was kept dry by the dripping of oil from both bows, and, although tremendous seas were running and breaking, they could not come on board.

This was certainly a most practical illustration of the old saying as to the "pouring of oil on troubled waters," a proverb as old as the Bible, but only very recently applied, thanks to the hydrographic office of the United States, and now very generally followed by seamen the world over. It was an American also (Redfield) who first thoroughly found out and explained the true character of these revolving storms, and to him all seamen are forever indebted.

In using oil it is astonishing how small a quantity will suffice—just a quart or two in a bag stuffed with oakum hung over the bows and allowed to drip drop by drop on the sea, where it spreads out in a thin greasy film over the surface of the water. Over the film the wind slips, as it were, and has no power to bank the water up into waves which would break over the ship. Hundreds of reports are on file in the office attesting the marvelous results of this simple agent of safety.—St. Nicholas.

No other remedy can present such a record of permanent cures as B. B. B. It not only gives every sufferer prompt relief in such diseases as arise from disorders of the stomach, liver, blood and bowels, but makes cure so lasting that even after ten or twelve years there has been no return of the trouble.

POPULAR BOATING.

Three Styles of Boat Which Any Boy Can Make.

The simplest styles of rowboat are the sharpie, the punt and the scow. The sharpie has a pointed bow and flat stern, and it is a true boat shape, having the curved sides and the bottom slightly raised at the stern. The punt is a flat bottomed affair, slightly rounded at both ends, with the bottom rising at stem and stern. A scow, the simplest and easiest to make of all, has straight sides and flat bottom, beveled at both ends. As both bow and stern are the same, this, as well as the punt, can be rowed forward or backward without turning it about, as it is necessary to do with the sharpie. The scow will be found the easiest one to construct, but the hardest one to row, owing to its blunt ends.

Early Accidents

Cause Lifelong Suffering. A Case that is Causing Talk.

When a lad about eight years of age I fell into a cellar a distance of ten feet, striking on my head, and causing concussion of the brain. I was taken to a London, Eng., Hospital, the first seven days not recovering consciousness. I am now 35 years old and from the time of my accident until I began taking Dr. Ward's Pills five months ago I had been subject to fainting spells, never being more than two weeks without an attack of fainting. As I grew older these spells became more frequent, lasted longer, and left me with less vitality. I was weak, had no strength or stamina, always very low-spirited and down-hearted; imagined that every thing and every person was going against me, and life only had a dark side for me. My appetite was poor most of the time, but I am now happy to say that, since taking Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills, I have only had one fainting spell, shortly after I began taking them, so I have no hesitation in saying that Dr. Ward's Pills cured me. Before taking these pills I always looked for a fainting spell not more than two weeks apart; now, I would be greatly surprised at a recurrence of these spells. Life is now bright—the constant, morbid, down-hearted feeling is gone, being replaced by a contented, hopeful feeling. I feel like working. My appetite is good, and in every respect I have experienced the health and strength restoring properties of Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills. They certainly have proved a great blessing to me. Yours truly, (Signed), Thomas Stanton, Brighton, Ont.

THE GRAND TRUNK.

The Pioneer Railway Coming to the Fore.

Montreal; Herald.

The Grand Trunk Railway has evidently found favour with its own shareholders in England, an aspiration long cherished hopelessly by the directors and the management in Canada. If we can accept the statements made by Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson and Mr. Joseph Price at the last meeting of shareholders, it is to Mr. Hays' through equipment as a railway manager, to his good judgment in promoting reforms, and to his patience in awaiting results, that most of this is due. It is a high compliment to the management of the road when an experienced observer like Mr. Price boasts to a roomful of railway critics that with a Grand Trunk timetable before him he could set his watch by the arrival of a train at any station. Under the old regime this could not be done, and one of the first regulations by which Mr. Hays gave his subordinates along the line a taste of his mettle is said to have been an instruction to the engine-drivers that they must run their trains on time or give place to men who would. This was the beginning of a brace-up in the whole system. A great railway cannot be pulled out of a hole in a day, or even in a year, but there is every evidence that Mr. Hays is doing it as fast as possible, and every Canadian will welcome the day when he has made his success complete.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

No Let up to the Dullness Prevailing in These Markets.

(Montreal Star)

There is no indication at present of a change in the situation of the dairy produce market, which is dull and listless, the slump in prices having checked business. Nearly all the fancy September cheese was purchased at prices much above 9 cents, and as nothing over this figure can now be realized long holding or acceptance of the loss are the only alternatives. Most dealers appear to be holding. For western August cheese the range is 8½ to 8¾c, and for eastern 8½ to 8¼c, but there is little trading even at these figures. The receipts to-day were 7,615 boxes of cheese, and of butter 1,491 packages.

The New York Journal of Commerce says:

As ocean freight rates will be five shillings higher on Saturday's Liverpool steamer than the mid-week steamer to-morrow, there is a little call from one or two exporters for shipments at the lower rate. The market generally, however, is devoid of life, and though receipts are quite moderate of large full cream cheese they are apparently ample for all requirements. In exceptional instances a few specially fancy fancy factories were taken to-day at 8¾c, but that figure is certainly extreme, as 8½c is all that can be depended upon for average best factories here. Small size full cream meeting only a moderate demand from the home trade, but fancy grades hold fairly steady and with confidence. Very little movement in skims and values nominally unchanged.

Butter is a very dull market, with 18½ cents an outside figure for the fanciest of fresh made creamery in boxes. Tubs do not run above 18½ cents, and dairy is a slow market at 14 to 14½c.

SAVED FROM THE GRAVE.

Miss Maud Cotterell's Tribute to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Belleville, Oct. 31.—"I have been like a person half dead for months."

So says Miss Maud Cotterell, speaking of her rescue from the clutches of Bright's Disease.

"I could neither sit up nor lie down and had almost given up hope.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me fully and quickly. They have saved me from the grave."

It has been proven thousands of times that Dodd's Kidney Pills cure Bright's Disease every time they get a chance.

Bright's Disease KILLS every time it gets a chance.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only remedy on earth that prevents Bright's Disease from killing, by routing it out of the system entirely.

Kaiser William at Jerusalem.

Jerusalem, Oct. 31.—Emperor William and Empress Augusta Victoria, with their suites, arrived in perfect health at the encampment outside the town on Saturday.

At 11 o'clock Their Majesties entered the Jaffa gate and at 3 o'clock visited the Church of the Holy Sepulchre. The streets presented a lively appearance, and the buildings were lavishly decorated.

The formal entry through the Jaffa Gate was heralded by the roar of guns at the Citadel, where the Turkish band played the German Anthem.

From the Tower of David, Emperor William and Empress Augusta Victoria proceeded on foot.

Yesterday the Imperial pair attended services at the Evangelical Church at Bethlehem, afterwards paying a visit to the Church of the Nativity.

Emperor William and the Empress, while at the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, spent ten minutes at the scene of the crucifixion.

Germany With Britain.

Berlin, Oct. 30.—The French crisis is anxiously watched in Germany. In the Fashoda question the German Government, as well as the German newspapers, distinctly side with Great Britain, as British dominion over the Soudan is held to be in every respect better for German interests, especially from a commercial point of view.

Mussulman Murderers Executed.

Candia, Island of Crete, Oct. 31.—Five more of the Mussulmans convicted of taking part in the massacres of British soldiers on Sept. 6 were executed on Saturday. In addition, four Bashi Bazouks have been sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment at hard labor. Despatches from Candia on Oct. 18 last announced that ten Mussulmans were hanged there for participation in the massacre of Sept. 6.

A Cyclone in London.

London, Oct. 31.—During a severe storm last night a small area, about half a mile square, around Denmark Hill, Camberwell, London, was visited by a veritable cyclone. Cabs were overturned, windows, doors, lampposts, trees and chimneys blown down, and a number of houses unroofed. The contents of numerous hawkers' stalls were carried hundreds of yards in the air by the wind and many people were injured by the flying debris, which did also immense damage to property.

Will the Spaniards Quit?

Paris, Oct. 31.—Senor Montero Rios, President of the Spanish Peace Commission, is ill. This caused some doubt last evening as to whether there will be a joint session to-day. There is a strong impression, which has been growing here recently, that the Spanish, upon receiving definite assurances of the American determination to take the entire Philippine group, would quit the conference.

About the Prince's Knee.

London, Oct. 31.—The Prince of Wales, who is now at Marlborough House, contemplates going to his Norfolk home, where the Princess, on her return from Copenhagen, will join him. The Prince seems now to have quite recovered from his recent serious accident, as he has been deer-stalking in the Highlands.

WHAT A MAN'S WORTH

THE VALUE OF A MAN'S BODILY FLESH PER POUND.

A Farm Hand's Is Estimated at $44.43 Per Sixteen Ounces, While That of the Governor-General's Body Is Said to Be Worth $11,111.10 for the Same Weight—Interesting Life Calculations.

How much is your body worth to you? If you are a millionaire you are very likely to answer that your body is worth wealth untold. If you are a streetsweeper you don't place a very exalted estimate on it. There is a way to ascertain just how much your body is worth to you, figuring on the basis that all the wealth of the world is the product of labor.

The more money a man can produce each year the more valuable, of course, is his body to him. The less money a man can produce the less valuable is his body. The railroad president's body is worth a vast fortune. On the other extreme, the body of a tramp, a criminal, a lunatic or a beggar is worth literally less than nothing.

The poor laborer who is prone to imagine himself of very little use in the world and his body of little benefit to anyone will be surprised to know that he is in the possession of a handsome legacy, from which, by the proper exercise of his hands, he draws a yearly interest.

For instance, take the case of the ordinary "farm hand." He is found all over the Dominion. He gets, say, an average wage amounting to $200 a year. How much do you suppose that man's body is worth to him? Just about $6.66b. For his $200 a year is to him in the nature of an investment at an annual interest rate of 3 per cent. Tell him he's worth $6,666 and he won't believe you. But he'll go on drawing his yearly interest just the same.

Then there is the carpenter. He's a valuable bit of dust, this workman. So is the painter. So is the mason. So is every other skilled mechanic. Some will earn more money than others, but a true average will be about $500 a year. The body of that carpenter, mason or painter is worth $16,666. Seems queer, doesn't it? A good many of them would doubtless like to realize their entire principal at once.

Look at the $15-a-week young man, the clerk in the lawyer's office, the beau of the ribbon counter or the starting stenographer. He has to count his pennies to pay his board and keep himself looking neat, with an occasional flyer at the theater or on an excursion. Do you suppose he would be so careful if he knew he was worth $36,000? Well, hardly. Yet that is just the sum his labor figures out as a 3 per cent. investment proposition.

Then, when he gets a raise and draws $25 in his envelope every Saturday, he may ascertain by mathematical reasoning that his body is worth $48,333. Pretty good for a clerk, eh?

Of course, the professional men are worth big money. The civil engineer who draws a salary of $1,800 a year may reckon that he is worth $60,000. The physician whose practice brings him in $2,500 every twelve months has a principal of $83,333 to brag of. The pastor of one of the big city churches, a minister whose income may be $4,000 a year, is worth $133,333. The lawyers, the gentlemen who get all the fame, position and money, when they command an income of $10,000 a year are worth on the whole $333,333.

Down in Ottawa there are hundreds of officials whose bodies represent fortunes. The Governor-General, for instance, is worth the comfortable sum of $1,666,666.

The following table will serve to show that the flesh of human beings is a mighty precious variety of meat, for when you consider a man's avoirdupois in relation to his capital stock you get results like these, each man being given an average weight of 15 pounds and the valuation being per pound:

Farm hand	$ 44.43
Skilled laborer	111.10
Clerk, from $173.33 to	288.88
Professional man, from $100 to	2,222.22
Governor-General of Canada	11,111.10

Religions of the World.

A reliable estimate gives an interesting comparative view of the world's great religions. The numbers of their adherents are: Christianity, 477,000,000; worship of ancestors and Confucianism, 256,000,000, Mohammedanism, 176,000,000; Buddhism, 148,000,000; Taoism, 43,000,000; Shintoism, 14,000,000; Polytheism, 117,000,000; Judaism, 7,000,000. Geographically, the followers of various religions are divided thus: Europe, Catholics, 160,000,000; Protestants, 80,000,000; Orthodox believers, 82,000,000. America, Catholics, 58,000,000; Protestants, 57,000,000. Africa, Catholics, 2,600,000; Protestants, 1,750,000; Mohammedans, 110,000,000. The total number of Methodists in the world is about 30,000,000. In Great Britain alone there are nearly 800 religious sects. The adherents of the Established Church are officially put down at 15,000,000, but the figure is no doubt an exaggeration. There are in the United Kingdom 400,000 Baptist church members and 500,000 Sunday school scholars; 600,000 Methodist members and 1,500,000 scholars; 500,000 Congregational members; 300,000 Welsh Calvinistic members; and 80,000 Jews. The Unitarians have some 250 congregations in England alone; the Society of Friends number about 18,00000, and the Salvation Army, the most remarkable religious organization of modern times, has a round million of adherents.
